PREFACE

RECENT census returns for the United States, Austria, Brazil, Colombia, Denmark, Germany, Japan, Panama, and Switzerland are included in this, the fifty-eighth, issue of the YEAR BOOK. All the sections have received the usual revision, the information respecting Russia has been furnished from official Soviet sources. Since last year Montenegro has disappeared as an independent entity, while, on the other hand, Fiume is now one of the States of the world. Of these there are at present 64, counting the British Empire as one. Since the last edition of the YEAR BOOK was published, Esthonia, Georgia and Latvia have received complete recognition, and have therefore been placed in their proper alphabetical order in the YEAR BOOK. Other States without de jure recognition (e.g. Lithuania), or where Treaty arrangements have not yet been completed (e.g. Mesopotamia and Palestine), it has been thought best to retain for the present under the countries of which they were formerly part.

The "Additions and Corrections" contain information which became available too late for inclusion in the text. The Introductory Tables give the usual general surveys, a complete list of the Treaties of Peace and data concerning the League of Nations. The maps show the New Baltic States and the Slesvig addition to Denmark.

Once more we have to express our thanks to Mr. A. D. Webb for his revision of the sections of the British Empire, to General Sir Frederick Maurice for his revision of the Army sections, to Mr. John Leyland for his revision of the Navy sections, and to numerous friends all over the world for valuable co-operation greatly appreciated.

Personnel The following figures show the number of officers and men voted for the Royal Navy, the United States Navy, and the Imperial Japanese Navy for 1921 22, the numbers for 1914–15 being given for purposes of comparison—Great Britain, number voted 123,700 This was a maximum, to be reduced to 121,700 as soon as practicable, which latter figure includes 3,250 Coastguard, 5,100 boys, and 624 cadets, none of them available for manning United States, the number to be voted had not yet been finally approved, but would probably be the same as last year—namely, 150,800, made up of 120,000 enlisted men, 9,800 officers, 1,000 Marine officers, and 20,000 Marines (rank and file)—all available for manning Japan, the number borne on January 19, 1921, was 76,600, made up of approximately 7,000 officers and 69,600 men, all available for manning The figures for 1914–15 were —Great Britain, 151,000, United States, 67,644, and Japan (number borne at end of 1914), 55,712

XII.—THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

(1) THE COVENANT

In order to promote international co operation and to achieve international peace and security by the acceptance of obligations not to resort to war, by the prescription of open, just and honourable relations between nations, by the firm establishment of the understandings of international law as the actual rule of conduct among governments, and by the maintenance of justice and a scrupulous respect for all treaty obligations in the dealings of organized peoples with one another, the High Contracting Parties agree to this Covenant of the League of Nations

Article I—The original members of the League of Nations shall be those of the Signatories which are named in the Annex to this Covenant and also such of those other States named in the Annex as shall accede without reservation to this Covenant Such accession shall be effected by a Declaration deposited with the Secretariat within two months of the coming into force of the Covenant Notice thereof shall be sent to all other Members of the League

Any fully self governing State, Dominion or Colony not named in the Annex, may become a Member of the League if its admission is agreed to by two thirds of the Assembly, provided that it shall give effective guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations, and shall accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the League in regard to its military and naval forces and armaments

Any Member of the League may, after two years notice of its intention so to do, withdraw from the League, provided that all its international obligations and all its obligations under this Covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal

Article II—The action of the League under this Covenant shall be effected through the instrumentality of an Assembly and of a Council, with a permanent Secretariat

Article III—The Assembly shall consist of Representatives of the Members of the League

The Assembly shall meet at stated intervals and from time to time as occasion may require at the Seat of the League or at such other place as may be decided upon

The Assembly may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world

At meetings of the Assembly each Member of the League shall have one vote, and may not have more than three Representatives

Article IV—The Council shall consist of Representatives of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers, together with Representatives of four other Members of the League These four Members of the League shall be selected by the Assembly from time to time in its discretion Until the appointment of the Representatives of the four Members of the League first selected by the Assembly, Representatives of Belgium, Brazil, Spain, and Greece shall be members of the Council

With the approval of the majority of the Assembly, the Council may name additional Members of the League whose Representatives shall always be members of the Council the Council with like approval may increase the number of Members of the League to be selected by the Assembly for representation on the Council

The Council shall meet from time to time as occasion may require, and at least once a year, at the Seat of the League, or at such other place as may be decided upon

The Council may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world

Any Member of the League not represented on the Council shall be invited to send a Representative to sit as a member at any meeting of the Council during the consideration of matters specially affecting the interests of that Member of the League

At meetings of the Council each Member of the League represented on the Council shall have one vote, and may not have more than one Representative

Article V—Except where otherwise expressly provided in this Covenant, decisions at any meeting of the Assembly or of the Council shall require the agreement of all the Members of the League represented at the meeting

All matters of procedure at meetings of the Assembly or of the Council, including the appointment of Committees to investigate particular matters, shall be regulated by the Assembly or by the Council and may be decided by a majority of the Members of the League represented at the meeting

The first meeting of the Assembly and the first meeting of the Council shall be summoned by the President of the United States of America

Article VI.—The permanent Secretariat shall be established at the Seat of the League The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary General and such secretaries and staff as may be required

The first Secretary General shall be the person named in the Annex, thereafter the Secretary General shall be appointed by the Council with the approval of the majority of the Assembly

The secretaries and staff of the Secretariat shall be appointed by the Secretary General with the approval of the Council

The Secretary General shall act in that capacity at all meetings of the Assembly and of the Council

The expenses of the Secretariat shall be borne by the Members of the League in accordance with the apportionment of the expenses of the International Bureau of the Universal Postal Union

Article VII —The Seat of the League is established at Geneva

The Council may at any time decide that the Seat of the League shall be established elsewhere

All positions under or in connexion with the League, including the Secretariat, shall be open equally to men and women

Representatives of the Members of the League and officials of the League when engaged on the business of the League shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities

The buildings and other property occupied by the League or its officials or by Representatives attending its meetings shall be inviolable

Article VIII —The Members of the League recognize that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations

The Council, taking account of the geographical situation and circumstances of each Member of the League, shall formulate plans for such reduction for the consideration and action of the several Governments

Such plans shall be subject to reconsideration and revision at least every ten years

After these plans shall have been adopted by the several Governments, the limits of armaments therein fixed shall not be exceeded without the concurrence of the Council

The Members of the League agree that the manufacture by private enterprise of munitions and implements of war is open to grave objections The Council shall advise how the evil effects attendant upon such manufacture can be prevented, due regard being had to the necessities of those Members of the League which are not able to manufacture the munitions and implements of war necessary for their safety

The Members of the League undertake to interchange full and frank information as to the scale of their armaments, their military and naval programmes, and the condition of such of their industries as are adaptable to warlike purposes

Article IX.—A permanent Commission shall be constituted to advise the Council on the execution of the provisions of Articles I and VIII and on military and naval questions generally

Article X —The Members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all Members of the League In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled

Article XI —Any war or threat of war whether immediately affecting any of the Members of the League or not, is hereby declared a matter of concern to the whole League, and the League shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations In case any such emergency should arise the Secretary General shall on the request of any Member of the League forthwith summon a meeting of the Council

It is also declared to be the friendly right of each Member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threaten to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends

Article XII.—The Members of the League agree that if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to rupture, they will submit the matter either to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the report by the Council

In any case under this Article the award of the arbitrators shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the Council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute

Article XIII.—The Members of the League agree that whenever any dispute shall arise between them which they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration and which cannot be satisfactorily settled by diplomacy, they will submit the whole subject matter to arbitration.

Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration

For the consideration of any such dispute the court of arbitration to which the case is referred shall be the court agreed on by the parties to the dispute or stipulated in any convention existing between them

The Members of the League agree that they will carry out in full good faith any award that may be rendered and that they will not resort to war against a Member of the League which complies therewith In the event of any failure to carry out such an award, the Council shall propose what steps should be taken to give effect thereto

Article XIV —The Council shall formulate and submit to the Members of the League for adoption plans for the establishment of a Permanent Court of International Justice The Court shall be competent to hear and determine any dispute of an international character which the parties thereto submit to it The Court may also give an advisory opinion upon any dispute or question referred to it by the Council or by the Assembly

Article XV —If there should arise between Members of the League any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, which is not submitted to arbitration as above the Members of the League agree that they will submit the matter to the Council Any party to the dispute may effect such submission by giving notice of the existence of the dispute to the Secretary General, who will make all necessary arrangements for a full investigation and consideration thereof

For this purpose the parties to the dispute will communicate to the Secretary General, as promptly as possible, statements of their case with all the relevant facts and papers, and the Council may forthwith direct the publication thereof

The Council shall endeavour to effect a settlement of the dispute, and if such efforts are successful, a statement shall be made public giving such facts and explanations regarding the dispute and the terms of settlement thereof as the Council may deem appropriate

If the dispute is not thus settled, the Council either unanimously or by a majority vote shall make and publish a report containing a statement of the facts of the dispute and the recommendations which are deemed just and proper in regard thereto

Any Member of the League represented on the Council may make public a statement of the facts of the dispute and of its conclusions regarding the same

If a report by the Council is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof other than the Representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute, the Members of the League agree that they will not go to war with any party to the dispute which complies with the recommendations of the report

If the Council fails to reach a report which is unanimously agreed to by the members thereof, other than the Representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute the Members of the League reserve to themselves the right to take such action as they shall consider necessary for the maintenance of right and justice

If the dispute between the parties is claimed by one of them, and is found by the Council, to arise out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of that party, the Council shall so report, and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement

The Council may in any case under this Article refer the dispute to the Assembly The dispute shall be so referred at the request of either party to the dispute, provided that such a request be made within fourteen days after the submission of the dispute to the Council

In any case referred to the Assembly all the provisions of this Article and of Article XII relating to the action and powers of the Council shall apply to the action and powers of the Assembly, provided that a report made by the Assembly if concurred in by the Representatives of those Members of the League represented on the Council and of a majority of the other Members of the League, exclusive in each case of the Representatives of the parties to the dispute, shall have the same force as a report by the Council concurred in by all the members thereof other than the Representatives of one or more of the parties to the dispute

Article XVI —Should any Member of the League resort to war in disregard of its covenants under Articles XII, XIII, or XV, it shall ipso facto be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other Members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant breaking Member of the League, and the prevention of all financial, commercial, or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking Member of the League and the nationals of any other State, whether a Member of the League or not

It shall be the duty of the Council in such case to recommend to the several Governments concerned what effective military or naval force the Members of the League shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the League

The Members of the League agree, further that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures which are taken under this Article, in order to minimize the loss and inconvenience resulting from the above measures, and that they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measures aimed at one of their number by the covenant breaking Member of the League, and that they will take the necessary steps to afford passage through their territory to the forces of any of the Members of the League which are co operating to protect the covenants of the League

Any Member of the League which has violated any covenant of the League may be declared to be no longer a Member of the League by a vote of the Council concurred in by the Representatives of all the other Members of the League represented thereon

Article XVII —In the event of a dispute between any Member of the League and a State which is not a Member of the League, or between States not Members of the League, the State or States not Members of the League shall be invited to accept the obligations of membership in the League for the purposes of such dispute, upon such conditions as the Council may deem just If such invitation is accepted, the provisions of Articles XII to XVI inclusive shall be applied with such modifications as may be deemed necessary by the Council

Upon such invitation being given the Council shall immediately institute an inquiry into the circumstances of the dispute and recommend such action as may seem best and most effectual in the circumstances

If a State so invited shall refuse to accept the obligations of membership in the League for the purposes of such dispute, and shall resort to war against a Member of the League, the provisions of Article XVI shall be applicable as against the State taking such action

If both parties to the dispute when so invited refuse to accept the obligations of membership in the League for the purposes of such dispute, the Council may take such measures and make such recommendations as will prevent hostilities and will result in the settlement of the dispute

Article XVIII —Every treaty of international engagement entered into hereafter by any Member of the League shall be forthwith registered with the Secretariat and shall as soon as possible be published by it No such treaty or international engagement shall be binding until so registered

Article XIX —The Assembly may from time to time advise the reconsideration by Members of the League of treaties which have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world

Article XX —The Members of the League severally agree that this Covenant is accepted as abrogating all obligations or understandings inter se which are inconsistent with the terms thereof, and solemnly undertake that they will not hereafter enter into any engagements inconsistent with the terms thereof

In case any Member of the League shall, before becoming a Member of the League, have undertaken any obligations inconsistent with the terms of this Covenant, it shall be the duty of such Member to take immediate steps to procure its release from such obligations

Article XXI —Nothing in this Covenant shall be deemed to affect the validity of international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace

Article XXII —To those colonies and territories which as a consequence of the late war have ceased to be under the sovereignty of the States which formerly governed them and which are inhabited by peoples not yet able to stand by themselves under the strenuous conditions of the modern world, there should be applied the principle that the well being and development of such peoples form a sacred trust of civilization and that securities for the performance of this trust should be embodied in this Covenant.

The best method of giving practical effect to this principle is that the tutelage of such peoples should be entrusted to advanced nations who by reason of their resources, their experience or their geographical position, can best undertake this responsibility, and who are willing to accept it, and that this tutelage should be exercised by them as Mandatories on behalf of the League

The character of the mandate must differ according to the stage of the development of the people, the geographical situation of the territory, its economic conditions, and other similar circumstances.

Certain communities formerly belonging to the Turkish Empire have reached a stage of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognized subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a Mandatory until such time as they are able to stand alone. The wishes of these communities must be a principal consideration in the selection of the Mandatory

Other peoples, especially those of Central Africa, are at such a stage that the Mandatory must be responsible for the administration of the territory under conditions which will guarantee freedom of conscience or religion, subject only to the maintenance of public order and morals, the prohibition of abuses such as the slave trade, the arms traffic and the liquor traffic, and the prevention of the establishment of fortifications or military and naval bases and of military training of the natives for other than police purposes and for the defence of the territory, and will also secure equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other Members of the League

There are territories, such as South West Africa and certain of the South Pacific Islands, which, owing to the sparseness of their population, or their small size, or their remoteness from the centres of civilization, or their geographical contiguity to the territory of the Mandatory, and other circumstances, can be best administered under the laws of the Mandatory as integral portions of its territory, subject to the safeguards above mentioned in the interests of the indigenous population

In every case of mandate, the Mandatory shall render to the Council an annual report in reference to the territory committed to its charge

The degree of authority, control, or administration to be exercised by the Mandatory shall, if not previously agreed upon by the Members of the League, be explicitly defined in each case by the Council

A permanent Commission shall be constituted to receive and examine the annual reports of the Mandatories and to advise the Council on all matters relating to the observance of the mandates

Article XXIII.—Subject to and in accordance with the provisions of international conventions existing or hereafter to be agreed upon, the Members of the League

(a) will endeavour to secure and maintain fair and humane conditions of labour for men, women, and children both in their own countries and in all countries to which their commercial and industrial relations extend, and for that purpose will establish and maintain the necessary international organizations,

(b) undertake to secure just treatment of the native inhabitants of territories under their control,

(c) will entrust the League with the general supervision over the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in women and children, and traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs,

(d) will entrust the League with the general supervision of the trade in arms and ammunition with the countries in which the control of this traffic is necessary in the common interest,

(e) will make provision to secure and maintain freedom of communications and of transit and equitable treatment for the commerce of all Members of the League In this connexion, the special necessities of the regions devastated during the war of 1914 1918 shall be borne in mind,

(f) will endeavour to take steps in matters of international concern for the prevention and control of disease

Article XXIV.—There shall be placed under the direction of the League all international bureaux already established by general treaties if the parties to such treaties consent All such international bureaux and all commissions for the regulation of matters of international interest hereafter constituted shall be placed under the direction of the League.

In all matters of international interest which are regulated by general conventions but which are not placed under the control of international bureaux or commissions, the Secretariat of the League shall, subject to the consent of the Council, and if desired by the parties, collect and distribute all relevant information and shall render any other assistance which may be necessary or desirable

The Council may include as part of the expenses of the Secretariat the expenses of any bureau or commission which is placed under the direction of the League

Article XXV—The Members of the League agree to encourage and promote the establishment and co operation of duly authorized voluntary national Red Cross organizations having as purposes the improvement of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world

Article XXVI.—Amendments to this Covenant will take effect when ratified by the Members of the League whose Representatives compose the Council and by a majority of the Members of the League whose Representatives compose the Assembly

No such amendment shall bind any Member of the League which signifies its dissent therefrom, but in that case it shall cease to be a Member of the League

Constitution and Government.

I IMPERIAL AND CENTRAL

The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is vested in Parliament Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least twenty days previous to its assembling

The annual session used to extend from the middle of February to about the middle of August, and only occasionally later, but since 1914 the sittings of Parliament have been interrupted only by comparatively short intervals Every session must end with a prorogation, and all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse A dissolution may occur by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of any Parliament being five years The life of the last Parliament, beginning in November 1910, should have ended in January, 1916, but was, owing to the war, extended by successive Acts to November, 1918, nearly eight years' duration

Under the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo V, ch 13), all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons), if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the same Parliament or not, and rejected each time, or not passed, by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons, and the third reading in the third session All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least one month before the end of the session Finally, the Parliament Act limited the maximum duration of Parliament to five years instead of seven (but the duration of the last Parliament was specially extended, as stated above)

The present form of Parliament, as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(i) by hereditary right, (ii) by creation of the sovereign, (iii) by virtue of office—Law Lords, and English archbishops (2) and bishops (24), (iv) by election for life—Irish peers (28), (v) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers (16) The full house would consist of about 726 members, but the voting strength (in January, 1921) was about 709

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough, and University constituencies in the three Divisions of the United Kingdom No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament Clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland, and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members, Government contractors, and sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act, are also among those disqualified. No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible. Under the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1918, women are also eligible, and the first woman member took her seat in December, 1919.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was first made for the payment of a salary of 400*l* per year to members, other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, as Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's household Payment began as from April 1, 1911 This provision does not extend to the House of Lords

Under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, the franchise was revised and extended, several million women and new male voters being enfranchised Male electors must be of full age (twenty one years), and have resided, or occupied business premises of an annual value of not less than ten pounds, in the same parliamentary borough or county, or one contiguous thereto, for six months ending on January 15 or July 15 (in Ireland the latter date alone applies) A woman voter must be thirty years of age, and entitled to be registered as a local government elector (or, as regards Scotland, deemed to be so registered) in respect of the occupation of premises of a yearly value of not less than five pounds, or of a dwelling house, or she must be the wife of a husband entitled to be so registered lodgers in unfurnished, but not furnished, rooms can vote if otherwise qualified There is also a University franchise, to be qualified for which a man must be twenty one years of age, and a woman thirty years, and each must have taken a degree, or, in the case of a woman, have fulfilled the conditions which would entitle a man to a degree In Scotland and Ireland other scholastic attainments are admitted as qualifications Male persons who served in the war are entitled to be registered at the age of nineteen years, if otherwise qualified

No person may vote at a general election for more than two constituencies, for one of which, in the case of a man, there must be a residence qualification, and, in the case of a woman, a local government qualification, her own or her husband's The second vote must rest on a different qualification

Disqualified for registration are (among others) infants, peers, idiots and lunatics, aliens, bankrupts, and, for five years after the war, conscientious objectors who have not fulfilled certain conditions as to the performance of war work or other work of national importance Receipt of poor relief or other alms no longer counts as a disqualification

Two registers of electors must be prepared each year, one in the spring, and the other in the autumn, except in Ireland, where only one is required, and the authorised expenses are met by local and State funds in equal parts University registers may be made up as the governing bodies decide, and a registration fee not exceeding 1*l* may be charged

In university constituencies returning two or more members the elections must be according to the principle of proportional representation, each elector having one transferable vote At a general election all polls must be held on the same day, except in the case of Orkney and Shetland, and of university elections Provision is made for absent electors to vote, in certain cases by proxy

Under the same Act the seats in Great Britain were redistributed on the basis of one member of the House of Commons for every 70,000 of the population By a separate Act, redistribution in Ireland was made on the basis of one for every 43,000 of the population The total membership of the House of Commons was thereby raised from 670 (as established in 1885) to 707

The number of persons qualified for registration as parliamentary electors under the Representation of the People Act, 1918, was in 1920 about 21,776,000 (nearly one half of the population) Women numbered 8,856,000 Prior to this Act the number qualified was about 8,350,000 (all males)

The following is a table of the duration of Parliaments called since the accession of Queen Victoria (for heads of the Administrations see p 10)—

The executive government of Great Britain and Ireland is vested nominally in the Crown, but practically in a committee of Ministers, called the Cabinet, whose existence is dependent on the support of a majority in the House of Commons In November, 1918, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland set up an advisory Council of seven members to advise on matters affecting Ireland

An Act to establish a separate Parliament in Ireland was passed in 1914, but never came into force In 1920 this was repealed and a new Act passed the Government of Ireland Act, 1920 under which two Parliaments are to be established, one for "Northern Ireland (comprising the parliamentary counties of Antrim Armagh Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone and the parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry), and one for "Southern Ireland" (the rest of the country) Each Parliament will consist of a Senate and a House of Commons and will have power to legislate for their respective areas except in regard to (1) matters of Imperial concern, and (2) certain matters concerning Ireland which are temporarily "reserved" to the Imperial Parliament (police postal service, Post Office and Trustee savings banks, designs for stamps, registration of deeds, Public Record Office, land purchase) Certain funds derived from Irish taxation will be allocated to the two Irish Exchequers, after deduction of (1) a contribution towards Imperial liabilities and expenditure (temporarily fixed at £18,000,000 a year) and (2) the cost of "reserved services, while the Parliaments are given certain powers of independent taxation The executive power is vested in the Lord Lieutenant (appointed for six years), advised by ministers responsible to the respective Parliaments The Senate of S Ireland will consist of 3 ex officio, 17 nominated, and 44 elected persons, that of N Ireland, of 2 ex officio and 24 elected persons Senators will hold office for a fixed term of years. The House of Commons of S Ireland will consist of 128 and that of N Ireland of 52 elected members, and the Houses will continue for five years, unless sooner dissolved Money Bills must originate in the Commons, and the powers of the Senates with respect thereto are limited Disagreement between the two Houses is to be settled by joint sittings The qualifications for membership of the Parliaments are similar to those for membership of the Imperial House of Commons Ireland will continue to return 46 members to the latter

There is also to be established a "Council of Ireland, consisting of 40 persons elected in equal numbers by the two Parliaments This Council will administer the railways and fisheries, Diseases of Animals Acts, and any powers delegated to it by identical Acts of the two Parliaments, and it may consider any questions bearing on the welfare of Ireland and make suggestions in relation thereto to the two Parliaments The latter may establish by identical Acts, in lieu of this Council, a Parliament for the whole of Ireland, consisting of two Houses, and so bring about Irish Union This Parliament will take over the powers of the two Parliaments, except as otherwise provided, and will also control certain of the services temporarily "reserved" to the Imperial Parliament

The Act is to come into force generally on May 3, 1921

The Cabinet, prior to December, 1916, consisted of the political chiefs of the principal Government Departments, and exceeded twenty in number With the formation of Mr Lloyd George's Government at that date, the Cabinet was reduced to about six in number This Cabinet became known as the 'War Cabinet,' and, as occasion required, was expanded into an 'Imperial War Cabinet' by the inclusion of the Prime Ministers, and other representative ministers, of the various parts of the Empire The constitution of the 'Imperial War Cabinet' in 1917 may be taken as a formal recognition of the equality of status between the various responsible governments of the Empire Continuity in the work of this Cabinet was secured by giving in July, 1918, the Prime Minister of each Dominion the right to nominate a Cabinet Minister, either as a resident or a visitor in London, to represent him at the meetings of the Cabinet held between the plenary sessions

A meeting of Prime Ministers has been summoned for June, 1921, to act on the lines of the Imperial War Cabinet, to deal with urgent problems of common interest

In June, 1918, a 'Standing Committee of Home Affairs' was formed from among the political heads of Departments, whose function was to consider questions of internal policy and such domestic questions as required the co operation of more than one Department, or were of such importance that they would otherwise have called for the consideration of the War Cabinet Its decisions were circulated to, and, when necessary, revised by, the War Cabinet

In October, 1919, the 'War Cabinet' and the Home Affairs Committee were dissolved, and a full Cabinet of about twenty members re constituted

The head of the Ministry is the Prime Minister, a position first constitutionally recognised, and special precedence accorded to the holder, in 1905 No salary is attached to the office of Prime Minister, as such, and it is usually held in conjunction with some other high office of State, generally that of First Lord of the Treasury His colleagues in the Ministry are appointed on his recommendation, and he dispenses the greater portion of the patronage of the Crown

The present Government (appointed January, 1919) consists of the following members

II Local Government

England and Wales —In each county the Crown is represented by H M Lieutenant for the county, who is generally also custos rotulorum, or keeper of the records The recommendation of persons for appointment by the Lord Chancellor as justices of the peace rests with the Lieutenants, but local advisory committees are set up, as and when required, to advise the Lieutenants and the Lord Chancellor on these appointments The Lieutenants are the presidents of the County Associations formed under the Territorial and Reserve Forces Act, 1907, and their duties as such relate to the organisation, equipping and maintenance of the Territorial Forces Otherwise their duties are almost nominal There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of the peace, coroners, who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers The licensing of persons to sell intoxicating liquors, and the administration of the criminal law—except that which deals with some of the graver offences—are in the hands of the magistrates

For the purposes of local government England and Wales are divided into sixty-two administrative counties, including the county of London, differing in area from the old geographical counties, which, except for historical purposes, do not now exist The new counties are administered by the justices and by a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co-opt a prescribed number of aldermen, either from their own body or from outside it Aldermen are elected for six years, half of them retiring every third year A councillor is elected for three years Women are eligible The jurisdiction of the County Councils includes all the administrative work formerly performed by the justices and many new powers conferred by recent Acts of Parliament, the principal items being the making of county and police rates, levying of duties on licences for carriages, armorial bearings, guns, dogs, killing and dealing in game, borrowing of money, licensing of houses for music and dancing, and of racecourses, maintenance and management of pauper lunatic asylums, maintenance of reformatory and industrial schools, management of bridges and main roads, regulation of fees of inspectors, analysts, and other officers, coroner's salary, fees, and district, Parliamentary polling districts and registration, contagious diseases of animals, allotments, weights and measures, sale of food and drugs Under Acts of 1902, 1903, and 1918 the County Councils are also the local education authorities, and other recent acts have in minor matters extended their jurisdiction The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of an equal number of magistrates and members of the County Council The London Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary

The administrative counties, with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into 'County Districts' which are either 'Urban' or 'Rural,' as the case may be Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes Women may be elected to these District Councils The District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and also exercise powers under the Housing Acts Urban District Councils may also take over main roads from the County Councils, provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c, exercise powers under Provisional Orders or Private Acts for gasworks, tramways, electric light and power works, &c Any urban district with 20,000 inhabitants may also be a local education authority The Rural District Councils may also provide allotments, cemeteries, &c, make arrangements for an adequate water supply, and exercise any 'Urban powers' conferred on them by the Local Government Board

In every civil parish in a 'rural district' there is a Parish Meeting, at which every parochial elector may attend and vote In such parishes of over 300 inhabitants there is in addition a Parish Council Women are eligible for election Parishes of less than 300 inhabitants may have Parish Councils if authorised by the County Council To these Parish Councils have been transferred all the civil powers of the old Vestries, including the election of overseers, and in addition very considerable powers over charities, allotments, and other public matters Where there is no Parish Council some of these powers, including the appointment of the overseers, are exercised by the Parish Meeting Urban District Councils can, by petitioning the Local Government Board—which is the supreme Local Government authority—obtain part or all of the powers of a Parish Council Only Parish Meetings may have power to adopt the Public Libraries Acts, the Baths and Washhouses Acts, the Lighting and Watching Acts, the Burials Acts, and the Public Improvements Acts

The main central authority in London, the capital of the Empire, is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1888 It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, parks, main drainage, fire brigade, sanitary control, education, and numerous other matters It is also the tramway authority for the county. The City Corporation have powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c , in the City of London London comprises the ancient city with an area of one square mile, and an area of 118 square miles beyond the city, which is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen, and councillors (women are eligible) The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education, &c , but they are not boroughs in the statutory sense as in the rest of the Kingdom The County Council has certain powers of control over them It sanctions loans, approves the construction of sewers and the carrying out of local improvements, and has considerable public health duties in connection with the boroughs.

In all the great towns, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation, which derives its authority from charters granted by the Crown, as modified by the Great Municipal Corporations Act of 1837, and the Act of 1882 There are three kinds of boroughs, county boroughs, quarter session boroughs, and small boroughs of special and generally ancient jurisdiction The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils, but in other Municipal Boroughs these Councils have certain powers and duties A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers The councillors serve for three years (women are eligible), one-third retiring annually , the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who serves for one year, also by the Council A municipal Corporation has practically all the powers of an urban district council, and in some cases municipal boroughs have a separate commission of the peace and maintain their own police force As to Poor Law and Education administration, see 'Pauperism' and 'Instruction'

Scotland —By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted It consists of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor General of Scotland, the Under Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown The Local Government Act which was passed for Scotland in 1889 followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to the new Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890 The Act of 1894 provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards and to exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England, with bailies and provosts instead of aldermen and mayors There are in Scotland five kinds of burghs—(1) Burghs of barony , (2) Burghs of regality (no practical distinction between these two) , the councils of these two classes of burghs ceased to exist in 1893 by statutory enactment , (3) Royal Burghs, representatives of which meet together annually in a collective corporate character, as the 'Convention of Royal Burghs,' for the transaction of business , (4) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs ; (5) Police Burghs, constituted under general or local Police Acts, in which the local authority is the Police Commissioners These two latter burghs, by Acts passed in 1879 and 1895, are enabled to send representatives to the convention

Ireland —The principal county authority for local government used to be the grand jury, appointed under the Act 6 & 7 Will IV c. 116 , but, by the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, provision was made for the establishment of popularly elected Councils for counties and rural districts Under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1919, the councillors are elected for three years, on the system of the single transferable vote The Council of each county and rural district, immediately after any triennial election, may choose additional members to hold office till the next triennial election The administrative business formerly managed by the grand juries and presentment sessions has been transferred to these Councils The Act of 1898 gave them the assessment and collection of the rates, except in urban areas, the maintenance in part of asylums and infirmaries, and the appointment of Coroners They have functions also in respect of many other matters, such as technical instruction, school attendance and medical inspection of school children, regulation of motor car traffic, collection of licence duty on mechanically propelled vehicles, treatment of tuberculosis and venereal disease, and the alteration of Parliamentary Polling Districts and Places The general business relating to public health and labourers' cottages, formerly vested in the Board of Guardians, now devolves on the Rural District Council The administration of the poor relief Acts is exercised by Boards of Guardians Each Board comprises the councillors of each rural district in the union, together with specially elected representatives of each urban district in the union The cities of Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry, and Waterford are county boroughs, and they, together with five other corporate boroughs, have a mayor, aldermen, and councillors, whose powers are regulated by 3 & 4 Vict c 108 The ordinary affairs of the borough, such as lighting, paving, and cleansing, are administered by the Council, which has power to levy rates for these purposes The County Boroughs, Corporate Boroughs, and other populous centres are Urban Districts, and their Councils are the local authorities for the purposes of the Public Health, Local Government and Housing Acts In the absence of any other form of incorporation, the Urban District Council, and not the town itself, is the body corporate In a few small towns, the local affairs are administered by a body of Commissioners appointed under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, who have powers to discharge certain municipal functions, and are empowered to levy rates to defray the cost of administration Towns must have 1,500 inhabitants to enable them to obtain municipal government under this Act, and any such town may be constituted an Urban District

Under the Local Government Act of 1898 and the Local Authorities (Ireland) (Qualification of Women) Act, 1911 women are eligible for election as members of all local government elected bodies in Ireland, in the same manner and on the same conditions as men

Religion

1 England and Wales

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects Under the Welsh Church Acts, 1914 and 1919, the Church in Wales and Monmouthshire was disestablished as from March 31, 1920. Wales has been formed into a separate Archbishopric Property belonging to the Church in Wales, and a sum of 1,000,000*l* provided by Parliament, have been assigned to a temporary body not exceeding three persons, called the Welsh Commissioners, for distribution to a body representing the Church (called the Representative Body), and to certain other authorities including the University of Wales

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church in England, possessing the right, regulated by statute, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as are in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries are in the gift of the Lord Chancellor

There are 3 archbishops (at the head of the three 'provinces' of Canterbury, York and Wales) and 43 bishops, and 39 suffragan and assistant bishops in England and Wales Each archbishop has also his own particular diocese, wherein he exercises episcopal, as in his province he exercises archiepiscopal jurisdiction Under the bishops are about 30 deans and 100 archdeacons Under the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919, there is a National Assembly, called 'the Church Assembly,' in England consisting of a House of Bishops, a House of Clergy, and a House of Laymen, which has power to legislate regarding Church matters The first two Houses consist of the Convocations of Canterbury and York, which in turn consist of the bishops (forming an Upper House), archdeacons, and deans, and a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of the inferior clergy (forming the Lower House) The House of Laymen is elected by the lay members of the Diocesan Conference Parochial affairs are managed by a Parochial Church Meeting and Church Council Every measure passed by the Church Assembly must be submitted to an Ecclesiastical Committee, consisting of fifteen members of the House of Lords nominated by the Lord Chancellor, and fifteen members of the House of Commons nominated by the Speaker This Committee reports on each measure to Parliament, and the measure becomes law if each House of Parliament passes a resolution to that effect

The number of civil parishes (districts for which a separate poor rate is or can be made) at the census of 1911 was 14,614 These, however, in most cases, do not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which have lost their old importance Of such parishes there were (1911) 14,387, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent or minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish Private persons possess the right of presentation to about 8,500 benefices, the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the King, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor, and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge In 1918 there were about 13,000 beneficed clergy, and 6,800 curates, etc The voluntary offerings in the Church of England in 1918 amounted to 8,853,000*l*

Of 33,682 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage at the end of 1919, 16,114 belonged to the Established Church and 17,568 to other religious denominations Of the marriages celebrated in 1919, 59 7 per cent were in the Established Church, 5 2 per cent in the Roman Catholic Church, 11 5 per cent were Nonconformist marriages, 0 04 per cent were Quaker marriages, 0 5 per cent Jewish, and 23 1 per cent civil marriages in Registrar's Office.

The following summary of statistics of Nonconformist churches (England and Wales, Channel Islands, and Isle of Man) in 1915 is taken from the 'Free Church Year-Book' for 1916 It only claims to present an approximation of the actual condition Figures relating to the Anglican Church are appended –

2. Scotland

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is presbyterian, the ministers all being of equal rank There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister, and of several laymen called elders There are 84 presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in 16 synods, which meet half yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries The supreme court is the General Assembly, which consists of over 700 members, partly clerical and partly lay, chosen by the different presbyteries, royal burghs, and universities It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly, the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner), and sits for ten days, any matters not decided during this period being left to a Commission

The number of parishes is 1,461, and the number of churches, chapels, and stations about 1,700 Under regulations enacted by the General

Assembly, the parishioners choose their own ministers The entire endowments of the Church from all sources, including manses and glebes, amount to about 392,000*l* per annum The voluntary contributions of the congregations for religious and charitable purposes in 1919 amounted to 643,589*l* The number of communicants in 1919 was about 728,000, ministers, about 1,800, lay missionaries, 105, Sunday scholars, 192,500

On October 31, 1900, the Free Church of Scotland and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland (formed by secessions at various times from the Church of Scotland) constituted themselves into the United Free Church of Scotland A minority, representing 26 congregations, regarding themselves as the Free Church of Scotland, claimed all the property and endowment funds A Royal Commission reported that the Free Church was unable adequately to carry out all the trusts of the property The Churches (Scotland) Act, 1905, was passed for the apportionment of the church property between the Free and the United Free churches by an Executive Commission of five, and the result was that funds amounting to 459,469*l* were allocated to the Free Church (310,000*l* for general provision and the remainder for College provision and various other purposes) The United Church's foreign mission was extended in 1918 to the oversight of the Basel Mission (formerly under German domination) in the Gold Coast The foreign mission agents (including natives) number 5,017, and income 395,000*l* The United Church had on December 31, 1919, 1,489 congregations, and 30 preaching stations, 528,000 members, besides adherents, 2,050 Sunday schools, with 21,647 teachers and 201 000 children in attendance The Church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 64 presbyteries, and 2 continental presbyteries Annual revenue from free will offerings is over a million sterling The Church has three theological colleges (at Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen) with 19 professors and lecturers The Free Church had in 1919, 150 congregations and stations, 89 ministers and probationers, and one college Contributions to schemes amounted to 18,437*l*, and other income to 24,022*l* There are in Scotland some small outstanding Presbyterian bodies and also Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Unitarians The Episcopal Church in Scotland has 7 bishoprics, 416 churches and missions, 320 clergy, and 56,000 communicants

The Roman Catholic Church had in Scotland (1920) two archbishops, four bishops and one bishop auxiliary, about 600 priests, 454 churches, chapels, and stations, and about 546,000 adherents

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1918 was Established, 88 5 per cent, United Free, 22 6, Roman Catholic, 11 0, Episcopal, 3 6, others, 7 1, irregular, 17 2

3 Ireland

The principal religious professions in Ireland, as recorded at the census of 1911, are as follows —

—	Leinster	Munster	Ulster	Connaught	Total
Roman Catholics	990,045	978,805	690 816	588 004	3,242,670

At most of the Universities and University Colleges women students are admitted on equal terms with men There are, however, several colleges exclusively for female Students —Bedford (61 teachers, &c , 570 students), Royal Holloway (31 teachers, 200 students) and Westfield Colleges (18 teachers, &c , 108 students) in London Newnham (13 teachers, &c , 250 students) and Girton (27 teachers, &c , 170 students) Colleges in Cambridge , Lady Margaret Hall (6 teachers, &c , 96 students), Somerville College (11 teachers, &c , 123 students), St Hugh's College (7 tutors, 120 students), and St Hilda's College (6 teachers, 86 students), in Oxford Women were first admitted to membership of Oxford University, and to take degrees, in October, 1920

Secondary and Technical Education, &c

In England and Wales the councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000, are the local authorities for higher education Under the Education Act, 1918, County and County Borough Councils are required (with the approval of the Board of Education, and in co operation, if necessary, with other educational authorities) to provide "for the progressive development and comprehensive organisation of education" in their several areas, and in any schemes submitted for approval to the Board of Education in furtherance of this object, provision must be made to secure that children and young persons (persons under 18 years of age) shall not be debarred by inability to pay fees from receiving the benefits of any form of education from which they are capable of profiting Continuation schools are being established, providing courses of study, instruction, and physical training, without payment of fees, for young persons under 16 years of age, and subsequently for those under eighteen years of age , subject to certain exemptions, attendance at these schools is compulsory for 320 hours (in some cases 280 hours) each year The students' employment may be suspended, if required by the Education Authority, on any day during which attendance is necessary at these schools "Works schools" may be recognised, and must be inspected Local education authorities may also (with the approval of the Board of Education) provide or aid the supply of holiday or school camps, centres and equipment for physical training, playing fields, school baths and swimming baths, and other facilities for social and physical training Provision must be made for the supply and training of teachers, and teachers and students may be aided to carry on research County and County Borough Councils must also provide for the medical inspection of children and young persons in secondary schools, continuation schools, and certain other non elementary schools and educational institutions To these purposes the local education authorities may apply money raised by rates, besides devoting to them the residue under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise) Act, 1890, and they may borrow money Grants are to be made to them by the Board of Education, amounting to not less than half the net expenditure recognised by the Board They have power to provide scholarships, including allowances for maintenance, and to pay fees; in schools provided by them they must not pay for religious instruction, in schools not provided by them they can neither impose nor forbid religious instruction

In 1917–18, there were in England and Wales 1,061 recognised secondary schools on the Grant List, with 238,314 full time pupils (123,353 boys and 114,961 girls) In addition there were 134 other secondary schools recognised by the Board of Education as efficient, with probably about 26,000 pupils In 1917–18 there were also recognised 10 preparatory schools (i e, preparatory to secondary schools proper) with 1,140 pupils The Board also recognised a number of institutions providing technical instruction courses, and day technical classes, schools of nautical training, university tutorial classes, schools of art, and evening and other part time schools Examinations in science and art are held by the Board, and scholarships, exhibitions, &c, are awarded to successful competitors

In Scotland, under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918, the local authorities for the purposes of education are called 'education authorities,' and the 'education areas' for which they are elected are the burghs of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Dundee, and Leith, and the counties, including the remaining burghs These authorities work through 'school management committees,' representing the authority, the parents, and the teachers Adequate provision of all forms of primary, intermediate, and secondary education in day schools, without payment of fees, must be made by these authorities They may grant assistance, by payment of fees (in cases where fees are payable), travelling expenses, maintenance allowances, &c, to suitable persons, to facilitate their attendance at intermediate or secondary schools, or at universities, training colleges, or other educational institutions A county education authority may also provide books for the use of the resident adult population Continuation classes must be provided for young persons under the age of 16 years on a certain date, the age limit ultimately becoming 18 years, and attendance is required for at least 320 hours per year between the hours of 8 a m and 7 p m Exemption from such attendance may be granted in certain circumstances In 1918–19 there were 56 grant receiving secondary schools, with an average attendance in the secondary departments of 14,933 (and a total attendance of 21,628).

In Ireland there is an Intermediate Education Board Its income is derived partly from the interest on the capital sum of one million sterling (Irish Church Funds), partly from an annual sum of 46,567*l* provided under the Revenue Act, 1911, in lieu of the amount formerly payable under the Local Taxation (Customs and Excise Act), 1890 The income in 1919 from these and certain other sources was 86,318*l*. In addition, under the Intermediate Education Act, Ireland, 1914, the Board received from Parliament a sum of 40,000*l*, known as the Teachers' Salaries Grant, and a further sum of 50,000*l*. voted by Parliament.

