PREFACE

It has been the aim of the Editor to make the Year-Book a mirror of the political and economic conditions of the countries of the world, as they were at the thirty-first of March of the present year. To this end every section has been revised and brought up to date, and furnished with the latest statistics, including in many cases the trade returns for 1930.

Since the last issue of the Year-Book was published a Census was taken not only in the United States, but also in Chile, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Honduras, Latvia, Mexico, the Dutch East Indies, Norway and Switzerland. The returns will be found incorporated in the sections devoted to these respective countries. The two maps illustrate interesting aspects of recent political developments.

Important information that became available too late for inclusion in the body of the book will be found under "Additions and Corrections."

The Editor's task would have been impossible without the help of friends all over the world. To one and all he desires to express his warmest thanks.

BRITISH NAVAL ESTIMATES, 1931-32.

British Naval Estimates for 1931–32 provide for a total expenditure of 51,605,000/ net, or 342,000/ less than the preceding year. New construction to be begun comprises two 7,000 ton cruisers and one of 5,000 tons; a flotilla leader and 8 destroyers; 4 sloops; 3 submarines; a river gunboat; a mining tender for the torpedo school: and a gate vessel for boom defence. A further reduction is to be effected in the strength of the personnel, which will be brought down to 93,650 officers and men.

FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL AGREEMENT.

By an agreement concluded between France and Italy in March 1931, the adhesion of these two countries has been secured to the general provisions of Part III. of the London Naval Treaty. Previously this section applied only to the British Empire, the United States and Japan. Threatened competition between France and Italy in the building of cruisers and lighter vessels in the years 1931–36 has thus been avoided. During this period France and Italy will each be at liberty to construct two 23,000 ton capital ships armed with 12-inch guns, as an offset to the German 10,000 ton battleships with 11-inch guns. France is to be allowed a total submarine tonnage of 81,989 against the figure of 52,700, to which the other four parties to the London Treaty are restricted.

XI.—WORLD'S SHIPBUILDING.

The volume of merchant shipping under construction in the various countries at the end of 1929 and 1930 respectively, is shown in the following table of gross tonnage:—

Gross tonnage of vessels under construction in principal shipbuilding countries of the world, on indicated dates.

Country	Dec. 31, 1929	Dec 31, 1930	No. of Vessels
			1929	1930
Great Britain and Ireland	1,560,254	908,902	1,558	904
Germany	253,256	218,215	253	218
Netherlands	231,934	160,078	232	160
Japan	183,570	86,060	184	86
United States	179,062	282,080	171	230
France	167,177	174,215	167	178
Russia	121,069	—	—	—
Denmark	104,589	107,660	105	108
Sweden	98,440	145,750	93	146
Italy	77,919	179,677	78	179

Merchant vessels launched throughout the world in 1930 represented a larger volume of tonnage than for any year since 1921 During 1930, for the first time in the history of world shipbuilding, the tonnage of motor ships launched was in excess of that for all other types of vessels combined. Another feature of the 1930 returns is the increase in output of the shipyards of the United States. Their launchings were almost double their total for 1929. As a result, this country, which ranked fifth in volume of output in 1929, is now second only to Great Britain and Ireland.

A comparison of the launchings during the past two years is shown by the following figures, in gross tons, 1930 figures standing first, followed by 1929 figures (in parentheses): United States, 246,687 (126,063), Great Britain and Ireland, 1,478,563 (1,522,623); other countries, 1,164,222 (1,144,524); world total, 2,889,472 (2,793,210).

XII.—THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Secretary-General.—Sir James Eric Drummond, K.C.M.G., C.B.

The League of Nations is an association of States which have pledged themselves through signing the Covenant (i.e., the constitution of the League) [For the text of the Covenant, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1921, page xxviii], not to go to war before submitting their disputes with each other or States not members of the League to arbitration or enquiry and a delay of from three to nine months. Furthermore, any State violating this pledge is automatically in a state of outlawry with the other States, which are bound to sever all economic and political relations with the defaulting member. The States Members of the League have pledged themselves to co-operate over a wide range of economic, social, humanitarian and labour questions.

The League of Nations formally came into existence on January 10, 1920, through the coming into force at that date of the Treaty of Versailles. The two official languages of the League are English and French. The seat of the League is Geneva, Switzerland.

[1] Made declarations putting the protection of their national minorities under League auspices as a condition of their entry into the League

[2] Brazil on June 12, 1926, and Spain on September 8, 1926, announced their withdrawal from the League; according to Art. 1, par. 3, of the Covenant, the notice of withdrawal only comes into force two years after it has been given. On March 22, 1928, Spain resolved to continue a member of the League. Brazil's withdrawal became effective on June 12, 1928.

The delegation of the Argentine Republic did not attend the second Assembly and withdrew from the first Assembly upon the latter's decision to refer the amendment to Article 1 of the Covenant proposed by the Argentine, for study by a committee that was to report to the second Assembly. The Argentine Government has not given notice of an intention to leave the League, and appears to regard itself as in a state of suspended or passive membership, to continue until some measure regarded as a satisfactory equivalent to the amendment proposed by the Argentine has been adopted by the League.

The following 10 States are not members of the League:— United States, Brazil (see above), the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Turkey, Egypt, Ecuador, Mexico, Afghanistan, Costa Rica, and the Hejaz and other Arab States. Costa Rica became a member of the League on December 16, 1920, but on December 24, 1924, she gave notice of her intention to withdraw, on the ground of the expense involved. The notice became effective on December 24, 1926. She has since announced to the League her intention to bring the question of her return before the Constitutional Congress. Egypt is to apply for admission on the ratification of the treaty settling the 'reserved issues' between herself and Great Britain

II. THE ORGANS OF THE LEAGUE.

The primary organs of the League are:—

1. The Council.
2. The Assembly.
3. The Secretariat.
4. The International Labour Organisation.
5. The Permanent Court of International Justice (at the Hague).

1. The Council.

The Council was originally composed of four permanent Members (the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan) and four non-permanent Members to be elected every year by a majority of the Assembly. The first non-permanent Members, appointed by the Peace Conference and named in the Covenant before the first Assembly met, were Belgium, Brazil, Greece, and Spain. With the approval of the majority of the Assembly, the Council may appoint new permanent and non-permanent Members. At the Assembly of September 1926, Germany was admitted to the League and given a permanent seat on the Council. At the same time the number of non-permanent seats, already increased to six in 1922, was further increased to nine, the period of office to be three years. In order to institute the new system of rotation, three were elected for one year, three for two years, and three for three years, so that at all subsequent Assemblies three members retire instead of nine at once. In 1928 (Sept.) China, Colombia, and Holland were replaced by Spain, Persia, and Venezuela. Spain was specially accorded the privilege of re-eligibility on the expiration of her three years period of office. Poland was accorded the same privilege on her election for three years in 1926, and was re-elected in 1929. Belgium and China both failed to get the necessary majority required for re-eligibility. Any Member of the League not represented on the Council shall be invited to send a representative to sit on it at any meetings at which matters especially affecting it are being discussed. A similar invitation may be extended to States not Members of the League.

The Council meets on the 3rd Monday in January, the 2nd Monday in May, and just before and after the Assembly in September.

The Council is at present (March 1931) composed of the following representatives :

PERMANENT MEMBERS.

British Empire—The Right Hon. Mr. Arthur Henderson, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.
France—M. Aristide Briand, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Germany—Dr. Curtius, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Italy—Signor Grandi, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Japan—M. Yoshisawa.

NON-PERMANENT MEMBERS.

Guatemala.—M. Matos.
Irish Free State —Mr. Blythe.
Norway.—M. Mowinckel.
Persia—M. Ali Khan Foroughi, Ambassador in Turkey.
Peru—M. Barreto.
Poland—M. Zaleski, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
Spain—M. Quinones de Leon, Ambassador in Paris.
Venezuela—M. Zumeta, Minister in Paris.
Yugoslavia—M. Marinkovitch, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

2. THE ASSEMBLY.

Every State Member of the League is entitled to be represented by a delegation to the Assembly composed of not more than three delegates and three substitute delegates, but it has only one vote. It meets at the seat of the League (Geneva) on the first Monday in September. It may meet at other places than Geneva, but hitherto it has never done so; extraordinary sessions may be called to deal with urgent matters.

The President is elected at the first meeting of the session, and holds office for the duration of the session.

The Assembly divides itself into the following six principal committees, on each of which every State Member of the League has the right to be represented by one delegate :

I. Juridical.
II. Technical Organisations.
III. Disarmament.
IV. Budget and Staff.
V. Social Questions.
VI. Political Questions and admission of new Members.

The decisions of the Assembly must be voted unanimously, except where the Covenant or the Peace Treaties provide otherwise. As a general principle decisions on questions of procedure are voted by majority or in some cases by a two-thirds majority.

THE SECRETARIAT.

The Secretariat is a permanent organ composed of the Secretary-General and a number of officials selected from among citizens of all Member States and from the United States of America. The Secretary-General, appointed by the Peace Conference (see Annex to the Covenant), is the Hon. Sir James Eric Drummond, K.C.M.G., C.B., British Foreign Office Official; hereafter the Secretary-General will be appointed by the Council with the approval of the majority of the Assembly. The other officials are appointed by the Secretary-General with the approval of the Council.

The Under-Secretaries-General are :—
M. J. Avenol, former French Inspector-General of Finance (Deputy Secretary-General);
Marchese Paulucci di Calboli Barone, former Italian Minister Plenipotentiary ;
Herr A. Dufour-Féronce, former German Councillor of Embassy ;
M. Yotaro Sugimura, former Japanese Minister Plenipotentiary.

4. THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION. [See below.]

5. PERMANENT COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE.

The revised Statutes adopted at the 10th Assembly provide for 15 judges for the Court, and stipulate that the Court shall remain permanently in Session except for such holidays as it may decide. The judges are elected jointly by the Council and the Assembly of the League for a term of 9 years.

The Secondary Organs of the League are :—

(a) The Technical Organisations.

1. Economic and Financial.
2. Health.
3. Transit.

(b) Advisory Commissions.

1. Military, Naval and Air Commission.

V. MANDATES.

The African and Pacific possessions of Germany and certain territories of the Ottoman Empire were ceded by these countries at the end of the war to the Allied and Associated Powers. The latter had inserted an article (Art. 22) in the Covenant of the League according to which the inhabitants of these territories should be put under the tutelage of "advanced nations who by reason of their resources, their experience, or their geographical position, can best undertake this responsibility." These nations should act as mandatories of the League, and exercise their powers on behalf of the League. They should act on the principle that the well-being and development of the peoples under their tutelage formed a "sacred trust of civilisation," and should render the Council an annual report on the territory committed to their charge.

Article 22 furthermore divides the mandated territories into three classes, according to the degree of civilisation of their inhabitants, economic and geographic circumstances, and so forth. Class A is composed of the communities detached from the Ottoman Empire, declared to have "reached a stage of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognised subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a Mandatory until such time as they are able to stand alone."

Class B, consisting of the former German colonies in Central and East Africa, should be administered by the Mandatory under conditions which will "guarantee freedom of conscience or religion, subject only to the maintenance of public order and morals, the prohibition of abuses such as the slave trade, the arms traffic and the liquor traffic, and the prevention of the establishment of fortifications or military or naval bases and of military training of the natives for other than police purposes and the defence of territory, and will also secure equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other members of the League."

Class C (German South-West Africa and Pacific Islands possessions) is composed of territories which, owing to sparseness of population, small size, remoteness from centres of civilisation, or geographical contiguity to the territory of the Mandatory Power, "can best be administered under the laws of the Mandatory as integral portions of its territory, subject to the safeguards above mentioned in the interests of the indigenous population."

The Supreme Council, as the organ of the Allied and Associated Powers, allocated the mandates for the territories ceded by Germany and Turkey, subject to the approval of the Council of the League. The mandates and mandatory powers, as determined by the Supreme Council, are :—

A Mandates.—Mesopotamia (now the Kingdom of Iraq) and Palestine, attributed to Great Britain. Syria (including Lebanon), attributed to France.

B Mandates.—Togoland and Cameroon, attributed in part to Great Britain and in part to France.

The North-Western portion of former German East Africa, attributed to Belgium.
The remainder of former German East Africa (now Tanganyika Colony), attributed to Great Britain.

C Mandates.—Former German South Pacific possessions (except Nauru and Samoa), attributed to Australia.

Samoa, attributed to New Zealand, and Nauru, attributed to the British Empire and administered by Australia, New Zealand, and Great Britain.
Former German North Pacific possessions (Yap, etc.), attributed to Japan.
Former German South-West Africa, attributed to the Union of South Africa.

VI. INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION.

The number of States Members of the International Labour Organisation is now 55. The Organisation has held fourteen Conferences, in 1919 at Washington, in 1920 at Genoa, and subsequently in Geneva. At these Conferences the following Draft Conventions and Recommendations have been adopted :—

First Session (Washington, 1919).

II. Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, born May 1, 1850; married March 13, 1879, to Princess Louise of Prussia, born July 25, 1860, died March 14, 1917. Living offspring.—(1) Arthur, born Jan. 13, 1883, married Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife, October 15, 1913; (2) Patricia, born March 17, 1886, married February 27, 1919, Hon. Alexander R. M. Ramsay, D.S.O., R.N.

III. Princess Beatrice, born April 14, 1857; married July 23, 1885, to Prince Henry (died January 20, 1896), third son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. Living offspring:—(1) Alexander Albert, born Nov. 23, 1886, married Lady Irene Denison; (2) Victoria Eugénie, born Oct. 24, 1887, married May 31, 1906, to Alfonso XIII., King of Spain.

The King's legal title rests on the statute of 12 and 13 Will. III. c. 3, by which the succession to the Crown of Great Britain and Ireland was settled on the Princess Sophia of Hanover and the 'heirs of her body being Protestants.' By Act of Parliament, 1927, the title of the King is declared to be 'George V., by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.' By proclamation of July 17, 1917, the Royal family became known as the House and Family of Windsor.

By Letters Patent of November 30, 1917, the titles of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess are (except for existing titles) to be restricted to the Sovereign's children, the children of the Sovereign's sons, and the eldest living son of the eldest son of the Prince of Wales.

Provision is made for the support of the Royal household by the settlement of the Civil List soon after the commencement of each reign (For historical details, see YEAR-BOOK for 1908, p. 5.) By Act of 10 Ed. VII. and 1 Geo. V. c 28 (August 3, 1910), the Civil List of the King, after the usual surrender of hereditary revenues, is fixed at 470,000*l.*, of which 110,000*l* is appropriated to the privy purse of the King and Queen, 125,800*l.* for salaries of the Royal household and retired allowances, 193,000*l.* for household expenses, 20,000*l* for works, 13,200*l* for alms and bounty, and 8,000*l.* remains unappropriated. The same Civil List Act of 1910 also provides for an annuity of 70,000*l* to Queen Mary in the event of her surviving the King. Should the Prince of Wales marry, the Princess of Wales will receive an annuity of 10,000*l.*, and should she survive the Prince of Wales, this annuity will be raised to one of 30,000*l.* Further, there is to be paid to trustees for the benefit of the King's children (other than the Duke of Cornwall) an annual sum of 10,000*l* in respect of each son (other than the Duke of Cornwall) who attains the age of 21 years, and a further annual sum of 15,060*l.* in respect of each such son who marries, and an annuity of 6,000*l.* in respect of each daughter who attains the age of 21 or marries. The First Commissioner of the Treasury, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Keeper of the King's Privy Purse are appointed the Royal Trustees under this Act. The King has paid to him the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster, the payments made therefrom in 1929 being 62,000*l.* for His Majesty's use.

On the Consolidated Fund are charged likewise the following sums allowed to members of the royal family —25,000*l* a year to the Duke of Connaught; 6,000*l* to H.R.H. Helena Augusta Victoria (Princess Christian); 6,000*l.* to Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll; 6,000*l.* to H R.H Beatrice Mary Victoria Feodore , and 6,000*l.* to each of the late King's daughters

The Heir Apparent has an income from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, the payment in 1926 on his account being 66,713*l.*

GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND.

Constitution and Government.

I. Imperial and Central.

The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is vested in Parliament. Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least twenty days previous to its assembling.

Since 1914 the sittings of Parliament have been interrupted only by comparatively short intervals. Every session must end with a prorogation, and all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse. A dissolution may occur by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of any Parliament being five years.

Under the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V, ch. 13), all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons), if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified. Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the same Parliament or not, and rejected each time, or not passed, by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons and the third reading in the third session. All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least one month before the end of the session. Finally, the Parliament Act limited the maximum duration of Parliament to five years.

The present form of Parliament, as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(i) by hereditary right ; (ii) by creation of the sovereign ; (iii) by virtue of office—Law Lords, and English archbishops (2) and bishops (24) ; (iv) by election for life—Irish peers (28) ; (v) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers (16). The full house would consist of about 740 members, but the voting strength is about 720.

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough, and University constituencies. No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament. Clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland, and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members ; Government contractors, and sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act, are also among those disqualified. No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible. Under the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1918, women are also eligible, and the first woman member took her seat in December, 1919.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was first made for the payment of a salary of 400*l.* per year to members, other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, as Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's household. Payment began as from April 1, 1911. This provision does not extend to the House of Lords.

Under the Representation of the People (Equal Franchise) Act, 1928, the qualifications for the franchise are the same for men and women. Electors, for inclusion in the new register, must be of full age (twenty-one years), and have resided, or occupied business premises of an annual value of not less than ten pounds, in the same parliamentary borough or county, or one contiguous thereto, for the qualifying period of three months ending on December 1, 1928, and in Scotland, on December 15, 1928. There is also a University franchise, to be qualified for which a person must be twenty-one years of age, and must have taken a degree, or in the case of a woman, have fulfilled the conditions which would entitle a man to a degree.

Every registered elector is entitled to vote at an election, but no person may vote at a general election for more than two constituencies, for one of which there must be a residential qualification. The second vote must rest on a different qualification, and each vote must be recorded in a different constituency.

Disqualified for registration are (among others) peers, infants, aliens, bankrupts, lunatics and idiots. Receipt of poor relief or other alms does not count as a disqualification.

Two registers of electors must be prepared each year, one in the spring, and the other in the autumn, except in Ireland, where only one is required; and the authorised expenses are met by local and State funds in equal parts. University registers may be made up as the governing bodies decide, and a registration fee not exceeding 1*l.* may be charged.

