SOME NOTES CONCERNING KNIGHTHOOD.

The English word Knight is derived from the Saxon Cnyht, which signified a servant or attendant; and Knighthood had its origin, in this country, in Saxon times.

Although for many centuries it has been established that none but the Sovereign, or some person specially commissioned by him, can create a Knight, in ancient times both ecclesiastical and lay persons could confer this honour. Thus it is recorded that Abbot Brand of Bury St. Edmunds knighted Hereward "the Wake"; and Laufranc, Archbishop of Canterbury, made William II a Knight prior to his accession to the throne. So also, Simon de Montfort, Earl of Leicester, conferred the degree on Gilbert de Clare; and many other examples, both ecclesiastical and lay, might be cited.

The ceremonies attendant on the creation of a knight have varied from time to time, and were much more elaborate in early days than they are now; but in all of them the use of the sword has been a distinguishing feature. In the account given by William of Malmesbury of the knighting of Athelstan by King Alfred, it is stated that he was given a purple robe, a belt studded with gems, and a Saxon sword in a gold scabbard. So when Henry I, in 1127, conferred knighthood on Geoffrey of Anjou, he was invested with a coat of mail and gilt spurs; a shield of the lions of Anjou was hung on his neck, and a spear placed in his hand; and finally he was girt with a sword, of the King's gift. Later, the degree was conferred by the use of the sword only. This was no longer girt about the new made knight, but with it the King, or other person appointed by him, struck him on the shoulder, naming him as a knight. This practice has continued to the present time. The ecclesiastical ceremonies of knighthood consisted of a solemn confession, a vigil in the church, the offering of his sword on the alter by the candidate and his redemption of it, and his investiture with this sword by the ecclesiastical authority performing the ceremony. No doubt this ecclesiastical ceremony often accompanied, and preceded, the lay ceremony in earlier years. Knighthood may also be conferred by Letters Patent, and this method of creation is used today in cases when it is impossible for the candidate to attend personally for investiture. Instances of such Letters Patent occur in Stuart times.

The designation "Knight Bachelor" was in existence in the time of Henry III, and the title "Sir," prefixed to the Christian name of a Knight, was certainly common before the time of Edward I.

If a knight be promoted to some higher dignity, he still retains the name of Knight, and this was strictly observed in legal proceedings in earlier days.

Under the fuedal system introduced by William the Conqueror, and not finally abolished until 1660, the holding of land to the extent of a " Knight's Fee," of the King in chief, was a qualification for knighthood. It is estimated that there were some 5,000 such fees in the 12th and 13th centuries. Knighthood was then often regarded, not as an honour, but rather as a burden which was frequently evaded. Henry III, in 1224, issued a writ ordering every layman of full age, holding one or more knight's fees, and not yet a knight, to take arms and be knighted before the end of Easter 1225 ; Edward I sent commissioners to every county to ascertain who had evaded the duty of becoming a knight. The necessity of securing the services of fuedal tenants to attend the King in the wars which were then prevalent, explains the pressure thus put on the holders of knight's fees, and possibly also accounts for the reluctance of some to fulfil their duties. Gradually, however, as the incidence of the fuedal system became less severe, knighthood came to be regarded as a highly valued privilege. The fact that it is the most ancient title of honour known to us, cannot fail to impress on its recipients the dignity, the importance, and withal the responsibility, of the degree of Knight Bachelor.

THE IMPERIAL SOCIETY OF KNIGHTS BACHELOR.

THE FOUNDATION OF THE SOCIETY.

In 1906 and 1907 an interesting case was fought between the Walker's Trustees of Edinburgh and two representative Peers, two Baronets and two Knights on the subject of certain fees which were claimed by the plaintiffs on all new creations. For the information of the curious the proceedings are fully recorded in the 1912 edition of this book.

This case caused certain Knights Bachelor to realise that they had no representative body to speak for them, and early in 1908, the late Sir William Bull convened a meeting of Knights at the House of Commons, and this Society was duly formed and a council and officers elected.

The Home Secretary (the late Viscount Gladstone) was further pleased to give his official recognition to the Society, and, in conformity with, and in pursuance of, such recognition, the Home Office now sends an official notification of the creation of all Knights Bachelor, from which the Society's Register is compiled.

In recognition of the Society's aims and objects His Majesty King George was graciously pleased, in March, 1912, to command that thenceforth the Society should be known as "THE IMPERIAL SOCIETY OF KNIGHTS BACHELOR," which mark of distinction was a source of much gratification to the members, spread as they are over every part of the Empire.

THE OBJECTS OF THE SOCIETY.

The Society was formed for the maintenance and consolidation of the Dignity of the Knights Bachelor, and one of the original aims was to obtain permission from His Majesty for the Knights Bachelor to wear an Insignia of the Degree. This the Society achieved in 1926.