The Board holds every year a general public examination for such candidates as present themselves It pays grants to schools in respect of this examination, and also pays grants on the results of Inspection In 1919 these grants amounted to 59,748*l*, besides exhibitions and prizes to students amounting to 6,413*l* In that year 12,119 students (7,316 boys and 4,803 girls) presented themselves for examination, and the numbers who passed were 3,819 boys, 2,340 girls, total 6,159 Apart from these subventions, secondary education in Ireland is in private hands

Throughout Ireland technical instruction is organised under the Councils of county boroughs, urban districts, and counties and is controlled by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, with the advice of a Technical Instruction Board and a Consultative Committee of Education The Department aims at the co ordination of its work with that of other educational authorities In 1918-19 out of the Parliamentary grant to the Department, 81,158*l* was paid as grants to technical schools and classes of science and art and technical instruction in non agricultural subjects, 33,450*l* as grants to day secondary schools, and 1,944*l* as grants for drawing and manual instruction in primary schools There is also an annual grant (out of the Department's Annual Endowment Fund) of 55,000*l* for technical education in non agricultural subjects Further, a grant of 7,940*l* for manual instruction and domestic economy in rural districts, and 2,700*l* for classes in lace and crochet making and other rural industries was made by the Agricultural Board in 1918-19 Central institutions under the Department are the Royal College of Science, Dublin, with 240 students (1918-19), the Metropolitan School of Art, with 276 pupils (1918-19), the Irish Training School of Domestic Economy, 30 students The Killarney school of housewifery had 29 students (1918-19) In urban and county technical schools and classes (1918-19) there were 44,506 students

Elementary Education

England and Wales—Elementary education in England and Wales is under the control of the Board of Education The local administration is in the hands of the Councils of counties, of county boroughs, of non-county boroughs with population over 10,000, and of urban districts with population over 20,000 The last two authorities can transfer their powers to the local county councils The education authorities work through committees (consisting of members of their own bodies, other persons with special qualifications, and women) and school managers Schools aided, but not provided, by local authorities have 4 'foundation' managers and 2 managers appointed by Councils Women may be managers On July 31, 1918, the number of Local Education Authorities in England and Wales for enforcing school attendance was 318

The local education authorities maintain all public elementary schools and control the expenditure necessary for this purpose The only financial responsibility resting on the managers of 'non provided' schools is to supply the buildings In the case of schools not provided by the local authorities, their directions as to secular instruction (including the number and qualification of teachers) must be complied with, they have power to inspect the schools, and they must receive, free of charge, the use of the school house for elementary school purposes Education funds are derived from State grants (to the extent of at least half the net expenditure recognised by the Board of Education), local rates, &c, and the education authorities have borrowing powers Income from endowments for such purposes of elementary education as fall within the scope of the local education authorities is paid to these authorities and applied in aid of the rates

Elementary education is free Attendance at school is to be compulsory between the ages of 5 and 14 years, and bye laws may be made in any area requiring attendance up to the age of 15 years, either for children generally, or with certain exceptions (For attendance at Continuation Schools, see above, p 31) Provision must be made for courses of advanced instruction for the older or more intelligent children, and for 'practical' instruction in cookery, laundrywork, housewifery, dairywork, handicrafts, gardening, &c The local education authorities may supply, or aid the supply of, nursery schools and classes for children between 2 and 5 years of age, or such later age as may be approved by the Board of Education, and may make arrangements for attending to the health, nourishment, and physical welfare of such children Arrangements must also be made for the education of physically or mentally defective children, and epileptic children Provision may also be made for holiday or school camps, centres for physical training, school baths, and other facilities for social and physical training In exceptional circumstances (such as remoteness of the homes from the school) board and lodging, and other facilities, may be provided

Provision must be made by local education authorities for attending to the health and physical condition of children in public elementary schools, and for the supply of meals

Employment of children under the age of 12, and street trading under the age of 14, are prohibited

In 1919, the number of schools (ordinary elementary, higher elementary, special, and certified efficient) in England and Wales for elementary education was 21,473, with accommodation for about 7,100,000 pupils The number of scholars on the books of these schools on January 31, 1919, was 221,862 aged under 5, 4,582,760 aged 5 and under 12, 1,113,232 aged 12 and over, total, 5,917,854 In 1920 there were 12,266 voluntary schools for ordinary public elementary education, with accommodation for about 2,730,000 pupils, and 8,705 Council schools, with accommodation for about 4,355,000 pupils, total ordinary public elementary schools, 20,971, with total accommodation of about 7,085,000 The average attendance at these schools in 1918-19 was 5,108,000, and the number of teachers was 168,000 The number of higher elementary schools was 44, with 11,550 registered pupils on the last day of January, 1919 'Special' schools comprised, in 1919, 57 for the blind, with accommodation for 3,200 pupils, 50 for the deaf, with accommodation for 4,600 pupils, 198 for mentally defective children, with accommodation for 15,500 pupils, 162 for physically defective children, with accommodation for 11,400 pupils, 6 for epileptic children with accommodation for 500 pupils, and 53 'certified efficient' schools There were also 59 poor law schools, on March 31, 1919 In 1919–20 there were 87 training colleges for teachers for elementary schools in England and Wales, with accommodation for 13,542 students

Scotland —Under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1918, elementary education is controlled by specially elected 'education authorities' (see under Secondary Education, &c, p 32) Education is compulsory up to the age of 15 years, with exemption, on certain conditions, for children over 13 'Nursery schools' may be provided for children over 2 and under 5 years of age (or a later age, if approved by the Scottish Education Department) Existing 'voluntary' schools may be transferred to the education authorities, who must accept such transfer After November, 1920, grants to voluntary schools, made under the Education (Scotland) Act, 1897, are to cease, except in special circumstances

The number of elementary schools in receipt of grants in 1919 was 3,359, with accommodation for 1,113,305 pupils The average attendance during the year ended August 31, 1919, was 725,066, and the average number of children on the register, 837,923 These figures include 196 higher grade schools, accommodation, 41,702, average attendance, 31,050, average number on register, 34,99/

There were in 1918 19 21,436 certificated teachers, 304 assistant teachers, and 6 pupil teachers In 1919–20 there were at 4 training centres and 3 training colleges 2,244 senior students , and 2,198 junior students at 118 training centres In 1919–20 there were 956 continuation class centres

Ireland —Elementary education in Ireland has been, since 1831, under the control of the 'Commissioners of National Education in Ireland' In 1918 there were 8,002 primary schools in operation the average number of pupils on the registers was 688,955 , and the average attendance was 488,031

The teachers receiving personal salaries from the Commissioners on December 31, 1918, numbered approximately 7,590 principal teachers, 5,770 assistants, besides 45 workmistresses and 2,380 junior assistant teachers There are 7 training colleges, affording facilities for the training of 1,195 King's scholars

Justice and Crime

England and Wales

The Supreme Court of Judicature is the ultimate authority in all cases, civil and criminal, in England and Wales It exercises its power through the High Court of Justice and a variety of subordinate local courts The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessional courts, the general or quarter sessions, the courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, more popularly known as 'assizes,' and the Central Criminal Court Two or more justices of the peace, the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any metropolitan or borough police magistrate or other stipendiary magistrate, sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessional court The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county Similar courts can be held at other times, and are then called 'general sessions' Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend Women may be magistrates Certain cities and boroughs have a court of quarter sessions, with similar jurisdiction to the county justices in quarter sessions assembled, in which the recorder of the borough is the judge The assize courts are constituted by Judges of the High Court (or in some cases by King's Counsel bearing His Majesty's special commission) These go on circuit twice or four times a year, visiting every county in turn, and hearing and determining all civil cases entered for trial and all criminal cases presented by the Grand Jury of the County or Riding of the County Trials are, in general, by jury, and the jury, subject to the direction of the Judge on points of law, are the sole judges of the facts of the case Women are liable to serve on juries The Central Criminal Court is the court of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery for the City of London and a large surrounding district The sessions of this court are held at least twelve times a year and more often if necessary The Recorder and the Common Serjeant and, if the number of the prisoners makes it necessary, the judge of the City of London Court, sit on the first two days, after which they are joined by one of the judges of the High Court on the rota, for whom the more serious cases are reserved Criminal cases of special importance or complexity arising in any part of the country may, by direction of the Lord Chief Justice, be brought for trial in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice before three High Court Judges, the Lord Chief Justice himself presiding A petty sessional court deals summarily with minor offences Cases of a more serious nature are usually investigated by a petty sessional court before being tried at the sessions or the assizes To every sessions, assize, and to every sitting of the Central Criminal Court, the sheriff cites 24 of the chief inhabitants of the district, of whom not less than 12 and not more than 23 are sworn and constitute a grand jury, which examines the bill of indictment against the accused person, hears the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, and if it thinks a prima facie case for trial is made out, endorses the bill 'a true bill' All criminal trials, except those which come before a court of summary jurisdiction, take place before a judge and a petty jury of twelve persons Appeal is allowed in criminal cases (i) on a point of law, (ii) on a question of fact, or other sufficient ground if the judge certifies the case as fit for appeal, or the Court of Criminal Appeal grants leave to appeal, and (iii) against the sentence (if not fixed by law) with the leave of the Appeal Court On a conviction the judge can, if he think fit, reserve a question of law (but not of fact) for the Court of Criminal Appeal, which can reverse, amend, or affirm the judgment The only other method of securing the revision of a sentence is by the Royal prerogative, exercised on the advice of the Home Secretary, by which a sentence can be modified or annulled No man can be tried again for the same crime after a petty jury has found him 'not guilty' Nominally all the judges are appointed by the King, but in practice the Lord Chancellor (who is a minister, ex officio president of the House of Lords, and goes out with the ministry), the Lord Chief Justice, the Lords of Appeal, who sit in the House of Lords and on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the Lords Justices of Appeal who sit in the Court of Appeal, are appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, and all the other judges on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor

The courts having jurisdiction in civil cases are the County Courts, created in 1846, Assizes, and the High Court Above the High Court is the Court of Appeal, and above that the House of Lords

The authorised strength of the police force in England and Wales on September 29, 1919, was 56,166

Scotland

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns One judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of difficulty or importance It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, deforcement of messengers, and generally in all cases in which a higher punishment than imprisonment is by statute directed to be inflicted, and it has moreover an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, both those already established by common law or statute, and such as have never previously come before the courts and are not within any statute

The sheriff of each county is the proper criminal judge in all crimes occurring within the county which infer only an arbitrary punishment, and if the case is tried with a jury the High Court has no power of review on the merits Even in cases indicted to the High Court the accused is, under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act of 1887, regularly asked to plead in the sheriff court, and minor objections to the indictment can be wholly or in part disposed of there Borough magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases occurring within the burgh or county, and in a number of minor offences under various statutes

The Court of Session exercises the highest civil jurisdiction in Scotland, with the House of Lords as a Court of Appeal

The police force in Scotland at the end of 1919 had an authorised strength of 6,124

Ireland

In Ireland persons charged with crime are as a rule brought before a court of petty sessions In most cases one magistrate is sufficient to form a court to try a case to be decided at petty sessions In some instances two are requisite Offences are divided into two classes, those in which justices have a 'summary jurisdiction,' in which cases they hear and determine the complaint, the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914, providing for an appeal in practically every case The second class is 'indictable offences' In these cases the justice merely takes the depositions and returns the case for trial to the next court having jurisdiction to try it—quarter sessions or assize court as the case may be In the event of the prosecution failing to make out a case against the accused, the magistrates refuse informations The Attorney General may send up a bill at assizes, even without the preliminary magisterial investigation, or in a case in which a magistrate has wrongly refused informations There is this difference, however, between quarter sessions in Ireland and in England in England they are presided over by an unpaid chairman, who need not be a lawyer and who is elected by his fellow justices of the peace for the county, while in Ireland they are presided over by a paid official, who must be a practising barrister of ten years standing, appointed by the Crown, and who is also judge of the county court (which corresponds to the English county court) The criminal jurisdiction of a county court judge is very extensive, and the Recorder of Dublin has practically the same criminal jurisdiction as a judge of the High Court The assizes are presided over by one of the common law judges of the High Court of Justice In the quarter sessions, recorder's court, and assizes the trial is by jury in all cases save appeals from petty sessions In addition to the ordinary unpaid justices there are paid resident magistrates The Criminal Law and Procedure Act contains special provisions for dealing with crime in certain cases Nearly all the clauses of the Criminal Law and Procedure Act, however, require a proclamation of the Lord Lieutenant in Council before they come into force In the city of Dublin, the divisional magistrates for the police district of Dublin metropolis deal with all summary cases arising within their jurisdiction, and their jurisdiction is somewhat more extensive than that of the ordinary county justices

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, there is to be a Supreme Court of Judicature, consisting of two divisions, the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal, in Southern Ireland, and a similar court in Northern Ireland, and also a High Court of Appeal for the whole of Ireland An appeal may lie from the latter Court to the House of Lords

The number of police on March 31, 1919, was 10,754.

National Insurance.

Under the National Insurance Acts, 1911 to 1920, provision is made for compulsory insurance against loss of health, for the prevention and cure of sickness, and for compulsory insurance against unemployment

(i) National Health Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry o Health in England and Wales and corresponding Departments in Scotland and Ireland, by other specially constituted authorities, and by approved friendly societies, trade unions, &c The persons who are compulsorily insured, known as employed contributors, comprise, with certain exceptions, all males and females aged 16 and under 70, whether British subjects or not, employed under contract of service express or implied, whether paid by time or piece Among persons excluded are those employed otherwise than in manual labour at a rate of remuneration exceeding 250L per year Insured persons who are not members of an Approved Society must contribute to a Post Office Fund and are known as deposit contributors, their benefits are limited Special provisions exist for married women, the army, navy and air force, mercantile marine, and certain other classes Certain persons not compulsorily insured may become voluntary contributors The funds are provided by the employer (5*d* per week per employed person), the worker (5*d* per week by males and 4*d* by females), and the State Special rates are applicable in cases of voluntary insurers, and low wage earners, and the rates in Ireland are 1*d* lower for contributors and ½*d* lower for employers than in Great Britain Contributions cease at the age of 70 when the Old Age Pension Acts (q v) come into play The benefits include medical treatment, sanatorium treatment, payments during sickness (ordinary rate 15*s* per week for men, and 12*s* for women), and disablement (7*s* 6*d* per week), and (in the case of women) a payment of 40*s* on confinement Other benefits are also possible if funds permit

The number of insured persons under the Health Insurance Scheme in 1919 was about 15½ millions The total income in 1918-19 was about 30½ million £ (including 8½ million £ contributed by the State), and the total expenditure 20½ million £

(ii) Unemployment Insurance.—This is administered by the Board of Trade through the Employment Exchanges, Trade Unions, and Friendly Societies Under the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920 and 1921 substantially all persons covered by the Health Insurance scheme are compulsorily insured against unemployment, except out workers and persons employed in agriculture and private domestic service Employees of local authorities, railways, and certain other public utility undertakings, and persons with rights under statutory superannuation schemes, are also exempted where the Minister of Labour certifies that they are employed under conditions which make the National Insurance unnecessary The contributions from July 3, 1921, are Men of 18 and over, 6*d* per week from employer and 5*d* from employee, women of 18 and over, 5*d* from employer and 4*d* from employee, boys between 16 and 18, 3*d* from employer and 2½*d* from employee, girls between 16 and 18, 2½*d* from employer and 2*d* from employee The State contributes in addition, one fourth of the aggregate amount of the contributions paid by employers and employees The benefit consists of a weekly payment of 20*s* for men, 10*s* for women, and half these amounts to contributors under 18, during a maximum period of 10 weeks in eight months, and after July 2 1922, a maximum period of 26 weeks per year, subject to certain conditions At the age of 60 insured contributors may, under certain conditions, obtain a refund of their own contributions, less any benefits paid, together with interest Industries may, with the approval of the Minister of Labour, contract out of this scheme by setting up suitable schemes of their own

The number of persons covered by the national or special scheme is estimated to be about 12,000 000 (8½ millions men and 3½ millions women) Total income, 1918 19, 4 6 million £ (including 1 1 million £ from State funds), and expenditure 600,000*l*

Old Age Pensions

Under the Old Age Pensions Acts, 1908 to 1919, every person over 70 years of age who has been a British subject for at least 10 years up to the date of the receipt of pension, who, if a natural born British subject, for twelve out of the twenty years, and if not a natural born British subject, for twenty years up to the date of receiving a pension has resided in the United Kingdom (residence abroad is allowed to count in certain circumstances), and whose yearly means do not exceed 49/ 17*s* 6*d*, is entitled to a pension provided he is not in receipt of indoor poor relief (medical and surgical relief for three months does not disqualify), or is not a lunatic in an asylum The minimum age for blind persons has been reduced to 50 years An existing pensioner may in certain circumstances be disqualified for receiving further pensions For every borough and urban district with a census population of at least 20,000,[1] and for every county (excluding borough and district areas) a local pension

[1] In Scotland the population limit does not apply, in Ireland the limit is 10,000 instead of 20,000

committee (who may appoint sub committees) is appointed by the borough, district, or county council Pension officers (to investigate and report to the committees) are appointed by the Treasury The central pension authority is the Local Government Board The weekly amount of the pension is 10*s* if the yearly means of the pensioner do not exceed 26*l* 5*s* If the yearly means exceed 26*l* 5*s*, the weekly pension decreases by 2*s* for every 5*l* 5*s* by which this limit is exceeded, up to 47*l* 5*s*, when the rate becomes 1*s* per week If the yearly means exceed 49*l* 17*s* 6*d* no pension is payable On March 28, 1919, there were 920,198 pensions payable in the United Kingdom The estimated cost of old age pensions in 1920–21 is 25,969,000*l*

Pauperism

There is a Poor Law, under a variety of statutes, applicable to the three Kingdoms, by which paupers, under certain conditions, are to be relieved in their own houses or lodged in workhouses or poor houses built for the purpose The law is administered by the Local Government Board, through Boards of Guardians elected for the purpose England and Wales, including the Metropolis and the municipal boroughs, are divided into 653 poor law unions, for each of which there is elected a Board of Guardians In urban districts and in the Metropolis guardians are separately elected, but in rural districts the rural district councillors act as guardians for the parishes they represent on the district council Guardians are elected on the same popular franchise as district councillors Women are eligible In every civil parish overseers are appointed whose duty it is to make and collect the poor rate

Amount expended in poor relief for year ended March 25 for England and Ireland, and May 15 for Scotland For Scotland, the amount includes expenditure on buildings and loans repaid and interest —

[4] Budget estimates

An Excess Profits Tax of 50 per cent upon the excess of profits over pre war standards was introduced in 1915 and produced 187,846*l* in 1915-16 The rate was later increased to 60 per cent, producing 141,614,932*l* in 1916–17 (including a special munitions levy from 'controlled' establishments), and then to 80 per cent, producing 223,116,090*l* in 1917–18, 283,976,861*l* in 1918-19, and 289,208,046*l* in 1919–20 The budget of 1919 reduced the rate to 40 per cent, and that of 1920 raised it to 60 per cent The yield in 1920–21 was 219,181,000*l*, and the estimate for 1921–22 is 120,000,000*l*

The gross amount of income brought under the review of the Inland Revenue Department in the year ended April 5, 1918, in the United Kingdom, was 1,967,066,000*l*, in 1913–14 it was 1,167,184,000*l*, in 1904–5 it was 912,130,000*l* In 1918-19 it was estimated at 2 290 millions. The income on which tax was actually received in 1917–18, after allowing for exemptions and abatements, was 1,083,982,282*l*

Prior to April 6, 1915, incomes of and below 160*l* per year were exempt from income tax From April, 1915, to April, 1920, the limit was 130*l* per year In the case of taxable incomes, abatements were made, and also allowances for children, wife, and insurance premiums, on the lower range of incomes. The rates of tax per £ of taxable income varied as follows

1913–14	0 9	to	1 2	1 2

From April, 1920, exemption is allowed to bachelors with earned incomes below 150*l* (or unearned below 135*l*), and to married persons with earned incomes below 250*l* (or unearned below 225*l*) The abatements and allowances (for children, dependent relatives, life assurance premiums, &c), on higher incomes have been revised The "standard" rate of tax is 6*s*, but on the first 225*l* of a person's "taxable" income the rate is 3*s*

The gross income and income on which tax was received in 1917–18 were distributed as follows —

	Gross income	Income taxed
Profits from the ownership of Lands	52,060,000	172,583,580
,, ,, Houses	235,051,205

The estimated expenditure of the London County Council (exclusive of revenue producing undertakings) for the year ending March 31, 1921, amounted to 20,040,299*l* Of this amount 11,725,508*l* was to be raised by rates The net debt of the Council at 31 March, 1919 was 45,807,000*l*

At the end of the financial year 1915–16, the outstanding local debt of England and Wales amounted to 564,506,000*l*, that of Scotland to 66,719,000*l*, of Ireland to 26,289,000*l*, total, 657,514,000*l* (including 49,948,000*l* outstanding in respect of loans taken over or raised by the Metropolitan Water Board, and 27,110,000*l* outstanding in respect of loans accounted for by the Port of London Authority) The local debt of England and Wales outstanding in March 1918 was 550,520,000*l*.

Defence.

During the later years of the Great War important questions of naval and military policy were determined by the War Cabinet, which developed from an amalgamation of the functions of the Cabinet with those of the Committee of Imperial Defence In 1920 the Committee of Imperial Defence was revived, and again became responsible, as it was before the war, for the co ordination of naval, military, and air policy Of this Committee the Prime Minister is ex officio President, and he has power to call for the attendance at its meetings of any naval or military officers, or of other persons, with administrative experience, whether they are in official positions or not The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, for War and Air, the Colonies, India, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the First Sea Lord, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Chief of the Air Staff, the Directors of the Intelligence Departments of the War Office and the Admiralty It is probable that in view of the part played by the Dominions in the Great War, representatives of the Dominions will be members of the Committee, and will attend all meetings at which Imperial Defence in its wider aspect is discussed

I Army

During 1920 great progress was made in the transition of the army from a war to peace basis, but the extended commitments of the British Army arising out of the war prevented the completion of the reduction of establishments to the scale which prevailed in 1914 Garrisons have to be maintained on the Rhine, in Palestine, in Mesopotamia, and in Constantinople, while a number of war time sick and wounded, of men employed on salvage work in the various theatres of war, and in the re interment of the dead in permanent cemeteries swelled the establishments and increased the estimates Actually the British Exchequer paid for approximately 550,000 men during 1920 21, as compared with 186,400 in 1914 15 130,000 of these men consisted of native, Indian, and Colonial troops, as compared with 8,700 in 1914 15, the great majority of these coming from the Indian Army, and serving outside the confines of India During 1920 a series of Arab risings on a considerable scale in Mesopotamia began in the month of June and continued throughout the year This necessitated a considerable reinforcement of the garrison of Mesopotamia, chiefly by Indian troops, and at the end of 1920 there were more than 100,000 troops in that country, of whom 18,000 were British

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army and of the Territorial Army The British troops of the Regular Army serve both at home and overseas and are commonly referred to as the British Army in contradistinction to the Indian Army or Native Army, and to the Local Forces in certain British Colonies and Dependencies, the personnel of which is native with a proportion of British officers

The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, except India, is paid for by the Imperial Exchequer (although certain Dominions pay contributions towards its upkeep), India pays a contribution towards the cost of troops at home owing to these serving as a depôt for the regular troops in India The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time, but as the destruction of the German fleet and the supreme position of our Navy in Home Waters has practically eliminated all risk of invasion, members of the Territorial Army are now asked to accept liability for service overseas in time of war, subject to the consent of Parliament The rank and file for both Regular Army and Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment

After the Armistice of November 11, 1918, was concluded with Germany the War Office issued a scheme of extended service for soldiers then serving, by which men were invited to re engage for 2, 3, or 4 years As soon as sufficient men had been obtained by this means to reconstitute a certain number of regular formations for service overseas, the normal pre war terms of service were reintroduced By these terms service is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years in certain circumstances Of the original 12 years, from 3 to 9 are spent 'with the colours,' i e , on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve , the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age

The Peace establishment of the various formations has not yet been fixed, but the normal rule is that formations serving at home are on a low establishment, while the establishment abroad is higher, and in India peace and war establishments are practically identical On mobilisation for war the ranks are brought up to war establishment, after eliminating recruits and young soldiers by calling up men from the Reserve

For purposes of training and command the fighting troops are for the most part organised in divisions, which consist of 3 infantry brigades, divisional artillery and engineers, together with the necessary auxiliary services The cavalry is organised in brigades The infantry brigades are composed of 4 battalions, the cavalry brigades of 3 regiments The organisation of the Territorial Army is analogous to that of the Regular Army, and it consists of 14 divisions, composed of infantry, artillery, engineers, and auxiliary services, and of the mounted brigades, chiefly composed of yeomanry

For purposes of command the United Kingdom is divided up into seven 'commands' and the London District The commands are (1) Aldershot of very limited area, (2) Eastern, including the eastern and southern counties, (3) Irish, (4) Northern, including the northern midlands and north-eastern counties, (5) Scottish, (6) Southern, including the southern midlands and south western counties, (7) Western, including Wales, Lancashire and north western counties These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands and the London District each include from 1 to 4 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 3 Territorial divisions There are two Regular divisions each in the Aldershot and the Irish command, one Regular division in the Eastern and one in the Southern command At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the General Officer Commanding in Chief) He is assisted by a general officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, who is its President, the heads of the seven departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, namely, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, who is responsible for drawing up plans of attack and defence, for military training, for intelligence work, and for education . the Deputy Chief of the Imperial General Staff who is the first assistant of the Chief and represents him in his absence on the Army Council , the Adjutant General, who is responsible for recruiting, interior economy, discipline, and for the medical service , the

Quartermaster-General, who is responsible for equipment, supply, transport, and remounts, the Master General of the Ordnance, who is responsible for armament and works, the Surveyor-General of Supply who is responsible for contracts and the provision of stores in bulk, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, who is the Vice President of the Council and is responsible for the Territorial Army, the Finance Member, who is responsible for finance, and the two permanent Secretaries of the War Office The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy, educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College whence officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry, and the Staff College, which trains officers for the staff The Officers' Training Corps in two divisions representing respectively the universities and public schools, is intended to provide officers for the Territorial Army

The gross estimated expenditure for the army for the year 1921-22 amounts (March, 1921) to 118,915,000*l*, and appropriations in aid amount to 12,600,000*l*, leaving a net expenditure of 106,315,000*l* Owing to the increased pay, and to the increase in the price of food, clothing and equipment, the cost of the individual Regular soldier is approximately three times what it was in 1914

The total personnel serving with the forces on March 1, 1921, and charged to British votes was about 341,000, of whom 201,000 were British troops, 55 600 were men temporarily borne on the strength as consequence of the war, and 84,200 were Indian and Colonial troops The garrison of the Rhine and of certain plebiscitary areas absorbed 15,000 men, of Constantinople, 9,300, Palestine, 18,000, Mesopotamia, 77,000 The strength of the home garrison was 140,500 The strength of the Territorial Army for the same date was 100,000 (a peace total of about 237,000 is being aimed at) This is not included in the previous figures

II. Navy

The Navy has passed, and is still passing, through a very critical period It has been reduced to a peace footing, and brought to a minimum of strength The Navy has been deprived of a number of very powerful ships, and of hundreds of other ships In November, 1920, it was announced that 1,231 vessels had been sold, realizing 10,024,000*l*, and 638 scrapped, producing 3,464,000*l* The pre Dreadnoughts have gone from the list, except the Commonwealth (retained for training purposes), as also the Dreadnought herself, and the Indomitable and Inflexible All the 12 inch gun ships are to be removed from the list The personnel has been drastically cut down The principal force in commission is the Atlantic Fleet The Home Fleet was abolished There is a small Battle Squadron in the Mediterranean Vessels on distant stations have been reduced

No final or permanent policy has yet been adopted, but the views of the Admiralty were set forth in a very important document in March, 1920 (Cmd 619) In December, 1920, the whole subject of future naval policy was submitted to the Committee of Imperial Defence The present position is that the Fleet is to be maintained at a strength equal to that of any other Power.

The Navy estimates for 1920–21 amounted to 84,372,300*l* net, plus a supplementary estimate for 6,500,000*l* in December, 1920, and for 1921–22 they are 82,479,000*l* net (The pre-war expenditure (1913–14) was 48,809,000*l*.) Four great ships are to be laid down, two soon and two later There is to be no competitive shipbuilding

The British Navy is a permanent establishment, governed by statutes and orders Its administration was formerly in the hands of a Lord High Admiral, but by the Act 2 Will and Mary, c 2, this office was vested in a Commission With the exception of periods in which the office has been revived—in the person of the Earl of Pembroke in the reign of William III., of Prince George of Denmark (1702–8), and of the Duke of Clarence (May, 1827–August, 1828)—it has continued to be held in commission by the Board of Admiralty The First Lord of the Admiralty, a Cabinet Minister, is responsible for the Navy

The duties of the Admiralty are now grouped under the two headings of Operations and Maintenance The First Sea Lord and Chief of the Naval Staff, the Deputy Chief of the Naval Staff, and the Assistant Chief of the Naval Staff have charge and direction of the Operations Division This Division is concerned with Naval policy and the general direction of operations, war operations in Home waters and elsewhere, strategy, tactics, the development and use of material, including types of vessels and weapons, and with trade protection and anti-submarine considerations The officers in charge and direction of the Maintenance Division are the Second Sea Lord and Chief of the Personnel, the Third Sea Lord and Controller of the Navy, the Fourth Sea Lord and Chief of Supplies and Transport, and the Civil Lord The Parliamentary Secretary and the Permanent Secretary are concerned with Finance and Admiralty business

The number of officers, seamen and marines borne on January 1, 1914, and the number provided for in the estimates for 1921–22, were —

—	Borne Jan 1, 1914	Estimates 1921–22

The strength of the Navy at the date of the Armistice, November 11, 1918, was 415,000 (36,000 officers and 379,000 men), including the Mercantile Reserve but excluding the Royal Naval Division The demobilization of officers and men proceeded rapidly The total numbers serving (including the Mercantile Marine Reserves but not those who had been dispersed to demobilization leave) were in the middle of November, 1919 officers, 15,000, men, 147,000 , total, 162,000

Summary of the British Fleet

N B —The pre Dreadnought battleships have been removed from the lists, as well as three of the early Dreadnoughts All the other classes have been reduced The class of armoured cruisers is now extinct

[1] Owing to the sweeping reductions which were in progress in these classes of vessels, it was impossible to give any useful figures In the 1921 column 24 powerful flotilla leaders are included in the total of 190 destroyers

There were 37 monitors in 1919, but all have been removed from the fleet as fighting units, and only four have been retained for training and depôt purposes Two new classes of river gunboats have been added (640 and 98 tons), 12 of each class

In the following tables the ships are grouped in classes according to type The dates of the Naval Estimates under which they were sanctioned are given

There are also gunboats, store-ships, repair ships, mine sweepers, fleet sweeping sloops and other auxiliaries

24 Flotilla leaders, 1,600 1,800 tons, 34 36 5 knots

The latest destroyers of which any official description was given before the war were of the L class, 1913–14 (965 tons) The S class, 850 1,090 tons, V class, 1,275–1,300 tons, W class, 1,275–1,350 tons Total number, 166

The submarines are of many successive classes The following are the existing numbers E 18, G 6, H 23, K 12, L 26, M 3, R 10, total, 98

Dominion Navies —Lord Jellicoe made a tour of the Dominions with the object of arriving at an understanding with the Governments on the naval defence of the Empire His report presented to the Government of Australia emphasized the desirability of the Commonwealth becoming self contained in regard to shipbuilding and the manufacture of guns, mountings, explosives, and aircraft He considered that the interests of the Empire were likely to demand within the next five years a Far Eastern Fleet comprising vessels of the Royal Navy, the East Indian Squadron, and the Australian, Canadian, and New Zealand Navies This Fleet would consist of at least 8 modern battleships, 8 battle cruisers, 10 light cruisers, 40 destroyers, and 36 submarines The total cost for maintenance was estimated at 19,750,000*l*. Australia's share would be 4,000,000*l* rising to 6,000,000*l* The cost to New Zealand would rise from 375,000*l*. in 1920 to 4,000,000*l* in five years (The organisation of the intended fleet is still [end of 1920] unsettled, and these figures are approximations)

III The Royal Air Force.

In May, 1912, the Royal Flying Corps first came into existence It was then divided into two wings, the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps administered by the Amdiralty and War Office respectively, while a joint Air Committee was formed, consisting of representatives of both services, to secure co operation The powers of this body were limited, and it failed to secure its object A second Committee, formed in February, 1916, was equally unsuccessful It was followed by an Air Board in May, 1916, and by a second Air Board in January, 1917 Both of these had inadequate powers On January 2, 1918, an Air Ministry was formed, and the control of the Royal Air Force was vested in an Air Council analogous to the Army Council The Air Minister was given the status of a Secretary of State and became President of the Council In April, 1918, the naval and military wings were amalgamated, under the Ministry of the Air, as the Royal Air Force From April, 1919, to April, 1921, the Secretaryship of State was held by a Minister who also filled another office, and the direct charge of the Air Ministry was placed in the hands of an Under Secretary of State, who became Vice President of the Air Council In April, 1921, a separate Secretary of State for Air was appointed

The Air Council controls and issues regulations for civil aviation, which is in charge of a separate department of the Air Ministry , that department is engaged in the organisation of air routes with the necessary landing grounds throughout the Empire In March, 1921, the establishment of the Royal Air Force was 30,880, and the estimated gross expenditure for 1921 22 was 19,033,400*l* , and the net expenditure 18,411,000*l*

[1] Pre-War year. [2] Excluding Ireland

For the quantities of cereals and live stock imported, see under Commerce.

The live stock in Ireland in 1920 numbered: Horses, 624,300, mules and jennets, 27,100, asses, 226,600, cattle, 5,023,000, sheep, 3,586,000, pigs, 982,000, goats, 245,000, poultry (1918), 24,424,000

The number of holdings in Great Britain (from 1 acre upwards) is given as follows for 1920 —

Size of Holdings, 1920	England and Wales	Scotland	Great Britain
1— 5 acres	80,737	17,471	98,208
5— 50 ,,	194,059	32,682	226,741

The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, makes the County Councils and the Councils of County Boroughs responsible for the provision of small holdings (each covering from one to 50 acres, or even more), and allotments (each up to five acres in area) Up to the end of 1914 the total quantity of land acquired for small holdings by the various local authorities in England and Wales was 198,104 acres, let to 13,327 individual tenants and 5 associations, and the land acquired for allotments was 33,522 acres, let to 130,526 individual tenants and 52 associations On the 1st May, 1918, there were estimated to be about 1,400,000 allotments in England and Wales Before the war there were about 500,000

The above figures are not comparable with those published for years prior to 1910 In many cases farms in Ireland extend into two or more townlands, and in former years that portion of a farm in each townland was enumerated as a separate holding The total number of holdings published was therefore somewhat too large A change was made in the method of enumeration in 1910, and the present figures are believed to be a very close approximation for the year 1918

Of the holdings in 1918, 372,815 were owned and 199,170 rented The 571,985 holdings in 1918 were in the hands of 561,807 separate occupiers.

The Irish Land Acts are of two classes—The Fair Rent Acts, and the Land Purchase Acts The Fair Rent Acts commenced with Mr Gladstone's Land Law (Ireland) Act, 1881, which gave the Irish Tenant the '3 Fs'— Fair Rent, Free Sale and Fixity of Tenure Under this Act, the great body of agricultural tenants had Fair Rents judicially determined The rent is fixed by the Land Commission for terms of 15 years, and, on the expiration of each term, a new rent may be fixed for another term. Up to March 31,

1920, the number of Fair Rents fixed under the Irish Land Acts for a First Statutory Term was 382,975, with an average reduction of 20 7 per cent on previous rents, for a Second Statutory Term, 144,094, with an average reduction of 19 3 per cent on first term rents, and for a Third Statutory Term, 6,032, with an average reduction of 9 1 per cent on second term rents

The Land Purchase Acts commenced with the 'Bright Clauses' of the Act of 1870, but the system was greatly extended by the 'Ashbourne Act' of 1885, under which 9,992,536*l* cash was advanced for Land Purchase A new system was adopted under Mr Balfour's Act of 1891, which created a special Land Stock for Land Purchase purposes Under the Irish Land Act of 1903 cash advances are made to enable tenants to purchase their holdings under the supervision of three Estates Commissioners, the money for advances being raised by the issue of Land Stock bearing interest at 2¾ per cent The State is secured by a Guarantee Fund which consists of the various Funds voted by Parliament for Irish Local purposes The Land Stock could not be issued except at a large discount, and the Land Act of 1909 provided that for future purchasers the money may be raised by the issue of a 3 per cent. stock, and in making advances the Treasury may give the vendor such stock instead of paying cash Under this Act the Congested Districts Board was reconstituted, the area of its work extended and its income increased Compulsory powers of purchase were also given to the Estates Commissioners and the Congested Districts Board

The total amount of the purchase money for which advances have been made under the Irish Land Purchase Acts, 1870 to 1909, up to March 31, 1920, was 108,795,258*l*, of which 106,933,839*l* was advanced, and 1,861,419*l* was lodged in cash by purchasers In addition, 4,609,131*l* was advanced to that date by the Land Commission to Rural District Councils, for the erection of labourers cottages, under the Labourers (Ireland) Acts

In England and Wales, the Board of Agriculture make grants for, and, to some extent, supervise vocational education and scientific research in agriculture In 1916–17 these grants totalled 76,177*l* (against 98,646*l* in 1915–16), largely from the Development Fund (see below) The Board of Agriculture for Scotland dispenses certain grants for the development and improvement of agriculture, including agricultural education and research, in that country In Ireland the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction provides itinerant lecturers who give instruction in agriculture, horticulture, bee keeping, butter making, poultry keeping, &c There are 3 agricultural stations where farm apprenticeships are provided, and numerous agricultural schools and colleges There are also winter agricultural classes and schools of rural domestic economy

Under the Development and Road Improvement Funds Acts, 1909 and 1910, there are eight "Development Commissioners," appointed to advise the Treasury in the administration of a national fund for the development of agriculture, fisheries, forestry, and analogous resources of the United Kingdom The total sum guaranteed to the fund was 2,900,000*l*, interest on investments, and other receipts, up to 31 March, 1920, made the total available funds, 3,541,000*l* In 1920–21 a further 1,000,000*l* was voted to the Fund The grants and loans recommended to the Treasury by the Commissioners down to 31 March, 1918 (which, however, have not all been sanctioned or expended), amounted to 2,794,000*l*, including 1,780,000*l* for agriculture and rural industries, 277,000*l* for forestry, 394,000*l*. for harbours, 142,000*l* for fisheries; 110,000*l* for inland navigation; 80,000*l*. for rural transport

Forestry —The woodland area of Great Britain in 1908 was 2,781,963 acres (England, 1,720,330 , Wales, 186,723 , and Scotland, 874,910) Included in these figures are 127,509 acres of plantations, i e , land planted within the preceding 10 years (England, 72,008 , Wales, 11,355 and Scotland, 44,146) In Ireland in 1918, 289,944 acres were under woods and plantations

The metals obtainable from the ores produced in 1919 were —Copper, 144 tons, value 14,176*l*., iron, 3,808,095 tons, 51,511,064*l*., lead, 10,277 tons, 289,769*l*.; silver, 68,414 oz., 16,266*l*., tin, 3,272 tons, 842,485*l*., zinc, 2,430 tons, 102,951*l*., total value, 52,776,711*l*.

The total number of persons ordinarily employed at all mines under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts during 1919 was 1,212,974 The number of mines at work was 3,438 958,133 persons (males) worked underground, and 245,194 males and 9,647 females above ground The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 57,076 (excluding persons occasionally employed), of whom 36,879 (including 132 females) worked inside the quarries, and 20,197 (including 309 females) outside The number of quarries at work was 5,135

Professor H. S Jevons has estimated the resources of British coal in 1915, within 4,000 feet of the surface, at 197,000 million tons Coal raised in the United Kingdom, and coal, coke, and patent fuel exported (the figures in the following tables, for the war period, exclude coal exported from Government stores, etc) —

[1] Not included in exports Bunkers for ships in foreign and coastwise trade, and Admiralty shipments totalled 38½ million tons in 1917 and 34½ million tons in 1918

In the year 1919 the coal available for home consumption, after deducting the amount used in operating the coal mines, is estimated to have been 162,000,000 tons, the principal uses being — Railways, for locomotive purposes, 13,500,000 tons, gas works, 17,750,000 tons, electricity and water undertakings, 7,500,000 tons, blast furnaces, 15,750,000 tons, domestic (including coal supplied to miners), 42,500,000 tons, all other purposes, 65,000,000 tons

IV Textile Industry

(The following information is furnished by Mr Thomas R. Ellison of Liverpool)

The progress made by each branch of the textile industry since 1829 is shown in the subjoined statement of the weight of raw material used and the value of yarns and goods exported —

The home production of wool in 1920 is estimated at 108 million lbs , and that of flax at 27 million lbs Exports in 1920 were piece goods, &c , cotton, 4,492 million yards , woollen, 280 million yards , linen, 93 million yards Yarn cotton, 148 million lbs , woollen, 31 million lbs , and linen, 7 million lbs

Commerce

The principal imports on which customs duties are levied are beer, chicory, cocoa, coffee, dried fruits, matches, motor spirit, spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine—spirits, sugar, tea, tobacco, and wine yielding the bulk of the entire levies In 1919 the imports free of duty (exclusive of bullion and specie and diamonds) amounted to 1,381,634,807*l* , 84 9 per cent , and those subject to duty to 244,521,405*l* , 15 1 per cent of the total imports

[1] From the outbreak of War in August 1914, until the second half of 1917, certain goods belonging to the British and Allied Governments were excluded from the returns of imports and exports From July, 1917, merchandise imported and exported in public ownership is included, except exports for the use of H M forces on active service. In the six months July to December, 1917, such imports (included in the above table) amounted to about 107,000,000*l* , and British exports to 9,500,000*l* In 1918 such imports amounted to about 250,000,000*l* , British exports to 18,500,000*l* , and re exports to about 8,000,000*l*

[2] Provisional figures

The value of goods imported into the United Kingdom is generally taken to be that at the port and time of entry, including all incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) up to the landing on the quay For goods consigned for sale, the market value in this country is required and recorded in the returns This is ascertained from the declaration made by the importers, and is checked by the expert knowledge available in the Customs Department, with the help of current price lists and market reports For exports, the value at the port of shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) is taken Imports are entered as from the country whence the goods were consigned to the United Kingdom, which may, or may not, be the country whence the goods were last shipped Exports are credited to the country of ultimate destination as declared by the exporters

Imports by air in 1920 amounted to 677,000*l*, and exports to 339,000*l* The trade was mainly in clothes and furs

The estimated weight of imports is —54 5 million tons in 1913, and 39 million in 1919, of British exports, 91 4 million tons in 1913, and 46·1 million in 1919, of re exports, 1,750,000 tons in 1913, and 1,500,000 in 1919

The total estimated value of the imports and exports of Ireland (including the trade with Great Britain) is given by the Irish Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, as follows —

INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE

In the following pages the various sections of the British Empire outside the United Kingdom are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong —1 Europe, 2 Asia, 3 Africa, 4 America, 5 Australasia and Oceania

The term 'Dominion' is used officially as a convenient abbreviation of the complete designation 'self governing Dominion' The Dominions are Australia, Canada, Newfoundland, New Zealand, and South Africa The term 'Colony' is an abbreviation of the official designation 'Colony not possessing responsible Government,' and includes all such Colonies whether or not they possess an elective Legislature but does not include Protectorates or Protected States The term 'Crown Colonies' is properly applicable only to those Colonies in which the Crown retains control of legislation

Under the recent Peace Treaties certain ex German and ex Turkish territories have been added to the Empire, to be administered under mandates approved by the League of Nations These territories include Samoa, New Guinea, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and parts of the former German Colonies in Africa

The Colonial Office is divided into four branches, the first of which, called the Dominions Department, deals with business connected with the self governing colonies, and is linked with the secretariat of the Imperial Conference The Second Department, called the Crown Colonies Department, deals with the administrative and political work of the Crown Colonies and Protectorates The Third or General Department, which is also a Legal Department, deals with matters common to all Crown Colonies such as currency, banking, posts and telegraphs, education, &c Connected with this department are standing committees to deal with promotion, railways and finance, concessions, and pensions The fourth Department was established in March, 1921, to deal with the "Middle East" (Palestine, Mesopotamia, and probably Aden, and also questions of policy in other Arab areas within the British sphere of influence)

ASIA.

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS

ADEN is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab el Mandeb It forms an important coaling station on the highway to the East, and is strongly fortified The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself, and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othman on the mainland, with the villages of Imad, Hiswa, and Bir Jabir

In April, 1905, after demarcation of the frontier, Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Murad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north east to the great Desert By the Anglo Turkish Convention of 1914, the boundary was prolonged through the desert to a point on the coast opposite Bahrein in the Persian Gulf The settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government The Government is administered by a Political Resident (who is also General Officer commanding the troops) with four assistants The India Office has hitherto exercised internal administrative control (through the Government of India), the Foreign Office has been responsible for political questions, and the War Office for military questions, but it is under consideration (March, 1921) to transfer Aden to the Colonial Office

Political Resident and General Officer Commanding —Major General T E Scott, C B , C I E , D S O

BAHREIN ISLANDS

Group of islands in the Persian Gulf, 20 miles off the coast of El Hasa, in Arabia. Bahrein, the largest, is 27 miles long by 10 wide, Muharrak, to the north-east of Bahrein, 4 miles long, ½ mile wide Other islands are, to the east, Sitra, 3 miles long and 1 mile broad, half its area being fertile, Nabi Saleh, about 2 miles in circumference, very fertile, Jezeyra, a small islet with a date plantation, to the west are three rocky and uninhabited islets, Um Nahsan, Jidi, and Raka The regular population of the islands is put at about 110,000 Manama, the capital and commercial centre, extends 3 miles along the shore and has 35,000 inhabitants Muharrak on the island of that name has about 20,000 inhabitants. Other towns are Budaiya on Bahrein Island and Hadd on Muharrak Island There are about 100 villages in the islands. There are thousands of tombs in the shape of conical mounds situated in the interior of the islands They vary considerably in size, some of them being as much as 100 yards in diameter, and 40 feet in height, entailing vast labour of construction Inside are regular masonry burial chambers No certainty as to their origin yet exists owing to want of inscriptions, but they are undoubtedly extremely ancient

The ruling family, Al Khalifa, and most of the townsmen are Mohammedans of the Sunni (Maliki) sect The town population consists of Arabs who have come from Nejd within the last 200 years, and negroes The agricultural population and the Bahrein pearl divers are mostly of the Shiah sect There is a large Persian (mostly Shiah) community, and a number of Indian (mostly Hindu) merchants and tradesmen live in Manama The present chief of Bahrein is Sheikh Sir Isa bin Ali Al Khalifah, K C I E, C S I His uncle, Mahomed, was deposed by the British in 1867, and Sheikh Ali, his father, installed in his place In 1869 Ali was killed, and Sheikh Isa succeeded to power

The great industry is the pearl fishery, in which over 1,000 boats, of from 8 to 60 men each, from Bahrein alone, are engaged The Bahrein Islands also produce dates, and a remarkably fine breed of white donkeys Sail cloth is manufactured extensively, and also reed mats In 1919–20, imports amounted to 1,414,423*l*, exports, 946,344*l* There are 5 per cent ad valorem import duties The importation of arms and ammunition is subject to the consent of the British Government

In 1919–20 there entered the port of Bahrein 55 British ships of 109,078 tons, and 1 American ship of 3,171 tons The greater part of the trade of Najd and Hasa passes through Bahrein, where transhipment between steamers and dhows takes place

There is a British Post office which is worked as an Indian Inland office with the exception of insurance Letter rates between Great Britain and Bahrein are the same as between Great Britain and India There is a wireless station

The principal coins in use are Indian rupees, Austrian (Maria Theresa) dollars worth from 41*d* to 48*d*, and Turkish lire worth from 20*s*. to 20*s* 5*d* according to the rate of exchange The rupee is the coin in general use The Persian double kran, value about 1*s* 1*d* is also used. The measure employed is the dhiraa of 18¾ inches The weights are. the miscal shirazi of 72 grains, the miscal bar of 720 grains, the rubaa of 4 114 lbs avoir, the mann of 57 6 lbs avoir, and the rafaa of 576 lbs avoir

The political relations between the Government of India and the Chief of Bahrein are conducted through the Political Resident in the Persian Gulf and a Political Agent, who tries all cases in which British or Foreign subjects are concerned

CEYLON

Constitution and Government, &c.