In university constituencies returning two or more members the elections must be according to the principle of proportional representation, each elector having one transferable vote. At a general election all polls must be held on the same day, except in the case of Orkney and Shetland, and of university elections. Provision is made for absent electors to vote, in certain cases by proxy.

Under the same Act the seats in Great Britain were redistributed on the basis of one member of the House of Commons for every 70,000 of the population. By a separate Act, redistribution in Ireland was made on the basis of one for every 43,000 of the population. The total membership of the House of Commons was thereby raised from 670 (as established in 1885) to 707. In 1922 the number was reduced to 615 (including 13 from Northern Ireland), owing to the establishment of separate parliaments in Ireland.

The electorate in 1929 numbered 28,850,000. Under the provisions of the Representation of the People Act, 1928, it is estimated that about 5,000,000 new voters were added to the register in 1929.

The following is a table of the duration of Parliaments called since the accession of King Edward VII. (for heads of the Administrations see p. 8).

The executive government is vested nominally in the Crown, but practically in a committee of Ministers, called the Cabinet, whose existence is dependent on the support of a majority in the House of Commons.

The head of the Ministry is the Prime Minister, a position first constitutionally recognised, and special precedence accorded to the holder, in 1905. No salary is attached to the office of Prime Minister, as such, and it is usually held in conjunction with some other high office of State, generally that of First Lord of the Treasury. His colleagues in the Ministry are appointed on his recommendation, and he dispenses the greater portion of the patronage of the Crown.

The present Government (appointed June 8, 1929) consists of the following members :

(a) THE CABINET.

1. Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury, and Leader of the House of Commons.—Right Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, born 1866. Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury, Foreign Secretary, 1924. Present appointment, 1929.

II. Local Government.

England and Wales.—In each county the Crown is represented by H.M. Lieutenant. There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of the peace and a clerk of the County Council, coroners, who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers. The licensing of persons to sell intoxicating liquors, and the administration of the criminal law—except that which deals with some of the graver offences—are in the hands of the magistrates.

For the purposes of local government England and Wales are divided primarily into sixty-two administrative counties, including the county of London, and eighty-three County Boroughs. The counties are administered by the justices and by a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co-opt a prescribed number of aldermen, either from their own body or from outside it. Aldermen are elected for six years, half of them retiring every third year. A councillor is elected for three years. The jurisdiction of the County Councils covers the administration of higher and (outside certain Boroughs and Urban Districts) elementary education; maintenance of main roads and bridges; work in relation to agriculture (diseases of animals, destructive insects and pests, land drainage, fertilisers and feeding stuffs, small holdings and allotments); provision of mental hospitals and other public health work (schemes for treatment of tuberculosis and venereal diseases, for maternity and child welfare, and for the welfare of the blind; accommodation and care of mental defectives; prevention of pollution of rivers; and supervision of milk and other food supplies). The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of equal numbers of magistrates and of members of the County Council. The Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary.

Secondly, the administrative counties, with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into 'County Districts' which are either 'Urban Districts' or 'Rural Districts.' Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes. County District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and exercise powers under the Housing Acts. Urban Authorities may also take over the maintenance and repair of main roads from County Councils; provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c.; establish and manage trading services (gas, electricity, water, trams, &c.). Councils of Boroughs which had over 10,000, and of Urban Districts which had over 20,000 people in 1901 are also usually the local authorities for elementary education. Rural District Councils may also make arrangements for an adequate water supply; and exercise any 'urban powers' conferred on them by the Minister of Health.

Under the Local Government Act, 1929, the functions of the Poor Law authorities are transferred to county and county borough councils. These functions include the organisation and management of indoor and outdoor relief, responsibility for collection of fundamental vital statistics and responsibility for the provision, maintenance and management of all public institutions for the cure of diseases. Provision is also made under the Act to secure for every county district council the services of a medical officer of health. Industrial and freight-transport hereditaments are derated to the extent of three-fourths and agricultural lands are completely derated. The Act provides for the abolition of most of the assigned revenue grants, of the grants under the Agricultural Rates Acts, and of the percentage grants paid in respect of health services and certain roads. In place of these a grant comprising the equivalent of the total loss to local authorities both of rates and of grants under the Act, together with a substantial amount of new money, will be distributed as a "block grant" fixed for five years at a time on a basis of local need and ascertained by means of a formula. To avoid the difficulties created by a sudden change in the revenues of local authorities the allocation of grant will not be entirely by the formula until 1947.

The main central authority in London is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1888. It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, parks, main drainage, fire brigade, sanitary control, education, and numerous other matters. It is also the tramway authority for the county. The City Corporation has powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c., in the City of London. London comprises the ancient city with an area of one square mile, and an area of 118 square miles beyond the city, which is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen, and councillors (women are eligible). The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education &c., but they are not municipal boroughs in the statutory sense as in the rest of the Kingdom. The County Council has certain powers of control over them.

In all incorporated towns, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation. There are two kinds of municipal boroughs, County Boroughs and Non-County Boroughs. A number of the latter are small boroughs of special and generally ancient jurisdiction. Most of the County Boroughs and a number of the Non-County Boroughs have a separate Court of Quarter Sessions. The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils. A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers. The councillors serve for three years (women are eligible), one-third retiring annually; the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who serves for one year, also by the Council. A Town Council as an Urban Authority is invested with all the normal powers of an Urban District Council; and in addition certain powers, such as making byelaws or maintaining a separate police force, are conferred either upon all Town Councils or upon Councils of towns of certain sizes, or complying with other conditions, in virtue of their status as Councils of incorporated towns.

Scotland.—A Local Government Act was passed for Scotland in 1889 and followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year. The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply, the Justices and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to County Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890. By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted, consisting of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor-General for Scotland, the Under-Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown. The latter Act provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards. Their principal function is the administration of the Poor Laws, and in addition they exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England. There were 869 civil parishes in 1921. The powers and duties of the Local Government Board were by the Scottish Board of Health Act, 1919, transferred to the Scottish Board of Health, constituted as in that Act provided. Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England. Each burgh has a Town Council consisting of a Provost or Lord Provost, Bailies and Councillors. The Provost is the head of the Scottish municipality and holds office for three years. Bailies are selected by the Councillors from among their own number; they act as magistrates and sit as such in police courts. There are in Scotland three principal kinds of burghs, numbering altogether 201 (1921 census): (1) Royal Burghs, i.e. burghs created by a Charter of the Crown; (2) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs; (3) Police Burghs, constituted under a general Police Act. All burghs of whatever class have new Town Councils and their administration is regulated by the Burgh Police (Scotland) and Town Councils (Scotland) Acts or corresponding local Acts. The Local Government (Scotland) Bill, 1929, makes many drastic changes in the local government machinery so as to bring it in line as far as possible with that set up for England and Wales. The new units of local government are the county councils and burghs with a population of over 20,000. Only the four great cities are Poor Law authorities and parish councils are abolished.

Area and Population.

I. Progress and Present Condition.

The population was thus distributed at the census, taken June 19, 1921 :—

Divisions	Area in sq. miles	Males	Females	Total Population on June 19, 1921
England (including Monmouthshire)	50,874	16,977,647	18,703,372	35,681,019

II. MOVEMENT OF THE POPULATION.

1. Births, Deaths, and Marriages.

England and Wales.

Year	Estimated Population at 30th June	Total Live Births	Illegitimate Births	Deaths	Marriages
1926	39,067,000	694,563	29,591	453,804	279,860
1927	39,290,000	654,172	29,023	484,609	308,370
1928	39,482,000	660,267	29,702	460,389	303,228
1929	39,607,000	643,673	29,307	532,492	313,316
1930	39,806,000	649,430	29,682	455,397	314,698

In 1930 the proportion of male to female births was 1,044 male to 1,000 female. In 1930 the live birth rate was 16·3 and the death rate 11·4 per thousand of the population.

Scotland.

Year	Estimated Population at 30th June	Total Births	Illegitimate Births	Deaths	Marriages
1926	4,896,638	102,449	7,046	63,780	31,244

1930	4,879,700	94,538	6,946	64,283	33,323

Proportion of male to female births in 1930 was 1,034 to 1,000.

In 1930 the birth rate was 19·3 and the death rate 13·2 per thousand of the population.

2. Emigration and Immigration.

In the thirty-eight years 1815–1852, the total number of emigrants from the United Kingdom was 3,463,592. Up to 1852 the emigration returns made no distinction between British subjects and foreigners. From 1853 to 1930 inclusive, the number of passengers of British origin, to places out of Europe, was 15,842,000. Figures of the passenger traffic to and from non-European countries in recent years are given as follows :—

Year	Outward			Inward			Balance outward.
	British subjects	Aliens	Total	British subjects	Aliens	Total	Total
1925	250,314	104,609	354,923	163,258	77,931	241,189	113,734
1926	284,009	118,409	402,438	160,680	76,699	237,379	165,059
1927	277,327	136,792	414,119	173,724	86,037	259,761	154,358
1928	270,720	126,527	397,247	187,890	88,815	276,705	120,542
1929	280,767	118,636	399,403	188,230	89,706	277,936	121,467

The number of British emigrants (excluding persons only temporarily absent) to places out of Europe was 143,686 in 1929, 92,158 in 1930, and the immigrants of British nationality into Great Britain was 56,217 in 1929, 66,203 in 1930.

The destinations of British subjects leaving the United Kingdom to take up permanent residence in non-European countries in 1930 were mainly the United States, 27,436 (30,709 in 1929); British North America, 31,074 (65,558 in 1929); Australia, 8,517 (18,377 in 1929); New Zealand, 3,981 (4,700 in 1929); British South Africa, 4,559 (5,766 in 1929); India and Ceylon, 5,636 (6,265 in 1929).

The passenger movement between the United Kingdom and European countries (including all ports in the Mediterranean and Black Seas) in recent years is given as follows :—

Religion.

1. England and Wales.

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects. Under the Welsh Church Acts, 1914 and 1919, the Church in Wales and Monmouthshire was disestablished as from March 31, 1920, and Wales was formed into a separate Archbishopric. Property belonging to the Church in Wales, and a sum of 1,000,000*l.* provided by Parliament, were assigned to a temporary body not exceeding three persons, called the Welsh Commissioners, for distribution to a body representing the Church (called the Representative Body), and to certain other authorities including the University of Wales.

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church in England, possessing the right, regulated by statute, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics. The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as are in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries are in the gift of the Lord Chancellor.

There are 3 archbishops (at the head of the three 'provinces' of Canterbury, York and Wales) and 46 bishops, and 29 suffragan bishops in England and Wales. Each archbishop has also his own particular diocese, wherein he exercises episcopal, as in his province he exercises archiepiscopal jurisdiction. Under the bishops are 32 deans and 110 archdeacons. Under the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919, there is a National Assembly, called 'the Church Assembly,' in England, consisting of a House of Bishops, a House of Clergy, and a House of Laymen, which has power to legislate regarding Church matters. The first two Houses consist of the Convocations of Canterbury and York, which in turn consist of the bishops (forming an Upper House), archdeacons, and deans, and a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of the inferior clergy (forming the Lower House). The House of Laymen is elected by the lay members of the Diocesan Conference. Parochial affairs are managed by a Parochial Church Meeting and Church Council. Every measure passed by the Church Assembly must be submitted to an Ecclesiastical Committee, consisting of fifteen members of the House of Lords nominated by the Lord Chancellor, and fifteen members of the House of Commons nominated by the Speaker. This Committee reports on each measure to Parliament, and the measure becomes law if each House of Parliament passes a resolution to that effect.

The number of civil parishes (districts for which a separate poor rate is or can be made) at the census of 1911 was 14,614. These, however, in most cases, do not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which have, from the civil point of view, lost their old importance. Of such parishes there were (1929) 13,299, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands, but excluding Wales. Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent or minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish. Private persons possess the right of presentation to 6,547 benefices; the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the King, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor, and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In 1929 there were about 12,824 beneficed clergy, and 4,224 assistant curacies. The contributions in the Church of England in 1929 amounted to 9,873,164*l.*

Of 36,196 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage at the end of 1929, 16,377 belonged to the Established Church and the Church in Wales and 19,819 to other religious denominations. Of the marriages celebrated in 1929, 56·2 per cent. were in the Established Church and the Church in Wales, 6·0 per cent. in the Roman Catholic Church, 11·4 per cent. were Nonconformist marriages, 0·03 per cent. were Quaker marriages 0·7 per cent. Jewish, and 25·7 per cent. civil marriages in a Registrar's Office.

The following is a summary of recent statistics of certain churches in England and Wales, Channel Islands, and Isle of Man :—

The Unitarians have about 350 places of worship, the Catholic Apostolic Church over 80, the New Jerusalem Church about 75. The Salvation Army, a religious body with a semi-military organisation, carries on both spiritual and social work at home and abroad, and had (December, 1928) about 35,074 officers and employés, 15,163 corps and outposts, and 252,912 local officers; their places of worship in the United Kingdom have about 560,339 sittings. There are about 300,000 Jews in the United Kingdom with about 200 synagogues.

Roman Catholics in England and Wales are estimated at 2,156,146. There were (1928) four archbishops (of whom one is a cardinal), fourteen bishops, and four bishops-auxiliary; about 4,000 priests (not all officiating); and over 1,900 churches, chapels, and stations.

2. Scotland.

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is Presbyterian, the ministers all being of equal rank. There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister, and of several laymen called elders. There are presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in synods, which meet half-yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries. The supreme court is the General Assembly, which consists of over 750 members, partly clerical and partly lay, chosen by the different presbyteries, with a few representatives from royal burghs and universities. It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly, the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner), and sits for ten days. Any matters not decided during this period may be left to a Commission.

On October 2, 1929, the Church of Scotland and the United Free Church were reunited and the two bodies met in Edinburgh as one, known as the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. The United Church had, in Scotland, on December 31, 1929, 2,986 congregations, 1,284,500 members, besides adherents; 3,969 Sunday schools, with 45,877 teachers and 362,570 scholars in attendance. The Church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 66 presbyteries, and 13 foreign mission presbyteries. Income in 1929 was 2,391,720*l.* The Church has theological colleges at Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and St. Andrews, with 32 professors and lecturers. The United Church's foreign mission agents (including natives) exceed 9,000, and income 700,000*l.* There are in Scotland some small outstanding Presbyterian bodies and also Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Unitarians. The Episcopal Church in Scotland had in 1929, 7 bishoprics, 415 churches and missions, 317 clergy, and 59,235 communicants.

The Roman Catholic Church had in Scotland (1928) two archbishops, four bishops, one bishop-auxiliary, 638 priests; about 450 churches, chapels, and stations, and about 600,000 adherents.

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1928 was: Established, 42·3 per cent.; United Free, 23·1; Roman Catholic, 11·9; Episcopal, 2·9; others, 6·9; irregular, 11·9.

Education.

University Education.

In England the highest education is given at the ancient universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the former having 22 colleges and 3 private halls, and the latter 17 colleges and 1 hall; the university of Durham, with a college of medicine and of science at Newcastle; the university of London, with 2 Incorporated Colleges, 34 "Schools," and 28 Institutions giving instruction in 8 faculties; the Victoria University (Manchester), the Birmingham University, the Liverpool University, the Leeds University, the Sheffield University, the Bristol University, and the University of Reading, which started in 1860 as a college for art classes. There are also University Colleges at Exeter, 44 lecturers, &c., 584 students, 1930–31; Nottingham (founded 1881), 107 lecturers, and 927 students, 1930–31; Southampton (founded 1850), 65 lecturers, &c., 614 students, 1930–31; Leicester (opened in 1923), 19 lecturers, &c., 140 students, 1930–31. A University College was founded at Hull in 1928 with 28 lecturers and 107 students in 1930–31. There are special Agricultural Colleges at Carlisle, Cirencester, Glasgow, Newport (Shropshire), Kingston-on-Soar (Derby), Wye (Kent), Uckfield (Sussex), and Ripley (Surrey). The university of Wales has 4 colleges (Cardiff, 151 lecturers, 1,245 students; Aberystwyth, 91 lecturers, 735 students; Bangor, 83 lecturers, &c., 575 students; and Swansea, 50 lecturers, &c., 511 students). In Scotland there are 4 universities, viz., at St. Andrews, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Edinburgh. The Carnegie Trust, founded in 1901 with a capital of 2,000,000*l.*, has an annual income of 100,000*l.*, of which half is devoted to the equipment and expansion of the Scottish Universities and half to assisting students. The following table gives the approximate number of professors, lecturers, &c., and students of the Universities for 1930–1931. (The dates of foundation are given in brackets.)

[2] Undergraduates.
[3] Internal students. In addition there are external students, i.e., matriculated students who have not taken a degree nor been registered as internal students. The number of these is not ascertainable but is probably greater than 12,000.
[4] Includes evening students.

At most of the Universities and University Colleges women students are admitted on equal terms with men. There are, however, several colleges exclusively for female Students:—Bedford (66 teachers, &c., 620 students), Royal Holloway (33 teachers, 208 students) and Westfield Colleges (19 teachers, &c., 150 students) in London; Newnham (11 teachers, &c., 287 students) and Girton (13 teachers, &c., 258 students) Colleges in Cambridge; Lady Margaret Hall (12 teachers, &c., 140 students), Somerville College (10 teachers, &c., 119 students), St. Hugh's College (9 tutors, 150 students), St. Hilda's College (11 teachers, 120 students), in Oxford. The Society of Oxford Home-Students numbered 13 teachers and 215 students in 1930. Women were first admitted to membership of Oxford University, and to take degrees, in October, 1920.

Secondary and Technical Education, &c.

England and Wales.—The latest available statistics for secondary schools are as follows:

	Total Efficient Schools	Schools on Grant List	Total Pupils in Efficient Schools			Full-Time Teachers. (Grant List)
			Boys	Girls	Total
1926-7	1,753	1,319	233,104	206,723	439,827	19,254

In addition there were 4,950 evening schools giving part-time technical and other instruction to 852,923 students, and 60 separate Day Continuation Schools with 19,356 students. Among other institutions providing technical, commercial and other instruction were 127 junior technical and housewifery schools with 20,128 students, and 6 nautical schools with 1,041 students. There was in 1929-30 a total of 230 Schools of Art with 57,054 students. In the same year there were 108 training institutions for teachers with 18,479 students (908 as teachers of domestic subjects).