There was also a strong feeling among Knights Bachelor that a properly authenticated and officially recognised Roll of Knights should be continually kept up-to-date. The Society immediately took this matter in hand, with the result that a Roll of Knights is now kept by Garter King of Arms. The name of every Knight Bachelor is recorded on this Vellum Roll together with the date of his nomination and of his Knighthood. Garter communicates with the Knight and arranges for him to call at the College of Arms and sign the Roll, no expense to the Knight being involved.

At the present time the principal work of the Society is:—To register every duly authenticated Knighthood; to uphold the Dignity and protect the rights of the Degree at all times; to advise Knights Bachelor on any matters relating to the Degree (Heraldry, Etiquette, etc.); and to publish this Knightage containing a complete list of the existing recipients of the dignity of Knight Bachelor, with biographical details of all members of the Society and their Armorial Bearings (if desired). The Society also issues to Members, on application, a Certificate stating that the honour claimed by such Member has been duly authenticated. This certificate is useful for legal purposes and the fee for it is half a guinea.

At the Registry accommodation has been provided so that members visiting London may transact temporary business, dictate their correspondence, and arrange for interviews, etc. Letters addressed to members at The Imperial Society of Knights Bachelor, 21, Old Buildings, Lincoln's Inn, London, W.C.2, England, will be retained at the Registry or re-directed in accordance with instructions given.

A number of works of reference are available in the Library for the use of members, and information will gladly be given on questions of heraldry and genealogy. All Knights are invited to contribute, by loan or donation, copies of their published works, memorials, pictures or other objects of general interest to their Degree, and the nucleus of a valuable collection has already been formed, thanks to the generosity of certain members.

The subscription to the Society was fixed at £1 1s. a year. Entrance Fee £1. A payment of £10 10s. in one amount confers life membership, after which there is no further liability. Each member is entitled to a free copy of the "Knightage." His Armorial Bearings will also be inserted in the "Knightage," on the payment of £1 1s. towards the cost of making the line engraving. After use in the "Knightage" these are available for the printing of book plates, if desired.

The Council hope that they may see a further number of the Knights who are not yet members of the Society entered upon the books in the near future, as it is only by receiving the support of an even larger majority of those upon whom the honour of Knighthood has been conferred that the work of the Society can be carried forward.

THE KNIGHTS BACHELOR INSIGNIA.

An account of how the Society obtained the Badge has been fully set out in the 13th, 14th and 15th editions of this book, but it is perhaps useful to record here that the Royal Warrant granting the Insignia appeared in the "Gazette" on the 23rd April, 1926, and was as follows:—

Whitehall, April, 23 1926.

The KING has been pleased to issue a Warrant under his Majesty's Royal Sign Manual to the following effect:—

GEORGE R.I.

GEORGE THE FIFTH, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.

To Our Right Trusty and Well-beloved Cousin and Councillor Edmund Bernard Viscount FitzAlan of Derwent, Knight of Our Most Noble Order of the Garter, Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order, Companion of the Distinguished Service Order, Deputy to Our Right Trusty and Right Entirely-beloved Cousin Bernard Marmaduke, Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal and Our Hereditary Marshal of England.

Greeting!

Whereas We having taken into Our Royal Consideration certain circumstances humbly represented unto Us and being desirous of enhancing the state and dignity of the ancient and honourable degree of knight bachelor, have thought fit to grant and prescribe a Badge which may be worn by those of Our loving subjects who have from time to time been advanced to the separate and singular degree of knight bachelor or may hereafter be so advanced.

Now Know Ye that We of Our Princely Grace, Special Favour and Mere Motion have for ourselves, Our Heirs and Successors given and granted and do by these Presents give and grant unto all such persons as aforesaid Our Royal Licence and Authority that they may henceforth upon all appropriate occasions wear upon the left side of the coat or outer garment a Badge measuring approximately three inches in length and two inches in width, as hereinafter described, and as shown in the painting hereunto annexed, that is to say "Upon an oval medallion of vermilion, enclosed by a scroll, a cross-hilted sword belted and sheathed, pommel upwards, between two spurs, rowels upwards, the whole set about with the swordbelt, all gilt."

Our Will and Pleasure therefore is that you, Edmund Bernard Viscount FitzAlan of Derwent, Deputy to Our said Earl Marshal, to whom the cognizance of matters of this nature doth properly belong, do require and command that this Our grant and prescription be recorded in Our College of Arms to the end that Our Officers of Arms and all others upon occasion may take full notice and have knowledge thereof:

And for so doing this shall be your Warrant.

Given at Our Court at Windsor, the twenty-first day of April, 1926, in the sixteenth year of Our Reign.

By His Majesty's Command.

W. Joynson-Hicks.

MISCELLANEA.

By The Knight Principal.

H.R.H. the Duke of Kent, then H.R.H. Prince George, honoured the Society by his presence at the annual dinner on June 21st, 1932. His elevation to a Royal Dukedom and his marriage, last year, were occasions of rejoicing to all His Majesty's subjects, but to none more than to Members of this Society, and it was of special interest to the Knight Principal that he was privileged to conduct the ceremony of His Royal Highness's Introduction into the House of Lords.

