FOREWORD

The Indian School of International Studies, founded in October 1955, is an institution for advanced study and research in international affairs and area studies. Since September 1961, the School has been recognized by the Union Government, in concurrence with the University Grants Commission (U.G.C.), as an institution of University status with the right to confer its own degrees. The School is financed entirely by the U.G.C.

The School offers a three-year course leading to the Ph.D. degree of the School. The minimum qualification for admission to the School is an M.A. degree in History, Politics, Economics, International Relations, Sociology, Law, Geography, or African Studies. Apart from "regular students" who work for the Ph.D. degree of the School, we also admit "special students" who work for the Ph.D. degree of other universities, and "casual students" who do not work for any degree but would like merely to make use of the facilities at the School for study and research. The School also has provision for the recognition of "research scholars" who desire to carry on research under the guidance of the teachers of the School, like senior U.G.C. fellowship-holders. Most of the students of the School are Indians hailing from different States of the country, but we do have some foreign scholars too. The School will always be glad to consider applications from foreign scholars for work under the auspices of the School in any of the above categories.

At present, the School offers courses leading to the Ph.D. degree in the following fields: International Politics and Organization, European Studies, International Economics, International Law, East Asian Studies, West Asian Studies, South Asian Studies, South-east Asian Studies, Central Asian Studies, Commonwealth Studies, American Studies, and Soviet Studies.

During the first year, students will study the following compulsory subjects: International Politics and Organization, International Law, International Economics, and Political Geography and History and Institutions of a region. After an examination in these subjects, they are permitted to register themselves for the Ph.D. degree.

Study and research at the School is not limited to the study of books and documents. In most cases, a student is enabled to do a certain amount of field research to give him the benefit of first-hand study of the area to which the subject relates, as well as personal discussion with the knowledgeable persons concerned in the area.

At present, the School has a modest teaching faculty of 24 teachers as Professors, Readers, and Lecturers. It also has six Research Fellows. All the senior members of the staff have had various periods of field experience and/or study and research abroad. In addition to regular members of the Faculty, the School has provision for visiting appointments, many of which have been held in the past by foreign scholars. The strength of the Faculty is fast increasing and is expected to double itself by the end of the Third-Plan period.

The joint Library of the School and the Indian Council of World Affairs, which is available to all scholars associated with the School, is the best research library in India on international affairs and area studies. Constant efforts are being made to improve the holdings of the Library, as well as to extend the existing facilities.

The School has provision for instruction in many foreign languages as aids to research. At present there is provision for the teaching of the following foreign languages: Arabic, French, Indonesia, Japanese, Chinese, Spanish, Russian and Tibetan. Facilities for the study of other languages can be made when required.

For the last four years, the School has been offering a four-month course in international affairs to the probationers of the Indian Foreign Service. Last year, we also gave a nine-month course to the officers of the Foreign Service of the Government of Kuwait.

From the time of its establishment in October 1955 until December last year, Dr. A. Appadorai, the eminent scholar-administrator, was the Director of the School. During those years he laid a sound foundation for the School, on which we hope to develop further during the coming years.

The School has received the co-operation and assistance of many corporate bodies and persons during the last nine months of its existence. On behalf of the School, we wish to express our gratitude to all of them. In particular, we wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to the Government of India, the University Grants Commission, the Reserve Bank of India, the Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation, the British Council, and the State Governments which have instituted scholarships at the School.

CONVOCATION

The most outstanding event of the year under review is the holding of the School's first Convocation. For some years, the School's students applied for the Ph.D. degree of the Delhi University in view of the School's affiliation to that University during the early years (until September 1961).

The first Convocation of the School was held in Sapru House, New Delhi on 7 May 1964. Pandit H.N. Kunzru, President of the Board of Governors of the School, presided. The Convocation Address was delivered by Dr. D. S. Kothari, Chairman of the University Grants Commission.

The solemn proceedings began with the traditional academic procession. The candidates were formally presented by the Head of the Department concerned. Dr. A. Appadorai, Director of the School, read the citation in each case and conferred the degrees. The School's Degree of Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) was conferred on the following eleven students. ## STUDENTS

Admissions:

The School being an institution for advanced studies and research, it has been its policy to admit only those persons as students who have had a satisfactory academic career and teaching and/or research experience in one of the following disciplines: History, Politics, Economics, Sociology, Law, Geography, International Relations, and African Studies.