The Universities in 1928–29 supervised 177 University Extension Courses with 3,637 students and 688 tutorial classes with 12,297 students.

The number of students receiving instruction in full-time courses of higher education for blind, deaf, defective and epileptic students during 1929–30 was 2,052, and of these 1,645 were blind. There were also two schools providing secondary education for blind children (43 boys and 37 girls).

The total net expenditure by local authorities on higher education in 1929–30 was 16,135,480*l.*, and for 1930–31 is estimated at 17,560,353*l.*; and the gross expenditure for London is estimated at 3,205,350*l.* for 1930–31.

Scotland.—In 1929 there were 252 secondary schools (207 with primary or preparatory departments) with a total accommodation of 185,402; the average number of scholars on the registers being 154,206 (79,714 post primary). The number of students attending Central Institutions in 1928–29 was 7,067 day students and 11,257 evening students. Continuation Classes numbered 971 in 1928-29 with a total attendance of 159,414 students. The number of teachers in secondary schools at March 31, 1929, was 6,452, including 3,855 University Graduates. In 1929–30 there were 1,902 students training for the Teacher's General Certificate, including 944 graduates, in 4 training centres and 3 training colleges.

Elementary Education.

England and Wales.—In the year 1929–30 the number of schools (public elementary, special, nursery, and certified efficient) for elementary education was 21,490. In 1930 there were 9,548 Council schools with accommodation for 4,585,421 pupils, and 11,255[1] voluntary schools with accommodation for 2,537,858 pupils; total ordinary public elementary schools 20,803, with accommodation for 7,123,279 pupils. The average attendance for the year 1929–30 at these schools was 4,940,831. The number of scholars on the registers in 1930 was: 165,062 aged under 5; 4,275,089 aged 5 and under 12; 1,086,962 aged 12 and over. The number of teachers, 1929–30, was 168,038 (43,242 men and 124,796 women), of whom 124,597 were certificated, 31,385 were uncertificated and 7,497 were supplementary.

There were 593 'special' schools in 1929–30, comprising 78 for the blind, with accommodation for 4,647 pupils; 50 for the deaf, with accommodation for 4,696 pupils; 173 for the mentally defective, accommodation 16,536; 286 for the physically defective, accommodation 24,386; and 6 for epileptic children with accommodation for 609 pupils. There were also 56 Poor Law schools, 30 nursery schools and 302 play centres.

The number of meals provided free in 1929–30 for necessitous children was 32,737,037 as compared with 20,131,035 in 1928–29, and the total number of children in public elementary schools who were medically examined in 1929 was 2,737,327, and there were 1,808,469 re-inspections.

The total number of school clinics on March 31, 1930, was 1,649 (1,581 in 1929). There were 2,292 medical officers, 704 dentists and 5,272 nurses employed for whole or part time.

The total net expenditure of local authorities for elementary education in 1929–30 was 63,334,694*l.*, and for 1930–31 is estimated at 65,935,931*l.*; for London the estimate of gross expenditure for 1930–31 is 9,968,790*l.*

Scotland.—In 1928–29 there were 2,915 Primary Schools with an accommodation of 861,585 scholars; average number on the registers was 654,199, and the average attendance was 584,473.

On July 31, 1929, there were 30 special day schools, 11 residential schools and special classes attached to 57 ordinary schools, and the number of defective children under instruction was 9,056 (5,675 in 1919), of which 5,426 were physically defective and 3,630 were mentally defective. There were also 3 residential schools for blind children, 5 for deaf mutes and 2 for both combined. The total number of children under instruction was 957 (292 blind and 665 deaf mutes). On December 31, 1929, there were 25 reformatory and industrial schools with a total of 1,809 boys and girls, excluding 217 voluntary scholars.

As at March 31, 1929, there were 19,044 recognised certificated primary school teachers, including 3,956 University Graduates.

The total ordinary expenditure of Education authorities during 1927–28 was 11,846,155*l.*, including 8,011,790*l.* on account of salaries and retiring allowances of teachers. Expenditure from Parliamentary grants for Education in Scotland amounted to 6,337,028*l.* in 1928-29.

Justice and Crime.

England and Wales.

The Supreme Court of Judicature is the ultimate authority in most cases, civil and criminal, in England and Wales, and in others, where there is an appeal to the House of Lords, the penultimate. It exercises its power through the High Court of Justice, the Courts of Appeal, and (in a sense) a variety of subordinate local courts. The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessional courts, the general or quarter sessions, the courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, more popularly known as 'assizes,' and the Central Criminal Court, which is the Assize Court for London in the widest sense, including 'the City' and other neighbouring counties, and is also the Quarter Sessions for the City. Two or more justices of the peace, the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any stipendiary magistrate, sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessional court. The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county. Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend. Women may be justices. Certain cities and boroughs have a court of quarter sessions, with similar jurisdiction to that of the county justices in quarter sessions, in which the recorder of the borough is the judge. The assize courts are constituted by Judges of the High Court (or in some cases by King's Counsel having His Majesty's special commission). These go on circuit twice or four times a year, visiting every county in turn, and hearing and determining all civil cases entered for trial and all criminal cases presented by the Grand Jury of the County or Riding, city or borough. Except in cases of treason when the trial is 'at bar' before the Lord Chief Justice and two or more judges of the King's Bench Division, criminal cases are tried by a jury, and the jury, subject to the direction of the Judge on points of law, are the sole judges of the facts of the case. Women serve on juries. The sessions of the Central Criminal Court are held at least twelve times a year and more often if necessary. The Recorder and the Common Serjeant, and, if the number of the prisoners makes it necessary, the judge of the City of London Court, sit on the first two days, after which they are joined by one or more of the judges of the High Court on the rota, for whom capital and certain other cases are reserved. Criminal cases of special importance or complexity arising in any part of the country may, by direction of at least two High Court judges, be brought for trial in the King's Bench Division. A petty sessional court deals summarily with minor offences, some of which are practically civil and can be reviewed by the judges. All offences are usually investigated by a petty sessional court before being tried at the sessions or the assizes, but with the consent of the accused, justices can dispose of many felonies. To every sessions, assize, and to every sitting of the Central Criminal Court, the sheriff summons a number of the chief inhabitants of the approximate district, of whom not less than 12 and not more than 23 are sworn and constitute a grand jury which examines the bill of indictment against the accused person, hears the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, and if it thinks a prima facie case for trial is made out, endorses the bill 'a true bill,' which is then tried by the petit jury. All criminal trials, except those which come before a court of summary jurisdiction or the House of Lords, take place before a judge and such a jury (twelve persons). Appeal is allowed in criminal cases: (i.) on a point of law; (ii.) on a question of fact, or other sufficient ground if the judge certifies the case as fit for appeal, or the Court of Criminal Appeal grants leave to appeal; and (iii.) against the sentence (if not fixed by law) with the leave of the Court of Criminal Appeal. This Court can reverse, amend, or affirm the judgment: in a few cases its decision may be reconsidered by the House of Lords. The only other method of securing the revision of a sentence is through the Royal prerogative, exercised on the advice of the Home Secretary, by which a sentence can be modified or annulled. No man can be tried again for the same crime after a petit jury has found him 'not guilty.' Nominally all the judges are appointed by the King, but in practice the Lord Chancellor (who is a minister, a member of the Cabinet, ex-officio president of the House of Lords, and goes out with the ministry), the Lord Chief Justice, the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, who sit in the House of Lords and on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the Lords Justices of Appeal who sit in the Court of Appeal, are appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, and all the other judges on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor.

The courts chiefly having jurisdiction in civil cases are the modern County Courts, created in 1846, Assizes, and the High Court, Quarter Sessions and old local courts also have this jurisdiction to a certain extent.

The authorised strength of the police force in England and Wales on September 29, 1930, was 58,080 (including 19,731 Metropolitan police). The estimated expenditure from Parliamentary Vote on police account was 10,405,308*l.* for 1930–31, and 10,854,129*l.* for 1931–32.

Scotland.

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns. One judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of difficulty or importance. It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, deforcement of messengers, and generally in all cases in which a higher punishment than imprisonment is by statute directed to be inflicted; and it has moreover an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, both those already established by common law or statute, and such as have never previously come before the courts and are not within any statute.

The sheriff of each county is the proper criminal judge in all crimes occurring within the county which infer only an arbitrary punishment, and if the case is tried with a jury the High Court has no power of review on the merits. Even in cases indicted to the High Court the accused is, under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act of 1887, regularly asked to plead in the sheriff court, and minor objections to the indictment can be wholly or in par disposed of there. Borough magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases occurring within the burgh or county, and in a number of minor offences under various statutes.

The Court of Session exercises the highest civil jurisdiction in Scotland, with the House of Lords as a Court of Appeal.

The police force in Scotland at the end of 1928 had an authorised strength of 6,607. The estimated expenditure on police was 866,443*l.* for 1929–30, and 1,066,011*l.* for 1930–31.

National Insurance. Pensions.

Under the National Health Insurance Act 1924, the Unemployment Insurance Acts 1920–25, the Old Age Pensions Act 1908–24, and the Widows, Orphans and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act 1925, provision is made for insurance against loss of health, for prevention and cure of sickness, compulsory insurance against unemployment, and pensions for widows and orphans and aged persons.

National Health Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry of Health in England and Wales, and the corresponding departments in Scotland and Ireland; by specially constituted authorities, by approved friendly societies and trade unions.

Subject to specific exceptions, persons who are compulsorily brought under the National Health Insurance Act, known as employed contributors, comprise all persons of the age of 16 years or over who are employed under contract of service, written or implied, whether by time or piece. Aliens are subject to compulsory insurance equally with British subjects. Among persons excluded are those employed in non-manual labour at a rate of remuneration exceeding £250 a year. Insured persons who are not members of an approved society must contribute to a Post Office Fund, and are known as deposit contributors; their benefits are limited. Certain persons not compulsorily insured may become voluntary contributors. The rates of contributions are given below. The ordinary benefits are (a) free medical treatment; (b) payments during sickness (not exceeding 26 weeks), amounting to 15*s.* a week for men and 12*s.* for women, after 104 contributions; 9*s.* (men), 7*s.* 6*d.* (women) after 26 contributions; (c) disablement benefit after 26 weeks sickness benefit, 7*s.* 6*d.* a week; (d) maternity benefit of 80*s.* payable to wife on confinement. Friendly societies may also give additional benefits. Deposit contributors receive sickness and disablement benefits at rates slightly less than the above.

The National Health Scheme covers about 14 million persons, increasing to 16½ millions in 1960. The total amount of National Health Insurance funds at December 31, 1930, was 127,000,000*l.* approximately. The total expenditure on benefits for England and Wales was estimated for 1929 at 31,135,000*l.*, including 5,733,000*l.* for disablement and 9,324,000*l.* for medical benefit. The number of persons entitled to benefits was 14,964,000. The cost of administration was 4,832,000*l.*

Widows, Orphans and Old Age Pensions.—From January 4, 1926, all persons, with certain exceptions, who were insurable under the National Health Insurance Scheme, became insurable also under the Widows, Orphans and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act. The provisions of the scheme apply to sailors, soldiers and airmen in the same way and to the same extent as to ordinary insured persons. A widow receives 10*s.* per week until she is 70 (unless she remarries), with 5*s.* for the first child and 3*s.* for each other child until they reach the age of 14 (or 16 in certain cases). Orphans receive 7*s.* 6*d.* per week for each child under 14 (or 16 if still at school). The rights to widows' pensions were extended by an Act of 1929. It is estimated that on January 1, 1931, 245,000 widows were entitled to pensions under the extension scheme. Persons over 70 years of age are entitled, as from July 2, 1926, to pensions of 10*s.* per week under the Old Age Pensions Acts 1908–24, irrespective of means, residence or nationality. As from January 2, 1928, insured persons over 65 are entitled to pensions of 10*s.* per week under the provisions of the Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1925, subject to specified conditions, which include residence in Great Britain for two years immediately prior to the date of the 65th birthday. There is no means test. On reaching the age of 70, contributory pensioners come under the provisions of the Old Age Pensions Act.

The full weekly contribution for National Health and Pensions Insurance is 1*s.* 6*d.* for men and 1*s.* 1*d.* for women, of which 9*d.* and 6*d.* respectively can be recovered from the worker. In the case of workers aged over 65 contributions of 9*d.* (men) and 7*d.* (women) are paid by the employer only.

The total amount paid in England and Wales in respect of widows' and orphans' pensions for the year ending March 31, 1930, was approximately 8,680,000*l.*; the beneficiaries were 252,507 widows' and 241,296 children (including orphans). The funds in hand under the Widows, Orphans and Old Age Contributory Pensions Acts were 46,000,000*l.* at March 31, 1931. For Scotland (calendar year 1928) widows' and orphans' pensions amounted to 1,046,100*l.* The total number and cost of pensions awarded under the contributory old age pensions scheme (persons between ages 65 and 70) for the year ending March 31, 1930, was 480,000 (12,430,000*l.*) for England and Wales, and for calendar year 1928, 1,361,500*l.*, for Scotland. The total number of non-contributory old-age pensions paid in 1929–30 was 926,735*l.*

Unemployment Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry of Labour through the Employment Exchanges, Trade Unions, and by certain associations of employed persons. The scheme is wholly compulsory in its operation, and substantially all persons covered by the Health Insurance Scheme are insured against unemployment. Domestic servants and persons employed in agriculture are among those excepted. The minimum insurable age is 16 years. Certain employees of Government Departments, public and local authorities, railways and certain other utility undertakings, and persons with rights under statutory superannuation schemes are also exempted where the Ministry of Labour certifies that they are employed under conditions which make the national insurance unnecessary.

The contributions are: men (over 21 years of age), 8*d.* a week from employer, 7*d.* from employee; women (over 21), 7*d.* a week from employer, 6*d.* from employee; young men (18 to 21), 7*d.* from employer and 6*d.* from employee; young women (18 to 21), 6*d.* from employer, 5*d.* from employee; boys (16 to 18), 4*d.* from employer, 3½*d.* from employee; girls (16 to 18), 3½*d.* from employer, 3*d.* from employee. The State contributes in addition an amount equivalent to one-half of the joint contributions of the employer and employee. As from January 2, 1928, contributions ceased to be payable when a person attains the age of 65, but if such person continues to be employed after reaching that age, the employer is required to pay his share of the contribution only. Under the Unemployment Act, 1930, the standard rates of benefit are: (over 21 years of age), men 17*s.* per week, women 15*s.* per week; (between 18 and 21) young men 14*s.* per week, young women 12*s.* per week; (between 17 and 18), boys 9*s.* per week, girls 7*s.* 6*d.* per week; (under 17), boys 6*s.*, girls 5*s.* per week, subject to certain conditions. There are additional benefits for certain classes of dependents: 9*s.* a week for adults and 2*s.* a week for each child.

Contributions from employers and employed persons in the United Kingdom under the unemployment insurance scheme amounted in the year 1930–31 to 29,600,000*l.* Payments for benefit amounted in 1930–31 to 87,663,000*l.* (direct), and 4,833,000*l.* (indirect). The total Exchequer contribution for unemployment insurance, 1930–31, is estimated at 35,600,000*l.* The estimated number of workpeople insured under the Unemployment Insurance Acts in Great Britain was 12,406,000 in July, 1930.

War Pensions.—The number of war pensions or allowances in payment as at March 31, 1930, was 1,370,000 approximately, and the total expenditure of the Ministry of Pensions for 1930–31 was 51,850,000*l.*, and estimated expenditure for 1931–32 is 50,039,000*l.* (inclusive of administration expenses).

[1] The principal items included in these branches of revenue are shown on pages 32-3 above. The excise receipts include receipts from Motor Vehicle Duties.

Income Tax.—The gross amount of income brought under the review of the Inland Revenue Department in the year ended April 5, 1929, in Gt. Britain and Northern Ireland, was 3,131,256,990*l.* ; in 1929-30 it was estimated to be approximately 3,170,000,000*l.* The income on which tax was actually received in 1928-29, after allowing for exemptions and reliefs, was 1,345,857,285*l.*, and the estimated amount for 1929-30 was 1,355,000,000*l.* The estimated number of incomes in Great Britain and Northern Ireland above the effective exemption limit in 1929-30 was 5,100,000 : the number actually chargeable with tax was estimated at 2,250,000.

Prior to April 6, 1915, incomes not exceeding 160*l.* were exempt from Income Tax, and from April, 1915, to April, 1920, incomes not exceeding 130*l.* were exempt. The graduation of the tax on incomes in excess of these limits was effected by means of differential rates and by various abatements and reliefs (for wife, children, etc.) granted in the lower ranges of incomes only.

Under the new system of graduation introduced by the Finance Act, 1920, the exemption limit was fixed at 135*l.* of assessable income, i.e. it ranged from 135*l.* to 150*l.* according as the income was wholly investment or wholly earned ; personal allowances of 135*l.* assessable income (= 150*l.* earned income) for single persons and 225*l.* (= 250*l.* earned income) for married persons, and allowances for children, dependent relatives, etc., were granted to all taxpayers irrespective of the amount of their total income. The effect of the increase in the earned income relief (from one-tenth to one-sixth) by the Finance Act, 1925, was to increase the personal allowances, in the case of earned incomes, to 162*l.* and 270*l.* respectively. Tax is charged (1930-31)[1] on the first 250*l.* of taxable income at four-ninths of the standard rate, and on the remainder at the standard rate of tax, which has varied as follows :—

1922-23	5*s.* ,,
1923-24 and 1924-25 . . .	4*s.* 6*d.* ,,
1925-26 to 1929-30 . . .	4*s* ,,
1930-31 and 1931-32 . . .	4*s.* 6*d.* ,,

The gross income brought under review in 1928-29 was distributed as follows :—

[1] Previous to 1930-31, tax was charged on the first 225*l.* at half the standard rate.

Profits from the ownership of Lands	50,500,000
,, ,, Houses	363,787,921
Profits from the occupation of lands	48,500,000
,, British and other Government securities	171,487,944
,, businesses, professions, and certain interest	1,399,866,974
Salaries of Offices and employments (including Manual wage-earners	1,097,144,151
	3,131,256,990

The gross income from the ownership of lands and houses in 1928–29 was distributed as follows :—

—	England	Scotland	N. Ireland	Gt. Britain and N. Ireland
	£	£	£	£
Lands, etc.	42,100,000	6,200,000	2,100,000	50,500,000
Houses, etc.	328,733,544	32,257,315	2,797,062	363,787,921

Super-tax.—Super-tax (now called Sur-tax) is payable by persons with incomes exceeding 2,000*l.* per year (prior to 1914–15, 5,000*l.* per year; from 1914–15 to 1917–18, 3,000*l.* per year, and in 1918–19 and 1919–20, 2,500*l.* per year).