Ceylon, the ancient Taprobane (Tamraparnu, the island of "dusky leaves"), is an island in the Indian Ocean, off the southern extremity of Hindustan, lying between 5° 55′ and 9° 50½′ N lat, and 79° 42′ and 81° 53′ E long, its extreme length from north to south, i e, from Point Palmyra to Dondra Head, is 271 miles, its greatest width 139 miles, from Colombo on the west coast to Sangemankande on the east Its area is 25,481 square miles, or about equal to Holland and Belgium

The climate of Ceylon, for a tropical country, is comparatively healthy, the heat in the plains, which is nearly the same throughout the year, is much less oppressive than in Hindustan Along the coast the annual mean temperature is about 81° Fahr, at Kandy, 1,665 feet above sea level, it is 76° Fahr At Colombo the average monthly temperature varies from a mean minimum of 71° Fahr in January and February, to a mean maximum of 90° Fahr in March and April The highest temperatures are experienced in the district to the north of the hills, and to the north east, but it is only in a very few days in the year that a temperature of 100° Fahr or over is experienced The average annual rainfall varies from 40 to 50 inches in the dry zones to the north west and south east of the island, to above 200 inches at certain places on the south-west slopes of the hills The rainy season extends from April to June and from September to November, but there is hardly a month without some rain, and the result is the luxuriant vegetation for which this island is famous

The authentic history of Ceylon begins in the fifth century B C, when an invasion of Hindus from Northern India established the Sinhales dynasty As a result of many generations of warfare the northern districts were occupied by Tamils from South India, and the population of these districts is almost wholly Tamil, and mainly Hindu in religion Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century B C, and is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants, especially in the southern part of the island

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements on the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch In 1795-96 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras, in 1801 Ceylon was erected into a separate colony In 1815, the districts of the interior, which had maintained their independence under the kings of Kandy, were acquired by Great Britain as the result of a rebellion against the king, and the whole island was thus united under British rule

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1833, modified on various occasions, and now embodied in the Letters Patent of 1910, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of seven members—viz, the Officer commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Controller of Revenue, the Colonial Treasurer, the Government Agent of the Western Province, and one member nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 21 members, including the Executive Council, four other office-holders, and ten unofficial members, six nominated by the Governor and four elected, representing the different races and classes in the community It is proposed (1920) to raise the number of the Legislative Council to 37 members, exclusive of the Governor, who will preside There will be 14 official and 23 unofficial members of the latter, 16 at first, and ultimately 19, will be elected

(11 on a territorial basis, 2 to represent the Europeans, 1 the Burgher Community, 1 the Chamber of Commerce, 1 the Low Country Products Association, 2 the Kandyan and 1 the Indian Communities) One member will be nominated to represent the Mohammedan Community Three unofficial members will be appointed to the Executive Council

Governor —Brigadier General Sir William Henry Manning, G C M G, K B E, C B (appointed April 30, 1918) Salary 5,500*l*, and 1,500*l* allowance

Colonial Secretary —Sir Graeme Thomson, K C B

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate headmen There are three municipalities and twenty one local boards mainly for sanitary purposes

INDIA, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict c 63, s 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a concern of the Foreign and Political Department of the Government, whose agent resides in the country concerned These countries will be found included in the third part of the YEAR BOOK among Foreign Countries The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include native States The term is so used, unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c , that follow The symbol Rx stands for ten rupees Rx 1 = Rs 10

Government and Constitution.

The present form of government of the Indian Empire is established by various Parliamentary Statutes which are now consolidated in the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, and the Government of India Act, 1919 All the territories originally under the government of the East India Company are vested in His Majesty, and all its powers are exercised in his name , all revenues, tributes and other payments, are received in his name, and disposed of for the purposes of the government of India alone Under the Royal Titles Act, 1876, the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the additional title of Emperor of India

It is the declared policy of Parliament to provide for "the increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self governing institutions with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in India as an integral part of the British Empire "

Government in England —The administration of the Indian Empire in England is entrusted to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of not less than eight and not more than twelve members, appointed for five years by the Secretary of State At least one half of the members must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment A member may be removed by His Majesty upon an address from both Houses of Parliament, and the Secretary of State may for special reasons, to be recorded in a minute signed by him and placed before both Houses of Parliament, reappoint a member of the Council for a further term of five years No member can sit in Parliament. The duties of the Council, which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India The expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council, and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business The existence of a Legislative Assembly in India with a large elected majority renders it desirable that the Secretary of State should intervene only in exceptional circumstances in matters of purely Indian interest, where the Government and Legislature of India are in agreement

Power is given by the 1919 Act for the appointment in the United Kingdom of a High Commissioner for India, to whom may be delegated powers of the Secretary of State respecting contracts, and to whom other duties may be assigned

The salary of the Secretary of State, under the 1919 Act, must, and the cost of the India Office for other than agency services may, be borne by the British, and not, as formerly, by the Indian Exchequer

Central Indian Government.—The supreme executive authority in India is vested in the Governor General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor General, or Viceroy, is appointed by the Crown, and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of the Empire and the seat of government was moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912, the latter being formed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner

Viceroy and Governor General of India.—Rt Hon the Earl of Reading, G.C.S.I., G.C.B., K.C.V.O. (January, 1921)

The salary of the Governor General is Rs 2,56,000 (17,070*l*.) a year

Until 1834 these were Governors General of Fort William in Bengal, not of India.

There is an Indian Legislature consisting of the Governor-General and two Chambers, the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly. The Legislature was formally opened on February 9, 1921. The Council of State consists of not more than 60 members, of whom not more than 20 are officials. The Legislative Assembly contains 144 members, of whom 26 are official members and 103 are elected. The life of the Council of State is five years, and of the Assembly three years, but dissolution may occur sooner, or the period may be specially extended by the Governor General. Joint sittings of the two Chambers may be held for the settlement of differences between them. The Legislative Assembly is presided over by a President appointed by the Governor General. This Legislature has power, subject to certain restrictions, to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within the Native States, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The Governor General, with the assent of His Majesty, conveyed after copies of the proposed enactment have been laid before both Houses of the British Parliament, may enact certain measures against the wish of the Council or Assembly.

The various departments of Government are in charge of the Governor-General's Executive Council. This body has no fixed number of members (there were eight in July, 1920), but at least three of them must have had ten years' service in India, and one must be a barrister or pleader of not less than 10 years' standing. There are (1920) eleven departments—Home, Foreign and Political, Finance, Army, Public Works, Revenue and

Agriculture, Commerce, Legislative, Education, Railways, and the Board of Industries and Munitions At the head of each, except the last two, is one of the secretaries to the Government of India The President of the Railway Board is the head of the Railway Department, and he is authorised to act as if he were a Secretary to the Government of India The Foreign and Political Department is under the immediate superintendence of the Governor General

High Commissioner in England—Sir Wm Meyer, G C I E, K C S I (appointed October, 1920), 42, Grosvenor Gardens, London

Provincial Government—The Government of India Act, 1919, which came into operation in December, 1920, and January, 1921, effects important constitutional changes, more particularly in the government of the Provinces The various functions of government are classified as Central and Provincial subjects, the latter being practically definitely committed to the Provincial Governments, while for purposes of convenience, certain Central subjects, such as the collection of income tax, may be dealt with by the Provincial Governments as the agents of the Central Government The Governor General in Council retains unimpaired powers of control over the Provincial Governments in their administration of 'reserved' subjects, but in 'transferred' subjects will only be competent to intervene where it is necessary to safeguard Central subjects or to decide questions where two or more Provinces are concerned, or to safeguard the due exercise and performance of any powers and duties possessed by or imposed on the Governor General in Council in regard to the High Commissioner, to the raising of loans by local Governments, or under rules made by the Secretary of State in Council The list of subjects transferred to Indian Ministers, with certain reservations, include local self government, medical administration, public health and sanitation, education, public works, agriculture, fisheries, co operative societies, excise, registration, development of industries, adulteration, weights and measures, and religious and charitable endowments Certain sources of revenue are definitely allocated to the Provinces, which are required to contribute to the Central Government certain annual sums which are to be the first charge on their revenues

The new Provincial Governments are based upon a scheme of diarchy, or dualised form of government, and consist of the Governor in Council and the Governor acting with Ministers The Ministers, who are elected members of the Legislative Council, have charge of certain Departments of Government known as 'transferred subjects,' while others, the 'reserved subjects,' are administered by the Governor in Council Thus each side has its share in the conduct of the Government, with responsibility for its own work, while co ordination is achieved by the influence of the Governor, who is associated with both sections

The Governor's Executive Council consists of not more than four members, one qualified by twelve years' public service in India The Legislative Council contains not more than twenty per cent of official members and at least seventy per cent elected members, and, in addition to its legislative functions, votes all expenditure, subject to certain specified exceptions and to the power of the Local Government to incur expenditure on reserved subjects without the Council's assent if the Governor certifies such expenditure to be necessary The normal duration of the Legislative Council is three years, but it may be dissolved sooner by the Governor, or its term specially extended for one year The Ministers who assist the Governor in the administration of transferred subjects are not to be officials The Governor may not be a member of the Legislative Council, but may address the Council

The Provinces to which this new form of government is applied are Bengal, Madras, Bombay, Bihar and Orissa, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, and Assam The minimum number of members in each Legislative Council is Madras, 118, Bombay, 111, Bengal, 125, United Provinces, 118, Punjab, 83, Bihar and Orissa, 98, Central Provinces, 70, Assam, 53 The numbers may be increased, and in several provinces increases have already been made Proposals for a revision of Burma's constitution on the lines of the Indian Reform Act of 1919 are under consideration (March, 1921)

The provinces are usually formed into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which are the units of administration At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector and magistrate, or deputy commissioner), who has entire control of the district, subject to the control of his official superior district officer Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there are a joint magistrate, an assistant-magistrate, and one or more deputy collectors and other officials There are 267 of such districts in British India

Government of Indian States —The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Indian States varies considerably in degree, but they are all governed by the Indian princes, ministers, or councils The princes have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States, they are not permitted to maintain a military force above a certain specified limit, no European is allowed to reside at any of their courts without special sanction, and the Supreme Government can exercise control in case of misgovernment Within these limits the more important princes are autonomous in their own territories Some, but not all of them are required to pay an annual fixed tribute The total number of Indian States is about 700, ranging from Hyderabad, with an area of over 82,000 square miles and a population of over 13 millions, to small States consisting of only a few villages

In recent years the Princes have met in conferences at the invitation of the Viceroy, but in February, 1921, a Council of Princes was established as a permanent consultative body to discuss matters relating to treaties, or affairs of Imperial or common concern

Local Self Government

There were at the end of 1918–19, 731 municipalities, with a population of over 17 millions The total number of members of the municipal bodies was 9,943, of whom 5,532 were elected The municipal bodies have the care and lighting of the roads, water supply, drainage, sanitation, medical relief, vaccination, and education, particularly primary education, they impose taxes, enact bye laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government Their aggregate income in 1918–19 was about 7,066,000*l*, exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts amounting to 5,071,000*l*. The aggregate expenditure was 6,630,000*l*, excluding extraordinary and debt expenditure of 5,253,000*l*. By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1883-84, the elective principle was extended, in a large or small measure, all over India. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the ratepayers, everywhere the majority of town committees consists of Indians, and in many committees all the members are Indians. In many municipalities women have the right to vote, and in a few they are eligible for election. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there were 739 district and sub-district Boards, and 535 Union Panchayats in Madras, 281 Union Committees in Bengal, and 38 in Bihar and Orissa, with 17,592 members in 1918–19, 7,144 being elected. These Boards are in charge of roads, district schools, markets, public health institutions, &c. Their aggregate income in 1918–19, excluding debt items, was 5,770,000*l*, and expenditure (excluding debt items), 5,134,000*l*.

[1] This number falls short of the total population of British India by 1,739,315 persons enumerated in tracts where literacy was not recorded

The persons with a knowledge of English numbered 1 7 millions

Educational institutions in India are of two classes —(a) those in which the course of study conforms to the standards prescribed by the Department of Public Instruction or by the Universities, and either undergo inspection by the Department, or regularly present pupils at the public examinations held by the Department or Universities These institutions are called "Public," but may be under public or private management (b) Those that do not fulfil these conditions These are called "Private" As regards public institutions, the system of education operates, in general, through (i) the Primary Schools, which aim at teaching, through the vernacular languages, reading, writing, and other elementary knowledge, (ii) the Secondary Schools, in which the instruction does not go beyond the matriculation or school leaving certificate standard The schools are divided into English or vernacular, and also into high and middle schools, (iii) the Colleges, the students in which, having passed matriculation, are reading for a degree The colleges are affiliated to the six universities—Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, the Punjab, Allahabad and Patna New universities have been established at Dacca, Lucknow, and Rangoon There is also the Hindu University at Benares, and a university for the Mysore State An Act has been passed in the Imperial Legislative Council (September, 1920), for the establishment of a Muslim University at Aligarh Some statistics for the universities in 1919 are given in the following table —

(a) No examinations in M Sc or B Sc or I Sc
(b) There is a School Final Examination also NOTE.—Candidates from Indian States and Ceylon are not included in the above table

There are in addition, various institutions of a special character, such as technical schools teaching arts and industries, engineering, &c , law schools , medical schools and colleges , and training colleges and normal schools for the training of teachers

The following table gives the number of institutions and scholars in 1918 19 in British India, including Ajmer Merwara, British Baluchistan, and Civil and Military Station of Bangalore —

A system of State Scholarships exists by which it is possible for a boy to pass from the village school to the University There are also State Technical Scholarships and Indian Government Scholarships (two every year) to Indian graduates to enable them to pursue their studies at a British University

Notwithstanding the recent great progress of education, the proportion able to read and write is still very small

During 1918 the following newspapers and periodicals were published in Madras, 254 , Bombay, 140 , Bengal, 353 , United Provinces, 359 , Punjab 234 , Burma, 35 , Bihar and Orissa, 59 , Central Provinces and Berar, 29 Delhi, 28 They were published in the following languages or dialects English, Bengali, Hindi, Uriya, Kanarese, Sindhi, Sanskrit Burmese, Chinese Urdu Persian, Gujrathi, Marathi, Karen, Pwo Karen Sagau Karen, Tamil, Telegu, Malayalam, Arabic, Hindustani, Khasi, Lushai, Ajmer, Marwari, and Gurmukhi (The figures include bilingual and polylingual publications)

Justice and Crime

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the province of Bihar and Orissa, and the provinces of the Punjab and Delhi, have each a supreme high court, with 12, 8, 15, 9, 3, 7 and 8 judges, respectively, in 1920 There is appeal to the Privy Council in England The Central Provinces and Berar, Oudh, North West Frontier Province, Coorg, Sind, Upper Burma, and Chota Nagpur have judicial commissioners Lower Burma has a chief court with five judges (in 1920) For Assam the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority Below these courts are, for criminal cases, Courts of Session, and below these Courts of Magistrates (first, second, and third class) The inferior civil courts are determined by special acts or regulations in each province The most extensive system consists of the sessions judge acting as a 'District Judge', subordinate judges, and below them 'Munsifs' There are also numerous special courts to try small causes Side by side with the civil courts there are revenue courts presided over by officers charged with the duty of settling and collecting the land revenue

The number of officers exercising civil and criminal jurisdiction on December 31, 1918, was as follows :—

Courts	Civil	Criminal	Total
Provincial	96	200	296
District	741	880	1,621
Subordinate	1,570	7,460	9,030
Total	2,407	8,540	10,947

Nearly all the civil judges, and the great majority of the magistrates, in the courts of original jurisdiction are natives of India, in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay the proportion of natives in the appellate court is considerable

The following table gives certain details of criminal cases (in thousands) —

1 Exclusive of Portion of Land Revenue due to irrigation

2 The salt duty was raised from March 1, 1916

3 The Excise revenue is derived from intoxicating liquors, hemp drugs, and opium consumed in the country The bulk of the revenue comes from spirits The excise systems and rates of duty vary from province to province The receipts in the period shown have been adversely affected by war conditions

4 Liquors, petroleum, sugar, tobacco, cotton manufactures, metals, manufactured articles, are the chief items from which the customs revenue is derived The duties on most articles except cotton goods were raised on March 1 1916, and the duty on imported cotton goods in 1917 Further increases in duties were proposed in March, 1921 The import of silver bullion and coin except under licence was prohibited in July, 1917, but the prohibition was withdrawn during 1920-21 Under this head are also included the proceeds of export duties on rice, on jute (imposed in 1916 and raised in 1917), on tea (imposed in 1916) and on hides (imposed in 1919), and of excise duties on cotton manufactures, and on motor spirit (imposed in 1917)

5 Includes the proceeds of a super tax imposed in 1917

6 Estimates

7 Includes the proceeds of an excess profits duty imposed in April, 1919

Land Revenue —The most important source of public income is the land The land revenue is levied according to an assessment on estates or holdings In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, about one-fourth of Madras, and some districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently at the end of the 18th century, while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to thirty years over the rest of India In the permanently settled tracts the land revenue falls at a rate of 13as 10p per acre of cultivated land In the temporarily settled tracts, excluding areas under partial assessment or free from assessment, the land revenue averages R1 13as 4p per acre of cultivated land, and in the case of privately owned lands, represents something less than one half of the actual or estimated rental For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR BOOK for 1886, p 799 See also under AGRICULTURE

The land revenue was estimated to be contributed in 1919–20 as follows —

Administrations	Rs	Administrations	Rs
India, General	19,19,000	Burma	3,79 47,000
N W Frontier Province	20,70,000	Bihar and Orissa	1,62,03,000
Madras	6,06,53,000	Central Provinces and Berar	2,19,03,000
Bombay	5,64,37 000	Assam	89,74,000
Bengal	2,95,60,000
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	6,60 56 000	Total	33,13,61,000 (22,090,800*l*.)
Punjab	2,96,39,000

Opium —In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is practically confined to the United Provinces, and the manufacture of opium from this region is a State monopoly The bulk of the opium exported is supplied direct to the Governments of consuming countries in the Far East, while a certain quantity is also sold by auction in Calcutta at monthly sales Opium is also grown in many of the Native States of Rájputána and Central India, which have agreed to conform to the British system.

Defence.

The military forces in India consist normally of the British Regular forces, the Native Army, the Volunteers, and the Imperial Service troops They are administered by the headquarters staff and the Army department, both under the supreme control of the Commander-in Chief, who is a member of the Viceroy's Council The headquarters staff comprises the division of the Chief of the General Staff, the Adjutant General's division, the Quarter Master General's division, the medical division, the ordnance division, and the military works division The Army department deals with supply and finance For purposes of inspection and training the forces are organised into a Northern army and a Southern army, each army containing a number of divisions and independent brigades, whose commanders deal with head quarters direct on most questions of administration At the end of 1920 this organisation was in process of change, the intention being to form four commands, in place of two In September, 1920, the report of the Esher Committee on the organisation of the Indian Army was issued Its chief recommendations are that the Chief of the Imperial General Staff should be the sole responsible military adviser of the Secretary of State for India, the Commander in Chief in India acting in the same capacity to the Government of India, that a Military Council, analogous to the Army Council, should be formed to assist the Commander in Chief, India, that there should be facilities for interchange between officers of the Indian and British armies There are also important recommendations aiming at improving the conditions of all ranks, British and Indian, serving in India In December, 1920, General Sir Charles Monro was succeeded as Commander in Chief, India, by General Lord Rawlinson

At the outbreak of war the strength of the Army in India, exclusive of the volunteers and the Imperial Service troops, but inclusive of reservists of the native army, was British troops 76,953, native troops 239,561 The total number of native troops recruited during the war, up to the date of the armistice (November 11, 1918), was 1,161,789 In 1917 the Defence Force Act was passed by the Government of India, and by it compulsory service was applied to Europeans and British subjects between the ages of 16 and 50, and the Volunteers who consisted of Europeans and Eurasians, were merged into the new Defence Force In September, 1918, it was rendered liable to service overseas It then numbered 50,000 The total number of British and Native troops sent from India overseas to France, East Africa, Mesopotamia, Egypt, Gallipoli, Salonica, Aden and the Persian Gulf up to the date of the armistice was 1,215,338 The approximate number of casualties amongst Indian ranks was 115,000

In September, 1920, the Defence Force Act was repealed, and the Auxiliary Forces Act and Indian Territorial Force Act became law Under these Acts voluntary registration was substituted for compulsory registration Preliminary training for infantry to be 32 days, and 40 days for the other arms An Auxiliary Officers' Corps is formed of those who served in the Great War The Indian Territorial Force is designed to form a second line to the Regular Army in India, it is not liable to service overseas, and is to have its own staff

The Imperial Service troops are raised and maintained by Native States, and are trained under the supervision of British officers During the war great assistance in raising troops was afforded by the Indian Princes, many of whom themselves served overseas The Imperial Service troops were largely augmented, the Nepaul Durbar in particular supplied 200,000 recruits for the Indian Army, 20 battalions of infantry, and maintained a reserve of 20,000 men in training.

At the end of 1920 the reorganisation of the British garrison of India was completed, the establishment being 75,896 men, but the demobilisation of the Indian Army generally had been retarded both by trouble on the north west frontier and by the delay in settling the Treaty of Peace with Turkey Throughout 1920 operations continued on the north west frontier, mainly against the Waziris and the Mahsuds At the end of the year, however, the prospect that order would be at length restored in this disturbed district was good During the summer of 1920 it became necessary to dispatch from India to Mesopotamia reinforcements equivalent to two Indian divisions, and at the end of 1920 there were approximately 130,000 Indian troops serving outside India, mainly in the occupied areas of Turkey

In accordance with the reform of the constitution of the government of India, a number of substantive commissions in the Indian army are now granted to Indian officers who have done distinguished service during the war, while honorary commissions are also given to Indian officers, who, though they have rendered distinguished service, are not eligible for substantive commissions through age or lack of education Forty Indian gentlemen are now nominated annually to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, to enable them to qualify for commissions in the Indian army, while 44 candidates are appointed to the training college at Indore, where they are able to qualify for temporary commissions

Agriculture and Industry

Agriculture, Land Tenure, &c - The chief industry of India has always been agriculture The total number of the population supported by agriculture, including forestry and raising of livestock, was, according to the census of 1911, nearly 225 millions (178 millions in British India and 47 millions in the Native States) out of a total population of 313 millions (244 millions in British India and 69 millions in the Native States) In every province of India there is a Department of Land Records and a Department of Agriculture There are staffs of experts in the provinces and there is an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of those who have completed the Agricultural Course in provincial colleges There is also a Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases and for the improvement of the breeds of cattle, horses, &c There is an Imperial Laboratory for research and the preparation of sera and antitoxins

In provinces where the zamindári tenure prevails (i e , where single proprietors or proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds or thousands of acres), the State land revenue is assessed at an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental The revenue is payable on each estate as a whole, the assessment remaining unchanged for the period of settlement In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, and in parts of the United Provinces and Madras the settlement is a permanent one and not liable to revision In provinces where the raiyatwári (or ryotwari) tenure prevails (i e , where each petty proprietor holds directly from the State, as a rule cultivates his own land, and has no landlord between himself and the Government), the revenue is separately assessed on each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable at once (or after a short term of grace in the case of uncleared lands) on all extensions of cultivation The raiyatwári proprietor may throw up his holding, or any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the zamíndár or large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement,

The following table shows the land surveyed under the two types of tenure, and the land revenue assessed in 1918–19 —

[1] Includes 2,107 31 miles of road maintained by local authorities, but it is not known whether they are metalled or unmetalled, but excludes 130 75 miles of serviceable fair weather roads and 971 43 miles of bridle paths

[2] Exclusive of 188 25 miles of serviceable fair weather and temporary roads 1,98 00 miles of bridle paths

In several provinces certain of the large canals which are primarily intended for irrigation are also used for navigation by country boats and barges of shallow draught The length of navigable channel in the several provinces is —Madras, 1,318 miles, United Provinces 412 miles, Punjab, 259 miles, Bengal, 590 miles, Bihar and Orissa, 519 miles Burma, 91 miles

An estimate has recently been sanctioned for the proposed Grand Trunk Canal in Bengal, which will form a very important addition to the navigable waterways of the Province The canal will be 22 miles in length, and will connect the Hooghly River at Calcutta with the navigable rivers of Eastern Bengal

Inland steamer navigation is almost exclusively confined to Burma and to the Ganges Brahmaputra Megna group of waterways, which connect Bengal with Bihar and Orissa on the one side, and with Assam on the other

A limited number of vessels ply on the Indus River, but this will probably cease when the large irrigation canals in the Punjab and Sind, at present under investigation, are constructed

1918	347,906	87,714	1,645,683	848,197	19,897,787
1919	357,472	87,814	2,157,348	980,821	21,314,943

There were 10,440 telegraph offices in India on March 31, 1920

There are several wireless telegraph installations under the Government of India

The telephone system is in the hands of the Post and Telegraph Department, but telephone exchanges have been established in Calcutta Madras, Bombay, Ahmedabad, Karachi, Rangoon, and Moulmein, by private companies, under licences from the Government At the end of 1919 there were 13 telephone exchanges, with 17,810 connections, established by companies, and 245 exchanges, with 8,975 connections established by the Department

Money and Credit

The total value of the silver, nickel, copper, and bronze coined in British India from 1835–36 to 1919–20 inclusive was Rs 7,53,29,03,895, including Rs 50,14,78,068, the value of 221,003,960 British dollars, Rs 8,02,68,091, the value of 35,374,555 Straits dollars, Rs 92,74,505 and Rs 23,17,847, the value of subsidiary silver coinage for the Straits Settlements and Ceylon respectively, Rs 2,43,47,157, the value of coinage for the Egyptian Government, Rs 10,10,700, the value of pennies and halfpennies for the Australian Commonwealth, Rs. 74,86,572, representing the value of cents and fractions thereof The heaviest coinage in any one year was struck in 1918–19 The value of money coined at the Calcutta and Bombay Mints in the last five years was as follows —

Year ended March 31	Silver	Nickel	Copper	Bronze	Total
	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs
1916	1,62,02,199	4,79,390	—	1,83,900	1,68,65,489

An Act providing for the closing of the Indian Mints to the unrestricted coinage of silver for the public was passed in 1893 Provision was made (1) for the receipt of gold coin and bullion at the Mints in exchange for rupees at a ratio of 1*s* 4*d* per rupee, (2) for the receipt of sovereigns and half sovereigns in payment of Government dues, and (3) for the issue of currency notes in Calcutta and Bombay in exchange for gold coin or bullion By a Notification of the 11th September, 1897, sovereigns and half sovereigns were also received at the Reserve Treasuries, at the rate of Rs 15 for the sovereign

An Act (XXII of 1899) declared the sovereign legal tender, 15 rupees to the sovereign No gold was coined in India down to 1917, but the question of such coinage was examined by a Royal Commission appointed in 1912 The recommendations made by the Royal Commission are under the consideration of the Government of India In view of the strain imposed by war conditions on India's metallic money, a branch of the Royal Mint was established at Bombay, at the end of 1917, for coining into sovereigns the gold bullion and foreign coin received into the Paper Currency Reserve, in order to make the metallic part of this Reserve available as legal tender Power was also taken by legislation for the coining in India of a 15 rupee gold coin (gold mohur), of the same size, weight, and fineness as the sovereign, and a number of these coins was struck at the Bombay Mint from May to August 1918 Sovereigns were minted between August and December 1918, but since April 1919 the Branch Mint has been closed

Owing, however, to the rise in the value of the rupee, which began in 1917, it was decided early in 1920 to fix its value, after a transitional period, at Rs 10 to the gold sovereign, in accordance with the recommendations of the Indian Currency Committee (1919) By a communique dated the 2nd February, 1920, the Finance Department Notification of the 11th September, 1897, mentioned above, and a notification dated 11th December, 1906, authorising the receipt of sovereigns and half sovereigns at the Mints, were cancelled Bills were passed in September, 1920, amending the Indian Coinage and Paper Currency Acts and fixing the legal tender value of the sovereign and half sovereign at Rs 10 and Rs 5 respectively

The Coinage Act of 1906 provided for the introduction of a subsidiary nickel one anna piece and the substitution of a bronze currency for the existing copper coins The coinage of copper was accordingly discontinued with effect from August 1, 1906 The issue of the nickel one anna piece was commenced with effect from August 1, 1907 In the Indian Coinage Amendment Act of 1918 (IV of 1918), provision was made for the coinage of a new nickel two-anna piece, and coins of this denomination were issued from April, 1918. The issue of four anna and eight anna nickel pieces was authorised by the Indian Coinage (Amendment) Act, 1919 (XXI of 1919)

Since 1900, rupees have been coined as required to meet public demands The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and during the year 1912–13, and half such profit for the years 1907–08 and 1908–09 were placed to the credit of a separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, with the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government Any profit arising from this source is at present credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve On August 31, 1920, the Reserve amounted to 37,179,138*l*

On July 16, 1861, an Act was passed by the Government of India providing for the issue of a paper currency through a Government department of Public Issue, by means of promissory notes Circles of issue were established from time to time, as found necessary, and the notes were made legal tender within the circle for which they were issued, and rendered payable at the place of issue, and also at the capital city of the Presidency Subsequent legislation has relaxed the rigidity of the circle system Notes of the values of one, two and a half, five, ten, fifty, and a hundred rupees are now legal tender throughout British India, and the limitation of currency to the circle of issue is confined to notes of higher denominations There are now seven circles of issue with their headquarters at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Cawnpore, Lahore, and Karachi

Total values of notes in circulation on March 31 in six years, including the notes held in government treasuries and the Presidency banks —

Currency, Weights, and Measures

The money, weights, and measures of India, and the British equivalents are now as follows —

The Pie		= ½ Farthing
3 ,,	= 1 Pice	= 1½ Farthing
4 Pice, or 12 Pie	= 1 Anna	= 1½ Penny
16 Annas	= 1 Rupee	= 2*s*
10 Rupees		= 1*l*

Prior to September, 1920, 15 rupees = 1*l*

The rupee weighs one tola (a tola = 180 grains), 916 fine

Nickel 1 and 8 anna pieces have been introduced into India (1919)

The sum of 1 00,000 rupees is called a 'lakh,' and of 1 00,00,000 a 'crore' of rupees A 'lakh' of rupees is now equivalent to 10,000*l*

The Maund of Bengal of 40 seers		= 82⅔ lbs avoirdupois
,, ,,	Bombay	= 28 lbs nearly
,, ,,	Madras	= 25 lbs nearly
,, Tola		= 180 gr
,, Guz of Bengal		= 36 inches

An Act to provide for the ultimate adoption of a uniform system of weights and measures of capacity throughout British India was passed by the Governor General of India in Council in 1871 This Act, however, has never been brought into operation The matter was again considered by a Weights and Measures Committee, appointed in 1913, and the evidence was generally in favour of a uniform system, provided there is not a too radical change from the existing practice The report of the Committee is under the consideration of the Government of India

BALUCHISTAN

Government, &c—A country occupying the extreme western corner of the Indian Empire, approximately between lat 24° 54′ and 32° 4′ N, and between long 60° 56′ and 70° 15′ E, extreme length from E to W about 550 miles, breadth about 450, area, 134,638 square miles, population (1911 census), 834,703 Bounded on the N by Afghanistan and the North West Frontier Province, on the E by Sindh, the Panjáb, and a part of the Frontier Province, on the S by the Arabian Sea, on the W by Persia, the boundary disputes with which were settled in 1905 The main divisions constituting an area of 134,638 square miles are (1) British Baluchistan proper, with an area of about 9,096 square miles, consisting of tracts assigned to the British Government by treaty in 1879, (2) Agency Territories with an area of about 45,132 square miles, composed of tracts which have from time to time been acquired by lease, or otherwise brought under control, and placed directly under British officers, and (3) the native States of Kalát and Las Bela, with an area of about 80,410 square miles, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khán of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the sea to Bela

British and Administered Territory—British Residents were appointed to the courts of the Kháns of Kalat from the middle of the nineteenth century, and British expeditions passed through the Bolan on their way to Kandahar and Afghanistan, but up to 1876 the country was considered independent In 1875 Sir Robert Sandeman, the founder of the Balúchistán Province, first entered the country, in 1877 the cantonment of Quetta, which is now the headquarters of the Administration, was occupied by British troops, and in 1879 the administration of the district was taken over on behalf of the Khán of Kalát After the Afghán war, 1878–81, the districts of Pishín, Shorarúd, Duki, Sibi, and Shárig were assigned to the British and in November, 1887, were formally constituted as British Balúchistán In 1883, the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British on an annual quit rent of 25,000 rupees and 30,000 rupees respectively In 1886, the Bori valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied In 1887, the Khetrán country, now known as the Barkhán tahsil, was brought under British control, in 1889 British authority was established in the Zhob valley and Kakar Khurásan, in 1896 Chagai and Western Sinjrani were included in administered territory, in 1899, the Nuskhi Niabat was made over by the Khan of Kalát on an annual quit rent of 9,000 rupees, and in 1903 the Nasirabad tahsil was acquired from the Khan on an annual quit rent of 117,500 rupees The area of British and administered territory, including tribal areas, is 54,228 sq miles, and the population (1911) 414,412 The head of the civil administration is the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor General The area under his direct administration is divided into 6 districts, each in charge of a Political Agent as follows Quetta Pishin, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Bolan Pass, Chagai The Political Agent in charge of the Bolan Pass is also Political Agent for Kalat and Las Bela. The revenue administration of the Province is entrusted to an officer who is styled the Revenue and Judicial Commissioner

In the directly administered territory the chief items of revenue are Land revenue, excise, court fees and stamps, and judicial fines In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind This is usually one sixth of the crop, but in the Sibi tahsil it is two-ninths, and on the lands of the Sneebo and Khushdil irrigation canals, constructed by the Government the proportion is one third In Nasirabad the assessment per acre of the cultivated area varies from 8 annas to Rs 4 according to the crops raised and means of water supply For revenue purposes each district is divided into tahsils, each of which is in charge of an Indian official known as a Tahsildar, who has a Naib Tahsildar, Kanungos and Patwaris subordinate to him The revenue from all sources in 1919–20 was Rs 20,01,948, and in 1918–19, Rs 18,49,523

Almost all cases in which local men are concerned are referred to 'councils of elders' (locally called jirga) for settlement along the well tried lines of the ancient customary and tribal law This system of settlement of cases forms an integral and essential part of the machinery for the administration of Civil and Criminal justice in Baluchistán During 1916 5857 cases were disposed of by Jirgahs Appeals from, or rather applications for revision of, the jirga decisions when confirmed by the district officers, lie to the Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner in Balúchistan Cases in which aliens are concerned are settled by Regular Courts and the highest court of appeal in such cases is the Judicial Commissioner in Baluchistán

Regular troops are cantoned at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman, and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order There is also a police force, supplemented by levies and the Zhob militia, Makrán and Chagai Levy Corps The latter are recruited from the local tribes, and have their own leading men as officers

The medical work of the Province is under the Residency Surgeon and Chief Medical Officer, and there are Civil Surgeons at Quetta, Sibi, Loralai, Fort Sandeman and Chaman, and Civil Assistant Surgeons at Quetta, Sibi, Kalat and Pangur, and Railway Assistant Surgeons at Shahrig and Mach

is His Highness Sir Mír Máhmúd Khán, G C I E, Beglar Bégi Khán or Wali of Kalát, who succeeded on the abdication of his father, the late Mír Khudádád Khán, in November, 1893

The Khan of Kalát is the head of a confederacy of chiefs, but the extent of his control has now been considerably reduced In all important matters he is amenable to the advice of the Agent to the Governor-General in Balúchistán, who also arbitrates in disputes between the Khán and minor chiefs The area of Kalát State, including Mikran and Kharán, is 73,278 square miles, and the population 359,086 (1911 census)

The Khán's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to about 12,00,000 rupees annually The Khan has an irregular force of 301 cavalry, infantry, and artillery, and 12 guns The chief towns in the State are Kalat, Mastung, Bhág, Gandawa, Dadhar, Turbat, and Panjgur

The ruling chief of Las Bela has the title of Jam Jam Mír Khan, the grandfather of the present chief, succeeded in 1840, Jám Ali Khan, his father, succeeded in 1889, and Jam Mír Kamál Khán, C I E, the present chief, succeeded in 1896 The area of the State is 7,132 square miles, population, 61 205 (1911 census) revenue varies from 3 to 4 lakhs, military force, 112 infantry, 10 cavalry, and 3 guns, military police force, 59 men Before the British occupation the ruler of Las Bela was a feudatory of the Khán of Kalát, but in recent times the connection has almost entirely ceased The State is under the control of the Political Agent in Kalát

General.—The most numerous races in Balúchistan are the Brahui, Pathan and Baloch, 554,800 The Brahuis occupy the centre of the country stretching through Chagai to meet the Baloch of Western Sanjrani, and southwards to the Lásis and the Baloch of Makrán The Pathans are chiefly contained within British and administered territory The Baloch are distributed through the southern regions in the Marri and Bugti country, the Kachhi plain, the Nasirábad tahsil, the Dombki, Umráni, and Kaheri country, and Makrán The Lasis (27,800), are almost wholly confined to Las Bela, the term Lási being of modern invention The other inhabitants are either scattered, as the Chuttas and Saiads, or are subject races and occupational groups such as the Jat cultivators of the Kachhi plain, the Dehwár cultivators of the uplands, the Darzádahs and Naqíbs of Makrán, and the Ghulams who are of servile origin There are also indigenous Hindus (15,000) living under the protection of the tribes and carrying on the trade of the country

Religion and Instruction.—The religion of the native population is either Mussulmán, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindu The Mussulmáns numbered (1911) 782,648, Hindus, 37,602, Christians, 5,085, Sikhs, 3,390, others, 978 At the close of 1919-20 there were 76 Government and aided and unaided schools in the province, 7 of these were for girls Of the 3,634 pupils 605 were girls Nearly half the pupils were Hindus, children of men from Sind and the Panjab in trade or in Government service Besides these there were 201 private schools with 2,826 pupils

Production and Industry.—The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains, its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rainfall is uncertain and scanty Here and there the mountains are tree clad, and cultivation is carried on wherever water is found An attempt is being made to bud the wild olive trees of the country with buds from cultivated European olives If the experiment is successful, an olive-oil industry may be subsequently established The agricultural products are wheat, barley, millet, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes, while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance Panjgur in Makran is famous for its dates Among wild animals are the markhór, urial (wild sheep), Sind ibex, ravine-deer, bear, and panther, and the chief domestic animals are the camel, horses, oxen and cows, and donkeys

Little is yet known of the mineralogy of the country Iron and lead are found near Khuzdár, coal is worked at Khost on the Sindh Pishin railway, and in the Sor hills near Quetta Asbestos and chromite have been found in Zhob, and chromite also in the Quetta Pishin district There are oil springs at Khattan in the Marri country, but these are not now worked Sulphate of iron has been found in Kalat and sulphate of aluminium in Chágai Salt is manufactured in Pishin, in the Zhob district, and in the Kalat State Promising deposits of salt were discovered in 1917–18 in the Chagái district, development of which is under consideration Local manufactures are unimportant A few matchlocks and other weapons are made, and various kinds of ironwork for agricultural purposes The nomad tribes make felts, rough blankets, and rugs Brahúi women are famous for their needle work Leather work and pottery are manufactured in Kachhi There is a brewery as well as a government distillery for the manufacture of country spirit at Quetta, and also mills for grinding flour, pressing chaff, manufacturing patent coal fuel, and ice A museum at Quetta was opened in 1906 The Indian Staff College was opened at Quetta in 1907

Commerce —The land traffic with India passes either by railway or by the routes from Kalat and Las Bela to Sind, and through the Loralai district, to the Punjab The value of the trans frontier imports (excluding purely transit trade between places in Baluchistan, and the trade by road between Karachi and Kalat and Las Bela) from Kalat and Las Bela into India in 1918–19 was Rs 14,46,561, and of the exports from India to Kalat and Las Bela, Rs 5,51,350 (This trans frontier trade is regarded since April 1, 1919, as internal traffic, and statistics are discontinued) The chief exports from the Province are fruit, drugs, fish, mats, and wool, imports consist of piece goods, chiefly of Indian manufacture, metal ware, tea, sugar, and canned goods

Over sea trade is carried on through ports on the Makran coast with India, the exports consisting of dates, matting and dried fish, and the imports chiefly of piece-goods and food grains The greater part of this trade is with the Bombay Presidency

The principal imports into Baluchistan from foreign countries, viz, Afghanistan and Persia, are fruit, ghee, wool, sheep, horses and ponies Piece goods in large quantities, indigo, tea, sugar, and metals are sent to these countries through Balúchistán

Communications.—Good roads connect the more important centres in the directly administered places There are 976 miles of metalled and partly metalled roads and 2,130 of unmetalled roads and paths

The North-Western railway, which has the standard gauge of 5ft 6in, enters Balúchistán near Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain to Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Harnai and the other by Quetta, and reunites at Bostán, whence the line runs to Chaman A line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, which cost about 7,000,000 rupees, was opened for traffic in 1905, and an extension of the railway line from Nushki up to Duzdap on the Persian border, and also a short line from Khanaï to Hindu bagh, a distance of about 45 miles, were completed in 1917

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory, extending to Kalat and through Duzdap to Seistan and Meshed

A network of telegraph wires covers the north-eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalat, and westwards viâ Nushki to Killa Robat, where it connects with the Indo European system, while a further line laid down in 1907 connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 590 miles from the mouth of the Hugli, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland Five large islands closely grouped together are called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Andaman Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands The total area is 2,260 square miles The Great Andaman group is about 219 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the padauk or Andaman redwood (Pterocarpus dalbergioides) The islands are hilly, the highest point, Saddle Peak, being 2,402 feet, and Mount Harriet, 1,196 feet in height The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably, Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Stewart Sound, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade The climate is tropical, the rainfall irregular and often excessive The aborigines, 1,317 (628 males and 689 females) in 1911, (against 1,882 in 1901), live in small groups over the islands, they are savages of a low Negrito type The total population of the Andaman Islands in 1920 was 16,316 (14,297 males and 2,019 females) In 1918 19 the forest sales, the result of convict and free labour, amounted to 11,84,864 rupees Tea, the coconut, rubber (Hevea brasiliensis), Manila hemp (Musa textilis), and Bahamas aloe (Agave sisalana) are successfully cultivated In 1920 there were 10,753 head of cattle Wireless telegraphy with Burma was established in 1904. A mail steamer connects Port Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and Madras The islands are used by the Government of India as a penal settlement for life and long term convicts The settlement possesses about 22,468 acres of cleared land and 83 square miles of reserved forest. There were, in 1920, 15,553 convicts (including 404 women) in the place, of whom some 1,211 were on ticket of-leave in the settlement supporting themselves Of the women, about half are on ticket of leave, and married to convicts The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge is the Chief Commissioner The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair in 1919 was 16,316

The Nicobar Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman There are nineteen islands, seven uninhabited, gross area, 635 square miles The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nancowry, and Car Nicobar There is a fine land-locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nancowry, known as Nancowry Harbour The Nicobarese inhabitants, numbering 8,818 (4,833 males and 3,985 females) in 1911, are a variety of the Malay (more probably Talaing) race They are known to have eagerly pursued the coconut trade for at least 1,500 years English and Hindustani are understood in most villages The coconut production is estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some 5 million are sold by barter and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra The climate is tropical and, except, perhaps, at Car, unhealthy for Europeans The Government is represented by a permanent agent and an assistant agent The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars

There may be said to be three classes of trade—passing, transit, actual, passing trade being goods in vessels merely passing through Singapore for China, &c, transit trade goods changing bottom at Singapore, or landed and stored awaiting re shipment These two classes of trade are not included in the import and export statistics Actual trade may be defined as goods brought for sale into Singapore and purchased there, either for consumption or for sale to other places whither they are said to be exported The trade is a transit trade in the sense only that what is imported is exported without undergoing any process of manufacture Exchange fluctuations affect the value of past statistical results, in times of low exchange the dollar value of goods having their origin in gold countries being enhanced, the same probably holding good to a less extent, in the case of produce exported, but the dollar value having been fixed early in 1906 at 2*s* 4*d*, this is the rate adopted since

The following figures are taken from the British Board of Trade Returns, the imports including produce from Borneo, Sarawak, and other eastern places, transhipped at Singapore, which is thus entered as the place of export —

Communications

There is a railway from Singapore to Woodlands on the Johore Straits, communication between Woodlands and Johore being maintained by steam ferries The Federated Malay States Railway extends from Parit Buntar in Krian to Kuala Prai in Province Wellesley, whence are steam ferries to Penang There is a railway from Malacca to Tampin in the Negri Sembilan All the railways have a gauge of one metre, and connect with the Federated Malay States Railway system, a continuation of which through Johore was opened in 1909 It is proposed to connect Singapore with the mainland by the construction of a causeway, carrying two lines of railway and a 20 foot roadway, across the Johore Straits There are electric tramway systems in Singapore and Penang There are cables connecting Singapore, Malacca and Penang, and land lines from Singapore to Kuala Lumpur and Penang, and from Malacca to Tampin

In 1919, 13,182,061 letters and other articles of correspondence were posted, and 9,355,950 delivered The number of letters sent to China in 1918 in clubbed packets was 1 011,228 The parcels posted (1918) numbered 105,347, those delivered 76,561

From Labuan there are telegraph cables connecting with Hong Kong, Singapore, Sandakan, and the Continent

Money, Weights, and Measures

There are thirteen banks with establishments in the Colony The amount of deposits in the Government Savings Bank on December 31, 1919, was 1,488,261 dollars, equivalent to 173,631*l*

The dollar, value 2*s* 4*d*, is the standard coin of the Colony, and with the half dollar and the British sovereign is legal tender for the payment of any amount Subsidiary silver coins are 20, 10, and 5 cent pieces, copper coins are cents, half cents, and quarter cents On December 31, 1916, Government currency notes to the value of 68,394,140 dollars (7,979,316*l*) were in circulation in the Colony and Federated Malay States

The measure of length in use in the Settlements is the English yard, with its divisions and multiples, and land is measured by the English acre The native terms are, however, still in use Commercial weights are —

1 Kati	= 16 Tahil =	1⅓ lb	avoirdupois
1 Pikul	= 100 Kati =	133⅓ lbs	,,
1 Koyan	= 40 Pikul =	5,333⅓ ,,	,,

The kati of 1⅓ lbs is known as the Chinese kati Another weight, known as the Malay kati, and still in partial use in Penang, is equal to the weight of 2¼ Spanish dollars, or 9,984 grains This gives 142 628 lbs as the weight of the pikul, and 5,705 143 lbs as the weight of the koyan The measures of capacity throughout the Colony are the gantang or gallon, and chupak or quart

The Cocos or Keeling Islands, a group of about twenty small coral islands, lie about 700 miles S W of Sumatra and 1,200 miles S W of Singapore. The estimated population in 1918 was 832 (Census population, 1911, 749)

Christmas Island is 200 miles S W of Java and 700 miles E of the Cocos Islands It is 9 miles long and about 9 miles wide The estimated population in 1918 was 2,180, most of the inhabitants, except the District Officer and his staff, being employed directly or indirectly by the company which works the enormous phosphate deposits which the island contains Revenue, 1919, 3,051*l*, expenditure, 1,490*l* Imports 1917, 26,581*l*, chiefly machinery, tools, railway material, locomotives, and lorries exports, 137,541*l* The sole source of wealth of the Island is phosphate of lime, 53,370 tons were exported in 1918, and 68,621 tons in 1919 Tonnage entered and cleared, 1919, 81,197 tons, 1918, 71,926 tons There is a railway in the island

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north west coast of Borneo, and since January 1, 1907, it has been incorporated with Singapore Area 28½ sq miles, the estimated population in 1918 was 6,848, mostly Malays from Borneo, with some Chinese traders and about 30 Europeans Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants Revenue, 1919, 4,469*l* expenditure, 9,558*l* Shipping entered and cleared, 1919, 141,686 tons

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES

The Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, which occupy a large portion of the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection The officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements is ex officio H M 's High Commissioner for these States and the other Malay States in the British sphere

High Commissioner —Sir Lawrence Nunns Guillemard, K C B, K C M G

Chief Secretary to Government —

The following are the Rulers and Residents of the four States —

Ruler of Perak —H H Sultan Iskandar Shah Resident —W G Maxwell, C M G

Ruler of Selangor —H H Sultan Sir Ala'u d-din Sulaiman Shah, K C M G Resident —A H Lemon, C M G.