The titles of Members of the House of Lords seem to afford much occasion for error on the part of the public, and sometimes of their Lordships themselves. Why is one Peer merely Lord A., while another is Lord B of . . . . . (e.g. Lord Rodney, and Lord Byng of Vimy)? The answer is simple, but not, I think, generally understood. Every Peer, at least below the rank of an Earl, bears a territorial addition to his title, probably a relic of fuedal times, when the holding of land in chief of the King was a necessary qualification for a summons to Parliament as a Peer. But the territorial addition does not form part of the title—the King's instructions are precise on this point—unless the new Peer desires to retain his surname as his Peerage title, and that surname is, or has been, the title of another Peerage. The territorial addition, as part of the title, only occurs, therefore, in comparatively rare cases, to distinguish it from some other. The titles of Lord Howard of Glossop, and (recently) Lord Howard of Penrith, Lord Dawson of Penn, Lord Dalziel of Kirkcaldy, Lord Rutherford of Nelson, etc., are examples of this. But there seems to be a modern, and growing, tendency to describe all Peers by the territorial additions to their titles, a tendency frequently acquiesced in by the Peers themselves. When in doubt as to the correct title of a Peer, it is far safer to omit any territorial addition ; it will be correct nine times out of ten. Modern Patents of Peerage are quite explicit ; thus Lord Rutherford of Nelson was created by his Patent " Baron Rutherford of Nelson, of Cambridge in the County of Cambridge," which may be contrasted with that of "Viscount Wakefield, of Hythe in the County of Kent." The Gazette notices of new creations follow the terms of the Patents, and there should be no occasion for error on the part of the press or the public as regards new Peers.

The question " what is the legal origin of a Coat of Arms ? " if asked in an Examination paper on general knowledge, would probably produce few correct answers. The College of Arms recently celebrated the 450th anniversary of its incorporation, and there seems to be a general impression that Arms are granted by the College. Since Arms have been borne in this country from at least the 12th century, and Heraldry was at its zenith in mediaeval times, what origin had Arms prior to the existence of the College? In fact, the College of Arms does not grant Arms, and never has done so. Although King Richard III gave to his then Royal Heralds a charter of incorporation in 1485, to enable them to hold property and to possess a house wherein to keep their records, the King's Heralds, individually, had a much earlier existence. To them, and particularly to the Kings of Arms in their respective territorial jurisdictions, north and south of the Trent, belonged the supervision of Armorial Bearings. We know little of the earliest origin of Arms. It is possible that at first they were assumed by the few who used them, though there must have been some supervising authority to ensure that the same Arms were not used by different people, and one may suspect that even then the Heralds, whether those of the King, or of the Barons themselves, had a voice in the matter; but as the power of the King consolidated, it became recognised that all matters of dignity fell within his prerogative, and in the 13th century there are many records of Grants of Arms made by the King personally by Royal Charter. In the next century this part of the Royal prerogative was delegated to the Kings of Arms; and from the 14th century onwards the right to grant Arms has been vested in the latter as the executive officers of the Sovereign. There are, in England, three Kings of Arms, Garter (who is the chief Heraldic officer, and whose jurisdiction is not territorially limited) Clarenceux (whose province lies South of the Trent) and Norroy (who is limited to the area North of the Trent). To each of these, individually, the Sovereign delegates in express terms, by Letters Patent passed under the Great Seal, the right to Grant Arms. They alone have this power, which they exercise by Letters Patent passed under their hands and seals. Garter is responsible for every grant, and is joined therein by one or other of the two Provincial Kings of Arms according to their respective jurisdictions, as ascertained by the domicile of the grantee. In so acting they directly represent the Sovereign.

The Cap of Maintenance, which is borne before the King in the procession to the House of Lords at the opening of Parliament, is a Parliamentary Cap of Estate. It is, in reality, the cap which fits into the crown, and is the symbol of Peerage dignity. It can be traced in the great seals of England from the time of Edward III, when the Lion of the Royal Crest stood upon such a cap, instead of on a crown, which latter only came in with Henry VIII. It is worn by the King on the day of his Coronation until he has been actually crowned. It has nothing to do with the Cap of Estate which, with other ornaments, was sometimes sent by the Pope to English Sovereigns before the Reformation.

APPENDIX.

The Dinner of the IMPERIAL SOCIETY OF KNIGHTS BACHELOR was held at Claridge's Hotel on May 30th, the principal guest being Mr. Philip Guedalla. The Knight Principal, Sir Gerald Wollaston, K.C.V.O., presided and 193 Knights and their guests, including ladies, attended. The following is a report of the speeches.

Toast: H.M. THE KING.

In the absence of The Lord Hayter, the toast of THE KING was proposed by Sir Clarence Smith, the Senior Knight present.

SIR CLARENCE SMITH.