As part of a general scheme for the simplification of the Income Tax, the Finance Act, 1927, merged the Super-tax into one tax with the Income Tax having the same basis of assessment and payable, under the name of Sur-tax, as a deferred instalment of Income Tax on the 1st January in the year following the year of assessment. The Sur-tax was payable for the first time in respect of the year 1928–29 on January 1, 1930. Net receipt from Sur-tax in 1929–30, was 56,624,217*l.*

Local Taxation Grant.—In accordance with various Acts passed between 1888 and 1911, there are paid out of the Consolidated Fund to the Local Taxation Accounts of England and Scotland, sums equivalent to the proceeds (in some cases of the year 1908–9, and in other cases of the current year) of certain excise licence duties, part of the beer and spirit duties, and part of the probate and estate duties. Certain other grants are also payable.

The total payments made to the Local Taxation Account for England and Wales in 1929–30 was 12,000,740*l.*, including 1,107,260*l.* on account of beer and spirit duties, 2,632,317*l.* on account of licence duties and 3,293,860*l.* under the Agricultural Rates Act, 1923. Scotland received a total of 1,313,713*l.* The total estimated payments for 1930–31 was 14,660,000*l.*

III. National Debt.

Borrowing by the State on the security of taxes was practised in Norman times, but the National Debt really dates from the time of William III. The acknowledged debt in 1689 was about 664,000*l.*, on which the annual charge for interest and management was only 40,000*l.* At various subsequent dates the amounts were as follows (including the Irish debt throughout) :—

[1] These amounts do not include the capital value of terminable annuities.
[2] Including 1,110,453,600*l.* owing to other countries.
[3] Including Interest, Management and New Sinking Fund.

The following statement shows the total amount of the Gross Liabilities and the Assets of the State on March 31, 1930 :—

	Million £	Million £
Liabilities:
Funded Debt	1,456·0

The amount of debt provision issued in 1929-30 for interest and management was 307,251,685*l.*
The net decrease in the aggregate gross liabilities of the State in 1929-30 was 24,642,647*l.*

[1] Excluding advances from votes of credit to Dominions, Allied Powers, &c., and other war assets. The amount of loans remaining unpaid at March 31, 1930, was : loans owing by Allies, 2,101·1 million ; Colonies, 116 5 million ; loans for relief and reconstruction, 30·4 million ; other debts, 4·7 million ; total 2,252·7 million.

IV. Local Taxation.

The estimated rates collected by local authorities in 1930-31 are:—England and Wales 149,000,000*l.*, Scotland, 18,152,000*l.* For 1929-30 the amounts collected were England and Wales, 155,500,000*l.*, Scotland, 19,093,000*l.* In addition compensation was paid from the Exchequer to local authorities in respect of their loss of rates in 1929-30 under the Agricultural Rates Act, 1929, the Local Government Act, 1929, and the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1929, estimated to amount to 13,000,000*l.* in England and Wales and 2,470,000*l.* in Scotland.

The approximate allocation of amounts raised by rates and Exchequer grant during 1928–29 and 1929–30 was as follows:—

	England and Wales		Scotland		Total
	1928–29	1929–30	1928–29	1929–30	1928–29	1929–30

Totals . .	166,250	168,500	21,918	21,563	188,168	190,063

In England and Wales the average amount of the rates per pound of assessable value was 6*s.* 8½*d.* in 1913-14, 12*s.* 5*d.* in 1928-29, and 11*s.* 6*d.* in 1929-30.

Defence.

The Committee of Imperial Defence is responsible for the co-ordination of naval, military, and air policy. Of this Committee the Prime Minister is ex-officio President, and he has power to call for the attendance at its meetings of any naval or military officers, or of other persons, with administrative experience, whether they are in official positions or not. The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, for War and Air, the Colonies, India, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the First Sea Lord, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Chief of the Air Staff, Directors of the Intelligence Departments of the War Office and the Admiralty. During 1923 a Cabinet Committee inquired into the co-ordination of the policy and administration of defence. As the result of its report a standing sub-committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence has been appointed, with a Cabinet Minister as Chairman, the heads of the three services and representatives of the Foreign Office and Treasury as members, for the purpose of correlating defensive policy. Three further sub-committees have since been appointed, one composed of the Chiefs of Staff of the three services of Navy, Army and Air, to furnish the Cabinet or the main committee with expert advice on problems of defence, the second sub-committee deals with man-power, and the third, the principal supply officers' sub-committee, with the provision of munitions and supplies in time of war. At the beginning of 1927 an Imperial Defence College was founded to educate selected officers of the three services in working together in the solution of problems of Imperial Defence and to carry out detailed studies for the main committee.

I. Army.

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army, the Territorial Army, and the Reserve Forces. The British troops of the Regular Army serve both at home and overseas and are commonly referred to as the British Army in contradistinction to the Indian Army or Native Army, and to the Local Forces in certain British Colonies and Dependencies, the personnel of which is native with a proportion of British officers.

The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, except India, is paid for by the Imperial Exchequer (although certain Dominions pay contributions towards its upkeep); India pays a contribution towards the cost of troops at home owing to these serving as a depôt for the regular troops in India. The Imperial Exchequer pays for Indian and Colonial troops serving outside their own countries. The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time, but as the supreme position of the British Navy in Home Waters has practically eliminated all risk of invasion, members of the Territorial Army are now asked to accept liability for service overseas in time of war, subject to the consent of Parliament. The rank and file for both Regular Army and Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment. The Reserve Forces consist of the Army Reserve, the Supplementary Reserve of Officers and the Supplementary Reserve, the Militia and the Channel Islands and Colonial Militia, and the Territorial Reserve. The Army Reserve is composed of men who have completed their period of colour service with the Regular Army; its strength on January 1, 1931, was 130,917. The Supplementary Reserve of Officers and the Supplementary Reserve were created in August 1924, with establishments of 2,489 and 20,639 respectively, for the purpose of supplying officers and technicians to the army on mobilisation. The strength of the Supplementary Reserve on January 1, 1931, was 16,498. The Militia, which is intended to serve as a supply source to the Regular Army after the Army Reserve is exhausted, is in process of reconstruction. The Channel Islands and Colonial Militia consist of the Channel Islands Militia, the Malta Militia, the Bermuda Militia, and the Isle of Man Volunteers. The Territorial Reserve is in process of formation.

Service is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years in certain circumstances. Of the original 12 years, from 3 to 9 are spent 'with the colours,' i.e., on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve; the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards. Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age.

For purposes of training and command the fighting troops are for the most part organised in divisions, which consist of 3 infantry brigades, divisional artillery and engineers, together with the necessary auxiliary services. The cavalry is organised in brigades. The infantry brigades are composed of 4 battalions, the cavalry brigades of 3 regiments. The organisation of the Territorial Army is analogous to that of the Regular Army, and it consists of 14 divisions, composed of infantry, artillery, engineers, and auxiliary services, and of the mounted brigades, chiefly composed of yeomanry. During 1930 further progress was made in the process of mechanising the Army. The experimental mechanised brigades, composed of artillery, infantry and tanks carried out extensive tests. New establishments increased considerably the number of machine guns with infantry and cavalry, and providing infantry with anti-tank guns.

For purposes of command Great Britain is divided up into six 'commands' and the London and Northern Ireland Districts. The commands are (1) Aldershot, of very limited area, (2) Eastern, including the eastern and southern counties, (3) Northern, including the northern midlands and north-eastern counties, (4) Scottish, (5) Southern, including the southern midlands and south-western counties, (6) Western, including Wales, Lancashire and north-western counties. These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army. The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands and the London District each include from 1 to 4 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 3 Territorial divisions. There are normally two Regular divisions in the Aldershot, one Regular division in the Eastern, one in the Southern command and one in the Northern command, the completion of the latter being made possible by the withdrawal during 1929 of British troops from Germany. At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the General-Officer Commanding-in-Chief). He is assisted by a general-officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions.

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, who is its President; the heads of the departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, and the permanent Secretary of the War Office. The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure.

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy, educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College whence officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry, the Senior Officers' School, which trains officers for command, and the Staff College, which trains officers for the staff. The Officers' Training Corps in two divisions representing respectively the universities and public schools, is intended to provide officers for the Territorial Army, and for the Regular Army on expansion.

The gross estimated expenditure for the army for the year 1931–32 amounted (March, 1931) to 46,639,000*l.*, and appropriations in aid to 6,709,000*l.*, leaving a net expenditure of 39,930,000*l.*

The total personnel charged to British votes for 1930–31 was 148,800, of whom 145,542 were British troops, 1,036 were additional numbers to cover temporary excesses over establishments, 2,222 were Colonial and Native Indian troops. There were in India 59,773 British troops, so that the total establishment of the Regular Army in 1931–32 was 148,800 + 59,773 = 208,573. The strength of the Territorial Force on January 1, 1931, was 135,850 including permanent staff.

The distribution of Regular troops, except in India, was as follows:

By Regiments, Corps, and Departments (British, exclusive of India).

II. Navy.

The British Navy is a permanent establishment, governed by the Board of Admiralty. The First Lord of the Admiralty is the Cabinet Minister responsible for the Navy.

The duties of the Admiralty are grouped under the two headings of Operations and Maintenance. The First Sea Lord and Chief of the Naval Staff and the Deputy Chief of the Naval Staff, have charge and direction of the Operations Division. This Division is concerned with Naval policy and the general direction of operations, war operations in Home waters and elsewhere, strategy, tactics, the development and use of material, including types of vessels and weapons, and with trade protection and anti-submarine considerations. The four members of the Board who are in charge of the Maintenance Division are the Second Sea Lord and Chief of the Personnel; the Third Sea Lord and Controller of the Navy; the Fourth Sea Lord and Chief of Supplies and Transport; and the Civil Lord. The Parliamentary Secretary and the Permanent Secretary are concerned with Finance and Admiralty business.

The Washington Treaty of 1922, which relates to the British Navy and the Navies of the United States, France, Italy, and Japan, is concerned mainly with capital ships, defining for each Power what her replacement tonnage shall be, and fixing the maximum displacement of such ships at 35,000 tons, and their heaviest armaments at the 16 in. gun.

By the London Treaty of 1930 it was agreed to defer replacement of capital ships until after 1936. In the meantime, certain ships were to be discarded without replacement. In the British fleet, the ships so discarded include four battleships (Benbow, Emperor of India, Iron Duke, Marlborough) and the battle cruiser Tiger. Though withdrawn from the effective list, the Iron Duke, which it will be recalled was flagship of the Grand Fleet at Jutland, will be disarmed and retained for use as a training ship.

Cruisers, which the Washington Treaty had restricted to a standard displacement of 10,000 tons and guns not above 8 inches in calibre, are dealt with in Part III of the Treaty, to which only the British Empire, the United States and Japan subscribed. Definite limits are assigned to the cruiser tonnage which may be maintained by these three countries during 1931–36 in two categories, (a) cruisers armed with guns of more than 6·1 inch calibre, and (b) those armed with guns of 6·1 inch calibre or less. Destroyer and submarine tonnage, which had remained unaffected by the Washington Treaty, is also restricted by the same section of the Treaty. In the period 1931–36, each of the three fleets concerned is allowed 52,700 tons of submarines.

Washington Treaty restrictions concerning aircraft carriers remain in force, but the construction of any such vessels of 10,000 tons or less displacement mounting a gun above 6·1 inch calibre is forbidden to all five of the signatory powers.

Under the 1929–30 Estimates there are building or completing for the British Navy one 7,000 ton cruiser (Leander), one flotilla leader (Kempenfelt), 4 destroyers (Crusader, Comet, Crescent, Cygnet), 3 submarines (Thames, Sturgeon, Swordfish), 2 sloops (Bideford, Rochester), 1 fishery surveying vessel (Challenger), and 1 tender for the torpedo school (Nightingale).

Under the 1930–31 Estimates there are under construction 3 cruisers of 7,000 tons (Neptune, Orion, Achilles), 1 flotilla leader (Duncan), 8 destroyers (Defender, Daring, Diamond, Delight, Dainty, Diana, Duchess, Decoy), 3 submarines (Porpoise, Seahorse, Starfish), 4 sloops (Dundee, Falmouth, Milford, Weston-super-Mare), and 1 netlayer (Guardian).

The Navy Estimates amounted to 55,865,000*l.* for 1929–30, and for 1930–31 to 51,739,000*l.* net.

The number of officers, seamen and marines borne on January 1, 1914, was 144,871. The estimates for 1929–30 provide for a total personnel of 98,800, to be reduced by April 1, 1931, to 94,000. Officers included in this total numbered about 8,000.

Summary of the British Fleet.

With the disappearance from the lists of all capital ships armed with guns of less than 13·5 inch calibre, the general tendency is to classify them as pre-Jutland and post-Jutland types. Of the last-named the only representatives at present are the Nelson and Rodney, though the Hood embodies in her design certain modifications based on war experience.

The following summary of the more important units will illustrate the present position.

Class.	Completed by end of
	1928	1929	1930
Battleships and Battle Cruisers	20	20	19
Cruisers	50	54	54
Aircraft Carriers and Tenders	7	7	7
Flotilla leaders and Destroyers	157	150	149
Submarines	51	53	61

Ships and vessels of the Dominions are included in the above table and in the following paragraph. See notes following the ship lists.

Of the 37 monitors which existed in 1919, three still survive. There are 11 seagoing depôt and repair ships, 27 sloops, 29 minesweepers (mostly laid up in reserve), 12 surveying vessels, and a large number of smaller craft, such as gunboats, patrol boats, drifters and trawlers.

In the following tables the ships are grouped in classes according to type. The dates of the Naval Estimates under which they were sanctioned are given in certain cases, but, with reference to the capital ships affected by the Washington and London Treaties, the years are substituted in which they are due for replacement if desired.

[3] The Eagle was built as the Almirante Cochrane, battleship, for Chile, but was taken over in an early stage by the British Navy and completed for her present use.

The destroyers of the post-war Fleet are of the following classes: flotilla leaders, 1330–1800 tons, 34–36·5 knots, 16 (including 1 Australian); R class, 900 tons, 10; S class, 930–1075 tons, 39 (including 5 Australian); V class, 1300–1325 tons, 27; W class, 1300–1350 tons, 37; A class (1173–1330 tons), 12 (including 2 Canadian); B class (1330 tons), 8; total number, 149.

The submarines are of eight successive classes. H class (410 tons surface displacement) 14; K class (1710 tons) 1; L class (845 tons) 22; M class (1450 tons) 2; X class (2425 tons) 1; O class (1311–1475 tons), 9; P class (1475 tons), 6; R class (1475 tons), 4; total number, 61.

Dominion Navies.—When Admiral of the Fleet Earl Jellicoe made a tour of the Dominions with the object of arriving at an understanding with the Governments on the naval defence of the Empire, his report to the Government of Australia emphasized the desirability of the Commonwealth becoming self-contained in regard to shipbuilding and the manufacture of guns, mountings, explosives, and aircraft, but no action of much importance has been taken on the proposals. The Imperial Cabinet (July, 1921) left on record its view that co-operation among the constituent parts of the Empire was necessary, but that the details must be left to the Dominion Parliaments. So far the only one of Lord Jellicoe's main recommendations to be carried into effect has been the reorganisation of the Royal Indian Marine on a naval basis. Its strength at present is limited to 4 sloops, 2 patrol vessels, 8 trawlers, and 2 surveying vessels.

The Royal Australian Navy, in addition to the 4 cruisers and 1 aircraft tender named in the list above, has 1 flotilla leader, 5 destroyers of the S class, 3 sloops, and a few other vessels. 2 submarines of the O type were presented to the Royal Navy in 1931.

The New Zealand Navy, in addition to the Diomede and Dunedin, has the obsolete light cruiser Philomel as a training ship, and a mine-sweeping trawler for instructional purposes.

The Royal Canadian Navy has 4 mine-sweeping trawlers and 2 destroyers of the A class (Skeena and Saguenay), which were delivered from England in 1930–31.

The South African Navy has 2 mine-sweeping trawlers and a surveying vessel.

Newfoundland has a transport built in 1925, the Caribou, which is employed under the Finance and Customs Department.

III. Air Force.

In May, 1912, the Royal Flying Corps first came into existence. On January 2, 1918, an Air Ministry was formed, and the control of the Royal Air Force was vested in an Air Council analogous to the Army Council. The Air Minister was given the status of a Secretary of State and became President of the Council. In April, 1918, the naval and military wings were amalgamated, under the Ministry of the Air, as the Royal Air Force.

The Force consists of the Royal Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, the Air Force Special Reserve, the Auxiliary Air Force, and the Territorial Air Force. The establishment of the Royal Air Force for the year 1931–32 is 32,000 exclusive of those serving in India, who are paid for by the Government of India. The establishment of the Auxiliary Air Force is 1,520, and the strength in January, 1931, was 871. During 1922 the Air Ministry took over control of Iraq and Palestine, and in January 1928 of Aden.

The Air Force is organised into commands as follows:—

I. United Kingdom: (a) Inland Area, (b) Coastal Area, (c) Irish Wing, (d) Cranwell, (e) Halton.

II. Overseas: (a) Middle East Area, (b) Iraq, (c) India, (d) Mediterranean, (e) Palestine.

Areas are subdivided into groups and wings, a certain number of squadrons being allotted to each group or wing. Squadrons are subdivided into flights. In March 1931 the establishment of the Royal Air Force was 85 squadrons, 72 of which were regular squadrons and 8 Special Reserve or Auxiliary Air Force squadrons, while 5 are organised on a cadre basis. Each squadron is of 12 aeroplanes. 38 squadrons were in Great Britain and 22 abroad, while 27 flights, the equivalent of 13 squadrons, were provided for the fleet air arm. During 1923 a scheme for the expansion of the Air Force primarily for Home Defence was sanctioned. This scheme provides for an establishment of 52 squadrons for home defence, 39 of these being squadrons of the Royal Air Force, 6 being non-regular squadrons formed from the Auxiliary Air Force, and 7 being formed of the Special Reserve. During 1931 29 regular and 7 Auxiliary Air Force squadrons will have been formed for Home Defence. In November 1924 an Air Officer, commanding-in chief Air Defences of Great Britain, was appointed to organise and command the Air Forces allotted for Home Defence. These are now divided into 3 sub-commands: the Fighting Area, with headquarters at Uxbridge; the Wessex Bombing Area, with headquarters at Andover, and the Special Reserve and Auxiliary Air Force.