On 1 October 1963, there were 79 students on the rolls of the School. Of these, 71 were regular students and 4 casual students and 4 special students; 69 of them came from twelve States in the country while the remaining 10 belonged to Nepal, Iran, Canada, the United States and Australia.

27 students were admitted to the School for the academic year which commenced on 14 October 1963: 2 in the Department of South Asia, 3 in the Department of International Politics and Organization, 4 in the Department of South-east Asia, 6 in the Department of International Economics, 3 in the Department of International Law, 6 in the Department of East Asian Studies, 2 in the Department of West Asian Studies and 1 in the Department of American Studies. Of these students, 22 belonged to ten different States in the country, and 5 came from foreign countries, namely, Indonesia and the United States (for details, see Appendix I).

Scholarships:

Sixteen scholarships ranging in value from Rs. 150/- to Rs. 400/- a month were awarded. The sources of these scholarships were the Government of India, the University Grants Commission, private foundations and State Governments.

During the period, the scholarships of 13 students were renewed.

Field Work by Students:

During the academic year under review, six students of the School were sent to foreign countries for field work. The countries visited by these students were Indonesia, Japan, Lebanon, Singapore, the United Kingdom and the United States. One student (Shri K. Krishna Rao) was deputed to Calcutta for field work. Shri P. K. Das returned to India after completing field work in the United Kingdom.

Students' Welfare:

There are two funds to help deserving students with money: the Welfare Fund and the Students' Aid Fund. The object of the Welfare Fund is to advance, on application, small loans to students and junior members of the administrative staff of the School. The Fund consists of voluntary contributions from the members of the Faculty and other staff.

The Students' Aid Fund was instituted on the proposal of the U.G.C., which also makes a matching contribution. The object of this Fund is to help students, in deserving cases, in matters of medical treatment, payment of tuition fees, purchase of books and stationery, and in undertaking field work. Both these funds continued to operate as usual during the period under report.

A report of the Students' Association is in Appendix IX.

LECTURES AND SEMINARS

In addition to regular lectures for first-year research students, special lectures and seminars relating to international and regional problems were arranged at the School. The Commonwealth Seminar met twenty times during this period, and the speakers included Shri R. Fell (U.K.), Shri T. E. Smith (U.K.), Shri S. U. Kodikara (Ceylon), Shri K. B. Lall, Shri R. H. Belcher (U.K.), Shri E. R. Rettie (Canada), Shri C. S. Jha, Shri Inder Malhotra, Shri Dinesh Singh, Shri P.K. Das, Shri Roshanlal Gupta, Shri K. In the Department of South-east Asia, seminars were addressed by Shri Harry J. Benda (U.S.A.), Shri Russel H. Fifield (U.S.A.), Shri K. G. Tregoning (Malaysia), Shri Sisir Gupta, Shri Ch. A. Sani of Indonesian Embassy, Shri W. S. Desai, Dr. J. N. Khosla and Dr. S. Krishnamurthy.

RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS

During the year under review, eleven students were declared eligible for the Ph.D. degree of the School. Their research work related, broadly, to the following fields of study: Indo-Nepalese Relations, Cambodian Nationalism, Indian National Movement, Central Asian Republics, Contemporary Political Ideas in America, Afghanistan, and Trade Movements in India. Five theses were under evaluation during this period: these related to problems in American Studies, South-east Asia, the Commonwealth and South Asia. Altogether, fifty-two theses were in progress as on 30 September 1964 in the various Departments of the School (for details on these points, see Appendices III, IV and V).