Happening to be the Senior Knight present, I am to offer for your cordial adoption the first toast on the list; which is, of course, The King. The task is an easy one because of the kind words in which The King has told us that he spent the last fortnight—the Jubilee Fortnight in devising and working out new plans for his peoples' happiness, in every one of whom, so far as was humanly possible, he felt a direct personal interest. It is not too much to say that we are happier for the direct interest which our King takes in our happiness. We are all happier, we are all feeling that life is a better thing than it would have been but for the intervention of our great King.

The King, His Majesty King George.

Toast: THE GUESTS.

Proposed by the Knight Principal, Sir Gerald Wollaston, K.C.V.O. Responded to by Mr. Philip Guedalla.

SIR GERALD WOLLASTON.

My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen: Before I propose the next toast I should like to say that in your name I sent a telegram to His Majesty the King in these terms:

"The Knights Bachelor of the Empire assembled at the Annual Dinner of the Imperial Society of Knights Bachelor beg to send to your Majesty their humble greetings and their loyal congratulations on the completion of twenty five years of your Majesty's glorious and beneficient reign.

I have just received this telegram:

"Sir Gerald Wollaston, Knights Bachelor Dinner. The King sincerely thanks the Knights Bachelor assembled at their Annual Dinner for their loyal greetings and kind congratulations on his Silver Jubilee."

My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen, it is my privilege and my pleasure to give you the next toast, which is that of our Guests. I have given this toast at these dinners for some number of years. It is always a privilege, and it still remains a pleasure, but, unlike the path of pleasure, with each succeeding year the path becomes increasingly difficult, and I have from time to time suggested that the pleasure might be shared by other members of my Council; but it still remains with me, and I must therefore ask your indulgence if I do not fulfil the task as adequately as I should. It would, I think, be strange indeed if this Society did not rejoice in entertaining its guests, for the Degree of Knight Bachelor has its roots deep in antiquity, and hospitality has from the early ages been a sacred duty in this country. I think perhaps in earliest times hospitality may have been in the nature of an insurance, because times were uncertain—possibly even more uncertain than they are to-day—and you never quite knew whether in a tight place the hospitality of a friend might not get you out of a difficulty, and therefore it was very desirable that you should exercise hospitality towards each other. But that is not the aim which actuates us tonight. We invite our guests to do them honour, and they do us honour by coming here. We have very many distinguished guests tonight. I am not going to name them. Their names are printed in your programmes and they are too well-known for me to say more about them. But I want to say one thing about the programme, and that is to explain that Lord Blanesburgh, one of our most distinguished guests and one of the speakers tonight, is not sitting alone at a table, as might appear from your printed table plan, under some sort of apparent social ostracism, but is really a guest, with many others, of Sir Francis Fladgate at the table at which he is sitting; his name only is printed on the plan so that you may be able to see for yourselves how very favourably he compares with those of the Council who are sitting at what should not properly be called the "Top Table," who are placed there, and their names mentioned in the programme, not to distinguish them, but that you may see what very good-looking fellows the members of your Council really are.

Now, Ladies and Gentlemen, I think that guests at a Banquet are rather like oysters. Of course I know you are thinking that a very inapt simile; But it is not quite so inapt as it appears at first sight. It is true that we do not eat our guests—in these days—and that there are some people who do not like oysters; but then there are some people who do not like society, and they should not come to dinners. But it is generally recognised that oysters at a Banquet are a great delight. They, further, are essentially a British production. We read that the Romans in ancient days—and I like to go back to ancient days—that the Romans got their oysters from Britain:

and we know that to invite guests to a dinner is essentially a British custom. But there is another thing about oysters—you never know that among your oysters you may not find a real pearl, and if you do, not only do you have the pleasure of the oysters, but you take away with you a permanent memorial and recollection of the dinner at which the oysters played so important a part. Now, I think, I have discovered a pearl among my oysters this evening. For some years we have been honoured at these dinners by the presence, as principal guests, of distinguished representatives of Church and State, and it was suggested by our Council that this year we should invite some representative of literature to honour us with his presence. I considered myself fortunate in persuading Mr. E. V. Lucas to come here as our principal guest, and we looked forward to hearing from him a speech reminiscent of that great Journal which he represents, and which, as we read in the advertisements, " brightens the family life." But unfortunately Mr. Lucas, almost at the last moment, was prevented from attending. We are, however, extraordinarily fortunate in having among our guests no less a person than Mr. Philip Guedella—and here is the pearl among my oysters—who has kindly consented to reply to the toast of The Guests. It is unnecessary for me to say anything about Mr. Guedalla. His book on the Duke of Wellington will have been read by all of you recently. Personally I count it a very fortunate chance that I should be privileged to propose the health of the guests, coupled with the name of Mr. Guedalla, because it so happens that I live at Walmer, near the residence of the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, in which the Duke of Wellington lived much of his life, and where he died. My property adjoins that of Walmer Castle, and it is of peculiar interest to me to welcome here the biographer of the Duke of Wellington. With these words, Ladies and Gentlemen, I give you the toast of The Guests, coupled with the name of Mr. Philip Guedalla.

MR. PHILIP GUEDALLA.