The chief educational establishments of the Air Force are the Cadet College at Cranwell and the Staff College at Andover. The chief training depôt is at Halton. There are also 3 flying training schools, 1 central flying school, and schools of gunnery, ballooning, army co-operation, photography and wireless.

For 1931–32 the net sum allotted to Civil Aviation was 470,000*l.* The air routes maintained were London-Manchester, London-Amsterdam, London-Brussels-Cologne, London-Paris and Cairo-Karachi. During 1931 a London-Cape Town service will be in operation. Owing to the disaster to the airship R 101, which was destroyed with all on board on its first flight to India, experiments on airships are in abeyance.

Total	25,437,679	25,380,447	4,652,988	4,640,718

[1] Corn crops are wheat, barley or bere, oats, mixed corn, rye, beans, peas.

[2] Green crops are mainly potatoes, turnips and swedes, mangold, cabbage, kohl-rabi, rape, vetches or tares.

[3] In Scotland all orchard land is also included against the crop, grass or fallow beneath the trees. In England and Wales orchard land is only duplicated where small fruit is grown beneath the trees. The figures for small fruit in all cases, therefore, include small fruit in orchards.

[1] Figures for Scotland relate only to beans harvested as corn.

The production of meat in Great Britain in 1923–24 was estimated at 1,023,000 tons; of milk, 1,350 million gallons. The value of produce sold off the farms in 1923 (excluding produce consumed in farmers' households) was estimated at 258,750,000*l.*, namely: farm crops, 54,000,000*l.*; live stock, 95,000,000*l.*; dairy produce, 79,000,000*l.*; wool, 4,250,000*l.*; poultry and eggs, 13,500,000*l.*; miscellaneous crops, 13,000,000*l.*

In England and Wales, the Ministry of Agriculture make grants for, and, to some extent, supervise vocational education and scientific research in agriculture. The Board of Agriculture for Scotland dispenses certain grants for the development and improvement of agriculture, including agricultural education and research, in that country.

Under the Development and Road Improvement Funds Acts, 1909 and 1910, there are eight 'Development Commissioners,' appointed to advise the Treasury in the administration of a national fund for the development of agriculture, fisheries, forestry, and analogous resources of the United Kingdom. Grants are also made, in respect of research, from the Empire Marketing Fund. In 1929–30 a grant of 300,000*l.* was voted to the Development Fund by Parliament. During 1929–30 the payment of grants from the Fund amounted to 423,532*l.* and loans to 12,060*l.* The balance in the Fund at March 31, 1930, was 85,842*l.*

The total number of persons (including clerks and salaried persons) ordinarily employed at all mines in Great Britain under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts during 1929 was 985,422. The number of mines at work was 2,743; 781,839 persons (males) worked underground, and 199,445 males and 4,138 females (including clerks and salaried persons) above ground. The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 80,777, of whom 51,582 worked inside the quarries, and 29,195 outside. The number of quarries at work was 5,328.

Professor H. S. Jevons estimated the resources of British coal in 1915, within 4,000 feet of the surface, at 197,000 million tons

The value of goods imported is generally taken to be that at the port and time of entry, including all incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) up to the landing on the quay. For goods consigned for sale, the market value in this country is required and recorded in the returns. This is ascertained from the declaration made by the importers, and is checked by the expert knowledge available in the Customs Department, with the help of current price-lists and market reports. For exports, the value at the port of shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) is taken. Imports are entered as from the country whence the goods were consigned to the United Kingdom, which may, or may not, be the country whence the goods were last shipped. Exports are credited to the country of ultimate destination as declared by the exporters.

Internal Communications.

I. Railways and Tramways.

Under the Railways Act, 1921, the railways of Great Britain are grouped, as from January 1, 1923, into four systems, namely : London, Midland and Scottish (7,464 miles) ; London and North-Eastern (6,464 miles) ; Great Western (3,765 miles) ; Southern (2,129 miles) ; total, 19,822 miles of route.

The following table gives the latest railway statistics available for Great Britain :—

Year	Length of road open at end of year	Paid up Capital (including nominal additions)	Number of Passengers originating (excluding season-ticket holders)[1]	Weight of goods and mineral traffic originating	Railway & Ancillary Businesses

[1] The equivalent number of annual tickets representing season ticket holders in 1927 was 793,870, in 1928 was 784,560, and in 1929 was 781,000.

[4] Owing to revision in the form and method of compilation of accounts the figures for 1927, 1928, and 1929 are not comparable with those of previous years.

The number of passengers carried in 1929 was 1,700,000,000.

The net receipts on Railway and Ancillary businesses in 1929 were 45,099,504*l.* (41,112,741*l.* in 1928).

Tramways.—In 1929 there were in Great Britain 2,420 miles of tramways and light railways open for public traffic. The paid-up capital amounted to 106,192,000*l.*, gross receipts 27,067,000*l.*, working expenses 21,480,000*l.*, and net receipts 5,587,000*l.* The total number of passengers carried in 1929 was 4,623,259,000.

Civil Aviation.—In 1929 the number of aircraft miles flown was 1,386,000; number of passengers carried, 29,312; weight of cargo, 939 tons.

II.—Canals and Navigations

The total length of canals in the United Kingdom in 1905 was 4,673 miles, of which 3,641 miles were in England and Wales, 184 in Scotland, and 848 in Ireland.

The total tonnages originating on the principal canals [1] in Great Britain in 1929 were: Railway-owned canals, 1,772,663 tons; other than railway-owned, 12,589,517 tons, including Birmingham, 3,684,017 tons, Grand Junction, 1,442,620 tons, Leeds and Liverpool, 1,652,862 tons, and Bridgewater, 1,208,907 tons, Aire and Calder, 2,519,971 tons. Tonnage carried on the River Thames (above Teddington) was 397,552.

Manchester, fourth port in the United Kingdom, was opened to maritime traffic in 1894 by the construction of the Manchester Ship Canal, which is 35½ miles in length, 30 ft. in depth to Stanlow Oil Dock, thence to Manchester it is 28 ft. deep. The bottom width of the canal is not less than 120 ft. except for ¾ mile near Latchford, where it is 90 ft. The maximum width of the locks is 65 ft., with the exception of the entrance lock, which is 80 feet wide. The canal is in direct communication with all the principal railway systems and barge canals of the Kingdom. The total paid-up capital of the Company at December 31, 1930, was 19,975,522*l.* The gross revenue of the canal in 1930, including the Bridgewater department and the railways, amounted to 1,905,195*l.*, and the net revenue, including miscellaneous receipts, to 701,675*l.* (796,754*l.* in 1929). The traffic receipts in 1930 amounted to 1,395,567*l.* The merchandise traffic paying toll in 1930 amounted to 6,290,625 tons.

III.—Post, Telegraphs, and Telephones.

(Great Britain and Northern Ireland.)

The telegraphs were transferred to the State on February 5, 1870. On March 31, 1930, the mileage of Post Office wires used for telegraph purposes was 309,284 miles. The total mileage of Post Office wires, i.e., Telegraph, Telephone, and spare wires, was 8,667,854. Of this total, 1,306,327 miles were aerial, 7,344,406 underground, and 17,121 submarine.

The total number of telegraph offices open on March 31, 1930 (including Railway and Cable Companies' Offices, etc., which transact public telegraph business), was 12,552. On February 1, 1931, there were 24 Post Office wireless stations in operation, and several "stand-by" stations—for emergency purposes. Imperial and International Communications, Ltd., work certain stations under licence.

All telephone exchanges deal with trunk telephone business, but on March 31, 1930, there were 17 exchanges which dealt only with trunk work. On that date there were 15,999 Inland trunk and 93 International circuits (including 4 transatlantic channels); the mileage of Post Office wires used therein was 1,015,211 miles; the number of calls during the year was 119,290,000. The London local exchange system had 140 exchanges, 6,016 call offices (including 1,709 kiosks), 2,611,283 miles of working wire and 675,783 telephones. The Provincial local exchange system had 4,490 exchanges, 25,075 call offices (including 6,331 kiosks), 3,845,612 miles of working wire and 1,206,327 telephones. The approximate number of originated effective calls in 1929–30 was 1,322 millions (559·5 millions in London). For private wires, the rentals in 1929–30 amounted to 545,000*l.*

[1] Accounts with balances of less than 1*l.* which have been dormant for five years or more.
[2] As from January 1, 1923, the Irish Free State Office Savings Bank commenced operations and deposits for the British Post Office Savings Bank were no longer accepted at Irish Free State Post Offices.

The amount due to depositors on January 1, 1931, was approximately 290,000,000*l.*

The receipts and payments include purchases and sales of Government Stock for depositors, but the amount shown as due to depositors is exclusive of such stock held by depositors. The latter amounted to 191,463,517*l.* at the end of 1928, and 190,778,792*l.* at the end of 1929.

Trustee Savings Bank.—The number of depositors in these banks in 1930 was 2,345,379 active, 279,683 dormant, and the amounts due to them were: in the General or Ordinary Departments, 79,081,550*l.* Cash, and 39,321,750*l.* (face value) Stock; in the Special Investment Departments, i.e., money invested otherwise than with the National Debt Commissioners, 54,094,045*l.* Cash, and 21,140*l.* (face value) Stock; total Cash, 133,175,595*l.*; total face value of Stock, 39,342,890*l.* In 1913, the number of depositors was 1,912,820; the total Cash due to depositors, 68,548,000*l.*, and the face value of Stock, 2,795,000*l.*

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The sovereign weighs 123·274 grains, or 7·98805 grammes, ·91666 (or eleven-twelfths) fine, and consequently it contains 113·001 grains or 7·3224 grammes of fine gold. The shilling weighs 87·27 grains or 5·6552 grammes, and down to 1920 was ·925 (or thirty-seven-fortieths) fine, thus containing 80·727 grains or 5·231 grammes of fine silver, but under the Coinage Act, 1920, the fineness was reduced to ·500 (one half). Bronze coins consist of a mixture of copper, tin, and zinc. The penny weighs 145·83 grains, or 9·45 grammes. The standard of value is gold. Silver is legal tender up to 40 shillings; bronze up to 12*d.*, but farthings only up to 6*d.* Bank of England notes are legal tender in England and Wales, except at the Bank itself (3 and 4 Will. 4, cap. 98). Under the Currency and Bank Notes Act, 1928, the Bank was empowered to issue 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes, which became legal tender for all payments. Under the Gold Standard Act, 1925, the issue of gold coin is suspended but bullion may be purchased at the price of 3*l.* 17*s.* 10½*d.* per ounce troy of gold of the fineness prescribed for gold coin by the Coinage Act, 1870. The note circulation at March 11, 1931, was: 400,927,721*l.*, of which 50,600,783*l.* was held by the Bank of England and 350,326,938*l.* was in the hands of the public.

Standard units are: of length the standard yard, of weight the standard pound of 7,000 grains (the pound troy having 5,760 grains), of capacity the standard gallon containing 10 pounds avoirdupois of distilled water at 62° F., the barometer at 30 inches. On these units all other legal weights and measures are based.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

Constitution.

UNDER the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, as amended by the Irish Free State (Consequential Provisions) Act, 1922 (13 Geo. V. Ch. 2, Session 2), a separate parliament and executive government were established for Northern Ireland, which comprises the parliamentary counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone, and the parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry. The Parliament consists of a Senate of 2 ex-officio and 24 elected persons and a House of Commons of 52 elected members. An allowance for expenses is made in the case of those members of both Houses who are not in receipt of salaries as members of the Government or as officers of Parliament, amounting to (a) two guineas a day to members of the Senate for attendance at meetings of the Senate or committees, but the total allowance to each may not exceed 80 guineas in any one year, unless under a declaration of insufficiency of means when an additional 100*l*. per annum is paid irrespective of attendance, and to (b) 200*l*. a year to members of the House of Commons. The Parliament has power to legislate for its own area except in regard to (1) matters of Imperial concern (the Crown, making of peace or war, military, naval, and air forces, treaties, titles of honour, treason, naturalisation, domicile, external trade, submarine cables, wireless telegraphy, aerial navigation, lighthouses, etc., coinage, etc., trade marks, etc.), and (2) certain matters 'reserved' to the Imperial Parliament (postal service, Post Office and Trustee savings banks, designs for stamps, registration of deeds, land purchase). The executive power is vested in the Governor on behalf of His Majesty the King: he holds office for six years and is advised by ministers responsible to Parliament. Senators hold office for a fixed term of years: the House of Commons is to continue for five years, unless sooner dissolved. The qualifications for membership of the Parliament are similar to those for membership of the Imperial House of Commons. Power was given to the Northern Ireland Parliament by the Act of 1920 to alter the qualification and registration of electors, the election laws and the distribution of Parliamentary representation after June 1924. This power was exercised by the passing—(a) of the Representation of the People Act (Northern Ireland), 1928, whereby the franchise was conferred upon women upon the same terms as it had hitherto been enjoyed by men; and (b) of the House of Commons (Method of Voting and Redistribution of Seats) Act (Northern Ireland), 1929, whereby the system of Proportional Representation, under which the Parliaments which met in 1921 and in 1925 had been elected, was abolished, and Parliamentary Representation, except for the constituency of Queen's University of Belfast, was based upon single-member constituencies.

Northern Ireland continues to return 13 members to the Imperial House of Commons.

An Act of the Imperial Parliament, passed in 1928, modified certain restrictions placed on the powers of the Northern Irish Parliament by the Act of 1920, principally by extending the powers of the latter Parliament to legislate on matters relating to trade in live stock and agricultural produce to consolidate branches of the statute law enacted by the Imperial Parliament whose general subject matter is within the jurisdiction.

The legislative and administrative powers relating to Railways, Fisheries, and the Contagious Diseases of Animals were, under the Ireland (Confirmation of Agreement) Act, 1925, transferred to, and became, as from April 1, 1926, powers of the Parliament and Government of Northern Ireland.

The Northern Irish Parliament met for the first time in June, 1921. At the election in May, 1929, there were returned 37 Unionists, 11 Nationalists, 3 Independent Unionists, 1 Labour.

Governor.—The Duke of Abercorn, appointed for a term of 6 years from December 8, 1922; the appointment was extended on March 23, 1928 for a further term of 6 years from December 8, 1928. Salary, 8,000*l.* per year, payable from Imperial Revenues (2,000*l.* being recoverable from Northern Ireland Revenues).

The Ministry is composed as follows:—
Prime Minister.—Rt. Hon. Viscount Craigavon (salary, 3,200*l.*).
Finance.—Rt. Hon. H. M. Pollock (salary, 2,000*l.*).
Home Affairs.—Rt. Hon. Sir R. Dawson Bates (salary, 2,000*l.*).
Labour.—Rt. Hon. J. M. Andrews (salary, 2,000*l.*).
Education.—Rt. Hon. Viscount Charlemont (salary, 2,000*l.*).
Agriculture.—Rt. Hon. Sir E. M. Archdale, Bart. (salary, 2,000*l.*).
Commerce.—Rt. Hon. J. Milne Barbour.

The usual channel of communication between the Government of Northern Ireland and the Imperial Government is the Home Office.

Local Government.

In the two chief cities, the County Boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry, local administration is vested in Corporations, who are responsible for roads, public health, rating, housing, lighting, etc.

In each of the six counties there is a County Council responsible for the construction and maintenance of roads and other public works, collection of rates, supervision of the arrangements for dealing with tuberculosis and special diseases; also of lunatic asylums, county infirmaries and county fever hospitals.

The counties are divided into thirty-two rural districts, in each of which is a Rural District Council, which is the sanitary authority for the district, and is also responsible for such matters as provision of labourers' cottages, burial grounds, etc. Urban District Councils to the number of thirty have been established in themajority of the towns in Northern Ireland.

The administration of poor relief and dispensary medical relief is vested in Boards of Guardians, which, in the majority of cases, are the Rural District Councils, but in a few cases their area extends over two Rural Districts.

Area and Population.

A census of Northern Ireland was taken on April 18, 1926. The area and population of the country at that date were as follows:—

Counties and County Boroughs.	Area in statute acres (exclusive of water).	Males.	Females.	Total.
Antrim	702,851	92,596	99,047	191,643
Armagh	312,767	53,609	56,461	110,070
Belfast C. B.	14,797	195,539	219,612	415,151
Down	608,861	101,202	108,026	209,228
Fermanagh	417,912	30,102	27,882	57,984
Londonderry Co.	512,494	47,119	47,415	94,534
Londonderry C. B.	2,199	20,785	24,374	45,159

Northern Ireland	3,351,444	608,088	648,473	1,256,561

The provisional estimated population of Northern Ireland at June 30, 1930, was 1,244,000.

Vital statistics for 4 years —

Year	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Year	Marriages	Births	Deaths
1926	7,228	28,162	18,827	1928	7,264	25,963	18,004
1927	7,175	26,676	18,216	1929	7,441[1]	25,410	19,822

Religion.

The religious professions in Northern Ireland, as recorded at the census of 1926, were: Roman Catholics, 420,428; Presbyterians, 393,374; Protestant Episcopalians, 338,724; Methodists, 49,554; Other professions, 54,481; Total, 1,256,561.

Education.

The following are the latest available statistics for the Academic year 1929–30:—

University: The Queen's University of Belfast (founded in 1849 as a College of the Queen's University of Ireland, and reconstituted as an independent University in 1909), 88 Professors and Lecturers, and 1,400 students in 1930. Secondary Education: 74 schools with 11,618 pupils. Technical Instruction: 60 technical schools and 69 other centres with approximately 24,600 students. Elementary Education: 1,920 public elementary schools with 199,560 pupils on rolls.

Justice.

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, a Supreme Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland has been established, consisting of the Court of Appeal in Northern Ireland and the High Court of Justice in Northern Ireland. An appeal lies direct, in certain conditions, from the former to the House of Lords.