Ruler of Negri Sembilan —H H Yang di pĕrtuan Besar Sir Muhammad, K C M G Resident —A H Lemon, C M G (J R O Aldworth, acting)

Ruler of Pahang —H H Sultan Abdullah Resident —C W C Parr, O B E

In Perak, Selangor, and Sungai Ujong, which State was subsequently amalgamated with other States to form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan, Residents were appointed in 1874, with a staff of European officers whose duty was to aid the native rulers by advice, and to exercise executive functions The supreme authority in each State is vested in the State Council, consisting of the Sultan, the Resident, the Secretary to the Resident, and some of the principal Malay chiefs and Chinese merchants The Residents are under the control of the Chief Secretary and the High Commissioner

In 1883 the relations of the Straits Settlements with the small Native States on the frontier of Malacca were consolidated These States were confederated in 1889, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States) In January, 1895, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident; and in July, 1895, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated The new federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the States of Sungai Ujong, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and five smaller States In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c, was surrendered to the British Government This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula Pahang is situate on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore In July, 1896, the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan, and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation

The areas of these States, in square miles, are approximately —Perak, 7,800 sq miles, Selangor, 3,156 sq miles, Negri Sembilan, 2,550 sq miles, Pahang, 14,000 square miles, total, 27,506 sq miles Perak, by agreement with Siam, has been extended by about 1,000 square miles (included in the figures given above)

Population, census 1911 Perak, 491,057 (344,238 males and 149,819 females), Selangor, 294,035 (220,939 males and 73,096 females), Negri Sembilan, 130,199 (87,651 males and 42,548 females), Pahang, 118,708 (72,234 males and 46,474 females), total 1,036,999, (725,062 males, and 311,937 females) The population contained 420,840 Malays, 433,244 Chinese, 172,465 natives of India, 3,284 Europeans and Americans, and 2,649 Eurasians The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese immigrants Estimated population, 1919, 1,315,700 The largest town in the States is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 60,000 inhabitants Births, 1919, 32,335, deaths, 38,645

The police force, with European officers, consists of an Indian and a Malay contingent In 1919 there were 93 European officers, the Indian contingent numbered 279 non commissioned officers and 1,554 constables, and the Malay contingent numbered 285 non commissioned officers and 1,565 constables, total, 4,677 officers and men There is also a detective branch, in charge of Europeans, consisting of Chinese, Tamils, Malays, &c Finger print registration of all criminals in the Malayan Peninsula is carried out under the direction of a Federated Malay States police officer stationed in Kuala Lumpur

In Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in 1919, there were a number of English schools maintained or assisted by Government, with an average enrolment of 6,606 boys and 1,787 girls, and an average attendance of 6,143 and 1,651 respectively, and 390 (335 for boys and 55 for girls) Malay Vernacular schools, with an average enrolment of 20,261 scholars, and an average attendance of 16,851 The total number of schools (1919) was 533 with an average attendance of 27,323 There are several Chinese schools, but they are not under the control or supervision of the Education Department Expenditure on education (excluding buildings) in 1919, 91,841*l*

The laws in force in each State of the Federation are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils, up to December, 1909, and from that date, where more than one State is affected, by the Federal Council,

This Council consists of the High Commissioner as President, the Chief Secretary, the Sultans of Perak, Sĕlángor, and Pahang, the Yang di pertuan Besar of Negri Sembilan, the four British Residents, the Legal Adviser, and five unofficial members, and in addition to legislation deals with the annual estimates of revenue and expenditure All legislative enactments are submitted to the High Commissioner and the Secretary of State for the Colonies The courts in the States are —(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judicial Commissioner and the Court of Appeal (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class (4) The Court of a Kathi and the Court of Assistant Kathi (5) The Court of a Penghulu The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judicial Commissioners, the chief Judicial Commissioner being President There is a final appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council

The number of cases of murder, homicide, robbery, &c , reported in 1917 was 729, discovered 226 , in 1918, reported 821, discovered 258 The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1919, was 1,602

Efficient Government hospitals are established in all districts, with separate hospitals for Europeans A very complete Institute of Medical Research has been established at Kuala Lumpur

Leading items of revenue in 1919 were—licences, 2,090,861*l* , customs, 2,102,889*l* , railways, 1,745,037*l* , land revenue, 355,953*l* , fees of court or office, 296,679*l* , interest, 595,650*l* , municipal, 242,175*l* , war tax, 562 710*l* , and of expenditure—railways, 3,082,546*l* public works, 1,009,113*l* , miscellaneous service (including war contribution), 1,894,230*l* , personal emoluments, 993,577*l* , other charges, 962,500*l* , interest on advances, 105,000*l* Public debt, 1919, 1,750,000*l*

The staple cultivations of the Federated Malay States are coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, pepper, gambier, and nipah palms The chief industrial enterprises are the cultivation of rubber, and the mining of tin The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16⅛ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels The total area of rubber estates of over 100 acres at the end of 1915 was 499,500 acres (78,284 tons were exported in 1918 and 106,453 tons in 1919), and coconut estates, 54,800 acres (the total acreage under coconuts was 182,000 acres) The forests produce many excellent timbers, besides gutta percha, oils, resins, and canes. In 1919 the total quantity of timber of all kinds taken from the forests, on which payment was made, was 955,960 tons, in addition to a large quantity used free of royalty by the native Malay population and the tin miners The gross revenue of the Forest Department for 1919 amounted to 213,829*l*. The duty on the export of tin forms the largest item of the revenue of the States on the West Coast In 1919 the tin export amounted to 36,938 tons, and in 1918 to 37,370 tons Duty paid in 1919, customs, 1,160,170*l*., war tax, 47,939*l* In 1919, 16,402 ounces of gold, and in 1918, 18,309 ounces were produced in the Federated Malay States Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, mercury, arsenic, manganese, wolfram (exports 1919, 430 tons), scheelite (exports 1919, 225 tons), plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal, but with the exception of coal, they have not so far been discovered in workable form The exports of tungsten ore in 1919 were 655 tons. The labour force engaged in mining at the end of 1919 was 113,107

The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1919 and 1918 —

—	Perak	Selangor	Negri Sembilan	Pahang	Total 1919	Total 1918

There were in the 4 States in 1919, 2,362 miles of metalled cart roads and 1,791 miles of bridle roads and paths There are also 700 miles of paths maintained by the Forest Department The Government has made, purchased, leased, or is making, the railway systems of the whole peninsula south of the Siamese boundary, including the railway on Singapore Island When the system is complete, there will be a main trunk line extending throughout the peninsula, diverging at Gemas in Negri Sembilan into West Coast and East Coast lines, and linking up with the Southern Siamese railway system on the Perlis Siam and Kelantan-Siam boundaries respectively The two Siamese lines converge at Ootapao, in Singora, and hence a single line continues north to Bangkok On the West Coast, the line is now open for traffic from Singapore as far as Padang Besar (Perlis Siamese boundary), a distance of 596 miles, and on the East Coast it is open from Singapore as far as Padang Tungka (in Pahang) A section in Kelantan from Tumpat to Tanah Merah (32 miles), and one from Pasir Mas to Golok (Kelantan Siam boundary) (12 miles) are also open for traffic The section in Johore, extending from Johore Bahru to Gemas (120 miles), is leased from the Johore Government The line is of metre gauge The total mileage open for traffic, including leased lines, was 1,003 miles in 1919 The lines under construction (1920) were about 72 miles, besides 2 miles of Hill Railway, in Penang, and doubling of lines in Singapore Island (16 miles) and in neighbourhood of Kuala Lumpur (37 miles) The construction of a causeway carrying a double line of railway and a roadway is now proceeding (1920), connecting the island of Singapore with the mainland across the Johore Straits An extensive scheme of deep-water wharves at Prai, on the mainland, opposite Penang, is also in progress

There are (1919) 96 post offices and 39 other places for postal business In 1919, 24,025,009 postal packets (registered letters, 707,639, and parcels, 171,718) were received and delivered In 1919 there were 2,372 miles of telegraph and telephone line (12,000 miles of wire) under the Post Office department The net revenue collected by the department amounted to 151,587*l*, and expenditure to 145,512*l*, Savings Banks, 10,270 depositors, and 106,061*l* deposits on December 31, 1919 The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2*s* 4*d* or 60 dollars = 7*l* Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements

THE MALAY STATES NOT INCLUDED IN THE FEDERATION

The Malay States not included in the Federation are five in number, namely, Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan, and Trengganu

The relations of Johore with Great Britain are defined by a treaty dated December 11, 1885, and, by an amendment to this treaty made on May 12, 1914, the Sultan agreed to accept, and to act upon the advice of, a British officer called the General Adviser The Sultan is assisted in the administration of the State by an Executive Council, and by a Legislative Council consisting of official and unofficial members

The rights of suzerainty, protection, administration and control of the other four States were transferred from Siam to Great Britain by the Anglo Siamese treaty of March 10, 1909 In all four States the Rulers are assisted in the administration by State Councils In Kedah, Perlis, and Kelantan the Ruler has the assistance of a British Adviser appointed by the British Government

In these States the currency, weights and measures are the same as in the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States Their trade is almost entirely carried on with the Straits Settlements

The religion of the Malays is Muhammadanism

Johore (area 7,500 square miles, population in 1911, 180,417, of whom 102,219 were Malays, 68,405 Chinese, and 5,659 Indians) lies at the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. AFRICA.

ASCENSION ISLAND.

Ascension is a small island of volcanic origin, of 34 square miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N W of St Helena It is entirely under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and is fortified There is an excellent sanatorium up Green Mountain (2,820 ft) for crews of ships visiting the island, whose health is impaired from service on the coast There are 10 acres under cultivation, producing vegetables and fruit for the garrison The population was estimated (August 1, 1918) at about 250, consisting of officers, their wives and families, seamen and marines, kroomen, members of the staff of the Eastern Telegraph Co, and servants Garrison station, Georgetown, on north west coast

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which come in thousands to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May In 1914, 113 were taken from 500 to 800 lbs in weight, they are stored in ponds, and eventually killed and distributed among the people, a few being sent to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty Rabbits, wild goats, and partridges are more or less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "wideawake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month The island is included in the Postal Union, and is connected by the Eastern Telegraph Company with St Helena, St Vincent, Sierra Leone, and Buenos Aires, with England and with the Cape of Good Hope by telegraph.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

KENYA COLONY AND PROTECTORATE

Government.—The Kenya Colony and Protectorate extends from the Umba to the Juba River, and inland as far as the borders of Uganda. Kenya Protectorate (so named by Order in Council dated August 13, 1920) includes certain mainland dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz., a strip, extending 10 miles inland along the coast from the German frontier to Kipini, the islands of the Lamu Archipelago, and an area of 10 miles round the fort of Kismayu, these territories having been leased to Great Britain for an annual rent of 17,000*l.* The colony and protectorate were formerly known as the East Africa Protectorate. On April 1, 1905, this was transferred from the authority of the Foreign Office to that of the Colonial Office. By an Order in Council dated November 9, 1906, the Protectorate was placed under the control of a Governor and Commander-in-Chief. By Order in Council the Protectorate (except the Sultan of Zanzibar's dominions) was annexed to the Crown, as from July 23, 1920, under the name of the Kenya Colony, and thus becomes a "Crown Colony." An Order in Council of October 22, 1906, constituted an Executive and a Legislative Council, the former consisting of 4 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of 8 official and 4 unofficial members. Under an Ordinance of July, 1919, the Legislative Council is to consist of 11 elected representatives of the European community, three nominated members, two representing the Indian population and one the Arabs, and a sufficient number of official members to give a majority in the Council. Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. In 1908 foreign consular jurisdiction in the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Crown. There are 8 provinces and a tract of territory partially organised lying to the north. The provinces are as follows: Seyidie (capital Mombasa), Ukamba (capital Nairobi), Tanaland (capital Lamu), Jubaland (capital Kismayu), Kenya (capital Nyeri), Naivasha (capital Naivasha), the Nyanza Province (capital Kisumu), Northern Frontier District (capital Moyale). For administrative purposes the Colony is to be divided into white settled areas under Resident Magistrates, and native reserves under Native Commissioners.

Area and Population.—The territory has an area of 246,822 square miles, population estimated at 2,807,000, including 5,362 Europeans and 17,000 Asiatics. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate, further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Masai, the Somali, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the largest town, population about 30,000, of whom 180 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Uganda Railway. Kilindini harbour on the south-western side of the island is the finest land-locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. There is good warehouse accommodation and a pier connected with the Uganda Railway. The two principal rivers in the North are the Tana and Juba which flow into the Indian Ocean They are both navigable for about 400 miles by shallow-draught steamers Nairobi, the capital and the headquarters of the administration, has 14,000 inhabitants, of whom about 800 are European and 8,000 Indian There are also 400 European farmers and 50,000 natives in the immediate neighbourhood of Nairobi

Religion, Instruction, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan, but on the coast Mohamedanism has made great progress There are many Christian mission societies, British, French, German, Italian, Swedish, and American, two being Roman Catholic There are Government schools at Nairobi, Mombasa, Nakuru, and Uasin Gishu The High Court is at Mombasa and sessions are held at Nairobi, Naivasha, Kisumu, and other places District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district In native cases local ideas and customs are considered The legal status of slavery has been abolished throughout East Africa

Finance—Revenue and expenditure for 6 years —

[1] Estimates

In 1917–18 the expenditure included 140,951*l* for Protectorate share of war expenses, grant-in aid, nil Of the revenue for 1917–18, customs inland accounted for 170,510*l*, licences and internal revenue, 335,622*l*, Government railways, 650,941*l*, rents, 33,236*l*, posts and telegraphs, 62,216*l*, fees of court and other fees, 43,870*l* Public debt, 552,674*l*

Agriculture and Mining.—The agricultural products of the lowlands are essentially tropical, and include rice, maize, various native grains, cassava, cocoanuts, etc The cultivation of sisal hemp and Ceara rubber is now being undertaken on an extended scale Cotton growing is receiving attention on the banks of the Juba River Other plants of economic value are being experimented with In the highlands almost all crops of the temperate zone are grown, viz oats, barley, wheat, potatoes, all European vegetables, beans, peas, linseed, etc There is now a large acreage under wheat Maize culture is rapidly extending, and a large export in this commodity is likely to be developed Many coffee plantations are established The growing of black wattle is becoming one of the principal industries of the country and suitable land commands a high price in the market Ostrich farming has practically become an established industry Sheep farming is proving very profitable, and many pure bred merinos have been imported Dairying is also proving a profitable branch of farming

The forest area extends over 3,200 square miles, of which the tropical forest covers about 183 square miles, the remainder being upland or highland, containing valuable timber trees Near the coast are mangroves, and various rubber trees, besides ebony, copal, and other trees The Taveta forest is supposed to contain useful timber The Scrub forest which covers a large lowland area is capable of being turned to useful purposes The Tana and Juba rivers are bordered by trees of tropical growth, and the Witu forest timber trees and furniture woods But the valuable forests are within the highland area to the west and north of Nairobi. The Kenya forests of about 625 square miles contain cedar, yellow woods, camphor, jarrah, cork, iron-wood, pillar-wood, olive, and many other useful species The Aberdare forests (about 750 square miles) contain abundance of similar trees The Mau forest (about 1,200 square miles) is incompletely surveyed, but is known to contain many excellent timber trees The forest on Mount Elgon (about 50 square miles) is little known

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored, but do not appear to be very extensive There are large deposits of natron in the Rift Valley, particularly at Lake Magadi Diatomite also occurs in large quantities in the same region Gold has been discovered in S Kavirondo, but not in sufficient quantities to warrant mining Graphite and marble are found in the metamorphic rocks in various localities, and limestone is worked at various places for building purposes Manganese is found in the sandstones near the coast, opals have been found in some of the streams on the west side of the Rift Valley, but up to now have not been considered of commercial importance

Commerce, Shipping, Communications, &c.—Imports (excluding government stores and treasure) and exports (including those also of Uganda and the Congo), and the gross tonnage entered and cleared (excluding coasting trade) —

Of imports, 1918 19, 1,619,993*l* came from the United Kingdom, 1,062,245*l* from British Possessions, 242,411*l* from the United States of America, 65,215*l* from Japan, and 57,190*l* from Holland

Of exports, 1918–19, 1,335,582*l* went to the United Kingdom, 939,591*l* to British Possessions, 58,507*l* to Italy, 94 902*l* to Japan

The shipping to this coast has been, during recent years, dependent on such ships as could be spared from time to time by the Ministry of Shipping, but arrivals from and sailings to Bombay by British India steamers have been fairly regular Communication between the ports of Kenya kept up by small steamers owned by Messrs Cawasji Dinshaw Brothers at Aden.

The Mombasa Victoria (Uganda) Railway is a State railway, length

618 miles, gauge 39 33 inches. The construction cost to March 31, 1919, was 6,523,555*l*. A line is projected from Nakuru to Nasin Gishu, a settlement 100 miles north of the main railway line. There is a telegraph along the line, and ten steamers on the Lake in connection with the railway. In 1918–19, 237,976 tons of goods, exclusive of railway material, and 521,434½ passengers were carried, revenue, 645,468*l*., expenditure, 493,218*l*. The country is fairly well provided with roads and tracks.

The Post Office of the Colony (exclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Kenya Post Office) received and despatched 5,850,686 letters, packets, &c., and 502,278 telegrams during the year 1918–19. The telegraph system has 3,415 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar. The currency is the Indian rupee, but the British sovereign is also legal tender. An East African Currency Board is to be established in London to maintain a stable rate of sterling exchange. The Board will issue a new local rupee currency in coin and notes, in place of the existing currency. The rupee has been fixed at 2*s*. The florin has been introduced and standardised at 2*s*. There are subsidiary nickel coins. Notes issued in Zanzibar are not interchangeable with those issued in Kenya nor are German rupees, in use in the late German East Africa, legal tender.

TANGANYIKA TERRITORY (LATE GERMAN EAST AFRICA)

German East Africa was conquered in 1918. As the conquest of the territory proceeded Civil Administration was established pari passu, and the whole Colony passed under the effective control of the present Administration in the beginning of 1919, when the forces engaged in military operations were finally evacuated. The country has been divided between the British and Belgians, and is to be administered under mandates approved by the League of Nations. The official designation of the sphere under British occupation is now "Tanganyika Territory" with headquarters at Dar es Salaam. The Belgian sphere of occupation includes the provinces of Ruanda and Urundi, bordering on Lake Tanganyika, and is administered under the "Commissaire Royal du Gouvernement Belge," whose headquarters are at Kigali.

Under an Order in Council, dated July 22, 1920, the chief official in the British sphere is to be styled Governor, and he will have the help of an Executive Council, all of whose members will be nominated. There is no provision for the representation of white settlers, but the Governor is enjoined to respect native laws and custom unless they are opposed to justice or morality. Rights in or in relation to any public lands vest in the Governor, but the Secretary of State for the Colonies may appoint, if he sees fit, another trustee or trustees to exercise such right.

The country has a coast line of about 620 miles, estimated area, 384,180 square miles. The Sultan of Zanzibar's rights over the narrow strip of coast territory were acquired by Germany in 1890 for a payment of 4,000,000 marks. The coast line extends from the mouth of the Umba to the mouth of the Rovuma River. Dar-es-Salaam is the capital.

The native population, consisting mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race, numbered, according to official returns on January 1, 1918, 7,659,898. The number included in the area under British administration is approximately 3½ million. The coloured population (other than native) was 14,898. According to German law every native born after 1905 is free, but a mild serfdom continued in the protectorate under German rule, and it is estimated that there were about 185,000 serfs in German East Africa The total white population was 5,336 in 1913

Education is not compulsory In 1913 there were 109 Government schools, including 4 for handicrafts, with 18 European and 159 native teachers and 6,177 pupils Five Protestant and three Catholic missionary societies had schools with 108,000 pupils

Near the coast forests of mangrove, coco palm, baobab, tamarind, &c , in the higher regions the acacia, cotton tree, sycamore, banian, and other trees Government forests, 652,067 acres There are a number of plantations of coco-palms, coffee (on the higher lands), caoutchouc, sugar, cotton, cardamom, cinchona Fibre plants, especially sisal, are successfully cultivated In 1912 there were 43,617 cattle, 41,647 sheep and goats in the possession of Europeans, and 3,950,250 cattle and 6,398,300 sheep and goats in the possession of natives Minerals known to exist within the Protectorate are coal, iron, lead, copper, mica, and salt Agates, topaz, moonstones, tourmalin, and quartz crystals are found, and garnets in large quantities

The chief seaports are Dar es Salaam, Bagamoyo, Saadani, Pangani, Kilwa, Lindi, Mikindani, and Tanga, but few of these are accessible to ocean going vessels, though gradual improvements are being introduced Wide, well kept roads (on some of which rest houses and stores are provided) run all through the colony There are two railway lines in the Protectorate—the Usambara railway from Tanga to New Moshi (220 miles), commenced in 1905 and completed in February, 1912, and the Central Railway (780 miles) from Dar es Salaam to Kigoma, completed in February, 1914 There are also Government coasting and lake steamers Dar es Salaam is in telegraphic communication with the coast towns, Zanzibar, Mombasa, and many inland centres There are 62 post offices and telegraph stations Three Battalions of the King's African Rifles are stationed in Tanganyika Territory

THE UGANDA PROTECTORATE

The territories now comprised within this Protectorate came under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared over the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories The present limits are approximately as follows —On the north, the Uganda Sudan boundary, on the east, a line drawn down the middle of Lake Rudolf, and along the west boundary of the Colony of Kenya and the eastern shores of Lake Victoria, on the south by Tanganyika Territory (late German East Africa), and on the west by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza,[1] part of Lake Edward, the whole of Lake George, half of Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, the whole of Lake Salisbury, part of Lake Rudolf, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Nimule, where the Egyptian Sudan commences Total area 110,300 square miles, including 16,377 square miles of water For administrative purposes it is divided into 5 provinces (1) the Eastern Province, comprising the districts of Busoga, Bukedi, Teso, Lango, Karamoja, and Lobor, (2) the Rudolf Province, comprising the districts of Turkwel, Turkana, and Dabossa (this province is at present only partially administered), (3) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua, and West Nile, (4) the Western Province, comprising the districts of Toro, Ankole, and Kigezi, and (5) Buganda Province, with islands in Lake Victoria, comprising the districts of Mengo, Masaka, Mubendi, and Entebbe Owing to sleeping sickness the islands of Lake Victoria have been entirely depopulated, and the inhabitants, numbering about 20,000, settled on the mainland in fly free districts

With the exception of the Rudolf Province and the districts of Karamoja and Lobor, the whole Protectorate is now under direct administration, but the native kings or chiefs, whose rights are in some cases regulated by treaties, are encouraged to conduct the government of their own subjects The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a "Kabaka," with the title of "His Highness", the present Kabaka being H H Daudi Chwa, grandson of the celebrated Mutesa He is assisted in the government by three native ministers and a Lukiko, or native assembly In Buganda, and in Bunyoro, Ankole and Toro, also ruled over by native "Kings," purely native matters are dealt with by the various Lukikos, but in serious cases there is an appeal to higher courts For Europeans and non-natives justice is administered by his Majesty's courts The principal British representative is the Governor, who makes Ordinances for the administration of justice, the raising of revenue, and other purposes

There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction The appeal court consists of the judges of the High Courts of the Colony of Kenya, Uganda, Nyasaland, and Zanzibar In 1919, there were 2,601 criminal cases tried, 135 of which were cases of serious crime There is an armed constabulary force, under a British Commissioner of Police and British officers There is also a volunteer reserve of Europeans.

[1] Nyanza = Luganda equivalent for lake.

The total population of Uganda (March 31, 1919) was estimated as 3,318,000, composed as follows Natives, 3,314,000, Asiatics, 3,500, Europeans, 847 Among the natives approximately 785,000 belong to the intelligent, civilised Baganda, a race converted to Christianity by British and French missionaries Educational work is undertaken by the various Missionary Societies, who receive grants amounting to 2,225*l* towards scholarships, &c, for students and teachers The attendance at the Mission Schools in 1918 19 was 51,000 boys and 28,000 girls About 1,700,000 natives speak Bantu languages, there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river, the rest of the natives belong to the Masai, Nilotic, and Sudanese groups

Cotton is the principal product, and is grown almost entirely by natives The area under cultivation in 1920 is estimated at about 155,000 acres, and a crop of at least 50,000 bales is expected Other products are coffee, Para rubber, cocoa oil seeds There are valuable forests

In 1918–19 total exports, 1,247,457*l*, 1919–20, 1,828,537*l*, the import figures are now merged in those of the Colony of Kenya The export trade, which is increasing, is mainly in cotton, 1,209,663*l*, in 1919 20 coffee, 161,714*l*, chillies, 10,251*l*, oil seeds, 57,868*l*, rubber, 25,992*l*, ivory, 65,952*l*, hides and skins, 270,472*l* The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, and India

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years (ending March 31) were —

In 1919-20 the poll tax amounted to 247,371*l*, and customs to 90,849*l* Debt, 282,931*l*

The headquarters of the British administration is at Entebbe, the native capital of Buganda is at Mengo, Kampala Nile steamers from Khartum ply to Rejaf, which is about eight days march from Nimule, the Sudan port of the Lake Albert Marine Service A regular steamer service is maintained by the Uganda Railway Administration between Kisumu, the railway terminus, and Entebbe, Port Bell, and Jinja, the principal Uganda ports on Lake Victoria The Busoga Railway Marine, which, with the Busoga Railway, is controlled by the Uganda Railway, deals with the traffic on Lake Kioga There are two steamers and a large number of lighters on that waterway An additional steamer and subsidiary craft ply on Lake Albert and the Nile between Butiaba, Nimule and the Belgian Port of Kasenye at the South of Lake Albert The Busoga Railway of the same gauge as the Uganda Railway, 62 miles in length, runs from Jinja (on Lake Victoria) to Namasagali, a point on the Nile below the rapids It was formally opened for business on January 1, 1912 This railway was built to deal with the cotton output in the regions round Lake Kioga, and connects that lake with Lake Victoria There is a railway from Port Bell to Kampala, 7¾ miles in length There is a fleet of government motor vans

In June, 1912, East Africa received a loan of 500,000*l* from the Imperial Government. Uganda's share amounted to 125,000*l* and was devoted to the construction of the Port Bell Kampala railway, and to the improvement of communications in the Eastern Province, with a view to dealing more effectively with cotton transport.

Mail services by motor and relays of runners radiate from Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja Money and postal orders and parcel post exchange systems are working in most districts The Sudan Egyptian telegraph and telephone system is established to Rejaf The Uganda telegraph line is extended to Mutir and to Nimule, 89 miles from Rejaf The length of telegraph line in the Protectorate is (1919) 1,225 miles, with 24 telegraph offices. Telephone exchanges are installed at Entebbe Kampala, and Jinja

The currency was based on the rupee (originally valued at 1s 4*d*, but in 1920 at 2s), and consisted of silver rupees, with a subsidiary coinage of silver 50 and 25 cent pieces, and nickel 10 cent, 5 cent, 1 cent, and ½ cent pieces The florin has been introduced, and standardised at 2s Both florins and rupees are current for the present at the same value E Africa Government currency notes of 500, 100, 50, 20, 10, 5, and one florin, are also in circulation New cental coins were issued during 1907 08 See also under Kenya, p 182 The Savings Bank had 7,711/ deposits and 618 depositors on March 31, 1920 The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa has opened branches at Kampala and Jinja

ZANZIBAR

Situation and Area —The Island of Zanzibar is situated in 6° S latitude, and is separated from the mainland by a channel 22½ miles across at its narrowest part It is the largest coralline island on the African coast, being 48 miles long by 15 broad, and having an area of 640 square miles. To the north east, at a distance of some 30 miles, lies the Island of Pemba in 5° S latitude It is smaller than Zanzibar, being 40 miles long by 10 broad, and having an area of 380 square miles

Constitution and Government —The Sultan, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub, K C M G (Hon) K B E (Hon) (born 1879), succeeded on the abdication of his brother in-law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 9, 1911 The Government is administered by a High Commissioner and a British Resident, who are appointed by commissions under His Majesty's Sign Manual and Signet, and exercise their functions under the Zanzibar Order in Council, 1914

Legislation consists of certain British and Indian Statutes and also of Decrees of His Highness the Sultan, which latter are binding on all persons when countersigned by the British Resident under the Order in Council

There is a Council for the Protectorate, which exercises functions of an advisory and consultative nature, and consists of his Highness the Sultan as President, the British Resident as Vice President, and three official and four unofficial members.

It was during the sixteenth century that the Arabs of the East Coast sought the assistance of the Imams of Muscat to drive out the Portuguese On the ruins of the Portuguese power arose that of the Imams of Muscat The allegiance to Muscat, however, was of a more or less nominal character until Seyyid Said, after having subdued his enemies on the mainland, transferred his capital to Zanzibar in 1832 On his death in 1856 the African possessions were, under an arbitration by Lord Canning (then Governor-General of India), declared independent of the parent state In 1890 the supremacy of the British interests in the Island was recognised by France and Germany, and it was declared a British Protectorate in accordance with conventions by which Great Britain waived all claims to Madagascar in favour of France and ceded Heligoland to Germany In the same year the mainland possessions which extended over the coast of East Africa, Warsheikh in 3° N latitude to Tunghi Bay 10° 42′ S latitude, were ceded to Italy, Great Britain, and Germany, respectively, Great Britain and Italy paying rent for the territories under their protection, while Germany acquired the Sultan's rights by the payment of a sum of 200,000*l* At a later date Italy also acquired similar rights by payment of a sum of 144,000*l* In 1891, a regular Government was formed for Zanzibar with a British representative as first minister In 1906 the Imperial Government assumed more direct control over the Protectorate and reorganised the Government On April 20, 1914, the control of the Protectorate was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office In July, 1920, the Sultan's coast dominions were named 'Kenya Protectorate'

Population, Religion, Education, &c —The population of Zanzibar and Pemba, according to the Census of 1910, was 196,733 Zanzibar, 113,624, Pemba, 83,109 The registered birth rate in 1919 was 18 5 per 1,000 The Arabs, about 10,000, are the principal landlords and employers of labour The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe There are nearly 200 Europeans most of whom are English, about 10,000 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes Zanzibar town has a population of 35,000

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi school), the Sultan and relatives are of the Ibadhi sect There are 3 Christian Missions The Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Catholic Mission (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission

There are Government schools mainly for Moslems, with a course of instruction extending over seven years Education is voluntary and free There are a number of mission schools, Indian schools supported by different communities for the children of their sects, private schools and a non-sectarian school The total number of children attending these schools in 1919 was 1,920

There are two Government hospitals, one for Europeans and one for Government subordinate employees and poor natives, in Zanzibar, and one in Pemba

Justice —For the administration of justice in Zanzibar, one Court, his Britannic Majesty's, consisting of a Judge and one or more Assistant Judges, deals with all actions to which a British, or British protected, person or the subject of a foreign Power is a party, and others, the Sultan's Local Courts, deal with cases in which the subjects of the Sultan are alone concerned The total number of convictions in 1919 was 1,682 (1,518 in 1918)

Appeal lies to H M s Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, many of the cases tried being cases affecting British Indians, in whose hands is a large proportion of the trade of Zanzibar. The British Court has also certain Admiralty jurisdiction by virtue of the Zanzibar Order in Council, 1914

The Sultan s Courts, under the general superintendence of H M Judge, administer justice in the town of Zanzibar by two European Magistrates assisted by Arab Kathis In Pemba, and the country districts, criminal or civil cases are tried by a Magistrate or a District Commissioner, or Assistant District Commissioner The final appeal, in all cases, lies to the British Judge sitting as Sultan s Judge.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows —

Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure	Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure
	£	£	£		£	£	£
1913	167,363	275 126	248,356	1917	152 620	297 740	259,961

Public debt at end of 1919, 100,000*l*., sinking fund, 59,098*l*.

Production and Industry—The clove industry is by far the most important in the Protectorate, the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba yielding the bulk of the world's supply. It is estimated that there are in both islands about 52,000 acres under cloves and about 4¾ million trees in bearing, the average output of recent years being 14 million lbs. The output in 1919–20 was about 29,000,000 lbs., the largest on record. The large plantations are chiefly owned by Arabs, but many natives possess small holdings. The coconut industry ranks next in importance after cloves, the conditions in both islands being favourable to the growth of the tree and its nut bearing properties. It is estimated that there are about 48,000 acres under cultivation and 2½ million trees in both islands. The export of copra, which is steadily increasing, amounted in 1919 to 14,177 tons. Much is produced by the small grower or trader, neither of whom possesses proper drying facilities, with a result that the quality of the product compares unfavourably with that of Cochin and Ceylon.

The manufactures are pottery, coir fibre and rope, soap, oil (coconut and simsim), jewellery, and mats. There are no mines in the Protectorate.

Commerce.—The total imports, exports, and shipping for 6 years, were —

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Constitution and Government.

The Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw 7, Ch 9), passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on September 20, 1909 Under the terms of that Act the self governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony were united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State respectively Under the Act constituting the Union, the Sovereign appoints a Governor General, who, with an Executive Council (of which the members are chosen and summoned by him), administers the executive government of the Union as the Governor General in Council Departments of State have been established, the Governor General appointing not more than ten officers to administer them Such officers are King's Ministers of State for the Union and members of the executive Council

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Assembly The Governor General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone, but the Senate may not be dissolved within 10 years of the establishment of the Union There must be a session of Parliament every year

The Senate consists of forty members For ten years after the establishment of Union eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the coloured races) are nominated by the Governor General in Council and thirty two are elected, eight for each Province The first election was made prior to the establishment of the Union by the two Houses of each of the Colonial Legislatures sitting as one body, and a vacancy is filled by the choice of the Provincial Council in respect of whose Province a vacancy occurs The Constitution of the Senate after ten years may be provided for by Parliament, but if no such provision is made the arrangements made in the South Africa Act are to hold good Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union, an elected senator must be a registered owner of property of the value of 500*l* over any mortgage Result of elections in February, 1921 S African Party, 17, Nationalists, 13, Labour, 2

The House of Assembly consists of 134 members chosen in Electoral Divisions in numbers as follows —The Cape of Good Hope, 51, Natal, 17, Transvaal, 49, Orange Free State, 17 Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications as existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union Each electoral district in each province returns one member, who must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union A House of Assembly is to continue five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved

Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance A member of one House cannot be elected to the other but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member To hold an office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as are also insolvency, crime, and insanity Certain disabilities to which members of Parliament had, or might have, become subject in assisting in Naval and Military operations during the war were made the subject of special legislation in 1915

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not pass a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor General during the Session Restrictions are placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate Provision is made for adjusting disagreements between the Houses, and for the Royal Assent to bills to be given or reserved, and for laws assented to by the Governor-General being disallowed

The first Parliamentary election under the South Africa Act was held on the 15th September, 1910 The position of the various parties after the general election of February, 1921, was —South African Party, 79, Nationalists, 45, Labour Party, 9, Independents, 1

Instruction

Under the South Africa Act, for a period of five years after the establishment of the Union and thereafter subject to decree of Parliament, control of education other than higher education was granted to the four Provincial Administrations This arrangement still obtains For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post matriculation instruction shall be deemed to constitute Higher Education,

Higher Education.—By legislation enacted in the Session of 1916 three Universities, with teaching and examining functions, were established in the place of the University of the Cape of Good Hope, provision being made for the conversion of the South African College into the University of Cape Town, of the Victoria College into the University of Stellenbosch, and of the University of the Cape of Good Hope into a federal University, styled the University of South Africa, with the remainder of the University Colleges as constituent colleges, the names of which, with appropriate details, will be found in the table hereunder The actual establishment of the three new Universities took place on April 2, 1918

The University Acts of 1916 also established two Boards, one consisting of representatives of the three Universities (South Africa, Cape Town and Stellenbosch), the Provincial and Union Education Departments, and of the teachers of public and private secondary schools, which is charged with the conduct of the matriculation examination, and the other for the conduct of the professional examinations in law and surveying

Justice.

The Common Law of the Union is the Roman-Dutch Law, that is, the uncodified law of Holland as it was at the date of the cession of the Cape in 1806 The sources of the law are the Dutch Commentaries and text books of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries The Law of England as such is not recognised as authoritative, though by Statute the principles of English Law relating to mercantile matters—e g, companies, patents, trademarks, insolvency and the like, have been introduced In shipping, insurance, and other modern business developments English Law is followed, and it has also largely influenced civil and criminal procedure In all other matters, family relations, property, succession, contract, &c, Roman Dutch Law rules, English decisions being valued only so far as they agree therewith The prerogatives of the Crown are generally speaking, the same as in England

The Supreme Court consists of an Appellate Division with a Chief Justice and two ordinary and two additional Judges of Appeal In each Province of the Union there is a Provincial Division of the Supreme Court, while in the Cape there are two Local Divisions, and in the Transvaal one, exercising the same jurisdiction within limited areas as the Provincial Divisions The Judges hold office during good behaviour The Circuit System is fully developed

Each Province is further divided into Districts with a Magistrate's Court having a prescribed civil and criminal jurisdiction From this Court there is an appeal to the Provincial and Local Divisions of the Supreme Court, and thence to the Appellate Division A distinctive feature of the Criminal system is that Magistrate's convictions carrying sentences above a prescribed limit are subject to automatic review by a Judge

Persons convicted, all courts, 1919 males, 210,131, females, 21,400

Chief-Justice of South Africa —The Rt Hon Sir James Rose Innes, P C, K C M G (Appointed 19 October, 1914)

Finance.

Prior to 1913–14 the expenditure of the four Provinces was entirely met from grants by the Union Government Under the Financial Relations Act 1913, which came into operation on April 1, 1913, certain revenues were transferred or assigned to the Provinces, and the grants by the Union Government were limited to 50 per cent of the total normal or recurrent expenditure of the Provinces, with additional subsidies to two Provinces in which the funds so provided were shown to be inadequate to meet the necessary expenditure The Act also provided that the capital expenditure of the Provinces should be financed by redeemable loans from the Union Treasury the interest and sinking fund charges on which should be included in the normal or recurrent expenditure and thus be subject to the 50 per cent grant.

The expenditure out of Loan Funds for war services during 1914 15 was 9,258,959*l* , 1915-16, 10,707,138*l* , 1916-17, 2 670,058*l* , 1917 18, 3,452,156*l* , 1918 19 3,213,785*l* , 1919 20, 2,525,000*l* Excluding recoveries from sale of war material, the total charge on loan funds at March 31, 1920, will amount to 29,736,000*l*

There is a provincial revenue fund in every Province, into which all revenues raised or received by the Province are paid Appropriations are effected by Ordinance of the Provincial Council It is only under the authority of such an Appropriation Ordinance that any withdrawal from the fund can take place The provincial accounts are audited in each case by an auditor appointed and paid by the Union Government

Defence

During the latter part of the Great War the Union of South Africa provided the whole of the military forces necessary for its defence, and the last of the regular British troops were withdrawn. The forces of the Union are raised under a Defence Act under which all citizens are liable to service within the Dominion. As this would provide an unnecessarily large force, only a proportion of the younger men are annually enrolled, and it is hoped that this proportion will volunteer If sufficient volunteers are not forthcoming the balance will be obtained by ballot Men who do not undergo training are liable to pay 17 a year for 24 years The period during which men are liable to training is four years between the ages of 17 and 25 There is a period of preliminary recruit training followed by annual training of from 8 to 25 days Men so trained form the Active Citizen Army After completing four years' training in the Active Citizen Army, men join the Citizen Reserve Force until they are 45 In addition to the Active Citizen Army there is a Coast Garrison Force composed of Garrison Artillery and Engineers, which is voluntarily enlisted and receives payment for its services There is also a Permanent Force which includes the staffs of the defensive forces, five regiments of mounted riflemen, and some batteries of artillery The Coast Defence Force and the Permanent Force have their own reserves formed from the men who have passed through their ranks

Boys between the ages of 13 and 17 are compulsorily enrolled in cadet corps, where this is practicable, but it is recognised that this is not possible in sparsely populated districts Trained cadets enjoy certain exemptions from recruit training on joining the Active Citizen Army

Finally there is the National Reserve, comprising all citizens between the ages of 17 and 60 who do not belong to any of the above forces

During 1920 the demobilization of the defence forces of the Union was completed, and a peace establishment was introduced

Production and Industry

Agriculture —Wheat growing has made a big forward movement, as will be seen from the following table giving the quantity of wheat produced during the years 1904, 1911, and 1918 —

Other products, including Native Reserves, &c , 1919 barley, 50,789,000 lbs. , oats, 214,039,000 lbs , Kaffir corn, 383,524,000 lbs ; potatoes, 220,066,000 lbs , tobacco, 16,603,000 lbs

In dairying, too, good progress has been made In 1919-20 the production of butter amounted to 13,788,000 lbs., and of cheese, 3,756,000 lbs.

The 1919 census (Agriculture) showed that the numbers of various classes of livestock in the Union were as follows —5,575,488 cattle, 695,138 horses, 81,150 mules, 498,616 donkeys, 282,070 ostriches, 28,491,500 sheep, 5,842,270 goats, 724,007 pigs (This census covered rural areas only, to the exclusion of towns, villages, and native reserves)

The production of wool and mohair (1919 exports wool, 184,952,800 lbs, mohair, 16,942,021 lbs.) is being maintained The slump in ostrich feathers during the war seriously reduced the output, though with the signing of the Armistice toward the close of 1918 the feather industry underwent a rapid revival (exports, 1919, 105,000 lbs, 1,646,000*l*) In 1919 hides and skins valued at 4,992,597*l* and wattle bark valued at 386,096*l* were exported

Cotton growing is now undertaken by many farmers, the plant being found a better drought resistant than either tobacco or maize The 1919 yield was approximately 1,418,600 lbs of seed cotton The production of sugar continues to increase, the output in the Union in 1916-17 being estimated at 114,500 tons, in 1917-18, 106,250 tons, in 1918-19, 146,553 tons The area under tea is approximately 4,136 acres, from which the yield for 1918 19 was 5,744,000 lbs (green leaf) It is estimated that some 15,000 acres of land suitable for tea plantations are available

The total extent of forest reserve areas in March, 1919, was about 2,092,000 acres

Irrigation —Irrigation development has made rapid strides in the past ten years Technical and financial assistance is given by the State under the Union Irrigation Law of 1912, which was designed to encourage irrigation The Government expenditure on irrigation in 1918-19 was 384,810*l* from Loan Funds and 147,733*l* from revenue, total 532,543*l*

Manufactures —The conditions brought about by the war gave an impetus to local manufactures The production of leather, for which this country is most suitable, has been more than doubled, a commencement has been made with the manufacture of tanning extract from wattle bark, in dairy products, increasing activity is everywhere being shown, and the output of cement is rapidly overtaking the demands of the country The Union already produces its own requirements in beer and matches The manufacture of tobacco satisfactorily maintains its position as one of the most important industries in the country Amongst other commodities which the Union is producing are dynamite, soap, rope, wine, spirits, furniture, vehicles, brooms and brushes, biscuits, earthenware pipes, and firebricks

The report on the industrial census in the Union in 1918-19 gives the value added by process of manufacture, &c, as 29,199,000*l*, and the value of the gross production of the industries covered at 70,136,000*l* The total number of factories which made returns was 6,042 Value of land and buildings, 16,193,000*l*, machinery, plant, and tools, 20,983,000*l*, of the fuel used, 2,065,000*l*, and of materials used 41,017,000*l* Average number of persons employed, 143,088 (whites, 53,601) Wages paid, 14,476,000*l*

The gross value of the output of the principal groups of industries was food, drink, &c, 27,098,000*l*, metals, engineering, &c, 12,963,000*l*, chemicals, &c, 5,616,000*l*, heat, light, and power, 3,743,000*l*, building, &c, 3,349,000*l*, clothing, textiles, &c, 2,940,000*l*, books, printing, &c, 2,750,000*l*, leather, &c, 2,664,000*l*, stone, clay, &c, 1,679,000*l*, vehicles, 1,462,000*l*, furniture, &c, 1,832,000*l*

Mining —The table hereunder gives the total value of the principal minerals produced in the Union from the earliest dates of existing records to December 31, 1919 The value of gold is calculated at 4 24773*l*. per fine ounce Copper, tin, antimony, scheelite, and silver are valued on the estimated pure metal contained in shipments according to the average current prices in London The value of other base minerals is calculated on average local prices

PROVINCE OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE

Constitution and Government —The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope was originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652 Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803 A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession since that date It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 13, 1814 The original Colony has been extended from time to time East and West Pondoland were annexed in 1894 and Bechuanaland in 1895 For many years the form of government in the Colony depended on the terms of the Royal Letters Patent and Instructions to Governors Letters Patent issued in 1850 to Governor Sir Henry Smith declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly

A Constitution Ordinance was enacted by Order in Council of March 11, 1853, and took effect on May 1 ensuing This Order in Council provided that nothing it contained should prevent the Parliament of the Colony from making Acts (subject to the power of Her Majesty in Council either to disallow or assent to such Acts) in amendment of the said Ordinance This power of amending the Constitution was exercised from time to time as the bounds of the Colony were extended In 1872 an Act was passed at the Cape and assented to by Order in Council, providing for the system of executive administration known as Responsible Government The Constitution formed under these various Acts vested the executive in the Governor and an Executive Council, composed of certain office holders appointed by the Crown. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming an original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administrator—The Hon Sir Frederic de Waal, K C M G (Salary 2,500*l*)

The Province is divided into 119 magisterial districts, and the Colony proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into 86 fiscal divisions In each division there is a Civil Commissioner, who is, in all cases where the fiscal and magisterial areas coincide, also the Resident Magistrate Each division has a Council of at least 6 members (14 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the owners or occupiers of immovable property These Councils look after roads, boundaries, and beacons, return 3 members to the Licensing Court, and perform other local duties

There are 128 Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor or Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom are elected annually by the ratepayers There are also 75 Village Management Boards

PROVINCE OF NATAL

Constitution and Government.—Natal, which had been annexed to Cape Colony in 1844, was placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, was erected into a separate Colony By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893, assented to by Order in Council, June 26, 1893, the Colony obtained responsible government The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897 The districts of Vryheid, Utrecht and part of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, were in January, 1903, annexed to the colony On May 31, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union

The seat of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg

Administrator—The Hon G T Plowman, C M G

Area and Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,424 square miles) has an area of 35,291 square miles, with a seaboard of about 360 miles The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland It is well suited to Europeans The Province is divided into 40 Magisterial Divisions

The European population has more than trebled since 1879 The returns of the total population at the last four censuses were —

Census Year	All Races			White		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females
1891	543,913	268,062	275,851	25,787	21,001	242,275	254,850

The figures for 1891 exclude Zululand, those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango The number of males in 1911 was 564,648, and of females, 629,395

Population of the borough of Durban according to the census of May 7, 1911, 69,187, consisting of Europeans, 31,783, natives (including half-castes), 17,784, Indians and Asiatics, 19,620, and of Pietermaritzburg, 30,555, consisting of 14,737 Europeans, 7,789 Indians and Asiatics, 8,029 natives, including half-castes The white population of Durban in 1918 was 43,413, and of Pietermaritzburg, 18,525

So far as registered, the births in 1918 numbered 38,091 (2,924 European, 35,167 coloured), deaths, 28,998 (1,577 European, 27,421 non European), and marriages, 2,614 (1,041 European, 1,573 non European)

Instruction.—With the exception of Higher Education, which has been placed under the control of the Union Government, Education comes under the Provincial Administration There are, for children of European extraction, 171 schools giving primary, 7 schools giving intermediate, and 10 giving secondary education, in all 188 schools, which are supported either entirely or partially by Government funds In addition there are 3 special or vocational schools, 1 training school for teachers, and 143 farm schools. For coloured children, there are 398 state and state-aided schools (including 44 for Indians), as well as 6 schools provided for the training of coloured teachers The aggregate number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 20,711 for 1917 , the average daily attendance 90 1 per cent of the number on the registers The number of coloured children receiving instruction in 1917 amounted to 28,812 A sum of 50,992*l* was spent on coloured education during 1918 out of public funds , the corresponding figure in respect of European education was approximately 384,000*l* About 1,100 children attend private unaided schools, and it is estimated that only a very small percentage of white children are receiving no education

Total Ordinary Expenditure	451,002	448,170	439,826	477,089	582,448

The estimated ordinary expenditure for 1918 19 was 666,198*l* The capital expenditure in 1918 19 was 157,092*l*

Production and Industry —At the end of March, 1918, the area of Crown land which remained unalienated and could be taken up for agricultural or pastoral purposes was 1,178,000 morgen (1 morgen = 2 1165 acres approx) On the Coast and in Zululand there are vast plantations of sugar (output, 1917 18, 108,000 tons, value 2,700,000*l*) and tea, while cereals of all kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, the Acacia mollissima, the bark of which is so much used for tanning purposes, and other crops grow prolifically

The Province is rich in mineral wealth, particularly coal, the output of which is being maintained at a steadily progressive rate There was in 1918 one gold mine conducting operations on a small scale (for statistics, see p 220) Among other minerals known to exist in the Province are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin ore

The various factory industries of Natal in 1917-18 (census of 1919) numbered 864, with an annual output valued at nearly 13,754,356*l* They had 7,702,542*l* invested in machinery, lands, and buildings, annually used materials worth 7,678,167*l* , and paid over 2,255,326*l* yearly in wages to 82,654 employees.