Knight Principal: My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen. Let me at the outset clear up this trouble about oysters. I listened, as my fellow-guests have listened, with due respect and gratification to this comparison. The generous proposer of this toast was good enough to tell us that you sometimes find a pearl among your oysters. A pearl is not the only thing you sometimes find among your oysters; and I would remind the Knight Principal, if I may, with all possible respect that there is no " r " in the month.

In the second place, may I say on my own behalf, how reassured I was by what he said about an honoured fellow-guest, Lord Blanesburgh? I had thought, for one disturbing moment, that his notional isolation at a table was one more example of that prejudice against Balliol men which, if I may say so, is to other Balliol men the most encouraging thing about the present state of the College. And may I also say, arising from what the proposer of this toast said about Walmer, that if anything could show his devotion to the affairs of this Society, it is an even momentary separation from a residence in immediate proximity to Walmer Castle? There could be nothing which I at any rate could more envy him.

Now, Ladies and Gentlemen, it is my privilege to reply in the name of my fellow-guests to the Toast which has been proposed in such kindly terms by the Knight Principal, and I do so with a very becoming sense of my own unworthiness. Everything that has happened since the invitation of the Society first reached me has gone further to deepen that sense. When I first received that invitation, my earliest precaution was to enquire who had performed this office at the Society's Dinner last year. I was told, the Lord Chief Justice of England. Slightly apprehensive, I asked who had performed this office the year before last. I was told, the Premier Duke. Still more alarmed, I prosecuted my investigations one stage further and asked who had replied to this toast the year before that. I was told H.R.H. Prince George. There were no further enquiries. I concluded that in its selection of a respondent to this toast your Society revelled in a comforting sense of inequality, and having chosen in previous years to look up to the respondent to the toast of The Guests, it was choosing this year by way of a change to look down. And I observe that the Knight Principal, in his most generous proposal of this Toast, did say—and I took down his words by way of a precaution in case he denied them—that it was "always a privilege and it still," he said, "remains a pleasure"—no longer a privilege.

Well, ladies and gentlemen, it was a custom, I believe, amongst the Spartan nobility to enliven their repasts by the presence of a drunken helot, and on behalf of my fellow guests, at any rate of one sex, I would gratefully acknowledge the efforts that have been made in the direction of inducing that enviable condition. From that social angle I am expected—and shall fulfill the expectation—to speak in the undecorated nudity which I share with the United States Ambassador. From that angle I will, if I may for a minute and only for a minute, survey your Degree. It has always seemed to me that the institution of Knighthood is in some ways a peculiarly, not merely British, but English thing. Let me explain what I mean. I remember once returning to British territory after spending four or five months on the rolling social plains of the Middle West of the United States. I returned to British territory at Victoria, British Columbia; and from no single source was it more obvious to me that I was back in the familiar landscape of pleasing inequalities than from the more than adequate representation which your Order has in Victoria, British Columbia—partly because the climate, as others here can testify better than I, is admirably suited to the pursuit of horticulture, and partly because it is in every way a worthy place for those Englishmen who can get there and find repose.

May I speak, again with all possible respect, of another aspect of your Degree? I would not for a moment wish to speak with anything approaching irreverence of the Fountain of Honour, especially at the present moment when the Fountain of Honour is almost immediately about to play. Gentlemen, you know the present limits of your Order ; but who can say precisely what those limits will be by breakfast-time on Monday? Yet I would assure you that that portion of any Honours List which relates to Knighthood is the portion which is read with the greatest interest by your fellow-countrymen, because it contains the names of persons who have done something and as to whom there is still a hope that they may do something more.

The final observation that I would make, I make with still greater diffidence. It is this : I believe, and only those who no longer play an active part in politics can confess to this belief, I believe that the Order of Knighthood is dear to a vast number of us because it is one of the few things in this country that are still inaccessible to women. I am perfectly aware that the principle of Equal Pay for Equal Work is one to which lip-service is rendered by local education authorities, and a more doubtful adherence is given by Courts of Criminal Justice. But is does remain an Order and a distinction and a reward for purely virile achievement. Possibly it is for that reason that I see so many ladies present in this room tonight. And it is on their behalf as well as on that of my fellow-guests that I thank you sincerely, Knight Principal, for the terms in which you have proposed this toast and, members of this Society, for the way in which you have received it.

Toast : OUR MEMBERS OVERSEAS.

Proposed by Sir Clement Hindley, K.C.I.E.
Responded to by the Hon. Sir John Kirwan.

SIR CLEMENT HINDLEY.

Knight Principal : My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen : It is difficult indeed for a mere knight to follow such eloquence as we have just heard, but it is a great pleasure to me to be allowed to propose the health of our brother Knights overseas. The various parts of our Empire are bound to us by many ties of all kinds, political, commercial, social, racial, and many others ; but there is in Knighthood a rather particular tie which enables us to welcome all knights in whatever part of the Empire they may be as our brothers. It is a very personal relationship. And I myself feel that it is connected in some way with the symbolical ceremony which gives us our Degree. We have all been through the ceremony of receiving Knighthood, and most of us have been touched by the King's sword, which, in a way, brings us together almost as closely as blood-relations. That is a thought which occurred to me when I saw the list of these Knights from overseas who are fortunately with us tonight. We feel that all our fellow-members of this Society and other Knights abroad are very closely connected to us by reason of the fact that they have been recognised as people who, as Mr. Guedalla has said, have distinguished themselves in some way. And we are very proud of that fact, but also we remember that they have received this very personal recognition from the Sovereign.