A system of County or Civil Bill Courts deals with civil disputes generally where the sum at issue does not exceed 50*l.*, but possesses wider jurisdiction in certain cases. Courts of summary jurisdiction generally attended by permanent judicial officers—known as resident magistrates—determine summarily minor criminal and quasi-criminal cases and certain minor civil disputes. Some cases are tried by resident magistrates sitting alone.

The Police Force consists of (a) the Royal Ulster Constabulary, with a statutory maximum strength of 3,000; and (b) the Special Constabulary, a part-time force.

Finance.

The bulk of the taxation of Northern Ireland is imposed and collected by the Imperial authorities, who make certain deductions and remit the balance to the Northern Irish Exchequer. The exact share of the latter in the proceeds of such taxation is determined by the Joint Exchequer Board, a special body consisting of one representative of the Imperial Treasury, one of the Northern Irish Treasury, and a chairman appointed by the King. The deductions made by the Treasury represent a contribution towards Imperial liabilities and expenditure, and the net cost to the Imperial Exchequer of Northern Irish services 'reserved' to the Imperial Parliament. During recent years the cost of these 'reserved' services, together with the Imperial contribution, has represented about 25 per cent. of the total expenditure of Northern Ireland while the remaining 75 per cent. has represented the cost of administration in the Province, including education, widows and orphans, old age and blind persons' pensions, health and unemployment insurance, police, prisons, public works, agricultural development, commercial services, finance, etc. The Northern Irish Parliament has independent powers of taxation, except as regards customs duties, excise duties on articles manufactured and produced, excess profits duty, corporation profits tax, any tax on profits or a general tax on capital, or any tax substantially the same in character as any of these duties or taxes. It has no power to impose, charge or collect income tax, including super tax, but it can grant relief from these taxes to individuals resident and domiciled in Northern Ireland. The Northern Government also raises money, as required, by means of Ulster Savings Certificates and Treasury Bills, for the purpose of meeting temporary deficiencies of revenue and for advances to the Unemployment Fund. In October, 1925, a Government Loans Fund was established from which loans are made to local authorities and others for public utility services. This has been financed by issues amounting to 4,000,000*l.* Ulster Loans 4½% Stock, 1945–1975, and 2,000,000*l.* Ulster Loans 5% Stock, 1950–60.

The revenue accruing to the Northern Irish Exchequer and the expenditure for four years was as follows:—

	1928-29	1929-30[1]	1930-31[1] (estimated)	1931-32 (estimated)
Revenue	8,136,000	8,222,000	9,219,995	8,582,373
Expenditure	8,059,000	8,205,000	9,219,995	8,582,373

			Fruit	8,846	8,493
			Hay	448,347	465,452
			Total under Crops	1,013 887	1 028,855

The yield in 1929 was (in tons): oats, 286,746; potatoes, 1,124,056; turnips, 843,153; flax, 6,914; hay, 801,415.

The livestock in 1929 was: cattle, 699,989; sheep, 654,589; pigs, 192,058; goats, 50,950; horses used in agriculture, 85,805; unbroken horses, 6,325; mules and jennets, 254; asses, 8,691. Poultry in 1930 numbered 8,808,000.

There were 101,043 agricultural holdings exceeding one acre in area in 1929, in the hands of 99,421 separate occupiers.

Mining.—The mineral output in 1928 and 1929 for Northern Ireland was:—

	1928	1929		1928	1929
	Tons.	Tons.		Tons.	Tons.
Bauxite, Iron Ore and Lignite	3,731	3,333	Gypsum	17	1,430
Chalk	194,160	254,481	Granite	102,054	93,884

Gravel and Sand	43,742	50,763	Sandstone	207,058	188,088
			Diatomite	4,244	4,207

The number of persons employed, inclusive of those employed at coal mines, was: 1928, 2,450; 1929, 2,604.

Manufactures.—The two principal industries are linen and shipbuilding, both centred in Belfast. The former provides employment for approximately 110,000 persons, excluding those engaged in growing the fibre; 1,000,000 spindles, and 40,000 looms. The value of linens exported from the United Kingdom during 1929 was 9,240,340*l.*, practically the whole of which came from Northern Ireland. The Belfast shipyards employ approximately 13,000 persons, and possess an output capacity exceeding 250,000 tons a year. Other important manufactures are ropes and twines, tobacco, soaps, aerated waters, biscuits, spirits, hosiery and underwear.

National Insurance.

Sickness and Unemployment Insurance and Pensions.—Schemes of compulsory insurance on similar lines to those in force in Great Britain are in operation in Northern Ireland, and make provision for benefits during unemployment and sickness, including medical attention, and for pensions to persons over 65 years of age and to widows and orphans.

A general outline of the provisions of these schemes is set out in the paragraph dealing with 'National Insurance' in Great Britain. The number of persons in Northern Ireland insured under the various schemes is approximately: Health Insurance and Contributory Pensions, 338,000; Unemployment Insurance, 258,000.

Non-contributory Pensions.—Old Age Pensions (non-contributory) and Blind Persons' Pensions are granted to individuals who are not eligible for Contributory Pensions provided they have reached the age of 70 (50 in case of Blind Persons), and comply with certain conditions as regards British nationality and residence in the U.K.

The number of persons in Northern Ireland in receipt of non-contributory Pensions is approximately 42,000.

Communications.

The total first track railway mileage of Northern Ireland amounts to 754 miles. The area is also well served by inland waterways, and possesses 180 miles of canals. Total length of roads is 12,996 miles; road budget for year ending March 31, 1931, was 1,200,000*l.*

ISLE OF MAN.[1]

The Isle of Man is administered in accordance with its own laws by the Court of Tynwald, consisting of the Governor, appointed by the Crown; the Legislative Council, composed of the Lord Bishop of Sodor and Man, two Deemsters, the Attorney-General, two members appointed by the Governor, and four members elected by the House of Keys, total 11 members, including the Governor; and the House of Keys, a representative assembly of 24 members chosen on adult suffrage with six months residence for 5 years by the 6 'sheadings' or local sub-divisions, and the 4 municipalities. Women have the franchise as well as men. Number of voters 1930-31, 38,679. The island is not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially mentioned in them.

Lieut.-Governor.—Sir Claude H. A. Hill, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

The principal towns are Douglas (population in 1928, 21,183), Ramsey (4,247), Peel (2,605), Castletown (1,817). Births (1928), 698; deaths, 730. In 1930 there were 38 elementary schools, 35 being provided schools. The enrolled pupils numbered 5,617, and the average attendance 4,877. The net expenditure of the Education Authority on elementary education for the year 1929-30, amounted to 68,616*l.* There are 4 secondary schools (912 registered pupils), and 7 evening classes (478 registered pupils). The gross expenditure on higher education for 1929-30 was 26,819*l.* In 1929 the police force numbered 65; in the year 1928 there were 816 persons convicted.

Revenue is derived mostly from Customs. In 1929-30 the revenue amounted to 407,187*l.*; and expenditure to 380,371*l.*

The principal agricultural produce of the island consists of oats, barley, turnips and potatoes, and grasses. The total area of the island, excluding water, is 140,986 acres; the total area of arable land in 1930 was 80,606 acres and of permanent grass, 21,475 acres. The total acreage under corn crops in 1930 was 17,123 acres, including 16,225 under oats, 280 under wheat, and 459 under barley or bere. There were also 5,768 acres under turnips and swedes, 1,720 under potatoes, and 32,605 under clover, sainfoin and grasses under rotation. The number of agricultural holdings in 1930 was 1,369. The live stock in 1929 consisted of 3,628 horses; 19,946 cattle; 96,458 sheep; and 3,630 pigs. Total value of minerals raised in 1923, 47,496*l.* Persons employed in mining numbered 414. In 1929 there were belonging to the Isle of Man 104 fishing boats.

The registered shipping (1929) comprised 8 sailing vessels (528 gross and 421 net tons) and 39 steamers (28,822 gross and 11,850 net tons) and 24 motor vessels (747 gross and 510 net tons); total tonnage 9,476 net tons. The tonnage of vessels arrived at ports of the island in 1929 was 1,173,568 tons (1,060,882 tons coastwise), and departed 1,167,346 net tons (1,056,736 tons coastwise). The railways have a length of 46½ miles, and there are 25 miles of electric railway.

CHANNEL ISLANDS.[1]

The Channel Islands are situated off the north-west coast of France, and are the only portions of the "Dukedom of Normandy" now belonging to England, to which they have been attached since the Conquest. The islands are administered according to their own laws and customs. Jersey has a separate legal existence; it is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Bailiff also appointed by the Crown. The Lieutenant-Governor has a veto on certain forms of legislation. He and the Crown officers may address the States but not vote. The qualification for a vote is the possession of a minimum value of 80*l.* real or 120*l.* personal property. The Royal Court consists of a tribunal of first instance and an appeal court. The States for deliberation and legislation consist of 12 Jurats, 12 rectors, 12 constables (who are the mayors of the parishes), 17 deputies, and 2 Crown officers. Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark are under one Lieutenant-Governor, but Guernsey and Alderney have a government of their own, and Sark is a dependency of Guernsey and under its jurisdiction. On May 10, 1905, a law was passed for the Island of Guernsey requiring the approval of the Lieut.-Governor and of the Royal Court of the Island previously to the acquisition, or leasing, or occupation of immovable property by aliens or alien companies, registration and liability to local rates, &c., being also provided for. The Channel Islands are not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially named in them.

Births: 1929:—Jersey, 727; Guernsey, 757; deaths:—Jersey, 810; Guernsey, 622.

Lieutenant-Governor of Jersey.—Major-General E. H. Willis, C.B., C.M.G. Appointed May 28, 1929.

Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, &c.—Major-General the Lord Ruthven, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O. Appointed June 5, 1929.

Finance.—Jersey (financial year ended 31st January, 1930): revenue, 297,401*l.*; expenditure, 270,977*l.*; public debt, 939,450*l.*; 1929: revenue, 233,129*l.*; expenditure, 264,028*l.* Guernsey, &c. (1929): revenue, 485,476*l.*; expenditure, 509,727*l.*; public debt (1929), 1,073,273*l.*

The total area of agricultural holdings and outside land in Guernsey (1928) was 9,336 acres.

Jersey 1929, exports, 154,219 tons; imports, 137,089 tons; 1928, exports, 149,616 tons; imports, 125,537 tons.

The imports from Guernsey into the United Kingdom in 1929 were:—granite, 172,131 tons; tomatoes, 24,946 tons; potatoes, 313 tons; fruit, 158 tons; flowers, 3,742 tons.

Guernsey registered shipping (1929), 4,147 tons (net).

INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the following pages the various sections of the British Empire outside Gt. Britain and Northern Ireland are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong:—1. Europe; 2. Asia; 3. Africa; 4. America; 5. Australasia and Oceania.

The term 'Dominion' is used officially as a convenient abbreviation of the complete designation 'self-governing Dominion.' The Dominions are Australia, Canada, Irish Free State, Newfoundland, New Zealand, and South Africa.

The Imperial Conference of 1926 defined the Dominions as 'autonomous Communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or foreign affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations.' The Conference further laid down that, as a consequence of this equality of status, the Governor-General of a Dominion 'is the representative of the Crown, holding in all essential respects the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs in the Dominion as is held by His Majesty the King in Great Britain,' and that 'it is the right of the Government of each Dominion to advise the Crown in all matters relating to its own affairs.' The Conference also recognised certain treaty-making rights as appertaining to the Dominions.

The term 'Colony' is an abbreviation of the official designation 'Colony not possessing responsible Government,' and includes all such Colonies whether or not they possess an elective Legislature, but does not include Protectorates or Protected States. The term 'Crown Colonies' is properly applicable only to those Colonies in which the Crown retains control of legislation.

Under the recent Peace Treaties certain ex-German and ex-Turkish territories are administered by parts of the British Empire under mandates approved by the League of Nations. These territories include Samoa, New Guinea, Iraq, Palestine, and parts of the former German Colonies in Africa.

Up to July, 1925, all sections of the British Empire outside of Great Britain and Ireland were dealt with by the Colonial Office. In that month a new Secretaryship of State, for Dominion Affairs, was created, and as a result the Dominions Office was set up, to take over from the Colonial Office business connected with the self-governing Dominions, the self-governing Colony of Southern Rhodesia, and the South African territories (Basutoland, Bechuanaland Protectorate, and Swaziland), including business relating to the Imperial Conference.

The Colonial Office now deals with the administrative work of the Colonies, Protectorates, and Mandated Territories other than those for which the Dominions Office is responsible. It contains seven Departments—the West Indian, Far Eastern, Ceylon and Mauritius, East African, Tanganyika and Somaliland, Nigeria, Gold Coast and Mediterranean—dealing with the affairs of various groups of Dependencies; a Middle Eastern Division, which was established in March, 1921, to conduct business relating to Iraq, Palestine, Aden, and Arab areas under British influence; and a General Department, which is concerned with correspondence of a general and miscellaneous character including questions of promotion, postal, telegraph, and copyright matters, international conventions and commercial treaties, Letters Patent and Commissions etc.

EUROPE.

THE IRISH FREE STATE (SAORSTAT EIREANN).

AN Act was passed in 1920 under which separate Parliaments were set up for "Southern Ireland" (26 counties) and "Northern Ireland" (6 counties). The Ulster Unionists accepted this scheme, and the Northern Parliament was duly elected on May 24, 1921, and opened by the King in person in the following June. The rest of Ireland, however, having proclaimed a Republic in January 1919 refused to work the Act On December 6, 1921 a treaty was signed with the British Government which was embodied in the Irish Free State (Agreement) Act, 1922. The Treaty contains the following provisions among others:—

Ireland to have the same constitutional status 'in the community of nations known as the British Empire' as the Self-Governing Dominions, and to be called the Irish Free State.

Its position in relation to the Imperial Parliament and Government to be that of the Dominion of Canada, and the representative of the crown in Ireland to be appointed in like manner as the Governor-General of Canada.

The Irish Free State to undertake its own coastal defence, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland being undertaken by the Imperial forces: these provisions to be reviewed at the expiration of five years. The Free State to afford, in time of 'war or strained relations' with other powers, such harbour and other facilities as the British Government may require. The establishments of the Irish defence force not to exceed such proportion to the British military establishment as the population of Ireland bears to the population of Great Britain.

The ports of Great Britain and of Ireland to be freely open to the ships of 'the other country' on payment of the customary dues.

By the Treaty 'Northern Ireland' was given the option of continuing its separate existence under the Act of 1920, subject to the award of a 'Boundary Commission.' On December 3, 1925, the British Government and the two Irish Governments signed an agreement by the terms of which the partition of 1920 continues in force as determined in that Act, the Boundary Commission being discharged from the duty of delivering an Award.

By the same agreement the provisions of the Treaty relating to a Council of Ireland and that stipulating the liability of the Irish Free State for a share of the National Debt of the United Kingdom were cancelled.

Constitution.

Under the Treaty a Provisional Government was constituted on January 14, 1922, to carry on for a period not exceeding twelve months from the date of the Treaty (December 6, 1921). In September 1922 the Provisional Parliament met as a Constituent Assembly to adopt a Constitution for the Irish Free State. The Constitution was passed by the Provisional Parliament on October 25, enacted by the British Parliament on December 5 (see the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922 [Session 2], 13 Geo. V. ch. 1), and on December 6, 1922, came into effect by Royal Proclamation.

The Constitution declares the Irish Free State to be a co-equal member of the Community of Nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations, and that 'all powers of Government, and all authority, legislative, executive, and judicial, in Ireland are derived from the people of Ireland.' Every person domiciled within the area of the Free State on December 6, 1922, who was born in Ireland, or either of whose parents was born in Ireland, or who had been ordinarily resident within the area of the Free State for at least seven years, automatically became a citizen of the new State unless he or she elected not to accept such citizenship. The Irish language is declared to be the national language, but English is equally recognized as an official language. Liberty of person and the dwelling of the citizen are inviolable. There is to be no endowment of any religion. Freedom of conscience and the free profession and practice of religion are guaranteed to each citizen, as well as the right of free expression of opinion and the right to assemble peacefully and to form associations or unions for purposes not opposed to public morality. Elementary education is free.

The Legislature, known as the Oireachtas, consists of the King, a Chamber of Deputies (Dáil Eireann), and a Senate (Seanad Eireann). There must be at least one Session each year. Provision is made for payment of members, Legislative authority in respect of money bills is reserved to the Chamber alone, but the Senate may make recommendations. Every bill (other than a money bill) initiated in and passed by the Chamber of Deputies is sent to the Senate, and if amended there the Chamber shall consider the amendments. An elaborate machinery of procedure is established by the Constitution (Amendment No. 13) Act, 1928, to prevent the exercise of a veto by the Senate or a protracted deadlock between the Senate and the Chamber.

The Representative of the Crown signifies the King's assent to bills passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of the Oireachtas. He cannot signify or withhold such assent, or reserve a bill for the signification of the King's pleasure save upon the advice of the Executive Council.

Two articles, namely Articles 47 and 48, containing respectively provisions relating to a Referendum of the people and the initiation of proposals for legislation by the people have been removed from the Constitution by the Constitution (Amendment No. 10) Act, 1928.

Amendments of the Constitution may be made within sixteen years from the date of the coming into operation of the Constitution by ordinary legislation passed for the purpose.

All members of the Oireachtas must take the prescribed oath of allegiance to the Constitution.

Citizens of 21 years of age or over, without distinction of sex, who comply with the prevailing electoral laws, can vote for members of Dáil Eireann; each voter has only one vote, and voting is by secret ballot.

Every citizen of 21 years of age or over, not otherwise disqualified, is eligible for election to Dáil Eireann. Election is upon principles of Proportional Representation. The number of Deputies is fixed on a popular basis, and is at present 153. Each of the Universities existing in the year 1922 (the year in which the Constitution was enacted) is entitled to elect three Deputies. The General Election is to be held on the same day throughout the country, and Dáil Eireann, unless the Oireachtas is sooner dissolved, continues for "six years or such shorter period as may be fixed by legislation." The period fixed by legislation is at present five years.

The Senate consists of 60 members. The first Senate consisted of 30 members elected by Dáil Eireann, and 30 nominated by the President of the Executive Council. Of the latter, 15 hold office for 12 years and 15 hold office for 6 years. In 1925 an election was held to elect 19 members in accordance with Articles 32 and 34 of the Constitution.