A Whaling Industry was commenced at Durban in 1908 Down to 1917 (nine years) 7,274 whales were captured In 1917, 1918 and 1919, the whales captured numbered 176, 142 and 641 respectively Only two companies, with 11 boats, were operating in 1919. The industry is now regulated by the Provincial Government, as indiscriminate slaughter was driving the whales away from the South African waters

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records made for each of the Provinces, the British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately The following figures show the value of the trade between Natal Province and the United Kingdom for five years —

PROVINCE OF THE TRANSVAAL

Constitution and Government.—The territory comprised within the limits of The Transvaal was colonised by Boers who left Cape Colony in 1836-37 In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but, in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers, the territory was annexed by the British Government In 1880 the Boers took up arms for the restoration of their independence, and, in 1881, a Convention was signed restoring to the inhabitants of the territory their self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the Queen This arrangement was modified by a Convention made in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State, but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to her Majesty These Conventions, however, did not preserve harmony within the Transvaal territory, or with the British Government The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties from which the two Boer States sought release by military action The result of this was the military occupation of the two countries, and their annexation to the British Crown, the one on September 1, 1900, under the name of The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902, when an agreement as to terms of surrender was signed by the representatives of the burgher forces in the field [See STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1906, under The Transvaal]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council On December 6, 1906, Letters Patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910, as an original Province of the Union

The seat of provincial government for the Transvaal is at Pretoria The position of the various parties in the Provincial Council after the election in August, 1920, was South African Party, 10, Nationalists, 21, Labour, 11, Unionists, 6, Independent 1, total, 49

Administrator —The Hon A G Robertson (salary, 2,500*l*)

Area and Population —The area of the Province is 110,450 square miles, divided into 24 districts The following table shows the population at each of the last four censuses —

Instruction.—The system of education was embodied in the Education Act which was passed during the first session of the first Parliament elected under responsible government, and which provides that all education except that of a university type shall be under the provincial authority The Province has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into twenty-nine school districts, for each of which there is a school board consisting partly of elected and partly of nominated members The board is an advisory local body with general powers of supervision over all public schools in its district except high schools and special schools or classes specified in the third schedule of the Education Act, 1907. Instruction in Government Schools, both primary and secondary, is free

The following statistics of education are for the year ending Dec 31, 1918 — 973 primary schools had 88,207 pupils, 24 secondary schools, with a enrolment of 3,886 pupils, 346 State and State aided schools for coloured, native and Indian children, with 26,256 pupils There are seven training institutions for European teachers, with 605 students, and three for coloured teachers, with 290 students An amount of 1,283,108*l* was expended during the year for educational purposes

In respect of the question of language, the medium of instruction up to and including the fourth standard is the home language (English or Dutch) of the pupil, but parents may request that the second language be gradually introduced as a second medium Above the fourth standard provision is made for the instruction of pupils through the medium of English and Dutch, and the parent of each pupil may choose one of the two languages as the sole medium of instruction, or both of the languages as the media of instruction If the parent of any pupil fails to exercise his right of choice, that pupil is instructed through the medium of the language which is the better known and understood by him, the other language being also used as far as possible as a medium of instruction Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught

Estimates 1918-19: total revenue, 1,817,659*l.*; expenditure, 2,065,291*l*
A considerable proportion of the Provincial revenue is derived from Natives' Pass Fees
The capital expenditure in 1918-19 was estimated at 300,000*l*

Production and Industry—The Province of the Transvaal is in the main a stock-raising country, though there are considerable areas well adapted for agriculture, including the growing of tropical crops The extent of land under cultivation is given as over 2,000,000 acres, fallow land as about 470,000 acres, and grazing land as 29,900,000 acres The maize and tobacco crops may be regarded as the most important
The live stock numbered, in 1919, 3,244,840 sheep, 447,700 goats (including 90,700 of the valuable Angora breed)
For mineral production, see above, p 220 The Transvaal Province has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works, &c

Commerce—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province The following figures show the value of the trade between the Transvaal Province and the United Kingdom for five years —

Imports from Transvaal	196,448	423,067	268,793	202,032	214,000

PROVINCE OF THE ORANGE FREE STATE.

The Orange River was first crossed by Europeans about the middle of he 18th century Between 1810 and 1820, several Europeans settled in the outhern parts of the Orange Free State The Great Trek greatly augmented he number of settlers during and after 1836 At first no settled governnent was established In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole erritory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as a British Possession and stablished what was called the Orange River Sovereignty A British esident was appointed at Bloemfontein, with Assistant Commissioners at Vinburg and Caledon River Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, s well as by the native policy of the British Government In 1854 the onvention of Bloemfontein, by which British Sovereignty was withdrawn nd the independence of the country was recognised, was signed by Sir eorge Russell Clerk

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much arassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. These ere at length conquered. The British Government then stepped in and rranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party By he treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of the Basutos was ncorporated in the Orange Free State. This part is still known as the onquered Territory.

A great deal of unpleasantness was caused by the dispute over the

Kimberley Diamond Fields, which belonged to the Orange Free State, but were annexed to the Cape Colony by the British Government

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899-1902), and was annexed to the British Dominions by proclamation of Lord Roberts, on May 28, 1900, as the Orange River Colony After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1907, when responsible government was introduced On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein

Administrator —The Hon Sir C H Wessels, Kt (salary, 2,000*l*)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, 50 in all, local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers

Area and Population —The area of the Province is 50,389 square miles, it is divided into 24 districts The population at the last 4 censuses and the European population at the census taken in 1918 were as follows —

Census Year	All Races			White		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females
1880	193,518	70,150	63,365	31,906	29 116	38,244	34,252
1890	267,503	108,362	99,141	40 571	37,145	67,791	61,996

The capital, Bloemfontein, had, in 1911, 14,720 white inhabitants (8,995 males and 5,725 females), and 12,205 natives and other coloured persons (6,212 males and 5,993 females), total, 26,925 The 1918 European population was 15,631

Religion —The principal body, according to the census of 1911, is the Dutch Reformed Church with 175,311 adherents, of Wesleyans there were 88,857, Anglican Communion, 42,401; Presbyterians, 7,549; Congregationalists, 8,368, Lutherans, 8,727, Roman Catholics, 5,696; Jews, 2,808; no religion (so stated), 173,336, of whom 173,192 were natives and other coloured persons.

Instruction—Higher education is under the control of the Minister f Education for the Union, while primary and secondary education i controlled by the Administrator of the Province Under the School ct of 1908 the Province is divided into 55 school districts, for each f which there is a board consisting partly of elected and partly of nominated iembers Each board is an advisory body, with certain powers of super ision ; it is also responsible for carrying out the provisions of the law as to ompulsory school attendance The boards have certain advisory functions ith regard to the appointment of teachers Public schools, with certain pecial exceptions, are under the supervision of committees, the members of hich are elected The functions of these committees also are advisory, but ney may nominate teachers for appointment in the discretion of the hrector Grants are given conditionally to private schools. In 1917 here were 731 public and 137 aided private schools in the Province, ith a total enrolment of over 36,938 pupils Fees are charged t all schools, exemption being granted under certain prescribed regulations, nd attendance is compulsory up to Standard VI Except where the parents bject both English and Dutch are taught to all children, and where possible re used as equal media of instruction

The Normal College trains from 80 to 90 teachers annually The olytechnic College, established in 1912, trains teachers in art, dressmak ig, &c. The Home Industries Board directs the spinning and weaving hools throughout the country The Government Industrial School for oys was opened at Bloemfontein in 1907 Secondary schools have been stablished in all the leading towns of the Province with more advanced epartments preparing pupils up to University Matriculation standard

The capital expenditure in 1917-18 was 64,190*l*

Production and Industry.—The Province consists of undulating lains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracts for agricultural purposes he rainfall is moderate The country is still mainly devoted to stock farming, lthough a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in ie Eastern Districts

For Mining Statistics see p. 220

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no ecial records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade atistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United ingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Orange Free State Province and the United Kingdom :—

PROTECTORATE OF SOUTH-WEST AFRICA

This Protectorate is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa, Angola, and Rhodesia, on the east by Rhodesia and the Kalahari Desert (Cape Province), on the south by the Cape Province, and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean. The country was captured from the Germans in July, 1915, by South African forces, and the Union of South Africa now administers the territory under a mandate from the League of Nations, dated December 17, 1920. Under this mandate the laws of the Union, subject to local modifications as necessary, may be applied to the Protectorate. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

The whole southern part and much of the east is barren and desert. There have been extensive boring operations for water, in many cases successful. Area 322,400 square miles. European population, 1913, 14,830 (1,799 British and 12,292 German), but although 6,350 Germans were deported during 1919, the European population in 1919 is estimated at 16,000 to 17,000. The new comers are mostly South Africans in search of farms. Twenty-two British schools have been established with 925 pupils. The native population is estimated at 90,000, exclusive of Ovamboland in the north, where there are probably 100,000 Ovambos.

The principal native races in the Protectorate are the Hereros, Ovambos, Bastards, Bergdamaras, Hottentots and Bushmen. The Hereros are a pastoral people, who formerly owned vast herds of cattle, but as a result of the native wars their numbers were reduced by about 75 per cent., and their cattle either destroyed or seized. Since the British occupation they have again acquired a number of stock, and their numbers have increased considerably. They now supply a large portion of the agricultural labour The Ovambos, like the Bushmen, are one of the native races who are not increasing in numbers

It may be noted that the Cunene River, which formerly ran through Ovamboland into the Etoscha Pan, passes along its northern border into the Atlantic, and this change of course has made Ovamboland far less fertile Ovambo labour is used for the mines and railways

The Bastards are descendants of a cross between European farmers and Hottentots, who originally came from the Cape Colony half a century ago They were never conquered by the Germans, and still manage many of their own affairs They live in the Rehoboth District, which lies to the south of Windhuk, and number about 9,000

The seat of the present Administration is Windhuk, which is pleasantly situated at an altitude of 5,600 feet, in the centre of the Protectorate Its total population is nearly 10,000

Up till 1920 the German Law has been in force New legislation has been effected by Proclamations under Martial Law In January, 1920, Roman Dutch was made the Common Law of the country, and a number of Union Acts have since been applied by Proclamations Civil Courts have been established and all troops withdrawn, and although Martial Law has not yet been repealed, the Government has been conducted on a purely civil basis for some time past A Parliamentary Commission from the Union has recently visited the country, with a view to formulating a scheme for its future administration A start has been made with local government by the creation of Hospital Boards and Municipalities, and it appears that the Germans are anxious to co operate in the work of reconstruction

Mr Gysbert Hofmeyr, C M G , who has been Clerk of the Union House of Assembly for the last ten years, has succeeded Sir Howard Georges, K C M G , M V O , as Administrator

Finance—For the financial year 1919 20 the revenue amounted to 654,370*l* , and the expenditure to 718,100*l* (1918 19 revenue, 377,049*l* , expenditure, 744,407*l*) The estimates for the year 1920-1 are revenue, 1,025,000*l* , expenditure, 849,674*l* The principal source of revenue is the tax on diamonds, which is estimated to yield 800,000*l* The tax is based on 66 per cent of the sale proceeds less 70 per cent of the working costs The working life of the alluvial fields is probably less than ten years

Customs.—Customs revenue is estimated to yield 75,000*l*

Trade.—The total imports and exports for the last five recorded years are —

Year	Imports	Exports	Year	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1911	2,265,097	1,734,558	1918	1,031,534	—

Mineral Production.—Five of the German Diamond Mining Companies in the Luderitzbucht area have been acquired by the Consolidated Diamond Mines of S. W.A , Ltd , which is registered in South Africa. The stones, which are small, but of a good quality, are found in the sand along the coast, but in no case at a greater distance than 15 miles from the sea. During 1919

the yield was 462,181 carats, valued at 2,081,863*l* The total output since 1908, when the mines were first discovered, has been 6,669,246 carats, valued at 13,349,690*l* The copper mines at Tsumeb were handicapped at the beginning of the year by shipping difficulties Their output in 1919 was 26,675 tons Alluvial tin is being worked in the Karibib and Omaruru districts, and valuable deposits of coloured marble at Karibib Prospecting has been allowed since March 1, 1920, and is being energetically conducted in many parts of the country Coal is greatly required, but only poor seams have so far been located

Agriculture, &c —The Protectorate is essentially a stock raising country Roughly speaking, Windhuk and the country to the north is a cattle country, and the southern portion is a sheep country Stock thrive well in nearly every part, and retain their condition in times of drought in a wonderful way No artificial feeding is required 17,266 cattle and 87,000 sheep were exported in 1919 In 1914 there were 240,000 cattle and 1,125,000 small stock the estimated number in 1920 was 400,000 cattle and 2 225,000 sheep and goats No agriculture is possible without irrigation, except in the north west, and there unseasonable or poor rains frequently result in very poor crops

The German Administration tried to encourage the tobacco industry, but with very little success, and although cotton and wheat do fairly well, the principal crop is maize

Approximately 37,000,000 acres have been taken up, out of a total of 207,000,000

A Land Board has been established, and farms are being given out on 5 year leases, with the option of purchase on an instalment principle Personal occupation is an essential As boring is necessary on nearly all vacant Government ground before it can be allotted, the Board can only go slowly Fifty eight drills have been purchased by the Administration for this purpose The usual size of farms is 3,000 hectares in the north and 10,000 to 20,000 in the south A hectare is roughly 2 47 acres Large numbers of applications for farms have been received

Harbours —The harbours in the Protectorate are Luderitzbucht and Walvis Bay The German Administration utilised Swakopmund, which lies 21 miles to the north of Walvis Bay, but it has now been abandoned as a port in favour of Walvis Bay It is, however, gaining favour as a seaside resort Better facilities for handling cargo are required at both Luderitz bucht and Walvis Bay

Communications.—The Wireless Station (Telefunoken System) at Windhuk, which in 1914 was one of the most powerful in the world, is not being used, nor is the German Cable Station at Swakopmund Cables are sent to Cape Town for despatch

The total length of Government railway lines is 967 miles of 3ft 6in gauge, and 98 miles of 2ft gauge, and of private lines 98 miles There are no made roads outside of the villages The distance from Cape Town to Windhuk is 1,383 miles, and the journey occupies three days and four nights There are two mail trains a week

WEST AFRICA.

These Possessions are the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria, the Gambia Colony and Protectorate, the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories, and the Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate. Parts of Togoland and the Cameroons are also included.

NIGERIA

History and Constitution.—This territory comprises a number of areas formerly under separate administrations. Lagos, bought in August, 1861, from a native king, was placed under the Governor of Sierra Leone in 1866. In 1874 it was detached, together with the Gold Coast Colony, and formed part of the latter until January, 1886, when a separate "Colony and Protectorate of Lagos" was constituted. Meanwhile the National African Company had established British interests in the Niger valley, and in July, 1886, the company obtained a charter under the name of the Royal Niger Company. This Company surrendered its charter to the Crown in 1899, and on January 1, 1900, its territories were formed into the two Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria. The latter absorbed the "Niger Coast Protectorate," which was formed in May, 1893, from the "Protectorate of the Oil Rivers," which had been constituted in June, 1885. In February, 1906, Lagos and Southern Nigeria were united into the "Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria," and on January 1, 1914, the latter was amalgamated with the Protectorate of Northern Nigeria to form the 'Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria,' under a Governor. Lagos is the seat of the Central Government.

The Colony of Nigeria had its boundaries defined afresh, and the Protectorate was divided into two groups of provinces, the 'Northern Provinces' and the 'Southern Provinces,' each under a Lieutenant Governor appointed by the King, and subject to the control and authority of the Governor.

The Executive Council of the Colony was made, from January 1, 1914, the Executive Council of the Protectorate also. There is an advisory and deliberative body known as the Nigerian Council, consisting of the Governor, the members of the Executive Council, and other official members, a member, resident in Nigeria, of the Lagos Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Calabar Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the Chamber of Mines, nominated by those bodies, three Europeans nominated by the Governor; and six native members, also nominated by the Governor. This Council has no legislative or executive authority. There is a Legislative Council for Lagos, consisting of the Governor, six official and four unofficial members.

Governor of Nigeria —Sir Hugh Clifford, K C M G
Secretary to Central Government —D C Cameron, C M G
Lieutenant Governors in the Protectorate —Vacant (Southern Provinces), and H S Goldsmith, C M G (Northern Provinces)

Area and Population.—Area approximately 332,000 square miles, population, about 17,500,000, including, at the end of 1919, about 2,800 Europeans (Northern Province 256,000 square miles, 8,670,000 population Southern Province 76,000 square miles, 8,900,000 population) In 1900 a proclamation was issued in Northern Nigeria which, without abolishing domestic slavery, declared all children born after January 1, 1900, free, and forbade the removal of domestic slaves for sale or transfer In 1917 the Slavery Ordinance abolished the legal status of slavery through out the Protectorate Slave markets have been suppressed by native rulers, and slave dealing is now practically non existent In 1917, 7,212, in 1918, 7,811, and in 1919, 7,091, slaves were liberated in the Northern Provinces

Justice —The Supreme Courts of Northern and Southern Nigeria are united under one Chief Justice of Nigeria There are police magistrates at Lagos and Calabar In each province is a Provincial Court consisting of the Resident and his assistants, and such justices of the peace as may be appointed by the Governor Native courts exist in Mohammedan localities where there are chiefs and councillors, and amongst pagan tribes Judicial Councils with limited judicial powers have been established in localities where the intelligence of the natives renders such a policy possible. There are cantonments at Kaduna, on the river of the same name, Kano, Zaria, Lokoja on the Niger, and Port Harcourt, and there station magistrates have been appointed The number of persons apprehended or summoned before the Provincial Courts in 1919 was 8,238, of whom 5,908 were convicted Out of 14,934 brought before Magistrates' Courts in 1919, 12,267 were convicted, and 102 were convicted in the Supreme Court

Religion and Education —Northern Provinces —Mohammedanism is widely diffused, the Fulani and Hausas and other ruling tribes being of that religion, but in some parts of the territory paganism is predominant Protestant and Catholic missions are at work, and have industrial and other schools at several stations The principles governing the education of natives in the Egyptian Sudan are being closely followed Secular subjects only are compulsory, the acceptance of religious teaching is optional At present the principal schools are situated at Kano, a great Mohammedan centre In 1919 there were 18 Government schools, and 98 unassisted private schools, the total average attendance being about 998, and 2,747 respectively It is estimated that there are also over 31,000 Moham medan schools, with more than 205,000 pupils

Southern Provinces —There is a system of primary and secondary schools There are also a residential school at Bonny, supported by Government grants, and by Chiefs' subscriptions, and a Government secondary school and mission grammar school at Lagos, and a high school at Calabar In 1919 there were 43 Government schools with 4,957 scholars on the roll, and an average attendance of about 3,686, 169 assisted schools, 25,187 on the roll, and 18,000 in average attendance; and 1,099 unassisted schools, with about 68,909 on the roll, and 40,000 in average attendance Total expenditure from public funds, 49,216*l*

Four British Protestant Societies and two French Roman Catholic

Societies are established, each with several stations, and altogether there are approximately 1,000 places of worship with an average attendance of about 130,000

Finance—Revenue, expenditure, and debt of Nigeria as a whole —

	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
1914	3,048,380	3,596,764	8,267,569
1916	2 948,184	3,609,688	8,470,593
1917	3,492,738	3,219,957	8,470,593
1918	4,014 190	3,459,774	8,470,593

The expenditure in 1914 included 628,925*l* expended on construction of Eastern Railway from Port Harcourt, in 1915 it included 632,168*l* expended on the Eastern Railway and 155,981*l* on the expenses of the Cameroons campaign, in 1916, 542,868*l* expended on railway construction, and 95,720*l* in war costs, in 1917, 115,413*l* expended on railway construction, and 8,546*l* on war costs, and in 1918, 30,591*l* expended on railway construction, and 134,000*l* on war costs The expenditure on railway construction during 1919 was 91,812*l*

The main items of revenue in 1919 were —Customs, 1,897,937*l*, railway, 1,473,254*l*, direct taxes, 491,374*l*, fees of court, &c, 301,153*l* The chief items of expenditure were (besides those stated above) —Political, 233,040*l*, West African Frontier Force, 317,646*l*, Posts and Telegraphs, 109,501*l*, Medical, 126,197*l*, Prisons, 102,341*l*, Public Debt, 473,439*l*, Railway, 1,042,817*l*, Marine, 448,812*l*, Public Works Extraordinary, 113,825*l*

There is established in each native State in the Northern Provinces a Treasury, locally known as a 'Beit-el Mal,' which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance The establishment of a Beit el Mal consolidates the rank and authority of the Emirs and Chiefs in each province It strengthens the position of the native judiciary and diminishes extortion and corruption There are also native treasuries in a few of the more advanced States in the Southern Provinces

Production and Industry.—The products are palm-oil (exports 1919 100,967 tons) and kernels (exports 1919, 216,913 tons), rubber, ground-nuts, shea-butter, ivory, hides, live stock, ostrich feathers, capsicums, cotton (output 1919, estimated at 60,221 cwt), cocoa, coffee, kola-nuts and various drugs Tobacco is also grown There are nurseries for rubber seedlings in the Southern Provinces, and botanical stations at Calabar, Onitsha, Oloke Meji, and Agege, and at Maiganna, Bida, Zaria, and Ilorin in the Northern Provinces Mahogany is exported Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed The natives have worked iron, lead, and tin for centuries Rich alluvial deposits of tin ore have been discovered The tin-bearing area so far as it is now known extends over 9,000 square miles of territory in the Northern Provinces, the output of tin in 1919 being 7,685 tons, and there are also deposits of tin in the Southern Provinces A colliery has been opened by Government at Udi in the Southern Provinces, which is connected by rail with Port Harcourt on the Bonny River. The coal is of good quality.

There are rich reefs of galena carrying a considerable silver return Pockets of native silver have from time to time been discovered in the vicinity of Orufu and Wukari There are also deposits of manganese ore, lignite, and monazite (which contains thorium)

Mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, that Company receives half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals won between the main stream of the Niger on the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the east for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900

Commerce and Communications, &c.—The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Forcados, Sapele, Brass, Degema, Port Harcourt, Bonny, Opobo, and Calabar Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are many well made roads driven through the country There is now a metalled road between Kano and Katsena, a distance of 95 miles, and it is probable that an attempt will be made to establish motor transport between these two centres At Lagos, and Calabar, there are engineering and repairing workshops and slip ways for the repair of hulls

At Lagos moles are being constructed, and a deep channel is being made over the Bar which admits ocean steamers entering the harbour

Considerable trade is carried on in the Northern Provinces, and several new trading stations have been recently opened There is, besides, a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga in the west, the Sahara in the north, and Lake Chad and Wadai in the east, make use of Kano as an emporium

TOGOLAND

Togo, with Little Popo and Porto Seguro, in Upper Guinea, between the Gold Coast Colony on the west and French Dahomey on the east, area 33,700 square miles, estimated coloured population (1913) 1,031,978, estimated European population, 1919, 125 Coast line about 31 miles, but inland the territory, between the rivers Volta and Monu, widens to four or five times that breadth Lome, the only port and capital, and Anecho, are on the coast The government stations are Lome, Anecho, Misahohe, Atakpame, Kete-Kratchi, Sokode, Yendi and Sansane-Mangu Togoland was surrendered unconditionally by the Germans to British and French forces in August, 1914 The Colony is now divided between the French and British The British have obtained about one third of the country, 12,500 square miles, bordering the Gold Coast territories, but no part of the sea coast.

The southern half of Togoland is peopled by natives using 30 different languages, of which the principal is Ĕfe—these may be regarded as an offshoot of the Bantu peoples The northern half contains, ethnologically, a totally different population descended largely from Hamitic tribes and speaking in all 16 languages, of which Dagomba and Tim are the most important The majority of the natives are pagans, but many profess Mohamedanism, while Christianity has, latterly, been making some progress in the coast districts

In the British zone there is one Government school with 200 pupils, and Missionary Societies have 35 schools with 3,912 pupils

The climate is extraordinarily cool for the tropics, and, although far from healthy, is not unpleasant

Inland the country is hilly, rising to 3,600 feet, with streams and waterfalls There are long stretches of forest and brushwood, while dry plains alternate with cultivable land Maize, yams, cassada, plantains, groundnuts, etc , are cultivated by the natives , oil palms, caoutchouc, and dyewoods grow in the forests , but the main commerce is the barter trade for palm oil, palm kernels, coco, rubber and copra carried on with the European factories There are considerable plantations of oil and coco palms, coffee, coco, kola, and cassada , kapok and cotton are also being tried as well as fibrous and other plants In the Sokode and Sansane-Mangu districts there are about 65,000 head of cattle , sheep, goats, poultry and pigs are found, but nowhere in large numbers , in some districts horses of small size are bred Native industries are weaving, pottery, smith work, straw plaiting, wood cutting, etc There is no mining by Europeans, but the natives in the Sokode and Misahohe districts smelt iron Customs revenue for 1917 was 63,578*l* , for 1918, 54,203*l*

EGYPT

Sultan

Fuad I Ahmed Fuad Pasha, G C B, was born in 1868, son of the Khedive Ismail Pasha, became Sultan on October 9, 1917, married the Princess Nazli on May 24, 1919

The present sovereign of Egypt is the eighth ruler of the dynasty of Muhammad Ali, appointed Governor of Egypt in 1805, who made himself, in 1811, absolute master of the country by force of arms The position of the Sultan's father, Ismail I —forced to abdicate, under pressure of the British and French Governments, in 1879—was recognised by the Imperial Hatti Sherif of February 13, 1841, issued under the guarantee of the five great European Powers The title given to Muhammad Ali and his immediate successors was the Turkish one of 'Vali,' or Viceroy, but this was changed by an Imperial firman of June 12, 1867, into the Persian-Arabic of 'Khidêw-Misr,' or, as more commonly called, Khedive By a firman issued June 8, 1873, the Sultan of Turkey granted to Ismail I the rights hitherto withheld of concluding commercial treaties with foreign Powers, and of maintaining armies

On December 18, 1914, a British Protectorate over Egypt was declared, and the next day a Proclamation was issued deposing Abbas Hilmi, lately Khedive of Egypt, and conferring the title of Sultan of Egypt upon Hussein Kamil, eldest living prince of the family of Muhammad Ali The British Protectorate has been recognised by France, Russia, Belgium, Serbia, Greece, Portugal, and the United States of America Sultan Hussein Kamil died in 1917, and was succeeded by his brother

The new Egyptian flag consists of three white crescents with their backs to the staff, each with a five pointed white star between the horns on a red field This flag was the personal standard of the Khedive, and now takes the place of the former national flag, which was distinguished from the Turkish by having a star of five instead of six points

The predecessors of the present ruler of Egypt were—

Government and Constitution

The administration of Egypt is carried on by native Ministers, subject to the ruling of the Sultan From 1879 to 1883 two Controllers General, appointed by France and England, had considerable powers in the direction of the affairs of the country (Khedivial Decree, November 10, 1879) In the summer of 1882, in consequence of a military rebellion, England intervened, subdued the rising, and restored the authority of the Khedive In this intervention England was not joined by France, and as a result, on January 18, 1883, the Khedive signed a decree abolishing the joint control of England and France In the place of the Control, the Khedive, on the recommendation of England, appointed an English financial adviser, without whose concurrence no financial decision could be taken The Khedivial Decree appended to and approved by the Anglo French Convention of April 4, 1904, removed most of the restrictions which encumbered the management of Egyptian Finance No modification may be introduced into the terms of the Decree without the assent of the signatory powers to the Convention of London of 1885

In November, 1919, it was officially announced that the policy of Great Britain in Egypt was to preserve the autonomy of that country under British protection and to develop the system of self government under an Egyptian ruler, and that the object of Great Britain was to defend Egypt from all external danger and interference by any foreign Power, and at the same time to establish a constitutional system in which, under British guidance, the Sultan, his Ministers, and the elected representatives of the people might in their several spheres and in an increasing degree co operate in the management of Egyptian affairs A mission under Lord Milner was sent to Egypt with the purpose of working out this policy The Egyptian Government have now (March, 1921) been invited to discuss with the British Government the question of substituting for the protectorate a relationship which, while securing the special interests of Great Britain and enabling the latter to offer adequate guarantees to foreign powers, will meet the legitimate aspirations of Egypt

Prime Minister —Adly Yeghen Pasha
Vice-President of the Council —Hussein Rushdi Pasha
Minister of Interior —Abdel Khalek Sarwat Pasha
Minister of Education —Gaafar Waly Pasha
Minister of Public Works, Marine and War —Mohammed Shafik Pasha
Minister of Justice —Abdel Fattah Yehia Pasha
Minister of Agriculture —Neguib Ghali Pasha
Minister of Wakfs (Pious Foundations) —Midhat Yeghen Pasha
Minister of Communications —Ahmed Zuer Pasha
Minister of Finance —Ismail Sidky Pasha

The new Ministry of Communications, established in 1919, comprises the following services The Egyptian State Railways, Telegraphs, and Telephones, the Postal Administration, the Ports and Lighthouses, the Harbour Works, Inland Water Transport, Mechanical Transport, Main Roads and Bridges, Supervision, licensing, and control of civil aerial traffic

On May 1, 1883, an organic law was promulgated by the Khedive creating a number of representative institutions, including a Legislative Council, a

General Assembly, and Provincial Councils But these bodies were mainly consultative and the Khedive and his Ministers retained most of the legislative power The above Law was replaced in July, 1913, by the present Organic and Electoral Laws, by which for the Legislative Council and General Assembly was substituted a new body called the Legislative Assembly This consists of (i) the Ministers, (ii) 66 elected members, and (iii) 17 members nominated by the Government to represent certain minorities The elections are indirect every 50 electors choose an elector delegate, and the electors delegate elect the members of the Assembly, but are liable to be recalled before any fresh exercise of their functions The members of this Assembly sit for six years, their numbers being renewed one third at a time every two years they also receive payment The Assembly can initiate legislation and must be consulted on all measures relating to loans, land tax assessment, or modifications of the railway or irrigation systems The Government, however, is not bound by the resolutions of the Assembly, and, in the event of a disagreement between the two about any proposed law, the Government can eventually enact the law in such form as it may think fit The Assembly has the right of veto on new direct, personal or land taxes, which cannot be imposed without its sanction The ordinary session of the Assembly is from November 1 to May 31

The Provincial Councils were endowed in 1909 with the powers of applying bye laws, authorising public markets, fixing the number and pay of ghaffirs (village watchmen), and authorising the creation of ezbas (hamlets) They are the local authorities in connection with elementary vernacular education and trade schools They consist of two elected representatives from each Markaz The Mudîr is the ex officio President of the Council

Egypt Proper is administratively divided into 5 governorships (muhâfzas) of principal towns, and 14 mudirias or provinces, subdivided into districts or Markazes In 1890 the Powers consented to a decree constituting a Municipality in Alexandria, with power to impose local taxes [1]

In thirteen towns (Mansûra, Medînet el Fayûm, Tanta, Zagazig, Damanhûr, Beni Suêf, Mahalla el-Kubra, Minya, Mît Ghamr, Zifta, Kafr el Zayât, Benha, and Port Said), Mixed Commissions have been formed with power to impose taxes on residents who have given an express consent to be taxed for municipal purposes

In 41 other towns a third class of town council (Local Commissions) exists, but, in general, there is no power to impose local taxes, the revenue being derived from grants from the central Government, and receipts from water supply, slaughter houses, &c During recent years, however, 22 of the Local Commissions have, with the express consent of foreigners and Egyptians, imposed local taxation for municipal purposes

The growth of the general population of the country is exhibited by the following figures —

1800 (French estimate)	2,460,200	1897 (Census)	9,734,405
1821 (Muhammad Ali)	2,536,400	1907 (Census)	11,287,359
1846 (Census) . .	4,476,440	1917 (Census)	12,750,918
1882 (Census) .	6,831,131

The average annual increase from 1846 to 1882 was 1 25 per cent, from 1882 to 1897, 2 76 per cent, 1897–1907, 1 49 per cent, from 1846–1907, 1 53 per cent

Estimated population, July 1, 1919 12,878,000 Births registered, 1919, 493,507, deaths, 383,872

The principal towns, with their populations, according to the results of the census of 1917, are —Cairo, 790,939, Alexandria, 444,617, Port Said (including Ismailia), 91,090, Suez, 30,996, Damietta, 30,984, Tanta, 74,195, Mansura, 49,238, Zagazig, 41,741, Damanhur, 47,867, Benha, 18,607, Shibîn el Kôm, 24,604, Asyut, 51,431, Aswân, 11,293, Beni Suêf, 31,986, Faiyûm, 44,400, Sohâg, 20,760. Religion and Instruction.

In 1917 the population consisted of 11,658,148 Moslems, 854,778 Orthodox, 59,581 Jews Christians 47,481 Protestants, 107,687 Roman Catholics, 14,416 other Christians, 8,827 others Thus Moslems formed 91·48 per cent of the population, Christians, 8 03 per cent, Jews, 0 47 per cent, others, 0 07 per cent The principal seat of Koranic learning is the Mosque and University of El-Azhar at Cairo, founded year 361 of the Hegira, 972 of the Christian era. In 1914 it had 405 professors and 9,749 students of Islam and subjects connected therewith The Mosque of El-Ahmadi at Tanta had 113 professors and 2,860 students at the end of 1914 The Mosque of Damietta had in the same year 16 professors and 411 students, that of Dessûqi (Tanta), 16 professors and 280 students, and the Meshiakhat Olama of Alexandria 75 professors and 1,854 students All these institutions are under the supervision of the Council of the University of El Azhar

There are in Egypt large numbers of native Christians connected with the various Oriental churches, of these, the largest and most influential are the Copts, the descendants of the ancient Egyptians, their creed is Orthodox (Jacobite), and was adopted in the first century of the Christian era Its head is the Patriarch of Alexandria as the successor of St Mark There are three metropolitans and twelve bishops in Egypt, one metropolitan and two bishops in Abyssinia, and one bishop for Khartum, there are also arch priests, priests, deacons, and monks Priests must be married before ordination, but celibacy is imposed on monks and high dignitaries The Copts use the Diocletian (or Martyrs') calendar, which differs by 284 years from the Gregorian calendar

[1] Provisional figures

Subject to certain adjustments for purposes of comparison, it appears that the proportion of the native Egyptian population able to read and write in 1917, as compared with the returns of the previous census in 1907, was as follows —

1907		1917
Males	Females	Males	Females
85 per 1000	3 per 1000	120 per 1000	18 per 1000

Until 1897, Government initiative in the matter of education was limited to supplying a Europeanised course of education designed to fit Egyptians for various branches of the public service and for professional careers This system of schools, which owes its origin to the Europeanising zeal of Muhammad Ali Pasha, the first viceroy, consists of Primary Schools, Secondary Schools, and Professional Colleges (Law, Medicine, Engineering, Veterinary, Military, Teaching, Accountancy and Commerce, and Agriculture), in addition to a number of special schools.

Scattered throughout the country there have existed from time immemorial a number of indigenous schools called 'Maktabs' In 1897, the Ministry of Education endeavoured to bring these independent 'Maktabs' voluntarily under Departmental supervision by means of a system of inspection and reward Government aid was made dependent upon daily instruction being given in reading, writing, and arithmetic, apart from any religious teaching, and upon the school reaching a satisfactory level of efficiency The extent to which the scheme has developed is shown in the following table

Under other Government Departments are the School of Law (353 students), the Military School (90 cadets), the Veterinary School (19 students), the Higher School of Agriculture (99 students), the Intermediate School of Agriculture (108 students), the School for Cadis (higher section, 107, lower, 166 students), the Police School (95 cadets), and 2 reformatories (590 boys, 139 girls) It is proposed to establish a State University at Cairo

Justice.

The indigenous tribunals of the country are the Mehkemas, presided over by the Qâdis At the present time, they retain jurisdiction only in matters of personal law (marriage, succession, &c), and wakfs—the latter being either charitable foundations, or family settlements with an ultimate remainder in favour of a charitable foundation—and also in certain non religious cases (e g succession) between non Moslem natives In matters of personal law other than intestate succession non Mussulmans are, however, in general subject to their own Patriarchate, or other religious authority In other matters, natives are justiciable before the so called Native Tribunals established in 1883 These now consist of 90 Summary Tribunals, each presided over by a single judge, with civil jurisdiction in matters up to £E150 in value, and criminal jurisdiction in offences punishable by fine or by imprisonment up to three years, that is, police offences and misdemeanours, eight Central Tribunals, each of the Chambers of which consists of three judges, and a Court of Appeal at Cairo, about one third of its members being European Under a law of 1904, there are also weekly sittings in the Governorate Qisms (to the number of 28) for the disposal of petty offences, the judge having powers up to three months' imprisonment or fine of £E10, and the prosecution being conducted by the police Civil cases not within the competence of the Summary Tribunals are heard in first instance by the Central Tribunals, with an appeal to the Court of Appeal The Central Tribunals also hear civil and criminal appeals from the Summary Tribunals Since 1905 serious crimes (and, under a law of 1910, all press offences) are tried at the Central Tribunals by three judges of the Court of Appeal sitting as an Assize Court, assizes being held monthly There is a recourse on points of law, in criminal matters, to five judges of the Court of Appeal sitting in Cairo as a Court of Cassation The prosecution before Summary Tribunals and Assize Courts is entrusted to the Parquet, which is directed by a Procureur Général, the investigation of crime is ordinarily conducted by the Parquet, or by the police under the direction of the Parquet cases going before an Assize Court are further submitted to a special committing judge Offences against irrigation laws, &c , are tried by special administrative tribunals

The so called "Cantonal Courts," created by a law of July, 1912, should also be mentioned They are composed of village notables, and have general civil jurisdiction in suits up to £E5 in value, besides an extended jurisdiction in special matters, and a petty criminal jurisdiction with penalties up to 24 hours' imprisonment or PT25 fine. The jurisdiction of each court extends to a group of villages The courts are now 236 in number

Owing to the Capitulations, which still apply to Egypt, foreigners are exempted from the jurisdiction of the local tribunals Mixed tribunals were instituted in 1876, consisting partly of native and partly of foreign judges, with jurisdiction, in civil matters, between natives and foreigners and between foreigners of different nationalities, or even between foreigners of the same nationality if the dispute relates to land in Egypt These Tribunals have, also, a limited penal jurisdiction, notably in cases of police offences, offences against the bankruptcy laws, and misappropriation of property seized by order of the tribunal There are three Mixed Tribunals of First Instance, with a Court of Appeal sitting at Alexandria.

The foreign debt of Egypt began in 1862, when loans amounting to 3,292,800*l* were issued for the purpose of extinguishing the floating debt Other issues followed in rapid succession The dual control by England and France began in 1879 In January, 1880, the two Controllers General reported that Egypt could not possibly meet her engagements in full, and in July the Liquidation Law, in accordance with the recommendation of an International Commission of the Great Powers, was promulgated By this law the Unified debt was reduced to 4 per cent interest, further conversions were made, and the Unified debt thus increased to 60,958,240*l*, certain unconsolidated liabilities were added to the Preference debt, which thus rose to 22,743,800*l*, and the Daira Sania debt was increased to 9,512,900*l*, the interest being reduced to 4 per cent In 1885 and subsequent years further loans and conversions were entered into

The Daira Sania and the Domains loans were paid off on October 15, 1905, and June 1, 1913, respectively The amount and the charge of the various debts in April, 1920, were as follows —

—	Debt	Charge
	£	£E
Guaranteed Loan, 3 per cent	6,098,400	307,125
Privileged Debt, 3½ per cent	31,127,780	1,062,235
Unified Debt, 4 per cent	55,971,960	2,182,906
Total	93,198,140	3,552,266

On April 1, 1920, the debt stood at £stg 93,198,140, inclusive of the amount of £stg 6,466,860 held by the Government and the Caisse de la Dette Publique In 1919 20 the debt was reduced by £190,500

The charges on account of debts of all kinds (including tribute), as shown in the estimates for 1920–21, amount to £E4,612,372

In 1888 and 1890, reserve funds were established, the balances of which, in virtue of the Anglo-French Convention of April 4, 1904, were placed at the disposal of the Egyptian Government in 1905, less certain sums remaining in the hands of the Caisse de la Dette Publique for the service of the debt The amount received by the Egyptian Government was carried to a General Reserve Fund In this Fund on April 1, 1920, there was a balance of £E17,117,866, including £E1,541,031 realised from the minting of new coinage

Defence.

Egyptian Army

On September 19, 1882, the existing Egyptian army was disbanded The organisation of a new army was entrusted to a British general officer, who was given the title of Sirdar Service is compulsory, but, owing to the small contingent required, only a fraction (4 per cent) of the men who are liable actually serve Service is for three years In the Sudanese battalions service is voluntary and extended The army consists of 5 squadrons of cavalry, a camel corps, 5 batteries, 18 battalions of infantry (of which 6 are Sudanese and 1 is a special "Equatorial" battalion), a railway battalion, and various departments Most of the higher posts are held by British officers The strength of the army is about 17,000

Army of Occupation

Before the outbreak of war in August, 1914, the British garrison, or army of occupation, consisted of a cavalry regiment, a horse artillery battery, a mountain battery, a company of engineers, and 4 battalions (one company in Cyprus) stationed in the Nile Delta, and of a battalion of infantry and detachment of garrison artillery stationed in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The establishment, including departmental services, was 6,067 of all ranks.