I should like to mention to you some of the very distinguished fellow members from overseas who are with us tonight, and, of course, it is extraordinarily difficult in these times to give these names in any proper order. It would be a bold man indeed who would single out one of the sister nations to come first in an order of that kind. In this dilemma I have selected as the first two names to be mentioned two whom I can, I think, claim as old friends, and I hope they will remember me. They happen to be two of my old friends from India—Sir Cusrow Wadia and Sir Manubhai Mehta. I have lived many years in India, and I probably know them a great deal better than they know me, but I do remember their friendship with great gratitude. There are no knights here tonight from Calcutta, so I cannot really make effective use of the quotation from Kipling when he called Calcutta " the city of dreadful night."

Sir Manubhai Mehta is one of the great Statesmen of India who has been labouring for I don't know how many years on the building of a new Constitution. He has filled the office of Prime Minister in at least two States, and probably has more knowledge of the political situation in India than almost anyone. His labours are, I understand, approaching an end, and I am quite sure we should like to express to our Indian friends who are here, a feeling that whatever the future holds, we hope for increased co-operation between ourselves and our Indian fellow subjects and further political development in the future, tied together, as we are, in our common loyalty to the sovereign.

Now may I mention one or two other distinguished fellow members from abroad. We have Sir A. Fraser Russell, the Chief Justice of Southern Rhodesia, Sir Harold Beauchamp from New Zealand, Director of the Bank of New Zealand, and a man of great experience in finance, in fact a distinguished figure in the Dominion. We have Sir Edgar Bowring, High Commissioner for Newfoundland, a great ship-owner and a man of vast experience in business ; Sir Henry De Mel, President of the Ceylon State Council, a man with a great reputation in Ceylon. Sir Arthur Jelf, I am sure many will be very glad to welcome here tonight, as the son of the late Dr. Jelf of Charterhouse, and who, as Colonial Secretary to Jamaica, has acted as Governor on several occasions and is widely known to fame as the beautifier of Kingstown. Then we have General Sir Donald McGavin, Director General of Medical Service in New Zealand, who has long experience as the organizer of the medical and allied professions in New Zealand. I am very glad indeed to have the opportunity of welcoming him here. And then I have remaining at the end of my list, Sir John Kirwan, President of the Legislative Council of Western Australia. He comes last on the list, but I do assure him that is because I wish to get to the end of my speech, and he has to be coupled with my toast. We are exceptionally glad to see him here tonight. We have been hearing a good deal about Western Australia lately, but one thing I think we can be sure about is that there is no part of the Empire where the flame of loyalty burns brighter than in Western Australia, and we look on it as a great privilege to have Sir John Kirwan here tonight.

So, Knight Principal, My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen, I give you the toast of our overseas members coupled with the name of Sir John Kirwan.

THE HON. SIR JOHN KIRWAN.

Knight Principal: My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen: I have been deputed to respond to this toast on behalf of the overseas members of the Imperial Society of Knights Bachelor. I regard it as a very great honour indeed. We who live overseas feel that your Society has done a great deal for those of us who have been honoured as Knights Bachelor. We feel that your Society has done a great deal to create a link between the Knights Bachelor of the Empire, and that link, as with a great deal of our Imperial Societies, is all helping to strengthen the unity of this great commonwealth of nations of which we are all so proud to belong. It is not only in that way that we feel that your Society is doing good work. You also did good work in respect of the Degree to which we belong in that you collect and sustain records of those on whom the honour has been conferred. Furthermore, we who live overseas appreciate probably to a much greater extent than you who live at the centre of the Empire perhaps realise, that book which you circulate amongst members of the Society all over the world and which enables us to learn a great deal of information concerning our fellow Knights in different parts of the Empire and in different parts of the world. And may I say in that connection that there is one who has passed away and whom our Knights Bachelor ought to remember, and remember with the greatest possible respect and admiration, and one whose lady is here tonight, I understand, and that is Sir William Bull. When he founded this Society he did more than possibly the members fully realised. He undoubtedly did good work not only for the members of the Degree of knighthood to which we belong, but also he did a great deal of good work in connection with much wider matters than that.