Considerable changes were made in the year 1928 in the Articles of the Constitution relating to election to and membership of the Senate. To be eligible for membership a citizen must be at least 30 years of age and eligible for election to Dáil Eireann. The members must be citizens who 'have done honour to the nation by reason of useful public service' or who represent important aspects of the nation's life. The term of office of a member of Seanad Eireann is normally nine years. One-third of the members retire every three years, and their places are filled by an election 'at which the electors are the members of Dáil Eireann and the members of Seanad Eireann voting together on principles of proportional representation.' A panel of candidates is prepared before each election in the manner prescribed by law.

A person may not be a member of both Houses.

The executive consists of a Council of not more than twelve nor less than five ministers. They are responsible to the Dáil, and must include the President and Vice-President of the Council, and the Minister for Finance. The President of the Council, the Vice-President of the Council, the Minister in charge of the Department of Finance, and the other members of the Executive Council must be members of the Dáil, save that one of such other members may be a member of the Senate. The President is nominated by the Dáil. He nominates the Vice-President and other members of the Council, who must be approved by the Dáil. Every minister may speak in the Dáil and Senate.

The Chairman of the Dáil Ceann Comhairle receives a salary of 1,700*l.* a year; the Deputy-Chairman 1,000*l.*, the Chairman of the Senate (Cathaoirleach) receives 1,200*l.* and the Deputy-Chairman 750*l.* a year; members, except ministers and officials, 30*l.* a month, and free first-class railway facilities between Dublin and their constituencies. Ministers receive a salary of 1,700*l.* a year, and the President a salary of 2,500*l.* a year.

The representative of the King is the Governor-General of the Irish Free State (Saorstát Eireann).

The Free State Parliament met for the first time, as such, on December 6, 1922. General Elections took place subsequently in August 1923, June 1927, and September 1927. The state of the parties in October 1930 was: Cumann na nGaedheal (Government), 63; Fianna Fail, 56; Labour, 13; Farmers, 6; Independent, 11; National League, 2; Ceann Comhairle, 1; Vacancy, 1; Total, 153. The Ceann Comhairle (Speaker) is not required by law to vacate his seat at a General Election.

Governor-General.—James McNeill, appointed December 16, 1927; formally installed February 1, 1928. Salary, 10,000*l.*

The Executive Council is as follows (October 1930):—

President.—Liam T. MacCosgair (William T. Cosgrave, LL.D.).

Vice-President, Minister for Finance and Minister for Posts and Telegraphs.—Earnán de Blaghd (Ernest Blythe).

Minister for Defence.—Deasmhumhan MacGearailt (Desmond Fitzgerald).

Minister for External Affairs and Minister for Industry and Commerce.—Pádraig MacGiollagáin (Patrick McGilligan, M.A., B.L.).

Minister for Education.—Sean O'Suilleabhain (John Marcus O'Sullivan, M.A., Ph.D.).

Minister for Justice.—Seumas MacGearailt-O Cionnaoith (James Fitz Gerald-Kenney, K.C.).

Minister for Agriculture.—Pádraig O hOgain (Patrick Hogan, B.A.).

Minister for Local Government and Public Health.—Risteard Ua Maolchatha (General Richard Mulcahy).

Minister for Lands and Fisheries.—Fionán O Loinsigh (Finian Lynch, B.A.).

The usual channel of communication with the British Government is the Dominions Office and the Department of External Affairs.

Local Government.

The Irish Free State is divided into twenty-seven administrative Counties and four county boroughs governed by councils which, with the exceptions mentioned below, are elected triennially. The county councils administer county affairs generally, can hold property, levy rates, borrow money and must meet the demands of other authorities, such as the boards of health and public assistance and mental hospital committees, whom they are required by law to subsidise. The county borough council possesses with certain exceptions the powers of a county council, and is also a sanitary authority under the Public Health Acts.

The administrative counties include the urban county districts which are urban areas that have been constituted sanitary districts. Each such district is governed by an elected council that administers the acts relating to public health, housing, libraries, maternity, and child welfare, etc., and is the sole rating authority within its area. There are sixty-five urban sanitary districts, including six municipal boroughs, two towns constituted under special acts and fifty-three towns under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854. There are twenty-three towns constituted under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, which are not urban sanitary districts. These towns have elected town commissioners who exercise certain minor powers and can levy a limited rate. There are altogether eighty-eight areas under municipal government. four county boroughs, six municipal boroughs, two towns under special acts, and seventy-six towns under the Act of 1854.

The rural districts, which were subdivisions of the county, have been abolished as administrative units. An enlarged rural sanitary district, called the county health district, was created by the Local Government Act, 1925. This district generally extends over the county with the urban districts excluded. The county council performs its duties as a health authority through a board composed of ten members of the council, and is required to appoint a county medical officer of health for the effective administration of the sanitary code.

The health authority is also, with certain exceptions, the public assistance authority, and is called the board of health and public assistance. Public assistance is organised on a county basis; the poor law unions within each county have been amalgamated, boards of guardians have been abolished and workhouses closed as such. County homes have been established for the aged and infirm and chronic invalids, and county and district hospitals for the sick. Home assistance has become the normal method of poor relief. Old age pensions are a charge on State funds, but local authorities assist in the administration. The insane poor are under the care of statutory committees of the county and county borough councils who maintain nineteen mental hospitals. Industrial and reformatory schools are managed by religious communities, but maintained principally out of capitation grants from State and Local funds. Religious communities and voluntary associations also maintain schools for the deaf and dumb, the blind, the mentally deficient and other afflicted classes which local authorities have power to utilise and subsidise.

Under special powers given to the Minister for Local Government and Public Health the Dublin Municipal Council and a number of other local authorities have been superseded by paid commissioners or managers whose terms of office are limited.

The county borough of Cork has a system of government which combines an elected council with a city manager. The council has been reduced from fifty-six to twenty-one members, of whom seven retire annually and are replaced by the election of an equal number. The whole county borough forms the electoral area, the previously existing wards having been abolished. The council has certain specified functions, including the making of a rate, raising loans, and making bye-laws. All functions formerly exercised by the Council other than those now specifically reserved by law are exercised by the city manager, a paid official, who has control over all officers, and whose removal from office is subject to the sanction of the central authority.

The future government of the metropolitan area is provided for in the Local Government (Dublin) Act, 1930. By this Act the City of Dublin will be extended and a new borough, the borough of Dún Laoghaire, will be established comprising the urban districts along the south coast of Dublin Bay. When the Act comes into force the régime of the commissioners who have been acting in place of the elected Dublin city council since 1924 will come to an end. A new Council of 35 members is to be elected. Five members of the council will be elected by the commercial electors. Provision is made for the appointment of an officer who will combine the functions of City Manager and Town Clerk, and who will exercise the functions that are not reserved to the Council Elected members of local authorities are not paid, but provision is made for a contribution towards travelling expenses.

Elections to public bodies are held according to the principle of proportional representation. The franchise extends practically to all persons of either sex who are of full age and have during a qualifying period occupied as owners or tenants any land or premises in the area, except premises let as furnished lodgings. Any married woman of 30 years or over residing with her husband in premises in respect of which the husband is entitled to be registered as a local government elector is also qualified for the franchise. Women are eligible for election as members of all local government bodies in the same manner and on the same conditions as men.

In order to abolish patronage and to ensure that only qualified persons are appointed to local offices a central body called the Local Appointments Commissioners is charged with the duty of selecting suitable persons to be appointed by local authorities to chief executive offices, to professional and technical offices and to other prescribed offices. Before making an appointment to a prescribed office which cannot be filled by promotion the local authority must request the Commissioners to recommend to them a suitable person. The Commissioners select persons for appointment by means of competitive examinations or by the machinery of selection committees.

A scheme of combined purchasing has been established in order to enable local authorities to obtain commodities of standard quality at the lowest possible price. The central authority appoints official contractors after obtaining competitive tenders. Lists of contractors are published periodically, and local authorities are then in a position to obtain their requirements directly from contractors at list prices.

The expenditure of local authorities is met mainly by receipts from rates levied on the annual value of rateable property and from government subventions. The rates collected (1926-27) amounted to 5,223,819*l.* The government grants amounted to 3,075,157*l.*

Area and Population.

According to the census of population in the Irish Free State, taken in April, 1926, the following are the figures of area and population:—

Education.—Elementary Education.—Elementary Education is free and is given in the National Schools, which are under local managers, but are subject to the control of the Department of Education.

Since the establishment of the Saorstát the Irish language has been included as an essential part of the curriculum for all National Schools, and special courses in Irish have been held each year from 1922 to 1928 inclusive. Approximately 8,854 teachers have already qualified to teach the language. The use of Irish as a medium of instruction in the schools has also largely increased.

The latest statistics available show that the number of schools in operation is 5,447. The number of pupils enrolled in the schools is 507,840; the percentage average daily attendance is 82·6; the number of teachers of all classes is approximately 13,657.

There are five State-aided Training Colleges. The number of qualified teachers who issued from the Colleges in 1928–29 was 354.

The estimated State expenditure on Elementary Education for the year 1930–31 is 3,617,116*l.*, excluding the cost of administration.

Secondary Education.—The Secondary or Intermediate Schools are under private control and are conducted in many cases by Religious Orders; all schools receiving grants from the State are open to inspection by inspectors of the Education Department. The number of recognised Secondary Schools during the school year 1928–29 was 290, and the number of pupils between the ages of 12 and 20 years in attendance was 26,792. A new scheme of Secondary Education was introduced at the beginning of the school year 1924–25, under which the schools are allowed considerable freedom in drawing up their programmes, and the grants paid to the schools are reckoned on a capitation basis. Estimated total expenditure for 1930–31, 318,930*l.*, excluding the cost of administration.

Technical Education.—Technical Schools are established in all the cities and in the principal towns. These schools are controlled by the local authorities, and are maintained partly by the rates and partly by State Grants. Estimated total expenditure for Technical Education for 1930–31 is 167,227*l.* (taxes), excluding the cost of administration, and 66,000*l.* (rates).

University Education is given at the University of Dublin (Trinity College), founded in 1591, and at the National University of Ireland, founded in Dublin in 1909. The latter has three constituent colleges, namely, the University Colleges of Cork, Galway, and Dublin. The numbers of professors, &c., and students, in 1929–30, were as follows:—

Justice.

Justice is administered by Courts set up by the Courts of Justice Act, 1924, pursuant to the Constitution. They consist of a Supreme Court, a High Court, a Court of Criminal Appeal, a Central Criminal Court, a Circuit Court and a District Court.

The Supreme Court, which consists of the Chief Justice (who is ex-officio an additional Judge of the High Court) and two other Judges, has appellate jurisdiction from all decisions of the High Court. The High Court, which consists of a President (who is ex-officio an additional Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeal) and five ordinary Judges, has full original jurisdiction in and power to determine all matters and questions, whether of law or fact, civil or criminal. In all cases in which questions arise touching the validity of any law having regard to the provisions of the Constitution, the High Court alone exercises original jurisdiction. The Court of Criminal Appeal consists of the Chief Justice or some other Judge of the Supreme Court and two ordinary Judges of the High Court. It deals with appeals by persons convicted on indictment where the appellant obtains a certificate from the trial Judge that the case is a fit one for appeal, or, in case such certificate is refused, where the Court itself, on appeal from such refusal, grants leave. Where leave to appeal is granted, the appeal is heard and determined by the Court of Criminal Appeal on the report of the official stenographer present at the trial, with power to the Court to hear further evidence or to refer any matter back for report by the trial Judge. The decisions of the Court of Criminal Appeal are final, unless that Court or the Attorney-General certifies that the decision involves a point of law of exceptional public importance, and that it is desirable that an appeal should be taken to the Supreme Court of Appeal. The Central Criminal Court consists of a Judge of the High Court, to whom is assigned, for the time being, the duty of acting as such Court. It is held at such times and in such places as the President of the High Court may direct, and at it are tried criminal cases which are outside the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court or which may be sent forward to it for trial from the Circuit Court.

The Saorstát is divided into eight Circuits, each of which is presided over by a Judge of the Circuit Court. The jurisdiction of this Court in civil proceedings is limited as to amount, save by consent of the parties, in which event the jurisdiction is unlimited. In criminal matters, it has jurisdiction in all cases save murder, attempt to murder, conspiracy to murder, high treason, treason felony, treasonable conspiracy or piracy.

The District Court consists of thirty-three Justices of the District Court. Three of such Justices are assigned to the Dublin Metropolitan area; the remainder of the country is divided into thirty districts, to each of which a Justice of the District Court is assigned. The District Court is a Court of summary jurisdiction with a small civil jurisdiction—in contract cases up to 25*l.*, and in cases of tort, with certain exceptions, up to 10*l.*

All Judges and Justices of the District Court are appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Executive Council.

Defence.

Article 46 of the Constitution of the Irish Free State lays it down that the Oireachtas has the exclusive right to regulate the raising and maintaining of the armed forces in the Irish Free State and the Oireachtas possesses control of every such force. The Executive Council is authorised by the Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1923 to 1930, to raise, train, equip, arm, pay and maintain an armed force consisting of such number of officers and men as may from time to time be provided by the Oireachtas.

The command in chief of, and all executive and administrative powers in relation to, the forces is by the Acts mentioned vested in the Executive Council and exercised through and in the name of the Minister for Defence. A Council of Defence is constituted by the 'Ministers and Secretaries Act, 1924' to assist the Minister for Defence in the administration of the business of his Department. It consists of the Minister (Chairman), a Civil Member (a member of Dáil Eireann), and three military members, being the Chief of Staff, the Adjutant-General and the Quartermaster-General.

Enlistment is voluntary. The terms of engagement are :—Infantry Arm : 2 years in Army Service and 6 years in Class 'A' Reserve ; 1 month (for men with previous Army Service), or 3 months in Army Service and 6 years in Class 'B' Reserve. All other Corps : 4 years in Army Service and 8 years in the Reserve. Army School of Music : 12 years in Army Service.

The Irish Free State is divided into four military districts : the Curragh, Dublin, Cork, and Athlone Military Districts. The Infantry is organised in six battalions. The remaining services are Air, Artillery, Armoured Car, Engineer, Signal, Military Police, Medical and Transport Corps, a School of Music, and a Military College.

The strength provided for (1930–31) is 513 commissioned officers and 5,700 non-commissioned officers and men. The Reserve consists of officers of the Forces who have retired therefrom and non-commissioned officers and men who, having served in the Forces, have been transferred to the Reserve. Reservists may be called out for training for a period not exceeding 30 days in any year.

Coastal Defence.—In accordance with the Treaty between Great Britain and Ireland, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland is undertaken by Imperial Forces. The question of Ireland undertaking a share of her own coastal defence is to be the subject of a Conference.

The estimated total expenditure for the financial year ending March, 1930, is 1,445,032*l.*

Production.

Agriculture.—General distribution of surface (in acres) in 1929 : crops and pasture, 12,059,911 ; woods and plantations, 233,127 ; other land, including grazed mountain, 4,731,443 ; total, 17,024,481.

The number of live-stock in 1930 was : cattle, 4,038,000 ; sheep, 3,515,000 ; pigs, 1,052,000 ; horses, 448,000 ; poultry, 22,900,000.

Agricultural Production.—According to the Census of Agricultural Production, 1926–27, the agricultural output, which consisted of live-stock and live-stock products valued at 50,555,000*l.*, and crops and turf valued at 14,202,000*l.*, was disposed of as follows:—

Consumed by the agricultural community	23,071,000
Consumed or utilised by others in the Irish Free State	11,569,000
Exported	28,400,000
Increases in stocks	1,717,000
	£64,757,000

The more important items of output were:—Horses, 1,234,000*l.*; cattle and calves, 13,809,000*l.*; milk and cream, consumed or exported as such, 3,473,000*l.*; butter, 9,845,000*l.*; sheep and lambs, 2,858,000*l*; pigs, 9,074,000*l.*; poultry, 2,327,000*l.*; eggs, 6,690,000*l.*; potatoes, 3,786,000*l.*; turf, 5,938,000*l.*

Fisheries.—The fishing industry represents a considerable factor in the national economy The numbers of vessels, men, and boys engaged in fishing in the year 1929 were: 12 steam, 349 motor, 1,008 sail, and 2,191 row boats; total 3,560 vessels; men and boys, 12,146.

The quantities and values of fish landed during 1929 were: demersal fish, 82,684 cwts., value 123,090*l.*; pelagic fish, 235,885 cwts., value 133,343*l.*; shell fish, value 75,333*l.*

The inland fisheries are a very important national asset, providing some of the finest salmon and trout fishing in the world. There are also lakes of a total area of some 400 square miles containing considerable quantities of coarse fish available for capture. The quantity and value of the salmon captured in 1927 were 1,580 tons and 259,400*l.* respectively.

The census of Industrial production for 1926 gives the following details of the gross value of output for the principal industries (figures in brackets are the gross values minus cost of materials, including fuel, light, and power):—grain milling, 7,242,756*l.* (655,093*l.*); bread, flour confectionery, biscuits, 4,900,531*l.* (1,833,194*l.*); butter, cheese, margarine, 7,366,089*l.* (744,558*l.*); bacon curing, 5,457,326*l.* (449,311*l.*); aerated waters and bottling, 2,209,993*l.* (570,415*l.*); brewing, 7,300,365*l.* (5,184,619*l.*); tobacco, 5,033,366*l.* (1,129,127*l.*); clothing and millinery, 1,724,259*l.* (866,965*l.*); sugar confectionery, jam-making, 879,329*l.* (347,185*l.*); woollen and worsted, 737,336*l.* (343,244*l.*); malting, 766,661*l* (306,865*l.*). The total selling value of tobacco products manufactured in 1929 was 5,215,746*l.*, and of boot and shoe manufactures, 339,197*l.*

MALTA.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—General Sir John Du Cane, G.C.B. appointed March 16, 1927.

Lieut.-Governor.—Harry Charles Luke, C.M.G.

Malta was held in turn by Phœnicians, Greeks, Carthaginians and Romans, and was conquered by Arabs in 870. From 1090 it was joined to Sicily until 1530, when it was handed over to the Knights of St. John, who ruled until dispersed by Napoleon in 1798. The Maltese rose in rebellion against the French and the Island was subsequently blockaded by the British Fleet, aided by the Maltese, from 1798 to 1800, and with the free will of the Maltese was finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814. It is one of the most important ports of call in the world, and is the base and resort for repair and refitment of the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

Constitution—Under the Malta Constitution Letters Patent, 1921, there is an elected Legislature to control local affairs, consisting of a Senate (partly nominated) of 17 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 32 elected members. Elections are on a proportional representation basis. There is a responsible ministry, as follows:

Head of the Ministry and Minister for Police and Justice.—The Lord Strickland of Sizergh, G.C.M.G., LL.B., M.L.A., Count della Catena.

