First exhibited at Royal Academy 1837; retired 1896. Presented to the nation the greater part of his life-work, now called "The Watts Collection," in the National Gallery of British Art, and some forty or more portraits of the distinguished men of his time, many of which are already in the National Portrait Gallery. This project, in his mind for many years, was undertaken "partly in the hope that the pictures might form a nucleus of a National Gallery of purely British Art" (now realised through the munificence of Sir Henry Tate), partly "to identify art with the best in the conscience and the action of the age." Inaugurated a record of heroic deeds done in everyday life, and built the first memorial wall at St. Botolph's, Aldersgate, recording the names of some who have lost their lives in the endeavour to save life. Received the distinction of the Order of Merit on its institution by King Edward VII. Address: Little Holland House, 6 Melbury Road, Kensington, W.; Limnerslease, Compton, Guildford. FROM THE PREFACE

IT is noteworthy that, during a period of more than a quarter of a century, no guide to the Learned World which claims a common tongue has ever been printed in the language with which it is most familiar. "Athena" fills the apparent void—tardily perhaps, but, we venture to think, propitiously; whether there is elbow-room for such a guide, time will show, but sales alone will not make for complete success. The generous co-operation of all institutions which should appear in its pages is equally important. From overseas we have obtained every assistance in our efforts to make our work accurate and complete; where we have sinned by omission it is rather from inadvertence on our part than from lack of information when it has been sought.

In such a compilation errors are, unfortunately, unavoidable, especially in the initial volume, and we shall take it as a favour if these are pointed out to us. Again, some institutions which should rightly find a place in our pages are wanting. We cannot include every university and college, society and museum; but there may be some entitled to a place which we may have omitted, and to these we would ask that our attention be drawn—a remark which applies more especially to overseas institutions.

Should "Athena" meet with the approval which we hope, it is our intention to increase its scope by including the Learned Institutions of our Allies. Before another issue becomes due, we trust that they will have reverted to something approaching normal conditions; their inclusion will certainly add to the utility of "Athena."

INDISPENSABLE BOOKS OF REFERENCE

WHO'S WHO.

An Annual Biographical Dictionary. Nearly 3000 pages.

Some Press Opinions.—"A National Institution."—"One is horrified to contemplate existence without 'Who's Who.'"—"Its non-appearance would be a public inconvenience."—"The one reference book that no one can afford to be without."

WHO WAS WHO, 1897-1916.

The Biographies of those in "Who's Who" who have died during the above 20 years.

This volume contains the biographies taken from "WHO'S WHO" of those who have died during the twenty years between 1897-1916. The date of death has been added in almost every instance.

TITLES: A Guide to the Right Use of British Titles and Honours.

With the multiplication of titles and honours that is continually going on, there are few who at one time or another are not brought into contact with them; and to judge by the mistakes that are made every day in newspapers and elsewhere, some such assistance to their right use as will be found here should be of service.

THE WRITERS' & ARTISTS' YEAR-BOOK.

Edited by G. E. MITTON. Giving in compact form some 1000 addresses to which MSS. may be sent, and the kind of "copy" preferred.

From the Editor's Letter Bag.—"I find your Writer's Year-Book gives me just the information which I had long desired to possess, but which I was unable to obtain until a year ago, when the book was brought under my notice."

ATHENA: A Year-Book of Learned Institutions.

(THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING NATIONS.)

Edited by C. A EALAND.

It is noteworthy that, during a period of more than a quarter of a century, no guide to the Learned World which claims a common tongue has ever been printed in the language with which it is most familiar. "ATHENA" fills the apparent void—tardily perhaps, but, we venture to think, propitiously; should "ATHENA" prove successful it is hoped in the next issue to include the Learned Institutions of our Allies, who will by that time, we trust, have reverted to something approaching normal conditions.

BLACK'S MEDICAL DICTIONARY.

Edited by JOHN D. COMRIE, M.A., M.B., F.R.C.P. (Edin.). Sixth Edition, completing 40,000 Copies, illustrated in colour.

A very useful and clearly-written volume which, while carefully avoiding abstruse and intricate technicalities, affords information upon all important medical subjects in a form which places it within the comprehension of those who lack scientific training and scientific knowledge.

BLACK'S DOMESTIC DICTIONARY.

Edited by EDITH A. BROWNE, F.R.G.S., and MYRIAM ROTHSCHILD.

Black's "DOMESTIC DICTIONARY" is an entirely new work, up-to-date in every detail, compiled and written by those having first-hand knowledge of the conditions under which we are now living, and of the things necessary for managing a home on the right lines of economy and efficiency; it is thorough in all its features, taking up a subject from its foundation point to finish.

BLACK'S GARDENING DICTIONARY.

Edited by E. T. ELLIS, F.R.H.S., assisted by the leading gardening experts and specialists of our time.

The awakening which the war wrought in the art and practice of gardening was wonderful. Its sphere has been extended in all directions, and it has become necessary to revise the older methods and bring ourselves into line with the latest ideas and improvements. It is to help this forward in a practical way that this book has been undertaken.