Now I would not have replied to anything other than the toast of the Overseas Members of the Society, were it not that some reference was made to Australia, Australia to which I belong, and because of that reference I feel justified in saying this: some reference was made by the proposer of the toast to certain matters that have brought Western Australia very much into prominence, and what the proposer has said is perfectly true. There is one thing of which we feel proud and that is—and over and over again this is true—that there is no part of the Empire, I won't say so loyal, but I will say more loyal, to the Empire than Western Australia. In saying that I do not wish to say anything regarding any other part of Australia or any other part of the Empire, but some of you may perhaps go to Australia, and if you go there now you possibly may receive a false impression; it may leave a false impression in your minds. Australians are very critical people. They possibly may criticise your diction, which is somewhat different from ours; they may criticise your English, which is somewhat different from ours; I am sorry to say they possibly may consider that you who come from England are supercilious, and you don't mean to be; that you are reserved, which is one of the characteristics of the race; and they may use some lurid language regarding England. But all I can say is this: that any impression that visitors to Australia may have got as the result of meeting Australians of that type, it is altogether wrong; and I will tell you another thing, and it is rather important; that just now arrangements are being made concerning trade with England, conferences are being held, and we want to tell you this: that irrespective of what those trade agreements may be, whether those trade agreements may be in the estimation of the English people favourable to England, or whether they may be in the estimation of the Australian people favourable to Australia, or whether they may be favourable to both countries, I assure you that it is not commercial relationship or trade agreements or conferences that bind Australia to the motherland. There is something much stronger than that. Just now war clouds seemed to be gathering, and if ever the clarion call of war comes, what happened before will happen again. I remember, when Sir Edward Grey, then Minister for Foreign Affairs, asked me what would happen if Britain were at death grips with a foreign power (that was before the last war) I said to him: "Australia would be more determined to carry the war to its successful conclusion than even England." And I tell you now that, irrespective of anything that may happen, if ever Britain should be in that situation well, then the word that went out, not from the Nationalist leader but from the Labour Premier of Australia, when War was declared before, that word would go out again, and that was "With the Mother-country to the last man, to the last ship." Whatever happens they do not forget this: that Australia began in a small way, a small group of colonists, not too reputable either, but they grew from that tiny group to a nation today of seven million, and they have never forgotten that while they were growing to that they were protected, their liberty and their homes were protected, by one thing and one thing only—a flag. They grew to what they were under the shelter of the British flag and they do not forget it and will never forget it. I would not have referred to Australia as, after all, I am responding for members who come from all parts of the Empire, who come from India, from South Africa, New Zealand, Australia, Trinidad and so on, and I would say this: that we Knights Bachelor in various parts of the Empire, do appreciate what has been done by your organization and hope that organization will long flourish and long continue its good work.

Toast: THE SOCIETY.

Proposed by the Lord Blanesburgh, G.B.E., P.C.
Responded to by The Knight Principal.

THE LORD BLANESBURGH.

Knight Principal, My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen: I rise from a position which, on the programme, as we have been reminded by the Knight Principal, is one of splendid but somewhat frigid isolation, but is really a corner in which there has been the warmest hospitality extended to us by two of my oldest friends, Sir Francis and Lady Fladgate. But nevertheless from that corner I rise to propose the toast of the Society. The task is not, I think, a very difficult one, because one has found in almost every speech delivered, something said which would be appropriate to the particular subject of my toast. We have heard much of the Society from the Knight Principal, we have heard more of the Order of Knighthood from Mr. Guedalla, we have heard in the last two speeches which have been delivered a very beautiful appreciation of the services which are rendered by this Society to the Order of Knighthood, and accordingly there is very little for anyone at this late hour of the evening, in proposing the toast of the Society, to say. Mr. Guedalla has referred to Balliol. You will remember that we were taught there that there is a time for many stories and there is a time for sleep, and perhaps the time for sleep has arrived. Accordingly, what I have to say will be very brief. I just, however, wish to say this. Mr. Guedalla, I think, found in the Order of Knighthood this particular distinction—that so far it was not shared by ladies. I have been, I think, selected to propose this toast because I belong also to a somewhat peculiar Order, the Order of what the Times calls Law Lords. The Law Lords have one thing in common with the Knights. We have about us no taint of heredity. We do not transmit our position to others. We do not receive it from anybody; only from the King. Unfortunately, the Law Lords may be invaded by ladies—later on; perhaps the danger is not yet quite imminent. But we are not protected as the Knights are from a possible invasion. But I would remind Mr. Guedalla that the Knights do not have the peculiar protection that he referred to—because is that not also shared by the Baronets? Not, I agree, by the Barons, but it is by the Baronets. However, there is no doubt about this, that the Knights share with the Law Lords that peculiar distinction, as I say, that there is about them no taint of heredity. Well, in these days, ladies and gentlemen, that I think is a very great quality. It is a great quality in this sense, that it indicates that every member of the Order of Knighthood has reached that position by some quality personal to himself which has seemed to the King to be worthy of recognition, and I think that if there is one function which this Society can discharge it is to hold up to its members who have received that distinction the responsibility of the Order which has been conferred upon them, and the privilege which they have in recognition of the honour that they have received, by rendering still further service to their King and country. I think we have always one great privilege in such a monarchy as ours which can never be shared by a Republic, and that is that we have in the King, as the fountain of honour, that opportunity of distinguishing us that all men may see the great work done by his people throughout his dominions, in conferring suitable honour by way of recognition of great service. It is a very valuable privilege which is still an appenage of royalty, and we hope we shall never lose the advantage of that privilege, not only in this country—of that I have no fear—but that we shall not even lose it in our far flung Empire. And, for myself, I should like to see the time when all the Dominions would recognise the importance of that great privilege bestowed by their King, and would freely be ready to accept the honours of that kind which the King would be willing to confer; so that throughout the Empire we should have everywhere that recognition of public service which is involved and which is demonstrated by the Order of Knighthood which is conferred by the King.

