Ignotus pecori, nullo contusus aratro, Quem mulcent aurae, firmat sol, educat imber;
Multi illum pueri, multae optavere puellae.
As grows a flower within a garden close,
Known to no cattle, by no ploughshare smit, Suns give it strength, rain growth, and air repose,
And many lads and lasses long for it Ib 39

Multas per gentes et multa per aequora vectus Advenio has miseras, frater, ad inferias, Ut te postremo donarem munere mortis Et mutam nequiquam alloquerer cinerem Quandoquidem fortuna mihi tete abstulit ipsum, Heu miser indigne frater adempte mihi,

Nunc tamen interea haec prisco quae more parentum Tradita sunt tristi munere ad inferias, Accipe fraterno multum manantia fletu, Atque in perpetuum, frater, ave atque vale

By many lands and over many a wave
I come, my brother, to your piteous grave,
To bring you the last offering in death
And o'er dumb dust expend an idle breath,
For fate has torn your living self from me,
And snatched you, brother, O, how cruelly!
Yet take these gifts, brought as our fathers bade
For sorrow's tribute to the passing shade,
A brother's tears have wet them o'er and o'er,
And so, my brother, hail, and farewell evermore!
Carmina, ci.

Sweet it is, when on the great sea the winds are buffeting the waters, to gaze from the land on another's great struggles, not because it is pleasure or joy that any one should be distressed, but because it is sweet to perceive from what misfortune you yourself are free Sweet is it too, to behold great contests of war in full array over the plains, when you have no part in the danger But nothing is more gladdening than to dwell in the calm high places, firmly embattled on the heights by the teaching of the wise, whence you can look down on others, and see them wandering hither and thither, going astray as they seek the way of life, in strife matching their wits or rival claims of birth, struggling night and day by surpassing effort to rise up to the height of power and gain possession of the world Ib ii 1

SIR HENRY WOTTON

1568–1639

At my departure toward Rome I had won confidence enough to beg his advice [Alberto Scipioni's] how I might carry myself securely there without offence of others or of mine own conscience 'Signor Arrigo mio,' says he, 'I pensieri stretti ed il viso sciolto will go safely over the whole world' ['Sir Henry the thoughts secret and the countenance open'] Letter to Milton, 13 April 1638, prefixed to Comus

Here you are, an able-bodied man, respectably brought-up, instead of which you go about the country stealing ducks
Said to have been addressed to a prisoner by an Indian judge

Irvin S Cobb, A Laugh a Day

As Cleopatra, Sarah Bernhardt stabbed the slave who bore to her the tidings of Mark Antony's defeat at Actium, she stormed, raved, wrecked some of the scenery in her frenzy and finally, as the curtain fell, dropped in a shuddering, convulsive heap

As the applause died, a middle-aged British matron was heard to say to her neighbour 'How different, how very different from the home life of our own dear Queen!' (Victoria)

Know all men by these presents, that I John Griffin make the aforementioned my last will and testament Cruise, Digest, 1752

Et in Arcadia ego Inscription on a tomb, frequently reproduced in paintings, e g by Guercino, Poussin, and Reynolds

Usually translated 'And I too [the occupant of the tomb] was in Arcadia' But perhaps rather, 'I too [the tomb itself] am in Arcadia' even in Arcadia there am I (Death) (See E Panofsky in Philosophy and History essays presented to E Cassirer, 1936)

INDEX

NOTE

THE order of the index both in the keywords and in the entries under the keywords is strictly alphabetical To save space the keyword is replaced by its initial letter in the individual entries, and the following abbreviations have been used with the same intention —shd , wd , cd , yr , yrs , for should, would, could, your, and yours The general plan has been to allow two words of index for each line of verse—though it has been found impossible to limit the number to two in the most well-known quotations—and to index the principal words in the prose passages The entries have been made as intelligible as possible in the limited space in order that the index may be used not only to track a known or half-known quotation but to supply a quotation on some particular subject

Irregular spellings (such as occur in Dickens, Artemus Ward, &c), early English words, dialect words, and Cockneyisms are indexed under their correct or English equivalents, except where the words have no such exact equivalent thus alleybi, blude, wision, feace, trouthe, &c , are indexed under alibi, blood, vision, face, and truth respectively, while airts, galumphing, latoun, tapsalteerie, &c , have entries of their own

Greek, Latin, and other foreign quotations each have a separate index of their own following after the English index

earth be but the shadow of H 275a earth can take or H can give 394a earth resteth, h moveth 187b earth's crammed with h 43a eternal joys of h 258b even from the gates of h 54a ev'n in h his looks downward bent 272a fairer person lost not H 272a fiercest Spirit that fought in H 272a flowerless fields of h 420a

God created the h 492a God's in his h 502

greatest herald of H 's King 137b H and Hell Amalgamation Society 82a
H and Nature seem'd to strive 215a H, as its purest gold 299b h awards the vengeance due 107b

H did a recompense send 174b h has no rage, like love to hatred 104b H hath my empty words 151b

'H help him!' quoth Lars Porsena 253b h in her eye 275b

h is a matter of digestion 201a H is everywhere at home 92b
H is for thee too high 275b H is free from clouds 69a h is like to a grain of mustard 506b

H rejects the lore 467b h 's colour, the blue 284a h sends us good meat 158b h 's eternal year is thine 140b H 's gate, built in Jerusalem's wall 30b h 's gift takes earth's abatement 49a H 's great lamps do dive 78a
H 's happy instrument 313b
H 's last best gift 274b
H 's light forever shines 392b H 's melodious strains 320b h smiles, and faiths gleam 394a h 's morning breaks 251b H soon sets right 46a
H 's pomp is spread on ground 464a H stops the nose 363a h such grace did lend her 372b h suffereth violence 506b h's wide pathless way 268a H, that but once was prodigal 140a
H to gaudy day denies 74a
H tries earth if it be in tune 251a H views it with delight 260b h vows to keep him 215a h was in him, before he was in h 450b he gain'd from H a friend 174b Hell afford the pavement of her H 116b his looks do menace h 259a his name is heard no more in h 275a hours to wh high H doth chime 447b how the floor of h is thick inlaid 355a I call h and earth to witness 494b if H had looked upon riches 418a if h wd make me such another 363b

I have an oath in h 354b

I saw a new h and a new earth 519b
I saw h opened 519b is he in h? is he in hell? 290b mild H a time ordains 278b more than all in H 70a my h 's extremest sphere 448b my idea of h is pâtes de foie gras 404b native to high H 441a needs find out new h, new earth 322a not H upon the past has power 142b nothing true but H 282b nothing under H so blue 415a not scorned in h 109b now ye wait at H 's Gate 235a of so much fame in H 269b one h, one hell 44b one of these cloths is h 284a only H knew of them 293b on Sunday h 's gate stands ope 187a order is H 's first law 301b or what 's a h for 44b our Father who art in h 505a out of H and just like me 441b parting is all we know of h 127b pavilion of H is bare 393a peopled H with Spirits masculine 276b permission of all-ruling H 271a Philosophy, that leaned on H 299a remembrance fallen from h 420b riches of h 's pavements 272a ring the bells of H 192a see H 's glories shine 38b set in H 's third story 439b shall H 's promise clothe lovers 312a short permit to H 276b shun the h that leads men to hell 389a shut from h 46b shut thee from h with a dome 194a steep ascent of H 184a sure, I said, h did not mean 195b swear not by h God's throne 505a tangled boughs of H and Ocean 396a that from H, or near it 398a