In 1920 the British garrison consisted of 1 regiment of cavalry, 1 battery R.H.A., 7 battalions of infantry, with detachments of engineers and garrison artillery, making a total of 11,605. In addition there were Indian troops to the number of 20,468 At the end of the year this garrison was in process of reduction

Production and Industry

The cultivable area of Egypt proper was reckoned in 1919 at 7,691,793 feddâns (1 feddân = 1 038 acre), and of this 2,829,215 were uncultivated for want of reclamation The land tax has been readjusted, the old distinction between Kharâgi and Ushûri tax has disappeared, and the taxes on land range from 2 piastres (1 piastre = 2½*d*) to 164 piastres per feddân according to the rental value The corvée, or forced labour, has been abolished, but the inhabitants are still called out to guard or repair the Nile banks in flood time, and are also liable in any sudden emergency, in 1913 none were called out, in 1914, 21,600, in 1916, 113,000 The agricultural population (Fellahîn) forms about 62 per cent of the whole A large proportion of them are small landholders with under 51 feddâns, while others, almost or altogether landless, are labourers, the relation between the employers and the employed being mostly hereditary The following table shows, for 1919, the number of landholders and the distribution of the land between foreigners and natives —

The Egyptian agricultural year includes three seasons or crops The leading winter crops, sown in November and harvested in May and June, are cereal produce of all kinds, the principal summer crops, sown in March and harvested in October and November, are cotton, sugar, and rice, the autumn crops, sown in July and gathered in September and October, are rice, maize, millet, and vegetables generally In Fayûm and Lower Egypt, where perennial irrigation is effected by means of a network of canals tapping the Nile and traversing the Delta in every direction, the chief crops are cotton, rice, Indian corn, wheat, barley, clover, cucumber, in Upper Egypt, south of Deirût, where the basin system of irrigation, i e submersion at high Nile, is generally adhered to, cereals and vegetables are produced, north of Deirût the same conditions prevail as in Lower Egypt, except that no rice is grown Where there is perennial irrigation, two or three crops are secured annually

Extensive reservoir works, consisting of a dam at Aswân, a barrage at Esna, a barrage at Asyût, and a barrage at Zifta, have been completed The original storage capacity of the reservoir was 1,065,000,000 cubic metres The level of the dam has been raised by 6 metres and the capacity of the reservoir increased to 2,423,000,000 cubic metres The barrage at Esna ensures adequate irrigation to a large area of basin land even in a year of low Nile. North of Deirût an area of approximately half a million acres has been converted from basin to perennial irrigation in the last ten years The area and production of cotton in six years were —

Goods imported into Egypt are examined by experts, who determine their value according to the market price in their original country, plus the cost of transport, freight, insurance, &c In order, however, to facilitate customs operations, the administration, in communication with the merchants interested, establishes, on the same basis as above, periodical tariffs for common articles of importation In the statistics of the Custom House, the values are taken according to the estimated price which served as the basis for the payment of duty, now fixed at 8 per cent ad valorem (except coal, liquid fuel, charcoal, firewood, petroleum, oxen, cows, sheep and goats, whether alive or cold stored, the duty on which was reduced to 4 per cent ad valorem from November 25 1905, and alcoholic drinks, perfumes, and alcoholic extracts, on which the duty was raised to 10 per cent on April 30, 1915) As regards exports, there are tariffs for nearly all of them, estimated in the same manner as the tariffs of imports The quantities recorded in statistics are those declared by the merchants and controlled by the Customs

The origin of imports and destination of exports are declared by importers and exporters and controlled, as much as possible, by the searchers and appraisers of the Custom House

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN

Government

The rule of Egypt in the Sudan, after having gradually extended during the course of 60 years, was interrupted in 1882 by the revolt of the Mahdi, who, with his successor, the Khalifa, held the country for about sixteen years under a desolating tyranny In 1896 the Anglo-Egyptian army commenced operations for the recovery of the lost provinces, and on September 2, 1898, the overthrow of the Khalifa was completed In November, 1899, he was overtaken by the Egyptian forces near Gedid, where he was slain in battle, and his remaining followers taken prisoners

A convention between the British and Egyptian Governments, signed at Cairo, January 19, 1899, provides for the administration of the territory south of the 22nd parallel of latitude by a Governor General, appointed by Egypt with the assent of Great Britain, and declares the general principles in accordance with which the administration shall be carried on The British and Egyptian flags shall be used together, laws shall be made by proclamation, no duties shall be levied on imports from Egypt, and duties on imports from other countries, via the Red Sea, shall not exceed those levied in Egypt, the import and export of slaves is prohibited, and special attention shall be paid to the Brussels Act of 1890 respecting the import and export of arms, ammunition, and spirits

The Sudan has been divided into fifteen Provinces The Governors of provinces are British Officers of the Egyptian Army employed under the Sudan Government or British civil officials of the Government Administration is carried out through British Inspectors in charge of one or more districts into which the provinces are subdivided, these units being supervised by District officials who are in most cases Egyptian officers lent from the Egyptian Army

In 1910 a Governor-General's Council was created to assist the Governor-General in the discharge of his executive and legislative powers All ordinances, laws and regulations are now made by the Governor General in Council

The Enclave of Lado, which was continued in the occupation of H M King Leopold II, King of the Belgians, during his reign, by the Agreement signed at Brussels on May 12, 1906, reverted to the Anglo Egyptian Sudan on his death, and has been included in the Mongalla province

Area and Population.

Extending southwards from the frontier of Egypt to Uganda and the Belgian Congo (approximately N lat. 5°), a distance of about 1,650 miles, and stretching from the Red Sea to the confines of Wadai in Central Africa, the subject territory has an area of about 1,014,400 square miles.

T

The population in 1917 was estimated at 3,400,000 The Gambela Enclave which is situated within the boundaries of Abyssinia, is leased by the Sudan Government from the Abyssinian Government as a Trading Post The Eritrea-Sudan frontier has been completely delimited and demarcated, as also has the greater part of the frontier with Abyssinia (see under Abyssinia) The chief towns are Khartum, population 23,083, the capital, Omdurman (the old Dervish capital), population 50,429, Khartum North, population 15,973, Halfa, Merowé, El Damer, Atbara, Port Sudan, Suakin, Kassala, El Dueim, Kosti, El Obeid, Nahud, Wad Medani, Singa, and El Fasher

Instruction

The schools under the Central Authority are classified as follows — There are first the elementary vernacular schools (Kuttabs), 74 in number (December, 1919), situated in all parts of the country, and with a total number of about 6,667 pupils In these schools instruction is given to boys from 7 to 10 years of age in reading, writing, arithmetic and religion Next there are the primary schools, of which there are now six—at Khartum, Omdurman, Wad Medani, Atbara, El Obeid and Suakin The subjects taught in schools of this class include English, Arabic, Mathematics, and the total number of boys in attendance is 1,051 After completing their primary course, boys can proceed to the upper school at the Gordon College, or they may be employed as clerks or translators in Government Offices The upper school at Gordon College is attended by 98 pupils, some of whom take a course in engineering and surveying, while the rest are trained to be teachers in primary schools or translators There is also in the Gordon College buildings a training college attended by 65 students, who undergo a five years' course of training, after which they are drafted out as Kadis in district courts The industrial workshops, of which there are at present two, at Khartum and Omdurman, are attended by 190 boy apprentices At Khartum smith work, carpentry, fitting, &c, are taught, and at Omdurman stone-cutting, pottery, and brick-work A primary school has been constructed adjacent to the Gordon College, and some of the boys board in the Gordon College A start has been made in the education of girls by the opening of girls' schools at Rufaa, El Obeid, Dongola, Merowe, and Kamlin, which are attended by 261 girls altogether Affiliated to the Gordon College are the Wellcome Tropical Research Laboratories, where investigations are carried on in connection with diseases and with the economic products of the country

A Central Research Farm has been organised at Khartum North, under the auspices of the Education Department, for the furtherance of agricultural research and education Laboratories have been built and equipped for the study of agricultural botany, physiology and bacteriology Comparative field experiments with such staple crops as cotton, wheat and lubia are supplemented by sections devoted to plant introduction, seed selection, horticulture, experimental forestry and market gardening

The geological survey, the antiquities service, and the natural history museum are also attached to the Education Department.

Justice.

The High Court of Justice for the trial of civil suits comprises the Court of Appeal and Courts of original jurisdiction Judges of the High Court sitting singly have general original jurisdiction The Court of Appeal is constituted by three or more Judges of the High Court sitting together, all Judges of the High Court being members of the Court of Appeal.

The general superintendence of the High Court is vested in the Chief Justice In addition to the Chief Justice there are four Judges of the High Court, three of whom are British barristers, and one promoted from the Sudan Civil Service The High Court sits at Khartum, but judges from time to time go on circuit

Subordinate to the High Court of Justice in every province is the Province Court This comprises a Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, and District Judges of three grades Appeals from decisions of a District Judge lie to the Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, where such appeals lie to the High Court Appeals from decisions of a Province Judge lie to the High Court

In Provinces where there is neither a High Court Judge nor a specially appointed Province Judge the Governor acts as Province Judge, and in any District where there is no specially appointed District Judge the provincial inspectors and district officers act as District Judges

The Mohammedan Law Courts administer the Moslem religious law in cases between Mohammedans relating to succession on death, marriage, divorce, and family relations generally, and also Mohammedan charitable endowments

Criminal justice is administered either by single magistrates, or courts of three magistrates Judges of the High Court, and District Judges of the first grade, governors, and inspectors of provinces, and the district officials above mentioned, are the magistrates Decisions of courts require confirmation either by the Governor of the province or by the Governor-General, both of whom have extensive powers of revision Appeal lies from convictions by magistrates other than Governors, where the sentence exceeds two months' imprisonment or 2*l* fine

The Sudan penal code is an adaptation of the Indian penal code

The Legal Secretary fulfils the duties of a Minister of Justice

Finance

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£E	£E		£E	£E
1913(pre war)	1,568 852	1,653,065	1918	2,774 689	2,336 315
1915	1,495,227	1,463,934	1919	2,992,792	2,720,513
1916	1,857,856	1,745 532	1920[1]	3,500,000	3,500,000

The revenue is derived mainly from Land Tax, (213,000*l* in 1919), Animal Tax (149,000*l* in 1919), Royalties on Gum and Ivory (128,000*l* in 1919), and Customs (328,000*l* in 1919), and from the receipts of the Railways and Nile Steamer Services (1,278,000*l* in 1919), and Posts and Telegraphs (118,000*l* in 1919)

From 1914 onwards, the figures do not include the revenue and expenditure of Local Provincial Services, which amounted in 1919 to 161,191*l*E. and 153,270*l*E respectively

Production and Commerce.

The Sudan is the chief source of the world's supply of gum arabic (exports, 1919, 15,490 tons, £E548,244) and ivory (exports 1919, 50 tons, £E46,556) Egyptian cotton has been successfully established on the Nile, as well as in the Toker district of the Red Sea Province, and increasing quantities of cotton, which compare favourably with corresponding varieties grown in Egypt, are being produced annually The Gezirah irrigation project (by means of the dam on the Blue Nile at Makwar, about 170 miles south of Khartum) will enable 100,000 acres to be put under cotton in a few years' time with unlimited scope for extension Cotton area, 1919, 56,000 feddans, crop 1919-20 estimated at 120,000 kantars Other products include sesame, senna leaves and pods, groundnuts, dates, hides and skins, and gold The principal grain crops are dura, a kind of millet used for making bread, and dukhn Estimated yield of dura, 1919, 144,600 tons

The cattle trade in the Sudan shows remarkable growth in recent years, and the number exported is increasing yearly The reason for this is that while it is easy for the native to raise cattle, the Government on their part through an efficient and well organised Veterinary Department, is endeavouring to foster the trade, to eliminate cattle diseases, and to improve the quality of live stock

The forests which line the river banks, rich in fibres and tanning material, extend to the frontiers of Abyssinia On the White Nile the forests contain valuable trees—the ebony tree, the gum acacia, the bamboo, and the rubber creeper The finest gum forests are in Kordofan, and the best rubber in the Bahr el Ghazal

Gold is the only mineral at present being successfully exploited in the Sudan, a mine being worked at Gabait

Constitution and Government.

The territories which now constitute the Dominion of Canada came under British power at various times, some by settlement and others by conquest or session Nova Scotia was occupied in 1627, the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter, conferring rights over the territories to the east and west of the Bay, was granted in 1670, Canada was conquered in 1759 and, along with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763, Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was occupied in 1858 As originally constituted the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower Canada, now Ontario and Quebec—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament passed in March, 1867, known as 'The British North America Act, 1867,' which came into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom', that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in his name by a Governor-General and Privy Council, and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons' The powers of the Federal Parliament include all subjects not assigned exclusively to the provincial legislatures Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion, Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision In 1869, the extensive region known as the North West Territories was added to the Dominion by purchase from the Hudson's Bay Company, the province of Manitoba was set apart out of a portion of it, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870 On July 20, 1871, the provinces of British Columbia, and by an Imperial Order in Council of May 16, in the same year, Prince Edward Island, were admitted into the confederation The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabaska, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and were admitted to the Union as provinces on September 1, 1905

Defence.

Under the Militia Act of 1904, the command in chief of the militia is vested in the King, by whom, or by the Governor General as his representative, it is exercised and administered The Act further provides for the appointment of a Minister of Militia and Defence, charged with the administration of militia affairs, and of a Deputy Minister, also for the appointment of a Militia Council This includes, besides the Minister and Deputy Minister, four military members—the Chief of the General Staff, the Adjutant-General, the Quartermaster General, and the Master General of the Ordnance There is also an Inspector General whose duty it is to inspect the forces and report to the Militia Council on their readiness for war, but he has no seat in Council

The Canadian land forces are divided into the active militia and the reserve militia The active militia consists of a permanent force and of a non permanent force, the latter divided into city and rural corps Service in the active militia is voluntary and for three years, but the Government has the power to apply compulsion should the necessity arise The permanent force comprises all arms of the service and is composed of a number of permanently embodied units It provides personnel for the various schools of military instruction and garrisons for the fortresses, where a permanent element is necessary for defence, for the maintenance of works and for the preservation of armaments The non-permanent active militia undergoes an annual period of training, which varies from 12 to 16 days, according to the arms of the service and the location of the corps, i e, whether they are city or rural (Owing to the re organization of the active militia, it has not been possible to make much progress with its training during the past season) The reserve militia has not yet been organised

The authorised establishment for the permanent force is approximately 6,700 The non permanent active militia is comprised of such corps as from time to time are authorised by the Governor General in Council In pre-war days its strength was approximately 68,000

The above organisations are supplemented by numerous cadet corps and rifle associations The Royal Military College at Kingston provides both a military and a general education It trains officers both for the permanent force and for the remainder of the active militia, and a certain number of commissions in the British regular army are granted annually to its cadets

Schemes for a Canadian Navy have been mooted but are at present somewhat in abeyance. The old cruisers Niobe and Rainbow, taken over as training ships, have been employed in commerce protection, and are now to be sold The local force consists otherwise of a number of miscellaneous gun-vessels and icebreakers, some of which are on the Great Lakes At the outbreak of the war two submarines, which were building in the United States for Chile were bought (C C 1 and 2), and are on the Pacific coast, two submarines (H 4 and 5) have been allocated to the Dominion by the British Admiralty Two destroyers of the 'M' class, Patrician and Patriot, have been acquired completed 1916, 980 tons, 35 knots, three 4 in and smaller guns

Production and Industry.

Agriculture —In 1911, there were 48,375,000 acres of improved land out of 109,777,085 acres of occupied land The value in 1919 of the agricultural wealth of Canada has been estimated as follows agricultural production, 1,976 million dollars, value of farm lands, 2,792, buildings 928, implements, 387, and farm live stock, 1,297, total, 7,380 million dollars The following table, compiled from data collected at the Dominion censuses of 1901 and 1911, shows the distribution of farm holdings according to size in the whole of Canada and in the Provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan for the two years named —

In Ontario, apples, the vine, and tobacco are grown The live stock in Canada on June 15, 1920, comprised 3,400,000 horses, 3,530,000 milk cows, 5,947,000 other cattle, 3,721,000 sheep, 3,517,000 swine, 25,942,000 fowls, 2,164,000 turkeys, geese, and ducks In 1918, there were divided among ranches in Manitoba, 66,563 acres, British Columbia, 393,253 acres, Alberta, 2,563,145 acres, and Saskatchewan, 2,723,217 acres total, 5,746,178 acres (4,796 ranches) The wool clip in Canada for 1919 is estimated at 15 million lbs The number of dairy factories in operation in 1919 was 3,343 In 1919 the production of creamery butter was 101,554,000 lbs , value, 55,182,000 dollars , of factory cheese, 167,735,000 lbs , value 44,806,000 dollars , of condensed milk, 61,898,000 lbs , valued at 9,425,000 dollars , evaporated milk, 16,108,000 lbs , valued at 1,789,000 dollars , whole milk sold, 22,399,000 gallons, valued at 10,377,000 dollars

Forestry.—The total area of land covered by timber is officially estimated at between 500 and 600 million acres Of this 200 to 300 million acres are covered with commercial timber This is distributed by provinces as follows —

	Acres		Acres
British Columbia	50,000,000	Quebec	100,000,000
Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta	11,000,000	New Brunswick	9 000,000
Ontario	70 000 000	Nova Scotia	5,000,000

The forest products exported to the United Kingdom in 1919–20 amounted in value to 30,249,000 dollars, out of a total of 105,337,000 dollars The estimated value of the total forest products for the calendar year 1918 was 190,000,000 dollars The exportable surplus of the wood pulp industry was 41,383,482 dollars in 1919–20, chiefly to Great Britain and the United States The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, except in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the Railway Belt (forty miles wide) in British Columbia, where they belong to the Dominion

The total capital invested in the lumber industry in 1918 was 182,254,740 dollars The aggregate value of production (lumber, lath, shingles, etc) was 146,333,192 dollars (Ontario, 42,872,958 dollars, Quebec, 40,199,895, British Columbia, 39,442,660, New Brunswick, 14,977,974 dollars) There were 3,085 mills, 60,868 persons employed, wages and salaries came to 49,786,122 dollars cost of materials and mill supplies, 45,876,832 dollars, cost of fuel and miscellaneous supplies, 24,299,638 dollars

Fisheries —The coast line of the Atlantic Provinces, from the Bay of Fundy to the Strait of Belle Isle, without taking into account the lesser bays and indentations, measures over 5,000 miles On the Pacific coast the Province of British Columbia, because of its numerous islands, bays, and fiords, has a sea washed shore of 7,000 miles In addition to this immense salt water fishing area Canada has 220,000 square miles of fresh water abundantly stocked with many species of excellent food fishes

The fisheries of the Atlantic coast may be divided into two distinct classes The deep sea, which take cod, haddock, hake, pollock, and halibut, and the inshore or coastal, which take cod, hake, haddock, pollock, halibut, herring, mackerel, alewife, shad, smelt, flounder, and sardine The most extensive lobster fishery known is carried on along the eastern shore of Canada, while excellent oyster beds exist in many parts of the Gulf of St Lawrence The salmon fishery is the predominant one on the Pacific coast, but an important halibut fishery is also carried on The inland lake fisheries yield whitefish, trout, pickerel, pike, sturgeon, and fresh water herring In the calendar year 1918 the capital invested in vessels, gear, canneries, etc (including working capital and stocks on hand) was 60,212,863 dollars The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in that year was 60,250,544 dollars The principal kinds of fish caught were salmon, 17,869,517 dollars, lobsters, 3,531,104 dollars, codfish, 10,368,596 dollars, herrings, 4,719,561 dollars, halibut, 5,490,226 dollars, haddock, 2,796,171 dollars, sardines, 2,320,513 dollars, whitefish, 1,927,863 dollars The exports were valued at 37,137,072 dollars The exports of dry salted codfish were 57,036,800 lb, canned lobsters, 4,890,200 lb, fresh lobsters, 4,249,900 lb, canned salmon, 47,813,700 lb The number of persons employed in 1918 was 87,070, including those in shore work and canneries The number of factories and canneries in operation in 1918 was 939 In 1918, according to provinces, the values were Nova Scotia, 15,153,066 dollars, British Columbia, 27,282,223 dollars, New Brunswick, 6,298,990 dollars, Quebec, 4,568,773 dollars, Ontario, 3,175,111 dollars, Prince Edward Island, 1,148,201 dollars, Manitoba, 1,830,435 dollars; Saskatchewan, 447,012 dollars, Alberta, 318,913 dollars, and Yukon, 37,820 dollars.

Mining—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N and W Ontario, Alberta, and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce was in 1918, 211,301,897 dollars, in 1919, 173,145,913 dollars. The estimate for 1920 is about 200 million dollars The principal metals and minerals produced in 1918 and 1919 were as follows

The water power resources of Canada have been estimated at 20 million horse power The plants existing in 1919 utilised about 2,400,000 horse power (Ontario, over a million, Quebec, 900,000, British Columbia, 300,000)

Commerce

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and most of the colonies , the duties on direct imports from the United Kingdom and the colonies, &c , being reduced, but alcoholic liquors, liquid medicines, tobacco, and refined sugar from raw sugar produced elsewhere than in British colonies, are excluded from the reduction

The returns of values of imports and exports are those supplied in entries at the Customs, where imports must be entered for duty at their fair market value as for home consumption in the country of purchase Quantities are ascertained from invoices and by examination, wines are gauged and spirits tested The country whence imports are received is the country of purchase or whence shipment was made to Canada , the country of destination is that to which shipment is made Thus, Canadian wheat, purchased by New York dealers shipped to and entered in bond at New York, and thence exported to Great Britain, would appear only as exported from Canada to the United States The only Canadian port where transit trade is recorded is Montreal, such trade comprising chiefly goods received from the United States and transhipped to other countries by the St Lawrence route Transit trade is not included in the general trade, which comprises all other imports into and exports from Canada The term "special trade," in Canada, is applied to imports from Newfoundland which are exempt from duties leviable on similar goods from other countries

All export entries are delivered at the 'frontier port of exit, and the totals thereof are credited to the respective ports where the goods pass outward from Canada,

On April 9, 1912 a trade agreement providing for preference treatment between the two parties was signed between Canada and the West Indies, to last for 10 years and to come into operation on January 1, 1913 Canada brought the Act into force on June 2, 1913 A new agreement, providing for an extension of the preference, was signed at Ottawa on June 18, 1920, and up to November 1, 1920, had been ratified by the Windward Islands, the Bahamas, and British Honduras

In 1919 the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports on inland waters between Canada and the United States were Canadian, 25,908 of 13,808,533 tons, United States, 37,141 of 14,159,122 tons

Shipbuilding has been stimulated by the Imperial Munitions Board Down to the autumn of 1918 the Board had placed contracts for 90 ships (44 steel and 46 wooden), representing 350,000 tons of shipping The Canadian Government itself has become the owner of a mercantile fleet Under the Canada West Indies Trade Agreement, 1920 (see p 296 above), endeavours are to be made to establish regular steamship services between the parties to the Agreement

Internal Communications.

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk Up to 1919 126,913,207 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone In 1919 24,774 vessels, of 13,995,146 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 291,800 passengers and 9,995,266 tons of freight, chiefly grain, timber, iron ore, and coal. On January 11, 1909, was signed at Washington a treaty between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the use of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by H M the King on the recommendation of the Governor in Council of the Dominion of Canada, and three appointed by the President of the United States This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, has jurisdiction in all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters Precedence is given by the treaty to uses of the waters in the following order, viz , (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation, (3) for power and irrigation

CANADIAN PROVINCES

ALBERTA

Constitution and Government—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867, and its several amending Acts, also in the Alberta Act of 1905, passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province In the British North America Act, provision was made for the admission of the new provinces from time to time, including the then North West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion Upon the granting of autonomy to the North West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except those with respect to schools, lands, and the public domain, were made to apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant Governor, who is appointed by the federal government, but actually in the Executive Council or the Cabinet of the Legislature Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the name of the king All bills passed by the Legislative Assembly are annually transmitted to Ottawa to receive the approval of the federal government

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people Woman suffrage has been established in the province

There are 58 members in the Legislature, elected in 1917—34 Liberals, 18 Conservatives, 2 non partisan, 1 Labour, 1 United Farmers', and 2 soldiers' representatives elected by Alberta men and women overseas, in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces The Legislature includes 2 women members

Lieutenant Governor—His Honour R G Brett, B A , M D , LL D

The members of the Ministry are as follows —

Premier, President of the Council, and Minister of Railways and Telephones—Hon Charles Stewart

Attorney General—Hon J R Boyle

Provincial-Treasurer, and Minister of Municipalities and Public Health—Hon C R. Mitchell

Minister of Public Works—Hon A J McLean

Minister of Agriculture—Hon Duncan Marshall

Minister of Education—Hon Geo P Smith

Provincial Secretary—Hon J L Coté

Local Government—In 1912 the law respecting towns and rural municipalities was revised and brought up to date, in harmony with the conditions and development and growth prevailing in the province at that time Since then the respective acts have been changed to meet the necessities of progress, and the name Rural Municipality changed to Municipal District Municipal Districts comprise an area of 18 miles square, and are laid out on a uniform plan conformable as far as possible to the Dominion Land Survey system. Each district is a body corporate and governed by a council of six elected by a general vote of the electors The chief executive officer is called a Reeve All towns are incorporated under the Towns' Act of 1912 and amendments thereto, except those incorporated by special acts The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll Persons qualified to vote are males or females of the full age of 21 years who are assessed for 50 dollars or upwards, and sons and daughters of such persons, if 21 years of age and resident in the municipality The cities of Alberta carry on their municipal government by the authority of special charters granted by the Legislature

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 255,285 square miles, 252,925 sq miles being land area and 2,360 sq miles water area, The population in 1916 was 496,525, in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 73,022 In 1916 the rural population numbered 307,776 (52,399 in 1901), and the urban 188,749 (20,623 in 1901) Population of the principal cities, (1916) —Calgary, 56,514, Edmonton, 53,846, Lethbridge, 9,436, Medicine Hat, 9,272, Red Deer, 2,203, Wetaskiwin, 2,048

The vital statistics for 5 years are given as follows —

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births
1914	13,685	4,623	4,147	9 538
1916	13,331	4,280	4,058	9,273
1917	13,576	4,270	4 047	9,529
1918	14,890	4,040	7,924	6,966
1919	14,130	4,718	5 507	8 623

Instruction.—In the school system all grades, both primary and secondary, are included under the term of public school The same boards of trustees control the schools from the kindergarten to entrance to the university All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants The grants are distributed to encourage the highest grade of teachers, regularity of attendance of pupils and general proficiency based on the report of Government inspectors All schools are provided with a small library Three Normal schools, at Calgary Camrose, and Edmonton are established for the training of teachers The attendance during 1918–19 was 663 The University of Alberta, organised in 1907, had (1917–18) 615 students In 1919 there were 3,046 schools, 63 being consolidated schools, with 121,567 pupils

Justice and Crime —Judicial power of the province is vested in the Court of Superior Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, styled the Supreme Court of Alberta consisting of two divisions, the appellate and trial divisions respectively The law provides for five judges in the appellate division, and six in the trial division The judges are appointed by the Dominion Government, and hold office for life unless impeached by Parliament There are also minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction such as District and Police Magistrate's Courts The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to 600 dollars By the Small Debts Act of 1918 Justices have jurisdiction over matters up to 50 dollars

District courts have power to grant probate of wills and are courts of record for a trial without a jury of any person charged with a criminal offence provided such person consents. The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources —(1) Dominion subsidies, (2) School lands, and (3) Provincial sources With one or two exceptions, all the taxes except those on actual land values have been abolished throughout Alberta This is said to be the nearest approach to a genuine single tax of any province or state in America

(1) Estimates

The public debt of the province (1919) amounted to 34,635,200 dollars less sinking fund 980,623 dollars

Production and Industry—Alberta is pre eminently an agricultural province There are unquestionably valuable assets in her mines of coal and asphalt, but the future depends upon the growth of agriculture in the important branches of grain, livestock, and dairying The area of arable land is placed at 100,000,000 acres About 8 per cent of this is under cultivation at the present time

The acreage and yield of leading grains in Alberta for 1920 were as follows —Spring wheat, 4,036,000 acres and 86,748,000 bushels, Fall wheat, 38,000, acres and 713,000 bushels, oats, 3,090,000 acres and 115,091,000 bushels, barley, 481,000 acres and 12,739,000 bushels flax, 103,700 acres and 726,000 bushels, rye, 161,000 acres and 3,420,000 bushels, potatoes, 43,000 acres, 7,138,000 bushels, turnips, mangolds, &c, 12,300 acres, 3,219,000 bushels, hay and clover, 384,000 acres, 498,600 tons Total area under field crops, 8,390,000 acres, value, 204,291,500 dollars

Alberta was the greatest ranching country in America from 1880–1900, but the farmer has driven out the rancher and the days of the big herds are past In November, 1919, there were in Alberta 800,000 horses, 337,000 milk cows, 1,247,000 other horned cattle, 446,000 pigs, 364,000 sheep, 4,426,000 poultry The 1919 wool clip amounted to 2,115,000 lbs, valued at 1,225,000 dollars The value of dairy products in 1919 was 31,600,000 dollars Creamery butter produced 10,500,000 lb, cheese, 500,000 lb

The establishment of packing houses at Edmonton and Calgary has given a great stimulus to the hog industry Mixed farming combining dairying and hog raising has increased considerably Value of the milk production in 1919 is conservatively estimated at 31,625,000 dollars

A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal area at 16,588 square miles containing 90,000 million tons, 80,000 million being lignite The output in 1919 was 5,022,412 tons, of which domestic (lignite) coal was 2,395,200 tons, bituminous coal, 2,825,787 tons, anthracite coal, 85,616 tons, briquettes, 70,333 tons Natural gas is found at Medicine Hat and Bow Island in inexhaustible quantities, and a considerable quantity at Tofield, Vegreville, and Viking In 1918, 13,030,000 cubic feet were produced from 68 wells In 1918, 13,040 barrels of crude petroleum were produced Value of total mineral production in 1919, 20,815,049 dollars

Alberta has 11,881,000 acres of forest reserves The northern portion of the province contains belts of forests along the rivers and lakes, consisting of spruce, pine, cottonwood, and poplar serviceable for merchantable timber

The lakes of the province abound in several species of fish, but the industry is not developed to any great extent The number of men engaged in 1916–17 was 714, the number of boats 406, catch of fish was 31,789 cwts, value, 144,317 dollars

Manufacturing has just begun in the province Flour, oat meal, cement, and linseed oil mills, pork and beef packing houses, factories with outputs of products in clay, brass and iron, glass and wood, have been established and are in many instances already extending their plants

Statistics of manufactures for 1918 number of industrial establishments, 1,252, capital, 61,405,000 dollars, number of employees, 10,837, salaries and wages, 10,127,000 dollars, cost of materials, 54,640,000 dollars, value of products, 82,219,000 dollars

Commerce and Communications.—The principal exports of the province consist of grain, fat cattle, hogs, hams and bacon, fish, butter, and coal

Length of railway lines 4,650 miles at end of 1919 A provincial government system of telephones covers most of the province It has 25,290 miles long distance line, and 223 exchanges There are 38 privately owned party lines

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Constitution and Government—Previous to 1858 British Columbia, then known as New Caledonia, formed a portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession, but in that year it was constituted a Crown Colony, owing to the large immigration consequent on the discovery of gold in 1856 Vancouver Island was leased to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1843, and was made a Crown Colony in 1849, being the first British colony to be established in North West America In 1866 the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island were united, and on July 20th, 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by 5 members in the Senate, and 13 in the House of Commons of Canada

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and Legislative Assembly of 47 members on the system of executive administration known as a "responsible government" The Assembly is elected for four years, every adult, male or female (British subjects), having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote

Lieutenant-Governor—W C Nichol

The members of the Ministry (appointed March, 1918) are as follows —

Premier and Minister of Railways and President of the Council—Hon John Oliver.

Minister of Mines —Hon. Wm Sloan
Minister of Agriculture —Hon E D Barrow
Minister of Education and Provincial Secretary —Hon J D Maclean, M D, C M
Minister of Public Works —Hon J H King, M D, C M
Attorney General and Minister of Labour —Hon J W de B Farris, K C
Minister of Finance —Hon John Hart
Minister of Lands —Hon T D Pattullo

An Act creating a Department of Industry was passed in 1919 This Department is at present under the Minister of Mines

Area and Population —British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, has an area, according to the census of 1911, of 355,855 square miles, of which 353,416 square miles are land area, and 2,439 square miles water area, but exclusive of territorial seas The area in 1919 is estimated at 395,610 square miles It is a great irregular quadrangle about 700 miles from north to south, with an average width of about 400 miles, lying between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north It is bounded on the south by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and the States of Washington, Idaho and Montana, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Southern Alaska, on the north by Yukon and Mackenzie Territories, and on the east by the Province of Alberta From the 49th degree north to the 54th degree the eastern boundary follows the axis of the Rocky Mountains, and thence north along the 120th meridian

The subdivisions of the Province, with the number of square miles in each, are as follows Kootenays, east and west, 23,500 square miles, Yale, 24,300, Lillooet, 16,100, Vancouver and Westminster, 7,600, Cariboo, 300,500, Comox (mainland), 7,100, and Vancouver Island, 16,400

The last census (1911) places the population at 392,480, in 1901 the population was 178,657 In 1920 it was estimated at approximately 650,000

Some of the principal cities and towns are Victoria (the capital), population, (1919), 39,500, Vancouver, 115,000 New Westminster, 17,000, Nanaimo, 7,800, North Vancouver, 8,100, Nelson, 5,500, Prince Rupert, 4,000

The movement of the population for five years was as follows —

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births
1914	10,418	4,296	3,974	6,444
1915	10,516	3,993	3,832	6 684
1916	9,841	3,169	3,887	5 954
1917	9,450	2,861	3,896	5,554

The balance sheet of the Province showed that on March 31, 1919, the liabilities totalled 52,288,067 dollars, assets, 59,642,124 dollars, balance of assets over liabilities, 7,354,057 dollars

Production and Industry—British Columbia produced in 1919 minerals to the value of 32,296,313 dollars, lumber to the value of 70,235,094 dollars, fish to the value of 15,216,397 dollars, agricultural produce valued at 65,384,556 dollars, and manufactures, 1919, of the value of 68,500,000 dollars (estimated) The acreage and production of certain crops in 1920 were wheat, 46,000 acres, 874,000 bushels, oats, 48,000 acres, 1,163,000 bushels, barley, 9,600 acres, 364,000 bushels, potatoes, 18,000 acres, 2,934,000 bushels, turnips, &c, 7,400 acres, 3,220,000 bushels, hay and clover, 127,000 acres, 254,000 tons Total area under field crops, 349,000 acres, value, 27,017,500 dollars Number of live stock in 1919 milch cows, 52 000, other cattle, 194,000, sheep, 45,000, pigs, 45,000, horses, 44,000, poultry, 1,181,000

British Columbia's coal measures are estimated to contain 75 billion tons, mainly bituminous, of which 23,000 millions are in the seams known and measured, it possesses the greatest compact area of merchantable timber in North America, the importance of the fisheries, apart from salmon fishing, is only beginning to be realised, there are widely distributed deposits of magnetite and hematite iron, which are as yet undeveloped, the area of possible farmland has been estimated at 50,000,000 acres, but not much more than one tenth of this area has yet been occupied, the Province has millions of acres of pulpwood as yet unexploited, and much of the territory is unexplored and its potential value unknown

More than half the standing timber in Canada is to be found in British Columbia, and the average rate of forest growth is double that in the remainder of the Dominion Recent investigators place the area of British Columbia's timber land at over 100,000,000 acres, containing, roughly, 400,000 million feet of merchantable timber The most important species are Douglas fir, western red cedar, silver spruce, western soft pine, western hemlock, Engelmann spruce, cottonwood, and balsam, It is estimated that there are about 50,000,000,000 feet board measure under the control of the Dominion in the railway belt. Value of lumber produced in 1919, 70,235,094, dollars (including 12,854,257 dollars value for pulp)

British Columbia is the second Province of the Dominion in the value of its mineral production The mineral output in 1918 and 1919 was as follows —

Minerals		1918		1919
		Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value
			Dollars		Dollars
Gold placer	ounces	16,000	320,000	14,325	286,500

Total of above		—	41,782 474	—	33,296,313

The total value of minerals produced in British Columbia down to the end of 1919 is estimated at 670,649,894 dollars (mainly coal and coke, 199,123,323 dollars, copper, 153,680,965 dollars, gold, lode, 100,272,431 dollars, gold, placer, 75,722,603 dollars, silver, 50,432,304 dollars, lead, 43,821,106 dollars)

Statistics of manufactures for 1918 Industrial establishments, 1,786; capital, 244,697,000 dollars, employees, 48,779, wages and salaries, 51,051,000 dollars, cost of materials, 103,936,000 dollars, value of products, 207,678,000 dollars

The total available water power of the Province has been estimated at over four million H P

Commerce —The trade of the Province is developing rapidly, in 1919 imports amounted to 63,694,691 dollars, and the exports to 77,247 666 dollars Exports consist of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, copper and coal), sea products (chiefly salmon, halibut, herrings, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, etc A large inter provincial trade is rapidly developing, the fruit grown in British Columbia being largely shipped to the Prairie Provinces, where it finds a good market

Communications and Shipping —The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Pacific are at present the principal railways in the Province The C P R has three main lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Kettle Valley Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on the inland lakes, besides a large fleet of ocean going and coasting steamers The railway mileage of the Province in 1917 was 3,885 Telephone mileage, 152,069

Steps are being taken to establish direct shipping communication with Canadian Atlantic ports, via the Panama Canal

In the fiscal year of 1918–19, 7,447 sea going vessels entered inward, with a tonnage of 4,388,924; 7,551 sea going vessels cleared outwards, with a tonnage of 4,525,595, and 61,767 coastwise vessels entered and cleared, with a tonnage of 21,383,662

Shipbuilding, 1918, 145,000 tons, value 25,000,000 dollars

Fishing is the principal occupation of the population, the value of the fishing products being about two millions sterling annually

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1904, France renounced her exclusive fishing rights under the treaty of Utrecht, but retained the right to fish in territorial waters from St John's Cape northwards to Cape Ray for all sorts of fish, including bait and crustacea An agreement for the submission of the Newfoundland fisheries disputes to The Hague was concluded at Washington, January 27, 1909 The award was published in September, 1910, and was satisfactory to British claims Among other things, it secured the right of Great Britain to make regulations without the consent of the United States, subject to any limitations imposed by treaty It also confirmed Great Britain's contention that the whole extent of a bay from headland to headland is comprised within territorial waters

There were engaged in the bank cod fishery during 1919, 732 men, and 41 Newfoundland sailing vessels, aggregating 2,770 net tons, a decrease on 1918 of 208 men and 15 vessels of 1,134 tons The catch in 1919 totalled 94,770 quintals of dry fish, valued at 1,137,240 dollars, as compared with 97,300 quintals, valued at 1,362,200 dollars, for the previous year The output of the shore cod fishery is estimated at 1,347,070 quintals of dry fish, valued at 19,465,161 dollars There were 14,870 small sailing vessels, boats (including motor boats), &c, utilised, and 37,550 men employed in this fishery In 1919, the exports of codfish, including the Labrador fishery, amounted to 1,681,770 quintals The catch of lobsters was 1,300,000 in 1915, 1,683,600 in 1916, 1,326,000 in 1917, 966,000 in 1918, and 670,000 in 1919

In 1918, two vessels were engaged in the whale fishery, the total catch was 101 whales, giving 64,913 gallons of oil During 1920, 38 985 seals were caught, valued at 159,948 dollars, 9 vessels and 1,583 men were engaged in the seal fishery In 1919 the catch was 81,293 seals

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1919 904 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3 ft 6 in, and 47 miles of private line By acts of the Newfoundland Legislature in 1910 an agreement was made by the Government for the construction and maintenance of five branch lines of railway running to Bonavista, Heart's Content, and Grate's Cove, Trepassey, Fortune Bay, and Bonne Bay The Government agreed to pay the contractors 15,000 dollars a mile for construction and to give 4,000 acres of land per mile constructed for operation, to do which it raised by loan 3,393,200 dollars The line to Bonavista was completed in 1911, the line to Trepassey in 1912, and the lines to Heart's Content and Grate's Cove in 1914 These lines open up various fertile sections of the island Communication between various points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 13 first-class steamers, each of which connects with some central point on the railway There were in 1919, 391 post and telegraph offices. AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA.

The British Territories in Australasia comprise the self governing States and Territories which now form the Commonwealth of Australia, the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Norfolk Island, the self-governing Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji The British possessions in Oceania include the Solomon and Tonga Islands, and many other groups of islands and islets scattered over the Pacific

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed at Sydney January 1, 1901 After five of these colonies had, by legislative enactments, approved by the direct vote of the electors, declared their desire for a Federal Union, the British Parliament, on July 9, 1900, passed the Act to constitute the Commonwealth This Act provided for the inclusion of Western Australia in the Federation if that colony so desired, and in the following month the colonial legislation necessary for this end was passed

On January 1, 1911, the Northern Territory was transferred by South Australia to the Commonwealth, and on the same date a portion of New South Wales, consisting of 912 square miles, was vested in the Common wealth, for the purpose of forming the Federal Territory containing the seat of the Commonwealth Government In 1917 this area was increased to 940 square miles

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King, represented by a Governor General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives The Senate consists of Senators (six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years In general, the Senate will be renewed to the extent of one half every three years, but in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected The House of Representatives consists, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to the respective numbers of their people as shown by the latest statistics of the Commonwealth, but not less than five for any original State As a result of the Census enumeration of 1911, New South Wales has 27 members, Victoria 21, Queensland 10, South Australia 7, Western Australia 5, and Tasmania 5 Every House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved Electoral qualifications for both Chambers of the first Federal Parliament were those for the more numerous House of the Parliament of the State in which the elector was competent to vote Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural born subject of the King, or have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth He or she must be of full age, and must possess electoral qualification Since the first Parliament of the Commonwealth was instituted, an Electoral Act has unified the franchise for both Chambers, on the basis of universal adult (male and female) suffrage

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament are extensive, embracing commerce, shipping, &c , finance, defence, postal, telegraph, and like services, census and statistics, conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State Authority is given for the Commonwealth to assume jurisdiction in regard to railways, light-houses, &c , marriage and divorce . emigration and immigration , currency and banking , weights and measures The several State Parliaments retain legislative authority in all matters which are not transferred to the Federal Parliament, which is thus a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories With respect to money bills, the House of Representatives has special powers, and provision is made for cases of disagreement between the two Houses

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercised by the Governor-General, who is assisted by an Executive Council of responsible Ministers of State These Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament , they are paid salaries not exceeding, in all, 15,300*l* a year The Executive Government of the Commonwealth is constituted as follows —

Governor General —Lord Forster of Lepe, P C , G C M G , Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies (salary, £10,000)

Prime Minister and Attorney General —Right Hon W M Hughes, P C , K C

Assistant Treasurer —Hon Arthur Stanislaus Rodgers

High Commissioner for Commonwealth in London —The Right Hon Andrew Fisher, P C (appointed October 26, 1915), Australia House, Strand

Commissioner for Commonwealth in America —Mark Sheldon, 61, Broadway, New York

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judicature, for an inter State Commission on Trade and Commerce, for the transfer of State officials, State property, and State debts to the Commonwealth, and for alteration of the Constitution A High Court (consisting of 7 judges) has been established, with original as well as appellate jurisdiction The Interstate Commission has also been constituted The selection of the Yass Canberra site for the Federal Capital was voted in the Senate and House of Representatives, and in 1910, the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales an area of approximately 912 square miles An area of 28 square miles at Jervis Bay was also acquired for purposes of a Naval College, and the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto At present the Federal Government has its seat at Melbourne.

The aggregate public debt of the several Australian States on June 30, 1919, was 382 million pounds (excluding temporary Treasury bills, &c.)

The Commonwealth public debt on June 30th, 1920, was 381,415,317*l*, including 207,249,440*l* owing in respect of internal war loans

The total Australian war expenditure for the six years ending June 30, 1920, was 381,149,019*l*, of which 70,716,184*l* is charged against revenue, and 310,432,835*l* against loans War expenditure for 1920–21 is estimated at 36,841,931*l* out of revenue, and 25,400,000*l* out of War Loan

Invalid and Old Age Pensions.

The Invalid and Old Age Pension Acts provide for the payment of invalid and old age pensions at such rates as the Commissioner deciding the question deems sufficient, but so that the amount shall not exceed 32*l* 10*s* a year, nor the pensioner's whole income (including the pension) exceed 58*l* 10*s* a year (prior to 1916, the amounts were 26*l* and 52*l* respectively) Old age pensions are granted upon application to persons who are at least 65 years of age and have lived in Australia or Australian territory at least 20 years Invalid pensions are granted to persons who have lived at least 5 years in Australia, have there become incapacitated, and have no other sufficient means of support On October 9, 1912, a Maternity Bill was passed providing for the payment of a bonus up to a maximum amount of 5*l* in respect of every child born in Australia, of white parentage The disbursements for old age and invalid pensions (including payments to Asylums) were 3,798,037*l* in 1917–18, 3,936,015*l* in 1918–19, and 4,546,879*l* in 1919–20 The maternity allowance for 1917–18, 634,430*l*, for 1918–19, 620,080*l*, and for 1919–20, 625,865*l* The numbers of pensioners in the Commonwealth on March 31, 1920, were —Old age, 98,364, invalid, 34,333, total, 132,697 War pensioners at June 30, 1919, numbered 181,529

Defence.

Army

The principle of the defence policy of Australia is the universal compulsory training of a Citizen Army A statement made by the Minister of Defence in the Senate on September 17, 1920, indicates some proposed modification of the defence organization, and of the scheme of training, but the principle of universal training will be adhered to Permanent troops will be maintained only in such numbers as are necessary to administer and instruct the Citizen Forces The army to be raised will be composed of 2 light horse divisions, 4 complete divisions, 3 mixed brigades, which in certain circumstances will be capable of union with a fifth division These divisions will be supplemented by the proportion of 'extra divisional units,' which war has shown to be necessary and of which the Commonwealth is, at the time, capable The Divisional Commander will have complete responsibility for the preparation for war of the forces under his command An area will be allotted to him and a personnel provided as the fixed machinery of the unit The Military Board, as the means of control and administration will be retained, but it has been so reconstituted as to impose upon it a full measure of responsibility The Council of Defence will be restored to deal with policy and insure its continuity, and to co ordinate the requirements of the sea, air, and land The trained who served in the Australian Imperial Force is exempted from further training, but members of that Force will be invited to join the new forces, in their old units, and become the foundation upon which the scheme will be built Facilities will be given to these men to fill positions in the commissioned and non commissioned ranks

The training of the junior cadets will be mainly of a physical and recreational nature, aiming at the physical development of the youth The youth of 17 or 18 years of age will be given an advanced degree of physical and recreational training, and also be prepared for graduation to the Citizen Force Under the proposed scheme the period of training in the Citizen Forces will be reduced from 7 years to 4 years, though the number of days' training will be increased from 112 to 118 In the first year with the Citizen Forces the trainee is required to give 10 weeks, and in the following three years 16 days annually At the end of that period, i e, in his twenty-second year, he will be freed from training, but for a further period of four years he will be required to register

An arsenal will be established which it is hoped will be able to supply peace needs The arsenal will be more in the form of a munition supply branch aiming at insuring the supply of war needs through Australian trade rather than that Government owned factories shall be designed on a scale necessary for the purpose. Properly situated mobilization stores are being provided.