Dr. M. S. Rajan's India in World Affairs, 1954-56 was published (under the auspices of the Indian Council of World Affairs) during the year. This massive work deals with India's foreign policy and relations during a particularly eventful period of recent history. Dr. Nagendra Singh published the following books: International Conventions on Merchant Shipping and Defence Mechanism of the Modern State. Dr. Bimla Prasad's Socialism, Sarvodaya and Democracy: Selected Works of Jayaprakash Narayan also came out of the press. Dr. Prasad plans to bring out another book on Jayaprakash Narayan's writings. He is also planning several volumes of documents on Jawaharlal Nehru and India's foreign policy, in addition to a long-term project on the diplomatic history of India. Dr. M. S. Venkataramani's Undercurrents of US Foreign Policy, Dr. K. P. Karunakaran's Continuity and Change in Indian Politics, Dr. Vaidyanath's Select Russian Sources for the Study of Soviet Nationalities Policy in Central Asia up to 1936 and Dr. Anirudha Gupta's Politics and Parties in Nepal 1950-60: A Study of Post-Rana Political Development and Party Politics went to the press during the year. Dr. V. P. Dutt's book China's Foreign Policy, 1958-1962 was published by Messrs Asia Publishing House.

In addition to the above, a large number of papers and articles were published by members of the School in various learned journals in India and abroad (see Appendix VI).

The projected co-operative study entitled India's Foreign Relations (being the Tenth Anniversary Volume of the School) made considerable progress during the year under review. Moreover, it was decided that the projected study, originally planned to cover the period 1947-62, should extend to the end of the Nehru era, and that it should be dedicated to the memory of the late Prime Minister (for details, see Appendix VII).

The quarterly research journal of the School International Studies entered upon its sixth year of publication and had a new editor (with effect from July 1964) in Dr. M. S. Rajan. Dr. Appadorai then became Chairman of the Board of Editors.

As on 30 September 1964 nine monographs have been published under the auspices of the School (see Appendix VIII. Monographs under preparation are also given in the same Appendix.).

THE LIBRARY

The Library of the School works in close co-ordination with the Library of the Indian Council of World Affairs. Moreover, the School has lately been spending substantial sums of money on acquiring research material and the recruitment of qualified library staff to cater to the specialized requirements of our research scholars. Recently the School has appointed two Documentation Officers, one each for East Asia and West Asia, to assist in the development of research collection and documentation services for those areas. Another step in this direction has been taken by the recent decision to advertise the post of Documentation Officer for Russian Studies. We will thus have a group of specialists in the Library to look after the acquisition, documentation and reference jobs attuned to the needs of the specialists. A plan for the further expansion of the School Library is under the consideration of the University Grants Commission; and we hope to hear from the Commission soon. The proper reorganization will, we hope, enable us to remove the handicap arising from the wide gap between the demands on the Library and its present resources.

A notable feature of the School Library is the liaison maintained between the Library and the Departments resulting in the acquisition policy being closely related to the immediate needs of research at the School. Funds for acquiring research material will have to be substantially raised during the years to come in order to meet the growing demands from the research scholars of the School and of other universities of India and abroad. We are glad to note in this connexion that the Library gave facilities to more than 125 research scholars (other than students and staff of the School) from India and abroad in the year under review.

The Library has a rich collection of newspapers and periodicals. Although it was not possible to make many substantive additions to our newspapers and periodical collection this year, special stress was laid on the acquisition of catalogues of the major libraries of the world enabling our Library to become a major repository of such reference works in this country. This has been made possible by the remarkable enterprise of a single American publishing firm, G.K. Hall Company of Boston, who have reproduced catalogues of several major libraries of the world, including those of the New York Public Library, the School of Oriental and African Studies and the India Office Library (on order). We have, in addition, catalogues of the Library of Congress and the British Museum in our Library. This collection of reference works may be usefully supplemented by the Human Relations Area File on microfilm providing valuable sociological data on many little-known areas of the world based upon extracts from standard works organized by subject fields.

The importance of research material in languages other than English, especially in regional studies, was theoretically recognized from the very beginning of the Library, but it was not possible until now to implement the idea in actual practice owing to various reasons beyond our control. This lacuna is now being gradually filled by the appointment of trained personnel with the requisite subject specialization. For the present, stress is being laid on the acquisition of material in Russian, Chinese, Japanese, Indonesian and Arabic languages. The Russian collection, for instance, is now growing at the rate of about 1,500 volumes a year. The Chinese language collection was recently enriched by the acquisition of rare pamphlet and documentary literature on the Communist Party of China during the twenties and the thirties. The most comprehensive documentation of Communist Chinese material is now available in English translation through the translation service of foreign official agencies, with the result that there is today more research material readily available on China in English than, say, on India owing to the lack of similar translation facilities from Indian language publications into English.