Now in the preservation of the privileges of the Order this Society plays a great part, and in this Society no-one plays so great a part as the Knight Principal. I notice in looking at the details of the badge which the Knight Principal had produced as appropriate that there was to be found there the sun and the sword and the crown. I was pleased to see that he had appropriated the sun. It reminded me of a delightful story that referred to the sun which I heard the other night. It took place, this incident, at a great gathering in Paris in the 18th century, in the great days of King George I. Even in those days Ministers were peripatetic, they attended Conferences here and there. On this particular occasion a Conference was being held in Paris in the days of King Louis XIV of France, and he was attended by, amongst others, the Spanish Ambassador and the English Ambassador, and of course the French Ambassador, and the time came for the toasts, and first of all the King of France was proposed and the French Ambassador rose and he claimed for his Royal Master the Sun. Thereupon the toast of the King of Spain was proposed—I think he was Philip V—and the Ambassador rose and claimed for his Royal Master the Moon. Then the toast of the King of England was proposed, and an Admiral representing His Majesty rose to reply for the King and said: "The Sun and the Moon are gone. I claim for my Royal Master the position of Joshua, who told them both to stand still."

Now the Knight Principal has appropriated for this Society the Sun. It is therefore not necessary for us to claim for it Joshua. I am glad to think we have the Sun, because what is the emblem involved in that? It is that this Society and this Order of Knighthood will be that great orb of beneficence which will bring about through all time, every year, the great miracle of spring. I give you the toast of this Society.

THE KNIGHT PRINCIPAL.

Lord Blanesburgh, My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen: Lord Blanesburgh, I do thank you most sincerely for the eloquent way in which you have proposed the toast of this Society. May I remind you, as a lawyer, that in regard to the ladies—and it would be difficult if one wished, and one does not wish, to keep away from them on an occasion such as this, may I remind you that we, as a Society—as a Degree rather, have this peculiar immunity from invasion, that whatever we may be privately, publicly we are "Bachelors." For that phrase has never been applied to ladies. Well, I think that this Society may justify its existence if for no other reason than for holding these Dinners and bringing together Knights from all parts of the Empire to meet on this occasion. Sir John Kirwan has referred to another thing we do, in kindly terms, and that is the publication of our "Knightage." It may interest you to know that we are bringing out a new complete edition this year, if I can manage to find time among other pressing engagements, to get it out this year, and I hope that its appearance will add to the information which the Knights abroad, and perhaps those at home, already possess in relation to the Degree.

In the course of the speech which I made before, I think I said that we had in the past been honoured by representatives of Church and State as our principal guests. My Clerk, to whom we all owe a great deal, and on whom I, in particular, rely for all that is done in this Society, and who always keeps me straight—reminds me that I was wrong, that we have never had a representative of the Church, and it brings to my mind a story which perhaps you must not apply too literally, but which is not altogether amiss in this connection. The War Office recently decided that every Regiment should be entitled to place in the centre of its colours a badge indicative of the Regiment, selected by the Regiment and approved by the Army Council. As Inspector of Regimental Colours, these things pass through my hands. A certain distinguished Regiment, after a good deal of consideration, decided, most appropriately as I thought, to select for its centre badge a representation of the Devil. A sketch was sent to the Army Council and in due course was returned by them with the intimation that colours have to be consecrated, and that the Church would not consecrate the Devil!

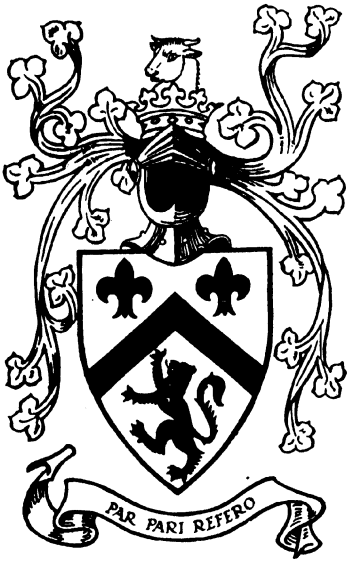

Well, ladies and gentlemen, of course I have no means of ascertaining the qualifications of this Society for the honour of recognition by the Church, except as represented by the members of the Council with whom I am in frequent and happy collaboration. I am carefully watching the situation, and I hope that before long the Church will honour us.

My Lords, Ladies and Gentlemen, on behalf of the Society, I do thank you for the very kind way in which you have received this Toast.