Rifle Clubs —A conference of senior officers of the Australian Military Forces, recently assembled to advise the Government on the future defence policy, recommended that the maintenance of rifle clubs as a military reserve is no longer necessary The Government, however, have decided to subsidize rifle clubs to the extent of 50,000*l* per annum, and in addition to supply ammunition to the value of 30,000*l* The grant will be administered by the Civil Branch of the Defence Department, and the conditions under which the money will be spent and the details of future administration will be settled in consultation with the Council of Rifle Associations and Clubs

The military forces of the Commonwealth on June 30, 1919, were :—

NAVY

Sydney is a first class naval station, and the headquarters of the British fleet in Australasia The Naval Agreement Act of 1903 (for 10 years) provided that the Naval Force on the Australian Station should consist of not less than one armoured cruiser, first class, two second class cruisers, four third class cruisers, four sloops, and of a Royal Naval Reserve of 25 officers and 700 sea men and stokers The base of this force should be the ports of Australia and New Zealand, and their sphere of operations the waters of the Australia, China, and East India Stations They were officered by officers of the Royal Navy and Royal Naval Reserve Eight nominations for naval cadetships were to be given annually to the Commonwealth, and two to New Zealand An annual charge of 200,000*l* was to be paid to the Imperial Government by the Commonwealth, and 40,000*l*. by New Zealand The Navy is constituted under the agreement of 1911, in conformity with the plan formulated by Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson

On December 31, 1919, the naval forces of the Commonwealth were as follows —Permanent naval forces (sea going), 4,593 , cadet midshipmen under training, 117 , boys under training, 214 , Royal Australian Naval Brigade, 5,732 , R N Reserve (sea going), 41 , Total, 10,697 The Imperial Government having presented to the Commonwealth 16 vessels, destroyers, submarines, and sloops, an addition to the permanent force became necessary The total was raised to 6,828, but it is hoped to reduce the figure to 4,651 by June, 1921 The Australia and Melbourne have nucleus crews, but 6 destroyers, 6 submarines, 2 cruisers, and two sloops are in commission The naval estimates for 1920-21 were 3,265,000*l*

The policy of the Commonwealth is to make Australia self defending Having accepted the position that a fuller Imperial partnership is necessary for the future security of the Empire, and that a definite place in the Pacific has been allotted to Australia, the Government agreed in 1911 to furnish an Australian Fleet Unit, upon which King George conferred the title of 'Royal Australian Navy The ships and vessels of the Royal Australian Navy are named in the British lists They are the battle cruiser, Australia, and the light cruisers, Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, and Encounter In addition are the following —the flotilla leader Anzac (1917), 1,660 tons, 34 knots, 4 4in guns , 'river class destroyers, Huon, Parramatta, Swan, Torrens, Warrego, and Yarra (1910-13), 700 tons, 27 knots ; 'S' class, Stalwart, Success, Swordsman, Tasmania, Tattoo, 1918-19), 1,250 tons, 36 knots; submarines, J1 to J7 (1916 17), surface displacement, 1,210

tons, 19 knots, submerged displacement, 182 tons, 9½ knots The Australian Navy also includes two sloops and a few old vessels of no value

Air Forces

It is proposed to establish a combined Naval and Military Air Corps, to be organized under a Board composed of flying, equipment, and finance officers This organization will facilitate an all-round training of personnel in naval and military flying, and focus the results of the experience to be gained in the development of a combined service For the present it is proposed to establish the following units —Headquarters, Australian Air Corps (including representation in London), three station headquarters, with land, buildings, store and repair facilities, one central flying school, one aircraft depôt, one squadron of flying boats, one squadron of ships' sea planes, one squadron torpedo carriers, two fighting squadrons, and two corps reconnaissance squadrons There will be both permanent and citizen force units The permanent units will be required for service with the fleet, for squadrons so isolated that citizen personnel cannot be utilized, and for training squadrons The Minister will be assisted by a representative War Council, which will include officers of the Navy, Army, and Air Board, and an independent controller of civil aviation A sum of 100,000*l* has also been placed on the estimates for 1920 21 for the purposes of civil aviation It is proposed to use the permanent section of the military air force largely in surveying and other necessary work, and in arranging routes in Australia which will eventually be used for the purposes of commercial aviation

Production

Up to the year 1918, 858,600,345 acres, representing 45 10 per cent of the total area of the Australian Commonwealth, were either unoccupied or occupied by the Crown, only 5 63 per cent had been actually alienated (107,093,317 acres), 2 92 per cent (55,672,578 acres) was in course of alienation, and 46 35 per cent (882,265,600 acres) was held under the various forms of leases and licenses

The area under crops (distinguishing the principal crops) in the Commonwealth, and the yield in 1918–19, were as follows —

Crops	Total acreage	Total yield	Yield per acre

[1] Excluding ships stores [2] Calendar year

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem The value of goods subject to duty is taken to be the fair market value in the principal markets of the country whence the same were exported, with an addition of 10 per cent to such market value

The Customs Tariff Act of 1920 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia as against the goods of other countries, and for reciprocal tariff agreements with other countries. It also affords a larger measure of protection to Australian industries than previous tariffs

The value of goods exported is the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptation of the term

Local Government.

Under the Local Government Act of 1906, the system of Local Government was extended to the whole of the State, with the exception of the Western Land Division. Of the 190 boroughs and municipal districts which existed under previous Acts, 185 still remain under the title of municipalities, and in addition thereto, 136 new corporate bodies have been established, which are called shires.

The Local Government Act of 1919 repealed former Acts, but existing regulations remain in force until amended or cancelled Provision is made for Government endowments to shires of a minimum of 150,000*l* annually, payable on general rates In addition to the ordinary powers exercised, the municipal and shire councils are authorised to borrow up to 20 per cent of the unimproved value in municipalities, such loans to be guaranteed by the Government General rates are charged on the unimproved value of the land, and not on the annual rental Special local and loan rates may be imposed on the improved or unimproved value at the option of the Council The rateable value of coal mines is fixed at 50 per cent of the gross value of the average annual output for the preceding three years, and of other mining properties at 40 per cent for the same period Hospitals, benevolent institutions, public libraries, parks, churches, and unoccupied Crown lands are exempt from taxation Municipalities which are not entitled to a statutory endowment under former Acts may, if in necessitous circumstances, receive endowments Owners and occupiers of rateable property of annual value not less than 5*l*, whether male or female, unless not naturalised, in any municipality or shire, and paying rates, are entitled to vote for the election of aldermen or councillors, and are qualified for nomination for a civil office

Area and Population.

The area of New South Wales, inclusive of Lord Howe Island and the Federal Capital Territory, is estimated at 310,372 square miles The State is divided into various districts for departmental purposes, the most important division being that into 141 counties

The population (including aborigines) at five consecutive censuses was —

I Agriculture.

In 1917-18 there were 4,462,916 acres under crops (including 2,215 double cropped) The cultivated land is principally to be found in small holdings of less than 500 acres The State is divided into three divisions—the Eastern, Central, and Western The Districts in the Eastern and Central Divisions are, for the purpose of local administration, grouped into 13 Land Board Districts, which are sub-divided into Land Districts The Western Division is under the control of the Western Land Board—consisting of three Commissioners—and the head offices of the Lands Department and Western Land Board offices are in Sydney In the Eastern and Central Divisions there are a number of tenures under which land may be acquired. In the Western Division the land is leased by the State to pastoral tenants, mainly for grazing, but small areas in or near townships are leased for special purposes.

The total land alienated or in process of alienation on June 30, 1919, was 62,077,258 acres, exclusive of Federal Capital Territory The total land occupied under leases of various kinds was 113,476,973 acres.

Industrial Arbitration and Conciliation.

The Industrial laws of New South Wales provide for the regulation of the conditions of industries by means of industrial conciliation and arbitration, and for the repression of strikes and lock outs Provision has been made for the registration of industrial unions of employers and of employees, for the constitution of a Court of Industrial Arbitration and subsidiary Tribunals—such as Wages or Industrial Boards—to decide disputes and to determine rates of wages and other industrial matters, and for the appointment of a Board of Trade, under the presidency of a Judge of the Court, to exercise extensive powers regarding industrial conditions

An Industrial Board, consisting of a chairman and two or four other members, representing equally the employers and employees, may be constituted for any industry or group of industries on the recommendation of the Industrial Arbitration Court, also special boards to determine questions of demarcation A Board may make an award fixing the lowest rates of wages, up to a maximum of £10 per week, the times and hours of work, the rates of payment for overtime, and the proportionate number of apprentices, and granting preference of employment to unionists, and determining any other industrial matter

The Court or a board may deal with wages and hours of employment, but no award may be made for wages lower than the living wage declared by the Board of Trade Employees in rural industries are entitled to the living wage as determined after separate inquiry Aged, infirm or slow workers may obtain permits to work for less than the minimum wage

The Industrial Boards have been arranged upon the basis of craft or calling, those relating to allied industries being grouped under one chairman.

At June 30, 1919, there were 238 Boards, but since 1916 their work has been gradually curtailed, except in special cases, and awards are now made by the Court in order to prevent delay in hearing and in determining, and to prevent the overlapping of awards

The awards are binding on all persons in the industry and within the locality to which they relate for a period not exceeding three years Application for variation may be made whenever a living wage declaration has been made by the Board of Trade Appeal from an award of a Board lies to the Court

The Board of Trade, with powers of a Royal Commission, is composed of a President (who is Judge of the Court), a Deputy President, four Commissioners, and four additional Commissioners to represent rural industries After full inquiry as to the cost of living, the Board declares annually the rates of living wages for adult employees of each sex, the administration of all matters relating to apprenticeship, the welfare of juvenile labour, &c , and for the improvement of industrial relationship between employers and workers

LIVING WAGE —The Board of Trade in October, 1919, fixed the living wage in the metropolitan area at 3*l* 17*s* per week for adult male employees, and in October, 1920, at 4*l* 5*s* per week In the Newcastle district the living wage is 3*l* 16*s* 6*d* , in the South Coast area 3*l* 17*s* 6*d* , and in the Central Tablelands area 3*l* 18*s* per week For adult female employees in the metropolitan area the wage has been fixed at 1*l* 19*s* per week

Local Government

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities The former, called cities, towns, and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than nine square miles, and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 300*l* upon a rate of one shilling in the £ The latter, called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding a revenue of 1,500*l* on a rate of one shilling in the £ In 1919 there were 52 urban and 138 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits Every ratepayer has one or more votes, according to the amount of his rates

Area and Population.

The State has an area of 87,884 square miles, or 56,245,760 acres, about $\frac{1}{25}$ part of the whole area of Australia The State is divided into 37 counties, varying in area from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population, as shown by census returns, is exhibited in the following table —

Date of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of Increase per cent.
March 29, 1857 .	264,334	146,432	410,766	—
April 7, 1861 . .	328,651	211,671	540,322	7 88

[1] Extracted from gold at Melbourne Mint

The total quantity of gold raised from 1851 to 1919 is estimated at 70,602,955 oz (fine), of an aggregate value of 299,901,566*l*. Gold output 1919, 135,427 oz., value 575,260*l*. The estimated number of miners at work on the gold fields in 1919 was 3,065. About 1,782 persons were employed in coal mining. Total mineral production, 1919, 1,265,000*l*., compared with 1,342,322*l* in 1918.

III Manufactures

The total number of manufactories, works, &c., in 1918–19, was 5,720, of which 1,657 used steam or gas engines, the aggregate horse power used was 153,408, the number of hands employed was 122,349, and the lands, buildings, machinery, and plant were valued at 27,318,735*l*. The value of materials used was 52,098,737*l*., and of articles produced or work done, 80,195,677*l*. The wages paid (excluding working proprietors) amounted to 14,080,403*l*. The manufactures are almost entirely for home consumption.

Commerce and Communications.

The commerce of Victoria, exclusive of inter-State trade, is included in the statement of the commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the imports and exports of Victoria, excluding inter State trade, in six years, was —

Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)	Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)
	£	£		£	£

Constitution and Government.

In 1791 Vancouver, in the Discovery, took formal possession of the country about King George Sound In 1826 the Government of New South Wales sent 20 convicts and a detachment of soldiers to King George Sound and formed a settlement then called Fredericks Town In 1827 Captain James (afterwards Sir James) Stirling surveyed the coast from King George Sound to the Swan River, and in May, 1829, Captain Fremantle (afterwards Sir Charles Fremantle, G C B) took possession of the territory In June, 1829, Captain Stirling founded the Swan River Settlement, now the Commonwealth State of Western Australia, and the towns of Perth and Fremantle and was appointed Lieutenant Governor Western Australia thus became a British settlement in 1829

Large grants of land were made to the early settlers, and agricultural and pastoral occupations were pursued by a small population with varying success, until, in 1850, the State was in a languishing condition, and the inhabitants' petition that it might be made a penal settlement was acceded to Between 1850 and 1868, when transportation ceased, 9,718 convicts were sent out The Imperial convict establishment was transferred to the Colonial Government on March 31, 1886

In 1870 partially representative government was instituted, and in 1890 the administration was vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly The Legislative Council was, in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it was provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 60,000, it should be elective In 1893 this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated July 18, of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict No 14) amending the constitution

By the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for six years Members must be 30 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural born British subjects or naturalized for 5 years and resident in the State for 5 years Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease or licence from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17 The Legislative Assembly consists of 50 members, each representing one electorate, and elected for 3 years Members must be 21 years of age, have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, and be either natural born subjects of the Crown or naturalized for 5 years Electors must be 21 years of age, natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months and be on the roll, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims Members of and electors for both Houses may be of either sex No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds a sufficient qualification Members of the Legislature are paid 400*l* a year, and travel free on all Government railways The entire management and control of the waste lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State By the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1920, it has been enacted that a woman shall not be disqualified by sex or marriage for being elected to or sitting and voting as a member of the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly

Area and Population.

As defined by Royal Commission, Western Australia includes all that portion of the continent situated to the westward of 129° E longitude, together with the adjacent islands The greatest length of this territory from Cape Londonderry in the north to Peak Head (south of King George Sound) in the south is 1,480 miles, and its breadth from Steep Point near Dirk Hartogs Island, on the west to the 129th meridian, on the east, about 1,000 miles According to the latest computations, the total estimated area of the State is 975,920 English square miles, or, 624,588,800 acres It is divided into 31 magisterial districts

Western Australia was first settled in 1829, and for many years the population was small

The enumerated population in the various census years was as follows —

Years	Males	Females	Total
1848	2,818	1,804	4,622
1854	7,779	3,964	11,743
1859	9,522	5,315	14,837
1870	15,375	9,410	24,785
1881	17,062	12,646	29,708
1891	29,807	19,975	49,782
1901	112,875	71,249	184,124

There were enumerated in 1911, 6,369 pure and 1,475 half caste aborigines (the former not included in the table) in the settled districts and virtually in the employment of the settlers The number of wild natives is not known, but the total number of aborigines has been roughly estimated at about 30,000

As in all countries where the white man has settled among races that cannot in a large measure adapt themselves to his forms of civilisation, the natives, in so far as they existed in the present centres of settlement, are fast dying out, a natural consequence of the loss of their original hunting grounds They are of quick intelligence, but disinclined for the civilised modes of life The Government has taken the best measures available for their protection

Of the total population in 1911, 104,208 were returned as born in Western Australia The number of married persons was 96,482 (50,702 males and 45,780 females), widowers, 4,180, widows, 5,785, divorced, 187 males and 103 females, unmarried, 106,060 males and 68,807 females The number of males under 21 was 58,838, and of females 56,203 Of the males over 21, 47,323 had never been married, and of the females over 21, 13,609 The estimated population on September 30, 1914 (excluding full blooded aboriginals) was males, 182,682, females, 143,522, total, 326,204, on January 31, 1917, the figures were males, 158,598, females, 148,608, total, 307,206 The decrease since 1914 was due to enlistments for the war The total enlistments during the war numbered 34,353, of whom 20,768 had returned on September 30, 1919 The population on September 30, 1920, was estimated to be males, 179,393, females, 156,665, total, 336,058

Perth, the capital, at the time of the 1911 census, had a population, within the 10 mile radius area of the Metropolitan district, of 106,792 The estimate as on December 31, 1919, was 142,000 This, however, includes the chief port of the State, Fremantle, with its suburbs, the population of which, at the census, was 20,847 The other principal municipalities, with census population of 1911, are —

Towns	1911	Towns	1911
Kalgoorlie	8,781	Bunbury	3,763
Boulder	10,824	Geraldton	3,478
Albany	3,586	Northam	3,361

The movement of population for the State in 5 years is given as follows —

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Immigrants	Emigrants
1914	2,660	9,204	3,043	27,270	31,097
1916	2,365	8,563	3,085	19,322	34,010
1917	1,621	7,882	2,769	17,822	22,318
1918	1,612	7,106	2,833	24,262	24,511
1919	2,194	6,937	3,590	32,561	17,695

In 1914 there were 388, in 1916, 321, in 1917, 327, in 1918, 287, and in 1919, 292 illegitimate births

Religion.

The religious division of the population was as follows at the census of 1911 —Church of England, 109,435; Methodists, 34,348; Presbyterians,

26,678, Congregationalists, 6,203; Baptists, 4,801, other Protestants, 18,189, Roman Catholics, 56,616, Catholics (Greek and undefined), 5,754, other Christians, 1,736, Jews, 1,790, Mahometans, 1,517, Buddhists, 1,795, other non Christians, 748, indefinite, 1,555, no religion, 1,260, not stated, 9,689

Instruction

Of the total white population of 15 years and upwards in 1911, 1 07 per cent were stated to be unable to read Education is compulsory and free

The following table shows the average cost per head and attendance in Government schools and in private schools in three years —

Production and Industry.

Large portions of the State, for some hundreds of miles inland, are hilly, and even mountainous, although the altitude, so far as ascertained, rises nowhere above that of Mount Bruce (4,024 ft) in the North West Division, or the Stirling Range (3,640 ft) in the South West The greater part of the far interior may be described as a great tableland, with an altitude of from one to two thousand feet above sea level, the surface of which consists over large areas of sand dunes, varied by wide stretches of clayey soils Long, straggling rivers, broken during the summer into a series of pools, cross the country as far inland as the hills extend, widening in many cases nearer the coast into large sea estuaries The climate is one of the most temperate in the world, especially in the South Western portion, where excessive cold is never, and excessive heat very rarely known. The summer heat, which is mostly dry, with hardly any rainfall, is during the greater part of the hot season relieved by cool sea breezes in the afternoon The winters are rainy, but with occasional dry spells of perfect weather

Of the area of Western Australia, which is equal to more than half that of European Russia probably about three fourths is suitable for pastoral purposes Some 60,000 square miles, at least, are equally fitted for agricultural purposes, more especially for the production of wheat, wine, and fruit, considerable areas being already under cultivation The forests are among the most extensive within the Commonwealth, and contain some of the very finest hardwoods in the world, including jarrah (Eucalyptus marginata) and karri (Eucalyptus diversicolor) Sandalwood (Santalum cygnorum) is also found The forests are rich in gums and resins, and barks containing tannin Gold, coal, and other minerals in abundance are found in many parts

In Western Australia, in 1911, there were 53,587 persons engaged in various forms of primary production Of these, 21,566 were directly engaged in agriculture, 4,200 in pastoral pursuits 5,868 in forestry, and 18,199 in mining and quarrying There were, on December 31, 1919, a total of 922 industrial establishments in the State, employing either machinery or at least four hands The total number of persons employed by them was 16,358, as against 18,799 in 1914, the highest number previously reached The combined output of these establishments in 1919 was computed at 10,286,732*l*. The total estimated value of Western Australian production during 1919 was 22,396,694*l*., distributed as follows -agricultural, 9,066,281*l*., pastoral, 4,614,546*l*., dairy, poultry, and bee farming, 843,719*l*., forestry and fisheries, 1,363,972*l*., mining, 3,561,204*l*., manufacturing, 2,946,972*l* (value added to the raw material by the production of the industrial establishments)

Up to June 30, 1920, of the entire acreage of the State, 8,763,051 acres had been alienated, on that date 14,259,769 acres were in process of alienation, the area alienated and in process of alienation thus amounting to 23,022,820 acres At the same date there were in force leases comprising an area of 257,610,300 acres, of which 253,436,312 acres were pastoral, and 1,622,068 acres were timber, while 61,535 acres were under mining leases, and 36,181 acres were Miners' Homestead leases The area under crop in 1917 was 2,004,944 acres, in 1918, 1,679,772, in 1919, 1,605,088 acres, and in 1920, 1,628,746 acres The chief crops for two recent years were as follows —

The area under wheat in 1920-21 is forecasted at 1,459,268 acres (for grain and hay)

The principal areas occupied by the more important trees of Western Australia, and the quantity cut in two years, according to the official Industrial Returns, were as follows —

	Acres	1918 Super ft cut	1919 Super ft cut

[2] The acreage of timbered country given is that of the regions in which the various timbers are found The approximate present area of prime forests of Jarrah, Karri, Wandoo, and Tuart, fit for reservation for all time, is 4,918 sq miles, viz , Jarrah, 4,350 Karri, 400 Wandoo, 160, and Tuart, 8 sq miles

The live stock at the end of 1919 consisted of 174,919 horses , 880,644 cattle 6,697,951 sheep , 58,160 pigs , 31,986 goats , 6,137 camels , and 6,888 mules and donkeys The wool export was, during the year 1916-17, valued at 1,420,291*l*, during 1917-18 at 535,819*l*, during 1918-19 at 1,952,141*l*, and during 1919-20 at 3,937,106*l*, these values representing respectively, 24,405,283 lbs , 10,632,022 lbs , 29,644,556 lbs and 59,600,535 lbs , of wool The wool clip for the above four years respectively was 31,334,638 lbs , 38,294,093 lbs , 43,404,670 lbs and 39,214,336 lbs This does not include wool exported on skins, which, during 1919, amounted to 7,085,045 lbs

Many millions of acres are available for pastoral purposes

Gold was first obtained in Western Australia in 1886 The sensational gold finds at Coolgardie and Kalgoorlie in 1892 and 1893 gave an impetus to Western Australian gold mining, which, in a few years time, placed this State at the head of all the Australian Colonies as regards gold output The aggregate output to the end of 1919, was 33,130,549 fine ozs , valued at 140,729,627*l* There were in the State, in 1919, 819 leases of gold mines , men employed in the mines, 7,021, viz , 3,080 above and 3,941 under ground , output of gold, 734,066 fine ozs , value 3,118,113*l*

TASMANIA

Constitution and Government

Abel Jans Tasman discovered Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania) on November 24, 1642 The island became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales, in 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated, in 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1856 responsible government came into operation On January 1, 1901, Tasmania was federated with the other Australian States into the Commonwealth of Australia

Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly The Council has 18 members, elected on a property qualification of 10*l* a year freehold or 30*l* a year leasehold Certain professional men and all 'returned soldiers' are also electors Members sit for 6 years, and retire in rotation There is no power to dissolve the Council The House of Assembly has 30 members, elected for 3 years by adults with six months' residence in the State Members of both Houses are paid 300*l* a year Women received the right to vote in 1903 Proportional representation was adopted in 1907, after a partial trial in 1896 The method is the single transferable vote in 6 member constituencies By elections are superseded (from 1919) by a recount of the votes at the preceding General Election

Governor —Rt. Hon Sir W L Allardyce, K C M G (April 1920) (Salary, 2,750*l*.)

Area and Population

Area, with Macquarie (170 square miles), 26,215 square miles or about 16,778,000 acres, of which 15,571,500 acres form the area of Tasmania Proper, the rest constituting that of a number of small islands, in two main groups, the north-east and north-west

The population has increased as follows (census returns) —

Year	Population	Increase per Ct per Annum	Year	Population	Increase per Ct per Annum
1861	89,977	2 44	1891	146,667	2 36
1881	115,705	1 38	1911	191,211	1 04

In 1911 there were 97,591 males and 93,620 females The average density is 7 38 persons to a square mile Of the total population in 1911, 79 2 per cent were natives of Tasmania, 11 5 per cent natives of the United Kingdom, and 7 3 per cent natives of other Australasian colonies There were 676 Chinese and other coloured aliens, and 227 half caste aborigines The pure aboriginal is extinct

Estimated population, June 30, 1920, 216,643

The population shows the usual Australian excess of males, fairly steady before the war, vanishing during the war, and since recovered, by June 1920, to an excess of four males in every 100 of population

The births, deaths, and marriages for five years were as follows —

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1914	6,017	1,543	1,918	4,099
1916	5,642	1,433	2,056	3,586
1917	5,376	1,138	1,768	3,608
1918	5,280	1,131	1,802	3,478
1919	5,310	1,513	2,192	3,118

For the decade 1910 19, the birth-rate was 28 4, the death rate 10 1, and the rate of natural increase of population 18 3 per 1,000, the highest in the Commonwealth For the last 3 years 1917 19, the infant mortality averaged 59 per 1,000 births, and the general index of mortality was 12 3, which was easily the lowest in the Commonwealth Tasmania, with a high natural increase and small area, has been a source of population for the mainland States since the days when Tasmania founded Melbourne and colonized Victoria For the decade, the average loss by migration has been about 1,300 per annum, or 6 7 per 1,000, leaving a net annual rate of increase of population of 11 6 per 1,000

Population of the capital, Hobart and Suburbs (census 3rd April, 1911), 38,391, of Launceston and Suburbs, 23,726 The estimated population of Hobart and suburbs at June, 1920, was 50,000

Religion.

In 1911, belonging to the Church of England 88,158, Roman Catholics 28,581, Catholics (undefined), 4,080, Methodists, 24,975, Presbyterians, 15,735, Independents, 6,000 Baptists, 4,757

Instruction.

Primary education is free and secular, and compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14 Nine tenths of the primary teaching is at State schools The average monthly enrolment at all schools is about 88 per cent of the total children of 'compulsory' age, and the average attendance is 81 per cent of the enrolment The cost of primary education to the State in 1919 was 5*l* 10*s* per head of average attendance, exclusive of buildings, which cost annually about 15*s* per head Secondary education is about equally divided between the new State High Schools and the older endowed schools The 4 State High Schools in 1919 had an average attendance of 967, at a cost of 9*l* per head, exclusive of buildings

There are 4 Technical Schools, and 4 junior Technical Schools, with a total enrolment of 1,471 A large Trade School in Hobart for repatriation purposes provides courses for 14 trades, and others are being organised The total number of returned soldiers being trained in this way is 306

The University of Tasmania, established 1890, confers degrees in arts, science, law and commerce A complete engineering course with degree comes into operation in 1921 There were in 1920, 221 students taking courses for degrees University expenditure in 1920 (exclusive of capital expenditure) was about 12,000*l* In 1920, 11 Tutorial Classes were provided by the University at different centres for the Workers' Educational Association, mostly in economics and history Total average attendance 253 Medical inspection of children in primary schools (State and private) has been carried out since 1906 Dental treatment was commenced in 1916 The total cost in 1920 was 1*s* 10*d* per child on the roll

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, courts of petty, general, and quarter sessions, the latter presided over by a stipendiary magistrate, assisted by justices of the peace According to the Police Report, during the year 1919 20, 4,842 persons were summarily convicted, and 68 persons were committed for trial The figures for crime generally are higher than during the war, but show no appreciable increase over 1914 either for all offences, indictable offences, or offences against the person There is, however, a noticeable increase under the head of assaulting and resisting the police.

The total police force on June 30, 1920, was 239 There were 2 gaols, with 69 male and 3 female inmates at the end of June, 1918

Old Age Pensions.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are paid by the Commonwealth Government The number of pensioners in Tasmania at March 31, 1920, was Old age, 5,012 , Invalid, 1,971 , War (June, 1919), 7,788.

Revenue and Expenditure

The revenue is derived chiefly from duties, licences, railways, and other public services, and from the rental and sale of Crown lands The customs, postal and telegraph, and defence services are now in the hands of the Commonwealth, and an amount equal to 25*s* per head of population is returned to the State

—	1913-14	1916-17	1917-18	1918-19	1919-20
Revenue	1,238,085	1,369,368	1,503,017	1,581,984	1,815,031

The public debt of Tasmania amounted June 30, 1920, to 17,003,447*l* , of which 33 per cent has been spent on railways, 6 per cent on hydro electric works, and 30 per cent on roads and bridges The railways earned 2 2 per cent on their capital, which bears an average interest of 3¼ per cent

State taxation amounts to 2*l* 16*s* 7*d* per head, of which income tax provides 26*s* , land tax 8*s* 2*d* , death duties 4*s* 8*d* , lottery and totalisator taxation 7*s* 8*d* Land and income taxes and death duties are also collected by the Commonwealth, averaging 3*l* 17*s* 3*d* per head, and customs and excise of 4*l* 2*s* 3*d* per head The Commonwealth contribution to the State revenue represents about 40 per cent of the customs and excise collected on account of the State

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia

Production and Industry.

The total area of the colony is 16,778,000 acres, including 1,206,500 acres islands and lakes Unalienated land, principally heavily timbered or mineral-bearing, amounts to about 8,500,000 acres

Total production in 1919-20 —

	Value	Value per head
Agricultural and pastoral	5,509,066	25 4
Mining	1,301,090	6 0
Manufacturing (output less raw material)	2,658,417	12 2
	9,468,573	43 6

	1919-20			1919-20
	Crop	Yield per Acre		Crop	Yield per Acre
Wheat, bushels	213,589	18 6	Potatoes, tons	66 225	2 3
Oats, ,,	1,242,258	25 8	Hay ,,	143 053	1 4
Pease, ,,	300,545	13 4	Fruit, bushels	2,856,813	9 4

Wheat growing has declined to insignificance The production of oats, pease, potatoes and hay is steady, with seasonal variations Fruit growing (chiefly apples) is increasing The last four seasons have been poor The prospects for 1920 21 are very good Live stock in 1920 Horses, 39,452, cattle, 214,442 sheep, 1,781,425, pigs, 35,530 The numbers of all live-stock remain steady There is a temporary shortage of pigs The wool clip, 11 million pounds in 1919 20, is a little above the average

Forests cover a considerable part of the island The mills cut 56,800,000 s feet of timber in 1919 The export of logs is not recorded The present demand for timber is causing a boom in saw milling Value of mineral production in 1919 —Copper, 504,961*l*, tin, 395,794*l*, silver lead, 189,967*l*, zinc, 75,001*l*, tungsten, 69,794*l*, coal, 47,004*l*, osmiridium, 39,614*l*, gold, 32,650*l* The total mineral production has averaged 1,500,000*l* for the last 20 years, increased prices balancing decreased quantities Copper, tin and coal remain fairly steady in total value, but gold has fallen away greatly Osmiridium is growing in importance, and silver lead mining gives promise of revival Tungsten ores (wolfram and scheelite) fell greatly in price in 1920 and production is decreasing

Manufactures —The two important manufactures for export are metal extraction and fruit preserving Others that have an output beyond local requirements are woollen mills and breweries The carbide works at North-West Bay are expected to supply the needs of all Australia The chief recent industrial development has been the provision, by a State department, of cheap hydro electric power for manufacturing purposes The Great Lake scheme is designed to supply 70,000 h p At present 18,000 h p are being generated, and an extension to 42,000 h p under construction The total power so far surveyed for practicable schemes is 216,000 h p Power in large blocks has been sold as low as 2*l* per h p per annum Important applications of this power are to metal extraction and manufacture of carbide of calcium The Electrolytic Zinc Works at Risdon, with an output of 15 tons per day, are being enlarged to a capacity of 100 tons per day This plant will treat the complex ores of the West Coast, as well as the Broken Hill ore, on which it is now operating

Commerce, Shipping, &c

The commerce of Tasmania, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia, given under the heading of the Commonwealth Imports and exports —

—	1913	1915-16	1916-17	1917-18[1]	1918-19
Total imports	1,025,081	982,849	1,161,676	489 249	608,786
Total exports	522,865	618,101	900,161	951,556	1,002,093

The Commonwealth alone collects statistics relating to imports and exports, which are restricted to trade external to Australia No information is available as to inter State or to indirect foreign trade

The exports are chiefly wool, gold, silver, tin, timber, fruit and jam, hops, grain, hides and skins, bark

The registered shipping in 1918 consisted of 90 sailing vessels of 3,586 tons, and 102 steamers of 12,459 tons, total, 192 vessels of 16,045 tons For shipping, railways, posts and telegraphs, see under Commonwealth of Australia

Savings Banks

The number of depositors in Savings Banks, including the Commonwealth Savings Bank, at March 31, 1919, was 98,100, and the amount on deposit 3,152,435*l*

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA

Government.

The Northern Territory, after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed by Royal Letters Patent, dated July 6, 1863, to South Australia On the establishment of Federation in 1901, the Territory entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of the State of South Australia The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1900 made provision for the surrender to the Commonwealth of any territory by any State, and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, by the Commonwealth and South Australia for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the former After the necessary legislation approving this agreement had been passed by the two parliaments concerned, the Territory formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911 The Commonwealth at the same time assumed responsibility for the State loans contracted by South Australia on behalf of the territory, it took over by purchase the railway from Port Augusta to Oodnadatta; and it undertook to construct a transcontinental railway from Pine Creek southwards to the boundary of South Australia, and to connect these two railways On June 30, 1919, the public debt was 3,470,461*l*

A local Advisory Council has been established, consisting of trade union representatives and Government officials, the latter predominating It is proposed to give the territory representation in the Federal Parliament.

Administrator—F C Urquhart.

Area and Population

The Northern Territory is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude Its area is 523,620 square miles The area alienated at the end of 1916 amounted to 744 square miles absolutely, 166,143 were held under leases and licences, and the remainder, 356,733 square miles, was unoccupied The coast line is about 1,040 miles in length The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal harbour being Port Darwin, where Darwin is situated The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasturage The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with a small rainfall, but it can be watered by means of artesian bores The climate is tropical, but varies considerably over the whole Territory The proximity of the sea in the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months

Population —The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows —

Year	Europeans	Others	Totals
1881	670	2,781	3,451
1891	1,144	3,754	4,898
1901	1,055	3,756	4,811
1911 (Census)	1,418	1,892	3,310
1916 (31st Dec)	3,839	928	4,767
1919 (31st Dec)	—	—	4,706

Of the 1911 Census total 576 were females At the end of 1914 there were 1,033 Chinese, 77 Japanese, 86 Malays and Filipinos, and 72 of other races, including half castes In June 1918, Asiatics in the Territory numbered 1,177 The aborigines are estimated to number about 20,000, but it is possible this is an under-estimate

The tribes inhabiting the Northern Territory are Larakaya and Worgait at Port Darwin, Melville Island Tribe, Port Essington Tribe, Djanan Tribe at Katherine Creek, Yangman Tribe round Elsey Creek, Mungarai Tribe along the upper part of the Roper River, Nullakun Tribe middle part of the Roper River, and the Mara Tribe south of the Roper River

	£	£		£	£
1913-14	73,657	532,53 ,	1916-17	102,980	805,305

The chief sources of revenue for the year ending June 30, 1919, were the Customs and Excise, 7,210*l* , Railways, 45,725*l* , and Postal revenue, 10,323*l* The chief items of expenditure (excluding interest, loans, &c) were as follows —Buildings, roads, bridges, farms, &c , 20,971*l* , interest and sinking fund, Port Augusta Railway, 85,748*l* , railways, 39,080*l* , salaries and contingencies, 182,579*l* The Commonwealth is also liable for interest on loans and redemption, in respect of Northern Territory and the Port Augusta Railway The deficiency for the year was 357,760*l*

Production and Industry.

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but it is stated that most products known to the tropical and temperate zones can be grown successfully At present, however, agriculture is insignificant In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle, horses, sheep, and other stock The numbers of stock at the end of 1918 were — Cattle, 570,039, horses, 31,436, sheep, 58,620, pigs, 1,200

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed The aggregate value of the minerals produced to June 30, 1919, and in the year 1918 19, was as follows —

—	Total to June 30, 1919	1918-19	—	Total to June 30, 1919	1918-19

TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA).

This possession is the south eastern part of the island of New Guinea, with the islands of the D'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups and all islands between 8° and 12° S latitude, and 141° and 155° E longitude Area 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 are on the mainland of New Guinea and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned On June 30, 1919, the population was as follows —European, 971, coloured (other than Papuan), 316, Papuans (estimated), 250,000 (For the part of New Guinea lately possessed by Germany and now administered by Australia, see next section)

The government of British New Guinea is founded on the British New Guinea Act of November, 1887, and on Letters Patent issued June 8, 1888 The cost of the administration to the extent of 15,000*l* a year was formerly contributed in equal proportions by New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland The Federal Government took over the control in 1901, the political transfer was completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and on September 1, 1906, a proclamation was issued by the Governor General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea was to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua There is an executive council composed of 6 official members, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and three non official members nominated by the Governor General of Australia

Lieut Governor and Chief Judicial Officer—J H P Murray, C M G
Government Secretary —Herbert William Champion

Tribes have in large areas settled down to peaceful habits Four missionary bodies are at work, many hundreds of natives are being taught by these bodies Approximately 218,950 acres of land have been leased, principally by planters, the principal cultures being coconuts (43,560 acres at June 30, 1919), rubber (8,598 acres), sisal hemp (5,824 acres) On June 30, 1919, there were 58,513 acres of plantations By the Papua Act, 1905, freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained at low rentals for long terms Indigenous sago is plentiful in the western portion of the Territory, and there are considerable numbers of native owned coconut trees The forests contain valuable timbers, in most cases easily accessible by river A regulation, which is strictly enforced, requires that each native shall plant a certain number of coconut trees or other economic trees or plants if his land is suitable

There are four ports of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, Daru, and Misima.

There are 8 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate There are also 2 relieving and 16 assistant resident magistrates, and 18 patrol officers There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary For native government some simple regulations have been passed There were (1920) 840 village policemen, armed constabulary, 331 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary)

Throughout the Territory there are numerous schools belonging to the various Christian missions, the attendance of native children at these schools is compulsory if English is taught. The Native Taxes Ordinance came into force on January 15, 1919, imposing a tax not exceeding 10*s* per head on indentured native labourers, and not exceeding 20*s* per head on other natives After expenses of collection are paid the balance is to be devoted firstly, to native education, and secondly, to other purposes having for their object the direct benefit of the natives The education will be chiefly undertaken by the missions aided by grants from the taxation fund

Years ended 30 June	Local Revenue	Expenditure	Imports	Exports	Tonnage entered and cleared
	£	£	£	£	Tons
1916	49,311	77,913	223,040	125,428	247,887

1920	85,537	118,437	422,741	270,405	128,127

Revenue is mainly from customs duties An annual subsidy is given by the Australian Government (30,000*l* in 1919–20) In addition, 27,500*l* has been loaned to the Territory for the establishment of Government plantations, to be repaid from profits on the plantations On June 30, 1919, the Government plantations covered 1,701 acres Commonwealth grants are also made for various purposes It is hoped that Papua will soon be self-supporting

There are 8 proclaimed mineral fields in the Territory, seven of which are gold fields, and 1 copper Gold mining is one of the most important industries, and claims the attention of about 108 adult Europeans Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island A large area near Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and this is being vigorously developed by a strong company, which is now (1920) building a railway from the field to the coast where smelters are to be erected Electric power from the Rouna Falls is also to be developed Copper ore exports in 1916–17, 1,323 tons, valued at 14,050*l*, in 1917–18, 1,112 tons valued at 11,572*l*, in 1918–19, 224 tons valued at 1,613*l* In 1919–20 no copper ore was exported In 1916–17 the gold output was valued at 37,987*l*, 1917–18, 32,931*l*, 1918–19, 21,550*l*, 1919–20, 21,747*l* Indications of petroleum have been found over an area of 1,000 sq miles, and boring by the Anglo Persian Oil Company is now (1920) proceeding on behalf of the Australian Government The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales The chief imports are foodstuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware, exports, copra (1918–19, 2,598 tons, 53,264*l*, 1919–20, 4,079 tons, 124,007*l*), sisal hemp (1918–19, 287 tons, 12,532*l*, 1919–20, 337 tons, 12,284*l*), pearl shell, gold, pearls, mangrove bark, copper ore, timber, rubber (1918–19, 207 tons, 33,010*l*, 1919–20, 242 tons, 41,542*l*) Number of horses (1918), 338, cattle, 1,331, mules, 65

Large steamers trade between Sydney and Port Moresby every three weeks, and small coastal steamers run at frequent regular intervals between the various inter-territorial ports Oil launches and numerous cutters are also employed on the local trade Ocean going shipping entered and cleared 1919–20, 59,189 tons There are wireless telegraph stations at Port Moresby, Samarai, and Misima

There is a branch of the Bank of New South Wales Commonwealth Government notes are legal tender. The currency and its legal tender are the same as in the United Kingdom and Australia

NEW GUINEA

(Late German New Guinea)

German New Guinea was the name given to all those territories held by Germany in the Western Pacific which were governed from Rabaul, the capital of these possessions It included Kaiser Wilhelm's Land (acquired in 1884), Bismarck Archipelago (acquired in 1884), The German Solomon Islands, Nauru, the Caroline Islands, the Marshall Islands, and the Marianne or Ladrone Islands (excepting the Island of Guam) The Possessions were territories protected by the German Imperial Authorities (Schutzgebiete) There were no local legislators, and the Governor appointed by the Imperial Crown was all powerful These Possessions were occupied by an Australian Force on September 12, 1914 The islands north of the Equator, namely, the Marshall, Caroline, Pelew, and Ladrone (Marianne) Islands are to be administered by Japan as mandatory Those south of the Equator, namely, the Bismarck Archipelago, those of the Solomon Islands, formerly owned by Germany, and (late) German New Guinea, are assigned to Australia. (German Samoa is assigned to New Zealand) The mandate from the League of Nations is dated December 17, 1920 The laws of the Commonwealth, subject to local modifications as necessary, may be applied to the mandated territories The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established

Nauru, a small islet just south of the Equator, is assigned to the British Empire as mandatory (see p 439)

German New Guinea was divided into seven districts, each controlled by a District Officer, with certain judicial powers, as follows. Rabaul District, comprising New Britain and adjacent islands; Morobe, Madang, and Eitape on the mainland of Kaiser Wilhelm's Land; Kieta, which includes the German Solomons, Manus, which includes the Admiralty Islands and the archipelagos adjacent, and Kaewieng district comprising a portion of New Ireland, &c The Headquarters of the Administration were at Rabaul.

The laws of Prussia were the basic laws, and were supplemented by ordinance emanating from the Emperor, Chancellor, and the Governor of the Protectorate German New Guinea had a financial status of its own under a special law of 1892, and was no part of the Zollverein

Judicially, there was no appeal from the local tribunal to the Supreme Court of the Empire, but the German Emperor could be appealed to by virtue of the protective right of the Emperor over the Possessions

1 New Guinea—Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, the northern section of south-east New Guinea, was declared a German protectorate in 1884 It lies between 2° 30′ and 8° south latitude, and 141° and 148° east longitude The area, including Vulcan, Dampier, Long, Schouten, Le Maire, and some smaller islands, is 70,000 square miles The native population has been variously estimated at from 110,000 to 530,000, but so little is known of the interior that any figures are very conjectural The coastal districts have a native population of two to the square mile The territory was under the control and development of the New Guinea Company from 1885 to 1899 The first settlement was formed at Finschhafen, which is situated close to the south eastern border, adjacent to British territory Out stations were formed at Konstantine and Hatzfeldt harbours The principal station on the mainland is at Frederick Wilhelm's Haven, now called Madang The coast line is very little broken, and there are few good harbours From the 141st to 144th meridian there are no harbours, and the only anchorages are open roadsteads under the lee of islands There are high ranges running parallel with the coast plain, which is from 60 to 100 miles wide The ranges in the interior have been little explored, and some of their summits are known to exceed 12,000 feet The principal rivers are the Kaiserin Augusta, or Sepik, which is navigable for over 250 miles It rises in the Dutch territory and flows easterly The Ramu, or Ottilie, rises in the south east, and flows into the sea about 20 miles east of the mouth of the Sepik The Markham is another large river, which flows into Astrolabe Bay The climate is hot and the rainfall large The European population in 1914 was 300—chiefly German There are three missionary societies at work in Kaiser Wilhelm's Land the Neuendettelsaur Mission (Lutheran), the Rheinische Mission (Lutheran Calvanistic), the Catholic Mission of the Holy Ghost Society These missions are also planters and traders The chief harbours are Frederick Wilhelm's Haven (now Madang), Finsch Haven, Emma Haven, and Adolph Haven (now Morobe) Frederick Wilhelm's Haven and Emma Haven are in Astrolabe Bay Inter island trade is carried on by small steamships and motor schooners There is a two monthly oversea service from Madang

The area of cultivation in 1914 was 16,800 acres, which showed a decrease on the previous two years The greater part of this area is planted with coconuts (about 14,000 acres) Rubber and cocoa are also grown Tropical fruits grow very abundantly The staple articles of food of the natives are yams, taro, sago, and bananas There is very little land used for pasture in Kaiser Wilhelm's Land The land is rich in mineral wealth, but no minerals are worked on account of the difficulty of transporting mining machinery Native labour is used to work the plantations, and the natives are recruited either from the adjacent villages or from other parts of the Possessions. There are upwards of 6,000 native labourers so recruited for plantation purposes.