The total holdings of the School Library have grown to 38,901 within a short span of nine years, as detailed below :

General book collection	23,595
Books in Russian	6,318
Microfilms	4,130
Official publications	4,858
	<hr/>
	38,901

These figures include the special collection of 1,425 Arabic, 1,538 Chinese and 1,815 Japanese books, besides the special collection of Russian books which has increased by 1,218 volumes in the year under review.

The total collection is a very compact one; and in spite of its relatively small size, it is of much importance because of the high proportion of use in relation to its size. Its smallness, however, underlines the necessity for its rapid development in order to meet fully the growing requirements of research in this country in the field of international relations and regional studies in particular, and social sciences in general.

Recently, the Library has undertaken to examine the scope and methodology of some disciplines, viz, Political Science, International Relations and International Law, in the light of the latest developments in techniques of library classification and then to work out, in detail, schedules of classification in these disciplines for practical application in this Library. This project has been undertaken in the belief that proper schemes of classification and cataloguing are fundamental to an economical and expeditious library service.

The preliminary results of this project are proposed to be brought out in a volume entitled Politics, International Relations and Law : Scope, Methodology and Classification being prepared by the Librarian of the School.

THE SCHOOL AND THE COMMUNITY

The School co-operated with the University of Delhi in organizing a course of Extension Lectures at Sapru House. Dr. Vishal Singh organized the lectures during the year under review. Altogether ten lectures were given on "Contemporary International Trends" in March-April 1964. The speakers included Dr. M.S. Rajan, Dr. S. N. Varma, Dr. Satish Kumar, Dr. V. P. Dutt, Dr. Vishal Singh, Dr. Mahendra Kumar, Dr. M. S. Agwani, Dr. K. P. Karunakaran, Shri Sisir Gupta and Kumari Swadesh Mehta.

Several members of the teaching and research staff of the School gave talks or read papers at other institutions in Delhi and elsewhere. Shri R. Rahul gave a lecture on "The History and Culture of the Tibetan People" at the Institute of Humanistic Studies, Calcutta. Dr. Nagendra Singh was invited by the Andhra University to deliver "Sir Alladi Krishnaswami Aiyer Lectures" on Maritime Law, and Extension Lectures by the University of Rajasthan. Dr. M.S. Name of the Speaker	Subject	Month
1. Prof. Westenstehl of Sweden	“Socio-economic basis of Swiss Democracy”	January 1964
2. Dr. Lawrence S. Finkelstein	“Disarmament and Arms Control”	February 1964

Prof. M. S. Rajan, Head of the Department of Commonwealth Studies at the School, presided over both the functions.

The Association has offered to contribute the following items to the Broadcasting Programme of the All India Radio:—

1. Group Discussion
2. One-Act Play.

Social Activities

The Association arranged two picnics (one at Okhla and the other at Lodhi Tomb) for its members.

The Association gave a dinner to the recipients of the Doctor's Degree in our School's First Convocation in May 1964. The members of the staff also participated in the dinner.

A farewell party was arranged in honour of Dr. Tara Chand on his relinquishing charge of Honorary Professorship at the School in September 1964.

The Association also arranged a “get-together” with the Kuwaiti Foreign Service Officers during their training at the School.

The Association helped the Institution for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind in the city in raising contributions, by selling coupons to the students and staff of the School.

The Association was deeply grieved at the sad demise of two great statesmen of international repute, namely, our beloved leader Shri Jawaharlal Nehru and President John F. Kennedy of the U. S. A. The Association conveyed its heartfelt condolences to the Prime Minister's House and the Ambassador of the U. S. A. in India respectively.

I take this opportunity to thank all the students for their co-operation and understanding in carrying out the assignment they had given us. We have been able to do the best in our capacity entirely because of their support and co-operation.