The chief towns are Madang (white population, 243), Morobe (white population, 40), Eitape (white population, 50)

2 Bismarck Archipelago —In November, 1884, a German Protectorate was declared over the New Britain Archipelago and several adjacent groups of islands, and in May, 1885, they were renamed the Bismarck Archipelago The chief islands are Neu Pommern, formerly, and now, called New Britain, area 10,000 square miles, New Mecklenburg, formerly, and now called New Ireland, area 4,600 square miles, Neu Hannover, 530 square miles, Neu Lauenburg or Duke of York Islands, area 22 square miles, the Admiralty Islands (principal island, Manus), area 600 square miles The Archipelago lies between 141 degrees and 154 degrees east longitude, and the Equator and 8 degrees south latitude The other groups included in this Archipelago are St Matthew Islands, Gardner Islands, Abgarris or Fead Islands, Nissan or Sir Charles Hardy Islands The French Islands, Rook Islands, Hermit Islands, Nimigo Group, Anchorite and Commerson Islands In these various groups there are upwards of 100 small islands The total native population of the Archipelago has been put as high as 188,000

New Britain, the largest island of this group, is a long island running in a crescent shape lying east and west It has a mean breadth of 50 miles and a length of 300 miles Except for the peninsula in the north, which is called Gazelle Peninsula, the island is practically undeveloped, and there are only a few isolated stations on the coast west of Henry Reid Bay The interior of the island is little known The native population numbers about 50,000 The European population in 1914 was 600, chiefly Germans There are 1,200 Chinese and a few Japanese All populations are exclusive of the occupying force A mountain chain traverses the entire length of the island, and in the centre consists of several irregular ranges There are several active volcanoes, and the range shows signs of great volcanic activity in the past The highest known peak is the Father, about 7,500 feet high, which is an active volcano This island has very fine harbours, the best is that of Simpson Harbour in Blanche Bay, which affords a good harbour in all weathers Rabaul Bay and Matupi Harbour are small harbours in Simpson Harbour Other good harbours are, Jacquinot Bay, Rugen Haven, Arawel, Lindenhafen, and Powell Haven The only harbour visited by oversea shipping is Simpson Harbour The principal settlement is around the shores of Blanche Bay Coconuts are mostly grown There are two missionary societies at work in this island the Wesleyan with headquarters near Rabaul, and the Catholic Mission of the Sacred Heart, with headquarters at Herbertshoehe The chief towns are, Rabaul (population 800), which since 1910 is the seat of Government The old capital was at Herbertshoehe, now called by its native name Kokopo, which is situated 14 miles south-east of Rabaul At Rabaul there is an anchorage for all ships and a fine jetty has been built Rabaul is well laid out and has a fine public garden

New Ireland, the second in size and importance of the Bismarck Archipelago, is situated north of New Britain, from which it is separated by St George's Channel The chief town is Kaewieng (European population, 100), at the north west extremity of the island The only other town is Namatanai (European population, 40), on the south east coast. The island has a long range of mountains running through it It is of older formation than New Britain, and does not show any signs of recent volcanic activity The principal harbour is Nusa, on the north coast of which Kaewieng, the seat of the local administration, is situated The interior of the island is not very well known The native population is about 28,000 The soil is fertile and the climate similar to that of New Britain The chief industry is coconut growing There are numerous plantations around the coast near Kaewieng Total population of the island, 200 Europeans, chiefly German.

The Admiralty Islands are the most important of the small groups The chief island is Tauu or Manus, sometimes called Great Admiralty Island The chief town is Lorengau (European population, 50) on the north east coast The native population of the group is 4,000 Coconuts are the chief article of culture, and there are valuable pearl and other shell fisheries

§ Solomon Islands —Germany owned part of this group, including the islands of Bougainville (area 3,500 square miles, native population 15,000) and Buka (area 300 square miles, native population 2,000), but Choiseul, Isabel or Mahaga, and various smaller islands to the east of Bougainville were transferred to Great Britain November 14, 1899 These islands are very mountainous Of the several volcanic cones, Bagano is the only active volcano. The highest mountain is the dormant volcano, Mount Balbi, 10,170 ft high, which is situated in the centre of the island Both peaks are in the Crown Prince range The principal harbour is Kieta, situated on the east coast of Bougainville, where there is a Government station Other good harbours are Rawa and Tinputz on the north-east coast of Bougainville There is a good harbour on the west side of Buka, named Carola Hafen Missionary work amongst the natives is carried on by the Marist Brothers of the Roman Catholic Mission As the plantations are only new there is comparatively little export trade The natives grow bananas, coconuts, taro, and sweet potatoes They are skilful fishermen. The European population is 60, chiefly males.

Instruction.

In 1916, 95 0 per cent of the population over 5 years of age (excluding Maoris) were recorded at the census as able to read and write, 0 8 per cent as able to read only, and 4·2 per cent as unable to read.

The University of New Zealand is solely an examining body, with an annual grant of 4,000*l*. The number of graduates admitted after examination was, in 1919, 2,473. There are four affiliated colleges—the Otago University at Dunedin, with 52 professors and lecturers, the Canterbury College at Christchurch, with 31 professors and lecturers, the Auckland University College, with 24 professors and lecturers, and the Victoria University College at Wellington, with 23 professors and lecturers, students attending lectures in the four affiliated colleges, (1918) 2,140. They are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College is a recognised school of agriculture.

At the end of 1919 there were 34 incorporated or endowed secondary schools, with 381 (excluding 74 part time) teachers and 9,068 pupils (excluding 686 in lower departments). Of the total income more than half is from endowments and Government payments. There are also 60 District High Schools with 105 (excluding 60 part time), teachers and 2,159 scholars. Children receiving secondary instruction at Technical High Schools (eight) numbered 2,926 at the end of 1919. Of private secondary schools there were 21 registered with 1,497 pupils. Ten secondary schools for Maoris had 434 pupils.

For primary schools there is an Education Department (which also exercises certain functions in regard to both university and secondary schools). There are 9 Local Education Boards. At the end of 1919 there were 2,400 public primary schools, 6,062 teachers (including 436 probationers), 196,059 scholars on the rolls, average attendance (1919), 174,885. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free. Where there are no schools classes may be formed in the public school for extra subjects, for which special subsidies are given.

The Education Department's functions include (a), maintenance, etc., of destitute children, (b), care of epidemic orphans, (c), training of uncontrollable and delinquent children, (d), supervision of adopted children, (e), education, etc., of all afflicted children (deaf, blind, and feeble minded). There are 7 schools of mines, 4 normal schools, 5 central schools of art, 13 industrial schools, with 3,593 (1919) children or young persons, a school for the deaf, an institute for the blind (at Auckland), special schools for mentally backward boys in Otago and Nelson, and a similar school for girls at Richmond, Nelson. There were also at the end of 1918 320 private schools, with 1,146 teachers and 26,237 pupils.

There were 119 Native village schools, with 239 teachers and 5,190 scholars. Total net expenditure by the State on Native schools in 1919-20 was 59,166*l*. Total expenditure out of public funds in 1919-20 upon education of all kinds 2,624,000*l*.

Justice and Crime

There are nine supreme court judges, and thirty three stipendiary magistrates. There are numerous magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

Defence.

In 1909 New Zealand passed a Defence Act, amended 1910, which provided for the gradual military training of every male New Zealander between the ages of 12 and 25, with further service in the Reserve up to age of 30 Under this Act a boy serves from 12 to 14 as a junior cadet, from 14 to 18 as a senior cadet, from 18 to 25 he becomes a soldier in the Territorial Force, and from 25 to 30 he serves in the Reserve Before the war senior cadets did 50 drills and a musketry course annually The soldier in the Territorial Force did 30 drills, 6 whole day parades, and 7 days continuous annual training The pre war strength of the Territorial Force was about 30,000

During the war New Zealand raised 124,211 men , of this number 91,941 were recruited voluntarily, the remainder under a compulsory system introduced in 1916 100,444 men were sent overseas to serve in New Zealand units and 3,370 are known to have joined British or Australian units In addition Samoa was occupied and garrisoned by the Dominion Quotas were contributed by the South Sea Islanders, and the Maoris maintained a battalion The total casualties were 16,688 killed, and 41,315 wounded , total, 58,003 The demobilisation and reorganisation of the Dominion forces was not completed at the end of 1919, but the post war forces will be organised on the basis which existed before the war—that is to say, in cadet units and a Territorial Force The Territorial Force is organised in the military districts, each of which furnishes an infantry brigade, with a proportion of the other arms and services

During the war two schools of instruction were formed at Auckland for the Dominion Air Force, and at the time of the Armistice 142 cadets were in training Three hundred New Zealand officers served in the British flying services during the war, and the Dominion presented 6 aeroplanes to the Empire and lent two

Down to March 31, 1920, the war expenditure reached 76,953,076*l*

The Naval Defence Act, 1920, provided for the establishment of a New Zealand Naval Force, to be raised and maintained by voluntary enlistment only, enlistment being for a prescribed period not less than two years In time of war the Naval Force (including vessels acquired for defence purposes) is at the disposal of the British Government The Naval force consists of training ship Philomel and cruiser Chatham which was recently presented by the Imperial Government The establishment of a New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve is also provided for under the Act

Agriculture.

Two-thirds of the surface of New Zealand are suitable for agriculture and grazing About 17,000,000 acres are still under forest The total area under crop (including 15,831,604 acres in sown grasses and 68,619 in fallow) in 1919 was 17,440,511 acres The area of Crown lands surveyed and open for selection on March 31, 1919, was 704,178 acres occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1919 (exclusive of holdings within borough boundaries) was as follows —

Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres	Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres

TERRITORY OF WESTERN SAMOA.

The former German Samoan Islands, now the Territory of Western Samoa, include Savaii and Upolu, the largest of the Samoan or Navigators Islands Samoa is a group of islands in the Western Pacific, lying in 13½ deg to 14 deg S lat , and 168 deg to 173 deg W long The islands are some 130 miles N of Tonga and between 400 and 500 miles N E of Fiji The group consists of nine islands, in addition to rocks and islets They are all, with the exception of Rose Island, of volcanic formation, and are, for the most part, surrounded with coral reefs The four largest islands are Savaii, Upolu, Tutuila and Manua By the Anglo German Agreement of November 14, 1899, ratified by the United States in January, 1900, Great Britain renounced all rights over the islands in favour of Germany as regards Savaii, Upolu, Apolima and Manono, and in favour of the United States as regards Tutuila and other islands Under the German Imperial Governor there was a native High Chief with a native council, the several districts being administered by chiefs Justice was administered by native as well as European judges and magistrates

On August 29, 1914, the British occupied German Samoa By the Treaty of Peace, 1919, Germany surrendered her possessions abroad, and Samoa is assigned under a mandate from the League of Nations to His Majesty the King in right of his Dominion of New Zealand, which has been empowered to govern Western Samoa. The mandate is dated December 17, 1920, and under that authority the Governor General of New Zealand in Council has made laws for Western Samoa The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established

Provision has been made for a nominated Legislative Council, consisting of not less than four official members, and unofficial members not exceeding in number the official members The Administrator is entitled to preside over every meeting of the Council. No person is qualified for appointment to the Legislative Council unless he is either a natural born British subject or a Samoan, or was born in Samoa The civil administration was inaugurated on May 1, 1920

Savaii, with a length of 48 miles and a breadth of 25 miles, has an area of about 660 square miles, Upolu has an area of between 550 and 600 square miles Both islands are mountainous, fertile, and well watered Several adjacent islets, exceedingly fertile, were included in the German dependency The port of Apia is in Upolu The inhabitants of the islands are Polynesians, professing Christianity (Protestants, Catholics, and Mormons) Population of Western Samoa (excluding soldiers), according to the census of 1917, 41,128, distributed as follows —Whites, 1,668 (British, 660, Americans, 236, Swedes, 42, Germans, 530, others, 200), Natives, 37,223, coolie labourers, 2,237 The native population suffered heavily during the influenza epidemic of 1918, the number of deaths being about 7,500 There were (1917) 2 Government schools with 784 pupils, and mission schools with over 8,000 pupils There are 60 miles of good roads The chief product is copra, and other products are cocoa, rubber, cardamoms, sugar The revenue collected in Western Samoa for the year ended March 31, 1920, was £95,022 (mainly customs, 58,792*l*, Court fees, &c, 11,801*l*, native taxes, 9,404*l*, wireless station, 7,208*l*, post office, 4,457*l*), the ordinary expenditure was 96,314*l* There was an excess of assets over liabilities of 28,030*l* on March 31, 1920 Imports (exclusive of supplies for the troops) for 1919, 291,368*l*, exports, 532,500*l* In 1919, 77 vessels (34,273 tons) entered at the port of Apia and 81 vessels (35,940 tons) cleared There is regular steam communication with New Zealand Wireless stations have been erected at Apia, in Samoa, and Nauru (or Pleasant Island, one of the Marshall Islands), respectively Two other stations were planned—at Rabaul in New Guinea, and on Yap, one of the Caroline Islands

The currency before the British occupation was in marks, but English and American gold and silver coin were legal tender Since the occupation, however, the German currency has been replaced by New Zealand bank notes and specie A branch of the Bank of New Zealand was opened at Apia in April, 1915

The Hon E P Lee, Minister of External Affairs for New Zealand, is in charge of Samoa and other late German Islands assigned to New Zealand

Administrator —Colonel R W Tate, C B E

PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES.

(United States of America.)

Constitution and Government.

The Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted was adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States, and on September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based on the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, to which ten amendments were added Dec. 15, 1791, an eleventh amendment, Jan. 8, 1798, a twelfth amendment, Sept. 25, 1804, a thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865 (slavery abolished), a fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868, a fifteenth amendment, March 30, 1870 (equal rights for white and coloured citizens), a sixteenth amendment, February 25, 1913 (income tax authorised), a seventeenth amendment, May 31, 1913, an eighteenth amendment, January 29, 1919 (liquor prohibition amendment), and a nineteenth amendment, August 26, 1920 (woman suffrage).

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted to three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested in a President, who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with a Vice President chosen for the same term, in the mode prescribed as follows:—'Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.' The practice is that in every State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, on the system known in France as scrutin de liste. The Constitution enacts that 'the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States', and further, that 'no person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President, neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States'.

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, the electors meet and give their votes at their respective State capitals on the second Monday in January next following their appointment, and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened and counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President is commander in chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice President is ex officio President of the Senate, and in the case of the death or resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States.—Warren Gamaliel Harding, of Ohio, born near Blooming Grove, Morrow County, in Ohio, November 2, 1865, educated at Ohio Central College, journalist since 1884, senator in the legislature of Ohio, 1899–1903, Lieutenant Governor of Ohio, 1904–1906, defeated candidate for Governor, 1910, United States Senator from Ohio, 1915–1920

Vice President of the United States —Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, born at Plymouth, Vermont, July 4, 1872, graduated at Amherst College, 1895, admitted to the Bar, 1897, member of the State Senate, 1912–1915, President of the Senate, 1914 and 1915 Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts, 1916–1918, Governor, 1919 and 1920

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by popular vote for six years Senators must be not less than thirty years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for nine years, and be residents in the States for which they are chosen Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two-thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President, and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment The judgment in the latter case extends only to removal from office and disqualification The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who, according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote In general such voters are all citizens over 21 years of age Neither race, sex, nor colour affects the right of citizens. The franchise is not absolutely universal; residence for at least one year in most States (but the period varies) is necessary, in some States the payment of taxes, in others registration On the other hand many of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from one another—too complicated for explanation here, with the expressed avowed purpose of excluding the negroes from the franchise and yet avoiding the constitutional consequences of discriminating 'on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters, in Massachusetts voters are required to be able to read English In some Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read Women by the Federal Constitution 19th amendment, 1920, have the vote and eligibility for both the Federal and the State Legislatures on the same terms as men

The number of members of the House of Representatives to which each State is entitled is determined by the census taken every ten years By the Apportionment Act consequent on the census of 1910 the number of representatives is 433

In 1912 with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico it became 435, distributed as follows —

Alabama	10	Maryland	6	Oregon	3
Arizona	1	Massachusetts	16	Pennsylvania	36
Arkansas	7	Michigan	13	Rhode Island	3
California	11	Minnesota	10	South Carolina	7
Colorado	4	Mississippi	8	South Dakota	3
Connecticut	5	Missouri	16	Tennessee	10
Delaware	1	Montana	2	Texas	18
Florida	4	Nebraska	6	Utah	2
Georgia	12	Nevada	1	Vermont	2
Idaho	2	New Hampshire	2	Virginia	10
Illinois	27	New Jersey	12	Washington	5
Indiana	13	New Mexico	1	West Virginia	6
Iowa	11	New York	43	Wisconsin	11
Kansas	8	North Carolina	10	Wyoming	1
Kentucky	11	North Dakota	3
Louisiana	8	Ohio	22
Maine	4	Oklahoma	8	Total	435

On the basis of the census of 1910 there is one representative to every 210,415 inhabitants Although the census of 1920 provides the numbers necessary to make a fresh apportionment of representatives, Congress has not yet (February, 1921), made such an apportionment The House of Representatives has passed a Bill fixing the number at 435 representatives, as at present, and distributing them among the States, but the Senate has not acted upon the Bill

The popular vote for President in 1920 was 26,661,606, or about one in four of the entire population

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty-five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits a 'delegate' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the

'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members', and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution, by the 5th article of the same The article orders that the Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 7,500 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum

No senator or representative can, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time, and no person holding any office under the United States can be a member of either House during his continuance in office No religious test is required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, or in any State

The period usually termed 'a Congress' in legislative language continues for two years, as, for example, from noon, March 4, 1921, until noon, March 4, 1923, at which latter time the term of the representatives to the 67th Congress will expire, and the term of the new House of Representatives will begin The term of one third of the Senators expires at the same time

The 67th Congress (1921–23), elected November, 1920, is constituted as follows Senate, 59 Republicans, 37 Democrats, House of Representatives, 301 Republicans, 133 Democrats, 1 Socialist

The National Government has authority in matters of general taxation, treaties and other dealings with foreign powers, army, navy, and (to a certain extent) militia, commerce, foreign and inter State, postal service, coinage, weights and measures, and the trial and punishment of crime against the United States

Slavery was abolished throughout the whole of the United States by the thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, passed December 18, 1865 The vast change in the political and social organisation of the Republic made by this new fundamental law was completed by the fourteenth and fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, passed in 1868 and 1870, which gave to the former slaves all the rights and privileges of citizenship

State and Local Government

The Union comprises 13 original States, 7 States which were admitted without having been previously organised as Territories, and 28 States which had been Territories—48 States in all Each State has its own constitution, which must be republican in form, and each constitution derives its authority, not from Congress, but from the people of the State Admission of States into the Union is granted by special Acts of Congress, either (1) in the form of 'enabling Acts,' providing for the drafting and ratification of a State constitution by the people, in which case the Territory becomes a State as soon as the conditions are fulfilled, or (2) accepting a constitution already framed, and at once granting admission.

Each State is provided with a Legislature of two Houses, a Governor, and other executive officials, and a judicial system. Both Houses of the Legislature are elective, but the Senators (having larger electoral districts) are less numerous than the members of the House of Representatives, while in some States their terms are longer and, in a few, the Senate is only partially renewed at each election Members of both Houses are paid at the same rate, which varies from 150 to 1,500 dollars per session, or from 1 to 8 dollars per day during session The duties of the two Houses are similar, but in many States money bills must be introduced first in the House of Representatives The Senate has to sit as a court for the trial of officials impeached by the other House, and besides, has often the power to confirm or reject appointments made by the Governor In most of the States the sessions are biennial, the Governor having power to summon an extraordinary session, but not to dissolve or adjourn State Legislatures are competent to deal with all matters not reserved for the Federal Government by the Federal constitution, or falling within restrictions imposed by the State constitutions Among their powers are the determination of the qualifications for the right of suffrage, and the control of all elections to public office, including elections of members of Congress and electors of President and Vice President, the criminal law, both in its enactment and in its execution, with unimportant exceptions, and the administration of prisons, the civil law, including all matters pertaining to the possession and transfer of, and succession to, property, marriage and divorce, and all other civil relations, the chartering and control of all manufacturing, trading, transportation, and other corporations, subject only to the right of Congress to regulate commerce passing from one State to another, the regulation of labour, education, charities, licensing, including regulation of the liquor traffic, fisheries, and game laws The revenues of the States are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some cases both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained originally in the national constitution, left this source of revenue to the States exclusively until 1913, when an amendment was adopted authorising the imposition of an income tax by Congress

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people over the whole State His term of office varies from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 1,000 to 10,000 dollars His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State His power of appointment to State offices is usually unimportant He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature In some States he presents estimates In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three fifths or two thirds majority

The officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.) are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office, the party in power appointing its own adherents

In the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the President to whom he makes an annual report The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self governing Its government is organised on a system almost identical with that of the territories The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and elected Upper and Lower Legislative Chambers

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government, provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791 It is co extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 60 square miles The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal concerns By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary, and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (select men, clerk, school-committee, &c) Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes In the South the counties are themselves the units, though subdivided for educational or other special purposes Their officials have in general additional functions, as the care of the poor and the superintendence of schools In the Middle and North-Western States the two systems of local government are mixed In the West all the public land is already divided into townships six miles square

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law The work of these is largely supplemented by private and parochial schools In 1880 the percentage of illiterates in the population above ten years of age was 17 per cent , in 1890 13 3 per cent , in 1900 10 7 per cent , in 1910 7 7 per cent The following statistics are for 1910 —

—	Total Population	Per cent of total population	Population 10 years of age and over
			Total	Unable to Read and Write
				Number	Per cent

The United States Government has set aside for elementary schools in each of the newer States, from two to four 'sections' (or square miles) in each township six miles square, the proceeds from the sale of which form the chief part of the permanent school funds of those States, the income alone being used for the support of the schools This income is supplemented by State and local taxation, so that it constitutes about 3 3 per cent of the total school revenue of all the States In 1918 the amount expended on public schools of elementary and secondary grades was 644,595,145 dollars In 1918 the 554 universities and colleges, including the 330 co-educational colleges, the 125 colleges for men only, and the 100 colleges for women

only, had an income of 137,055,415 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations

In 1920 there were in the United States 2,398 daily newspapers, 14,008 weeklies, 487 semi-weeklies, 3,156 monthlies, 293 semi-monthlies, and 670 other periodicals The total number of periodicals was in 1916, 23,024 (in 1918, 22,842), in 1870 the total number was 5,871, in 1900, 20,806, and in 1911, 22,806

Justice and Crime.

The judicial system, like the executive and legislative systems, is dual The Federal or National Government maintains courts for the trial of civil and criminal cases under national laws which include Admiralty, Patent, Banking, Bankruptcy, and other laws, both civil and criminal, of the United States, the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts includes cases between citizens of different States when the amount involved is in excess of 3,000 dollars, and of crimes against the laws of the United States The State Courts have jurisdiction over all civil and criminal cases arising under State laws which do not conflict with the National Constitution and laws enacted by Congress The State Courts also have jurisdiction of proceedings in probate and divorce

In the separate States the lowest courts are those of Justices of the Peace but in many towns and cities of fairly substantial population, Police Judges have jurisdiction as Examining Magistrates in criminal matters and to hear and determine misdemeanours for violation of the municipal laws In all matters, except in misdemeanours for violation of the municipal laws, the Justices of the Peace have also jurisdiction in such towns or cities as examining magistrates, as well as to hear and determine civil cases involving usually not more than 200 dollars, and also to hear, determine and sentence for certain petty crimes which are not heinous

The States are divided into counties and the latter into towns, cities, villages and townships, and there is usually a circuit or district court for each county, in some of which there are one or more judges for the county, while in others the judge's jurisdiction embraces the courts of two or more counties and he goes from county to county to hold terms of court therein These are the highest State Courts of original jurisdiction and they have grand and petit juries

The highest court in each State is the Supreme or Appellate Court with a Chief Justice and Associate Justices and, in some States, commissioners who hear and determine cases under assignment of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices The Chief Justice and Associate Justices are usually elected by the people, but sometimes are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate, they usually hold office for a term of years, but sometimes for life or during good behaviour Their salaries range from 2,500 to 17,500 dollars

The Judges of the United States Courts, which include the District Courts, the Circuit Courts of Appeal, and the Supreme Court of the United States, are appointed for life, but retire, with full pay, at the age of 70 years, if they so desire, and if they have served the full period of ten years

The United States District Courts are the lowest of the Federal Courts There are 81 of these, each State forming one or more districts These Courts appoint Commissioners, who have the power of Examining Magistrates, but may not finally adjudge and determine, except in the Territory of Alaska, where they have jurisdiction equivalent to that of the Justices of the Peace and Probate Courts of the counties of the States The United States District Courts try all criminal cases arising under the Laws of the United States, as indicated above, including capital offences, which are punishable by death

when the crime is committed on land or territory owned by the Federal Government

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice and 8 Associate Justices, appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate The United States is divided into 9 circuits, to each of which the Chief Justice or an Associate Justice is assigned, and such Chief Justice or Associate Justice, respectively, has primary jurisdiction of applications for peremptory orders in any such district respectively The Supreme Court has jurisdiction of cases on appeal or in error from the inferior Courts, and has original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign Ministers and those between the different States The salary of the Chief Justice is 15,000 dollars, and that of each of the Associate Justices 14,500 dollars

The District of Columbia, in which the seat of the National Government is located, has a Municipal Court, a Supreme Court, and a Court of Appeals The Municipal Court has jurisdiction in matters equivalent to those of the Justices of the Peace and Police Magistrates of cities and towns, the Supreme Court is the highest Court of original jurisdiction, and is equivalent to the District or Circuit Courts of the States, and the District Courts of the United States The Circuit Court of Appeals has jurisdiction in cases of appeal or in error from the Supreme Court of the District, and is equivalent to the Supreme Court or Court of Appeals of the various States, and the Circuit Courts of Appeals of the United States

The territories and insular possessions have different judicial systems, generally following the State organizations, but having as well jurisdiction of cases under the Federal Laws, except Porto Rico, which has a United States District Court, separate and distinct from the Municipal, Circuit, and Territorial Supreme Courts

State Finance

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property real and personal, and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district

For details see the separate States

Defence.

I Army

The Army of the United States, as authorised under the Act of Congress of June 4, 1920, consists of the Regular Army, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, and the Organised Reserves, including the Officers Reserve Corps and the Enlisted Reserve Corps

Original enlistment in the Regular Army is for a period of one or three years at the option of the soldier, and re enlistments are for a period of three years. Men who are in the service at the outbreak of war, or enlist during the war, remain therein until six months after its termination Enlisted men are classified in seven grades The pay of the lowest grade, or private, is 30 dollars per month (about 4 shillings a day at normal exchange rates), and that of the highest grade, or master sergeant, is 74 dollars per month In addition enlisted men receive an increase of 10 per cent of their base pay for each 5 years of service in the army, the total increase not to exceed 40 per cent Certain enlisted men also receive additional pay as specialists, the maximum addition under this head being 25 dollars per month Recent legislation grants temporary increases of pay to the higher grades of enlisted men, making their total pay, in some cases, as much as 142 dollars per month These increases are to continue only until June 30, 1922

	Officers	Enlisted men	Total
Infantry	4,200	110,000	114,200
Field Artillery	1,900	37,000	38,900
Coast Artillery	1,200	30,000	31,200
Quartermaster Corps	1,050	20,000	21,050
Air Service	1,514	16,000	17,514

Warrant Officers	—	—	1,165
Total	17,717	280,000	298,882

The actual strength at the end of 1920 was 213,067

The war organisation and establishments of the regular army were then still under consideration The following establishments were proposed

Army Corps	79,966
Infantry Division	19,385
Cavalry Division	6,417
Infantry Brigade	6,153
Artillery Brigade	3 414

At the end of 1920 the Regular Army troops stationed abroad were as follows —

Philippines	18,947	China	1,406
Germany	14,306	France and England	106
Hawaii	8,927	Alaska	867
Panama	5,600
Porto Rico	1,493	Total	51,652

The Officers Reserve Corps consists of officers of all grades, including general officers, organised into sections corresponding to the various branches of the Regular Army It is at present composed almost exclusively of men who served as officers during the World War, and on June 30, 1920, had a strength of 68,232 These officers may be called for training not exceeding 15 days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period

The Reserve Officers Training Corps, maintained for the purpose of keeping up the strength of the Officers Reserve Corps, is organised into units at civil educational establishments It is divided into a Senior Division, formed mainly at the universities, and a Junior Division, formed mainly at the secondary schools In June, 1920, over 88,000 students were enrolled in the Reserve Officers Training Corps, divided about equally between senior and junior units Graduates of the Reserve Officers Training Corps before being commissioned in the Officers Reserve Corps must graduate from Reserve Officers Training Corps camps, to be maintained each summer for a period of six weeks

The Enlisted Reserve Corps consists of men voluntarily enlisted therein who have qualifications making them eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army The period of enlistment is three years, except that all men who are members at the outbreak of war or enlist during the war continue in the service until six months after the termination of the war

The National Guard, or organised militia, is maintained by the several States with the aid of grants from the Federal Government It is organised into the same arms of the service as the Regular Army, and is supplied by the Federal Government with uniforms, arms, and equipment of the same type as issued to the Regular Army Service in the National Guard is purely voluntary When Congress shall have authorised the use of the armed land forces of the United States for any purpose requiring the use of troops in excess of those of the Regular Army, the President may draft into the military service of the United States any or all members of the National Guard, to serve for the period of the war or emergency The present authorised enlisted strength of the National Guard is about 180,000, but only about one third of that number had been organised since the armistice to August, 1920 Enlistment is for three years Minimum training required includes 48 drill periods of one and one half hours each year, in addition to fifteen days' training in encampments or manœuvres

The Militia comprises all able bodied male citizens and applicants for citizenship between the ages of 18 and 45 The total number of men registered during the war between these ages was 24,234,021 No arrangement is made during peace times for the organisation and training of the entire body of the Militia

The President is Commander in Chief of both the Army and Navy The Secretary of War controls the Army with the aid of an Assistant Secretary and a Chief of Staff The former has supervision of the procurement of all military supplies and is charged with the mobilisation of industrial establishments for wartime needs, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the Army

Although the infantry during the war were chiefly armed with a modified Enfield rifle, the Springfield rifle, of American design, remains the standard small arm The 75 mm field gun and 155 mm howitzer have been adopted as the principal light mobile artillery weapons

The total casualties in the United States Army during the war amounted to 302,612, of whom 47,449 were killed in battle or died of wounds, while 9,169 died from other causes

II Navy.

The part played by the United States Navy during the war, its great service to the Allies, and its whole hearted co operation with the British Navy are well known, having been amply described In the Statesman's Year Book last year many figures were given illustrating the work of the American Fleet during the hostilities The United States entered upon a course of great naval expansion in 1916–17, which led to a considerable increase in expenditure, due mainly to the adoption for the first time of a continuous shipbuilding programme The period was of 3 years, the total cost was to be about 103,000 000*l*, and in the first year 4 battleships, 4 battle-cruisers, 4 scouts, 30 submarines and 20 destroyers were to be laid down A new programme came before Congress, designed, according to Mr Daniels then Secretary of the Navy (January 1, 1919), to make the United States Navy "second to none" This programme included 6 additional battleships, 2 additional battle cruisers, 6 additional scouts, and over 100 destroyers, submarines, &c The scheme was included in the Estimates of 1919 20, beginning with a comparatively small appropriation The Secretary repeatedly said that the United States must have the most powerful navy in the world The Naval Appropriation Bill passed both Houses in July, 1919, with an estimated expenditure of 123,200,000*l* The Naval Appropriation Bill of 1920–21 amounted to 484,406,269 dollars Provision is made for all the big ships to complete the programme

The grounds for the maintenance of the United States Navy at great strength were stated by the last Secretary on June 25, 1919 They are the need of maintaining fleets in both the Atlantic and the Pacific

The control of naval affairs is vested in the Secretary of the Navy, a Cabinet officer, appointed by the President, with the approval of the Senate The Assistant Secretary, a civilian, also appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate, the Chief of Naval Operations, the chiefs of seven administrative bureaus, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, and the Judge-Advocate General, are directly responsible to the Secretary The administrative bureaus are yards and docks, navigation, ordnance, construction and repair, steam engineering, supplies and accounts, and medicine and surgery

The Government Naval Stations and constructive and repairing establishments are at Portsmouth, N H , Boston, Mass , Brooklyn, N Y , League Island, Pa , Washington, D C , Norfolk, Va , Pensacola, Fla , Mare Island, Cal , and Puget Sound, and naval stations are at Newport, R I , New London Conn , Charleston, S C , Port Royal, S C , Kye West, Fla , New Orleans, La , Guantanamo, Cuba, Guam , Hawaii , Tutuila, Samoa , Cavite, P I , Olongapo, P I

The following is a classified statement of the strength of the United States Navy on December 31, 1918, 1919, and 1920 Vessels unserviceable for war purposes, gunboats, yachts, tugs, training ships, &c , not included —

With reference to the foregoing summary, it may be noted that the total number of destroyers built, building, and provided for, is 332, and of sub marines, 155 Money was not provided in the last appropriation account for 9 fleet submarines, additional to the above number

A table follows of the United States fleet of vessels built and building It is the practice to retain on the list for service a considerable number of old vessels of little value

Ships in italics will not be completed by the end of the present year

The public lands are divided into two great classes The one class have a dollar and a quarter an acre designated as the minimum price, and the other two dollars and a half an acre, the latter being the alternate sections, reserved by the United States in land grants to railroads, &c Titles to these lands may be acquired by location under the homestead laws, or, as to some classes, by purchase for cash The homestead laws give the right to 160 acres of a-dollar-and a-quarter lands to any citizen or applicant for citizenship who will actually settle upon and cultivate the land The title is perfected by the issue of a patent after three years (law of June 6, 1912) of actual settlement The only charges in the case of homestead entries are fees and commissions On July 1, 1920, 553,101,888 acres were unappropriated and unreserved, of which 352,781,760 were in Alaska During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1920, the area patented was 11,850,401 acres, of which 9,981,043 acres were patented under the homestead laws It is provided by law that two sections, of 640 acres of land, in each 'township,' are reserved for common schools, so that the spread of education may go together with colonisation

The power of Congress over the public territory is exclusive and universal, except so far as restrained by stipulations in the original cessions

The Reclamation Service (organised under the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902) is engaged in the investigation, construction, and operation of irrigation works in the arid and semi arid States of the West Thirty projects have been authorised for construction or operation for irrigation of lands in Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming These projects aggregate 3,200,000 acres, and the major works aid in serving an additional 1,000,000 acres under private canals that generally get stored water from the Government reservoirs The funds for this work have come chiefly from the sale of public lands, and the money expended is returned to the fund by easy payments of settlers, usually in twenty annual instalments without interest, in accordance with the Reclamation Extension Act of August 13, 1914 The Service has built on the 30 projects over 12,000 miles of canals, ditches and drains, including 100,000 canal structures, and involving the excavation of 174,000,000 cubic yards of materials In connection with this work there have been constructed 100 storage and diversion dams with an aggregate volume of 13,700,000 cubic yards, including the Arrowrock dam, the highest in the world (349 feet), the Elephant Butte dam on the Rio Grande, forming the largest artificial irrigation reservoir in the United States The net construction cost to June 30, 1919, was 123,853,000 dollars

1917	33,841,000	11,302,000	1920	36,383,000	12,987,000

The estimated cotton production in 1920 was grown in the following States Texas, 4,200,000 bales, South Carolina, 1,530,000, Georgia, 1,400 000, Oklahoma, 1,300,000, Arkansas, 1,160,000, Mississippi, 885,000, North Carolina, 840,000 Alabama, 660,000, Louisiana, 380,000, Tennessee, 310 000, California (including some grown in Mexico), 150,000, Arizona, 110,000, Missouri, 85,000, Virginia, 19,000, Florida, 18,000, all other, 15,000 bales

In 1920 there were under tobacco 1,894 400 acres, which yielded 1,508,064,000 lbs of tobacco The chief tobacco growing States were Kentucky, 550,000 acres, yielding 467 500,000 lbs, North Carolina, 582,000 acres, yielding 384,120,000 lbs, Virginia, 243 000 acres, yielding 177,390,000 lbs, Tennessee, 117,000 acres, yielding 85,410,000 lbs, South Carolina, 103,000 acres, yielding 66,950,000 lbs, Wisconsin, 50,000 acres, yielding 62,400,000 lbs, Ohio, 63,000 acres, yielding 60,480,000 lbs, Pennsylvania, 40,000 acres, yielding 60,400,000 lbs, Connecticut, 24,400 acres, yielding 36,112,000 lbs, Maryland, 35,000 acres, yielding 30,625,000 lbs, Indiana, 20,000 acres, yielding 18,000,000 lbs, Georgia, 26,700 acres, yielding 16,020,000 lbs, Massachusetts, 10,200 acres, yielding 15,810,000 lbs, West Virginia, 13,000 acres, yielding 10,400,000 lbs

The following table exhibits the number of farm animals in 1900 (June 1), 1910 (April 15), 1920 and 1921 (January 1) —

Live Stock	1900 (Census)	1910 (Census)	1920 (Estimate)	1921 (Estimate)
Horses	18,267,020	19,833,113	20,785,000	20,183,000
Mules	3,264,615	4,209,769	5,041,000	4,999,000
Cattle of all kinds	67,719,410	61,803,866	68,369,000	66,191,000
Swine	62,868,041	58,185,676	71,727,000	66,649,000

The value of farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1921, was —Cattle other than milch cows, 1,346,665,000 dollars, milch cows, 1,491,900,000 dollars, total value of all farm animals, 6,235,569,000 dollars

In 1914, the factories used 8,431,426,426 lbs of milk and 2,384,034,699 lbs of cream, made 786,003,489 lbs of butter, 377,513,409 lbs of cheese, and 883,112,901 lbs of condensed milk The total value of the products manufactured was 370,688,431 dollars

In 1901 the estimated production of wool was 302,502,328 pounds, in 1918, 298,870,000 pounds, in 1919, 313,638,000 pounds, and in 1920, 302,207,000 pounds

The census reports for 1914 show that the value of canned vegetables was 84,413,667 dollars, of canned fruits, 24,897,174 dollars, of dried fruits, 34,771,912 dollars, of canned soups, 7,877,057 dollars, and of all other products, including preserves, pickles, sauces, cider, and vinegar produced in canning establishments, 6,055,892 dollars The total value of canned products, in 1914, was 158,015,702 dollars

II Forests and Forestry

The United States forests cover 463,000,000 acres, or about one-fifth of the whole country Forests publicly owned contain one fifth of all timber standing Forests privately owned contain at least four fifths of the standing timber The original forests of the United States covered 822,000,000 acres, with a stand of not less than 5,200 billion feet of merchantable timber, of which about 2,215 billion board feet still remains There are five great forest regions—the northern the southern, the central, the Rocky Mountain, and the Pacific The standing timber in the United States is being cut and destroyed at the rate of 26 billion cubic feet per year, or more than four times as fast as new timber is growing

The heavy demands for timber have been rapidly pushing the great centres of lumber industry toward the South and West In consequence, the State of Washington now leads in lumber production, followed closely by Louisiana, Oregon, Mississippi, and Arkansas

The annual consumption, including waste in logging and in manufacture, is more than 26,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood It includes over 110,000,000 cords of firewood, more than 40,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, 650,000,000 feet logs for veneer, 87,500,000 ties, nearly 1,300,000,000 staves, over 82,000,000 sets of heading, over 330,000,000 barrel hoops, over 4,550,000 cords of native pulpwood, 250,000,000 cubic feet of round mine timbers, 900,000,000 fence posts, 1,550,000 cords of wood for distillation, 1,250,000 cords for tanning extract, 200,000 cords for excelsior, and 4,250,000 telegraph and telephone poles, 8,850,000,000 shingles, and 2,375,000,000 lath

The present net area of the national forests, including those in Alaska and Porto Rico and lands acquired by purchase in the White Mountains and Southern Appalachian regions for national forest purposes, is 156,032,053 acres

The operating costs of the national forests are about 4,000,000 dollars annually For improvements (roads trails, telephone lines, bridges, cabins, etc) there is an annual appropriation of 400,000 dollars, plus ten per cent, of the receipts In addition, the Federal Aid Roads Act in 1916, made available 1,000,000 dollars yearly for ten years, for roads and trails within or partly within the national forests There was also included in the Post Office appropriation bill, which was approved February 28, 1919, an item of 3,000,000 dollars a year for three years for road work, which became available immediately on the approval of the bill The total regular appropriation for the support of the Forest Service, including its diversified investigative and co operative work, for the fiscal year 1921 is 6,295,822 dollars, including 300,000 dollars for fire fighting and 125,000 dollars for co operative fire protection

The receipts from the several sources for the last three fiscal years were as follows —

Fiscal Year	Timber	Grazing	Special Uses, &c	All sources
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1918	1,633,649	1,725,822	215,459	3 574,930
1919	1,540,100	2,609,170	209,145	4,358,414
1920	2,067,395	2,486,040	240,046	4,793,482

Under the law 25 per cent of the receipts is paid to the States in which the national forests are located, to be expended for roads and schools This is in addition to the 10 per cent of the receipts already mentioned as available for improvements, which is expended under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture for road and trail building in national forests in co-operation with State authorities or otherwise

The grazing receipts for 1920 were paid by the holders of 31,301 permits to graze 2,035,432 cattle 83,234 horses, and 4,066 swine, and of 6,178 permits to graze 7,280,584 sheep and 53,685 goats

The following table shows, by States, the total cut of timber from the national forests in the fiscal year 1920

The total value of the mineral products in 1916 was 3,513,972,000 dollars, in 1917, 5,007,937,000 dollars

The total production of coal from 1807, the date of the earliest record, to the close of 1919 was 13,539,214,655 short tons

The precious metals are raised mainly in California, Colorado, Alaska, and Nevada for gold, and Montana, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, and Colorado for silver The production of gold and silver in the United States from 1792 to 1919 was as follows —

Year	Gold		Silver
	Ozs troy	Dollars	Ozs troy	Dollars
1792-1847	1,187,170	24,537,000	309,500	404,500

IV. Manufactures

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1880 to 1915 The censuses of 1905, 1910, and 1915, unlike the earlier censuses, did not include hand and neighbourhood industries, but were confined to establishments conducted under the factory system or producing goods for the general market The statistics for each census cover the preceding calendar year —

Census	Number of Establishments	Capital	Persons employed	Value of products	Cost of materials
		Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1880 [1]	253 852	2,790,273,000	2,732,595	5,369,579,000	3,396,824,000

[4] Includes salaried officials, clerks, &c , and wage earners, does not include proprietors and firm members

The censuses of 1890, 1900, and 1905 cover Alaska , the census of 1910 covers Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico , the census of 1914 covers Continental United States

The census of manufactures for 1909 and 1914 (not including Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico) were confined to establishments under the factory system, to the exclusion of neighbourhood industries and hand trades such as custom dress making, tailoring, carpentering, grist and saw milling The census results were as follows —

V Fisheries

In 1908 (latest census) there were in the United States 143,881 fishermen, or 6,933 vessels and 83,549 boats, and the products were valued at 54,030,630 dollars The capital invested was 42,021 000 dollars

For the canning and preserving of fish, clams, oysters, and shrimp in the United States (including Alaska) there were in 1914, according to the census reports, 538 establishments, the products of which for that year were valued at 55,215,391 dollars

Commerce.

The subjoined table gives the total value, in pounds sterling, of the imports and exports of domestic merchandise in years ended June 30 —

Year (ended June 30)	Imports of Merchandise	Exports of Merchandise	Year (ended June 30)	Imports of Merchandise	Exports of Merchandise

Every National Bank is required to become a stockholder, to the extent of 6 per cent of its capital and surplus (of which 50 per cent must be paid in), in the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which it is situated State banks and Trust companies may also become member banks under certain conditions On December 31, 1920, there were 8,168 National Banks members of the Federal Reserve System and 1,489 Member State Banks and Trust Companies giving a total of 9,657 member banks The largest district was Chicago with 1,423 member banks, the smallest Boston with 439 members

The Federal Reserve Banks, except for open market purchases, do no banking business with the public, but only with their member banks They may issue Federal Reserve notes against gold or commercial paper with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per cent The whole system is under the control of the Federal Reserve Board, composed of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Controller of the Currency, both ex officio, together with five other appointed members

The following is a statement of the combined resources and liabilities of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks on December 30, 1920, and December 31, 1919

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The dollar of 100 cents is of the par value of 49 32*d*, or 4 8665 dollars to the pound sterling

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25 8 grains (or 1 6718 gramme) 900 fine The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold has been established for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury notes in gold at sight

Gold coins in common use are 20, 10 and 5 dollar pieces called double eagles, and half-eagles The eagle weighs 258 grains or 16 71818 grammes 900 fine, and therefore contains 232 2 grains or 15 0464 grammes of fine gold

The silver dollar weighs 412 5 grains or 26 730 grammes 900 fine, and therefore contains 371 25 grains or 24 057 grammes of fine silver Subsidiary silver coins contain 347 22 grains of fine silver per dollar

British weights and measures are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel are used instead of the new or imperial standards They are —

Wine Gallon	=	0 83333 gallon
Ale Gallon	=	1 01695 ,,
Bushel	=	0 9692 imperial bushel

Instead of the British cwt a Cental, of 100 pounds, issued, the short ton contains 2 000 lbs , the long ton, 2,240 lbs

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Government.—The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of an area of about 70 square miles which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital It was established under the authority and direction of Acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the eighth section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, giving Congress the power —

'To exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cession of particular States and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like authority over all places purchased, by the consent of the legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings'

The authority of the United States over it became vested on the first Monday of December, 1800

The present form of local government, which dates from July 1, 1878, is a municipal corporation, and is administered by a board of three Commissioners having in general equal powers and duties Two of these Commissioners are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, for a term of three years each The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army This Commissioner is selected from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government, except that the Congress of the United States, only, has authority to enact legislation and appropriate money for the municipal expenses. Congress has, by sundry statutes, empowered the commissioners to make and enforce reasonable and usual police regulations for the protection of lives, health, quiet, &c., of all persons, and the protection of all property within the District, and other regulations of a municipal nature They have also been constituted a 'Public Utilities Commission'

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners —Daniel E Garges

Area and Population —The area of the District of Columbia originally was about ten miles square, but by the retrocession to the State of Virginia, in the year 1846, of the portion derived from that State, was reduced to 69 245 square miles, 60 01 of which are land