Minister for Public Health and Treasury.—Prof. Robert V. Galea, L.S.A., M.L.A.

Minister for Public Instruction.—Sir A. Bartolo, LL.D., B.Lit., F.R.Hist.S.

Minister for Posts.—R. Hamilton, M.L.A.

Minister for Industry and Commerce.—Walter Salomone, M.L.A.

Minister for Public Works.—Edwin P. Vassallo, ArC.E., M.L.A.

Minister for Agriculture and Fisheries.—A. P. Montano, AiC.E., M.L.A.

Certain 'reserved' matters, including control of naval, military and air forces, Imperial interests, external trade, coinage, immigration, treaties, and relations with foreign States, are dealt with by the Governor, who is assisted by two Councils—an Executive Council consisting of such ministers as he selects, and a 'Nominated Council,' consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, a Legal Adviser, and three officers of the Navy, Army, and Air Force.

The English language, as the official language of the British Empire, and the Italian language, as the established language of record of the Courts of Law, are the official languages of Malta. The English language is the official language of administration, and all official records and public documents and all notices of general public importance or interest issued by the Malta Government are in that language, without prejudice, however, to the use of Italian as a second official language of administration accompanying the British text in such records, documents and notices in so far as may be found desirable and convenient. Both languages are recognised as equal languages of culture in the University, in Secondary Schools and in the higher classes of Elementary Schools, as subjects of study.

Area and Population.—Malta is 17·4 miles long; area, 95 square miles; and the neighbouring island, Gozo, 26 square miles; total area (with Comino), 122 square miles. Population, Census April 24, 1921, 224,680; civil population on December 31, 1929, 232,832. Births, 1929, 7,743; deaths, 5,059; number of marriages, 1,598. Chief town and port, Valletta.

Education.—156 public schools, with 24,478 pupils at the beginning of the scholastic year, 1929-30; a university with 115 students; a Government high school for boys with 393 students; 2 Government secondary schools, one for boys with 45 pupils, and one for girls with 193 pupils; and 25 technical manual schools. Expenditure on elementary education, 1929-30, 89,438*l.*; secondary, 9,601*l.*; university, 9,764*l.* There are about 50 unaided private schools, of which 15 are State aided, with about 4,500 pupils.

Justice.—In 1928-29, 988 persons were committed to prison; 99 persons were convicted of serious crime and 21,638 summarily. Police numbered 655 officers and men and 18 reserve constables on March 31, 1930.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure in 5 years were :—

ASIA.

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS.

Aden is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab-el-Mandeb. It forms an important bunkering station on the highway to the East, and is fortified. The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself, and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othmán on the mainland, with the villages of Imad and Hiswa.

In April, 1905, after demarcation of the frontier, Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Murad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north-east to the great Desert. By the Anglo-Turkish Convention of 1914, the boundary was prolonged through the desert to a point on the coast opposite Bahrein in the Persian Gulf. The territories of the Imam of San'ā now march with the border-line demarcated by a Mixed Commission (Anglo-Turkish) in 1902–4. The Settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government. The Government is administered by a Resident and Commander-in-Chief with four assistants. By an Order in Council, August 15, 1929, the superintendence, direction and control of the military government of Aden and its dependencies are transferred from the Viceroy of India to the Resident and Commander-in-Chief at Aden.

Resident and Commander-in-Chief.—Lieut.-Colonel B. R. Reilly, C.I E., O.B.E. Appointed March, 1931.

Area 75 square miles; including the Protectorate about 9,000 square miles; of Perim, 5 square miles. Population of Aden and Perim in 1921, 54,923 (36,878 males and 18,045 females), against 46,165 in 1911.

The only Government revenue is from duties on liquor, opium, and salt, and from income tax, court fees and judicial fines; local taxes go to the Aden Settlement Fund. There is a Port Trust. The gross revenue of the settlement in 1928–29 was Rs. 7,75,808. Imports (1929–30), by sea, Rs. 6,90,98,991; by land, Rs. 23,29,511; treasure (sea and land), Rs. 84,59,137; total imports, Rs. 7,98,87,639 (total, 1928–29, Rs. 8,60,94,600). Chief imports: Cotton piece goods, grain, hides and skins, tobacco, coal, coffee, sugar, fruits, vegetables and other provisions. Exports, by sea, Rs. 5,14,69,894; by land, Rs. 22,67,390; treasure (sea and land), Rs. 66,09,913; total exports, Rs. 6,03,47,197 (total, 1928–29, Rs. 7,06,50,871). Chief exports: Coffee, gums, hides and skins, cotton goods, tobacco, grain and pulse, provisions and sugar. These statistics are exclusive of government stores and treasure. In 1929–30, 1,636 merchant vessels of 6,178,350 tons (net) entered the port of Aden, of which 910 were British; in the same year 1,028 country (local) craft of 32,609 tons entered. At Perim 556 vessels entered, of which 15 were Government vessels. Aden itself produces little, its chief industries being the manufacture of salt and cigarettes. The trade is largely a transhipment one, and is divided into foreign, Indian, and inland. There is a branch of the National Bank of India, Limited, and there is also one firm of private bankers.

The island of Sokotra (Hadibu alias Taharida) off the coast of Africa is under British protection, and the Kuria Muria islands, off the coast of Arabia, are attached to Aden. Area of former, 1,382 square miles. Population about 12,000, mostly pastoral and migratory inland, fishing on the coast. Religion, at one time Christian, Mohammedan since the end of the 17th century. The island came under British protection in 1876, by treaty with the Sultan. Chief products, dates and various gums; sheep, cattle, and goats are plentiful; butter is exported. The Kuria Muria Islands, five in number, were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat for the purpose of landing the Red Sea cable.

BAHRAIN ISLANDS.

The Bahrain islands form an archipelago in the Persian Gulf 20 miles off al Hasa on the Arabian coast. Bahrain, the largest island, is 27 miles long and 10 miles wide. About a twentieth part of its area is cultivated. Other islands are Maharaq, to the north-east of Bahrain, 4 miles long and ½ mile wide; Sitra, to the east, 3 miles long and 1 mile wide; Nebi Saleh, about 2 miles in circumference, and several uninhabited islets. The islands are low lying, the highest ground being a hill in the centre of Bahrain 400 feet high.

The Ruling Family, the Al Khalifa, came originally from the neighbourhood of Kuwait and occupied Bahrain, which was then in the hands of the Persians, in 1782. The present chief, Sir Isa bin Ali al Khalifa, K.C.I.E., became the Ruling Shaikh in 1869. In 1923, owing to his advanced age, he handed over the active conduct of affairs to his eldest son and heir-apparent, Shaikh Hamad bin Isa al Khalifa, C.S.I. The Ruler is in treaty relations with the Government of India, who are represented by a Political Agent.

The total population is estimated at about 120,000, of which three-quarters are the original inhabitants of the islands, of the Shia sect, the remainder, including the Ruling Family, being Sunnis. The Sunnis live mainly in the towns of Manama and Maharaq. There is a wealthy Persian community in Manama and a number of Indian merchants.

Manama, the capital and commercial centre, extends for 1½ miles along the shore. There are stone wharves and a pier, but at low tide the pier can only be reached in a light skiff. Manama contains two hospitals, schools, a branch of the Eastern Bank, Post Office, wireless station, and the official residence of the Ruler. Wide roads connect the various quarters of the town. There is a municipal council in Manama and also in the town of Maharaq, on the adjacent island. The two islands are connected by a service of motor launches, which also ply to the mainland. The population of Manama is about 25,000 and that of Maharaq is about the same. There is a community of some 20 Europeans in Manama, including members of the Dutch Reformed Church Mission. Water in the two towns is supplied by artesian wells and nearly 200 fresh-water springs on the various islands are used for irrigation. Motor traffic is in use and roads exist between the towns and villages, which number about 100.

In the centre of Bahrain island there are many thousands of ancient tumuli whose origin is still uncertain.

Bahrain is the centre of the famous pearl fishing industry of the Persian Gulf. Over 500 boats and 15,000 divers from Bahrain are engaged in fishing during four months of the summer. During the season Bahrain is visited by numerous arab and continental pearl buyers from Europe. Other industries are: boat-building, manufacture of sailcloth and reed mats, date cultivation and breeding of particularly fine white donkeys.

The greater part of the trade of Nejd and Hassa passes through Bahrain. The revenue of the State is obtained from the 5 per cent. ad valorem Customs Duty.

In 1927, the total imports amounted to Rs. 132,27,060; and exports to Rs. 83,58,825. The chief imports were: rice, Rs. 50,77,240; wheat, Rs. 3,51,710; wheat flour, Rs 4,24,980; sugar, Rs. 14,15,910; loaf sugar, Rs. 7,33,980; coffee, Rs. 14,91,070; piecegoods, Rs. 29,89,330; tea, Rs. 3,13,650; ghee, Rs. 4,29,190. The chief exports were: rice, Rs. 22,32,885; wheat, Rs. 1,80,270; wheat flour, Rs. 100,720; sugar, Rs. 7,73,200; loaf sugar, Rs. 579,430; coffee, Rs. 4,27,730; piecegoods, Rs. 16,76,340; tea, 2,70,550, ghee, Rs. 58,400; pearls, Rs. 20,59,300.

There is a weekly mail service from India and a bi-weekly service to India. Import of arms and ammunition is subject to special permission.

The principal coins in use are Indian rupees, but Austrian (Maria Theresa) dollars (worth 1*s.* 11*d.*) and Turkish liras (worth about 18*s.*) are current. The measures employed are: dhara (= 19 inches). The weights are: roba (4 lbs.); maund (56 lbs.) and ruffa (560 lbs.).

BORNEO (BRITISH).

British North Borneo.—Governor.—A. F. Richards (February, 1930).

British North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo. The interior is mountainous, Mount Kinabalu being 13,455 feet high.

Area, about 31,106 square miles, with a coast-line of over 900 miles. Population (1921 census) 257,804, consisting mainly of Mohammedan settlers on the coast and aboriginal tribes inland. The Europeans numbered 533; Eurasians, 213; Chinese, 37,856; Malays, 20,263. The number of natives was 197,058. The most numerous are the Dusuns, 112,287; the Muruts, 37,447; and the Bajaus, 33,070. Chief towns, Sandakan (population 11,936), on the east coast, and Jesselton, on the west coast.

The territory is under the jurisdiction of the British North Borneo Company, being held under grants from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu (Royal Charter in 1881). It is administered by a Governor (appointed with the approval of the Secretary of State) in Borneo, and a Court of Directors in London, appointed under the Charter. On May 12, 1888, the British Government proclaimed a formal protectorate over the State of North Borneo. In 1898 certain border lands were acquired from the Sultan of Brunei, and more recently certain inland territories have been occupied. For administrative purposes the whole country is divided into four Residencies, which are sub-divided into Districts. In December 1904, an area of about 200 square miles was transferred to Sarawak in exchange for rights over coal mines on Brunei Bay.

There are Protestant and Catholic missions. The laws are based on the Indian Penal, Criminal, and Civil Procedure Codes, and local Ordinances. There is an Imam's Court for Mohammedan law. Native and Indian constabulary, 800 men under European officers.

A railway, 127 miles, runs from Jesselton on Gaya Bay to Melalap in the interior, with a branch from Beaufort to Weston on Brunei Bay. There is communication by telegraphy, telephone, and wireless telegraphy.

At Jesselton and Sandakan there are agencies of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, and the Bank of Taiwan. A State Bank has been established, with Head Office in Sandakan and a branch at Jesselton.

The Government issues its own copper coinage (cents and half-cents); nickel coinage of 1, 2½ and 5 cents, and silver coinage of 25 cents; also notes of one, five, ten, and twenty-five dollars, and of 25 and 50 cents. Accounts are kept in dollar currency.

Brunei.—In 1888 the neighbouring territories on the north-west coast of Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak, were placed under British protection. On January 2, 1906, by treaty, the Sultan of Brunei handed over the general administration of his State to a British Resident. The present Sultan Ahmed Tajudin Akhazul Khairi Wad-din is a minor, and succeeded to the throne on the death of his father in September 1924. The Pengiran Bendahara and Pengiran Pemancha were appointed Joint Regents during his minority. The Sultan receives an allowance of 1,400*l.* a year from State funds, and his two principal ministers 700*l.* a year each. Area about 2,500 square miles, and population, 1921 Census, 25,454 (Europeans, 35; Malays and Bornean races, 23,938; Chinese, 1,434; Indians, 37, others 10). The chief town is Brunei (pop. 12,000). The old town is built over the water on the Brunei river, and a new town has developed on the mainland since 1910. There were six vernacular schools in 1929, with 672 pupils. Police force, 1929, 1 Chief Inspector, and 62 non-commissioned officers and men. The climate is hot and moist, with cool nights. Average annual rainfall is a little over 100 inches. The native industries in Brunei town include boat building, cloth weaving, brass foundries, and manufacture of silver ware. The principal products are cutch (mangrove extract), rubber, jelutong, and sago. Most of the interior is under jungle, comprising numerous kinds of serviceable timber. There is abundant evidence of oil, but it has not yet been found in payable quantities.

The post office dealt with 64,312 articles in 1929.

There is a central Wireless Station at Brunei, and a subsidiary station at Labuan, which enable telegraphic communication to be maintained with Labuan and thence by cable with Singapore and Europe. There is also a Wireless Station in the Temburong District and another in the Belait District.

The distance from Labuan is about 43 miles. Communication by steam launches from Brunei is regularly maintained. The passage between Singapore and Labuan takes about 4 days.

Sarawak.—Area about 50,000 square miles, coast line 450 miles, many rivers navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1861 and 1905. Under an agreement of 1888 Sarawak is recognised as an independent State under the protection of Great Britain. The present Rajah, H.H. Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, G.C.M.G. appointed May 17, 1917. Population estimated at about 600,000, Malays, Dyaks, Kayans, Kenyahs, and Muruts, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief towns are the capital, Kuching, about 23 miles inland, on the Sarawak River, Sibu, 60 miles up the Rejang River, which is navigable by large steamers, and Miri, the headquarters of the Sarawak Oilfields, Ltd. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic missions with schools. The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs, the Govt. opium monopoly, gambling, arrack and pawn farms, royalty on oil, land revenue, timber royalty exemption tax payable by Malays, and from Dyak and Kayan revenue. The revenue in 1929 was 6,671,291 dollars: expenditure, 6,515,757 dollars Public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities, and a syndicate has been formed for developing the coal fields at Selantik. A considerable oil field is being developed at Miri and Bakong in the Baram district. Foreign trade, 1929: imports, 22,726,657 dollars; exports, 63,311,501 dollars. The chief exports (1929) included (in dollars) sago flour, 850,392; pepper, 1,804,606; plantation rubber, 8,579,995; gutta jelutong, 1,611,587; gutta percha, 3,563; cutch, 110,520; benzine, 35,305,622; kerosene, 3,420,380; liquid oil fuel, 4,705,659; crude oil, 1,989,983; fish, 326,471; damar, 155,995; rattans, 16,738. The trade is mostly with Singapore. Shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade, 1928, 1,569,021 tons. There are military and police forces, consisting of about 1,000 men, principally Dyaks and Malays, under British army officers. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads, besides bridle paths. There are 30 post offices. The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and Upper Sarawak, and there is communication by wireless with Singapore, &c. There are also wireless stations at Kuching, Kuching (6th mile), Miri, Sibu, Sadong, Lundu, Mukah, Simanggang, Bintulu, Binatang, Kapit, Selalang, Limbang, Baram, Saratok, Matu, Belangian, Tatau, Lawas, Rejang and Kanowit. Distance from London, 8,700 miles; transit, 25 to 30 days. Telegrams are sent by wireless from Singapore.

There is a Special Commissioner for Sarawak in England whose offices are at Millbank House, Westminster, London, S.W. 1. There is also a Sarawak Pilgrim Officer at Jeddah.

CEYLON.

Constitution and Government, &c.

Ceylon, the ancient Taprobane (Tamraparni, the island of "dusky leaves"), is an island in the Indian Ocean, by the south of India, lying between 5° 55′ and 9° 50′ N. lat., and 79° 42′ and 81° 53′ E. long. Its area is 25,332 square miles.

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements on the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch. In 1796 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras; in 1802 Ceylon was separated from India and formed into a Crown colony.

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1833, modified on various occasions, and now embodied in the Order in Council dated 19 December, 1923, and the Amendment Order in Council dated March 21, 1924, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of nine members—viz., the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Controller of Revenue, the Colonial Treasurer, one official and four unofficial members nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 49 members (12 official and 37 unofficial) exclusive of the Governor. Of the unofficial members, 23 are elected to represent territorial divisions, 2 to represent the Europeans, 2 the Burgher Community, 1 the Chamber of Commerce, 1 the Western Province Tamils, 3 the Muslims, 2 the Indians. The remaining 3 are nominated by the Governor to represent Special Interests.

The recommendations of the Special Commission on the Constitution appointed in 1927, as amended by the Secretary of State for the Colonies in his Despatch to His Excellency the Governor dated October 10, 1929, were accepted in principle by the Legislative Council on December 12, 1929.

The chief features of the new constitution are that the existing Legislative Council will be replaced by a State Council which will deal with administrative as well as legislative matters and will therefore sit in executive as well as legislative session; the control of departments will be decentralised and the existing Colonial Secretariat will be replaced by groups of departments in charge of ten Ministers, of whom seven will be elected members of the Council, the remaining three, to be called Officers of State, being the Chief (formerly Colonial) Secretary, the Attorney-General, and the Treasurer: in the administration of his departments each of the seven elected Ministers will be associated with a Standing Executive Committee of the State Council; communal representation will be abolished; and the territorial franchise, which was limited to adult males possessing certain literary and property qualifications, will be extended—subject to certain specified qualifications—to adults of both sexes. The State Council will be composed of 50 members elected on a territorial basis, with 8 Nominated Unofficial Members, and the 3 Officers of State.

Governor.—Sir Graeme Thomson, G.C.M.G., K.C.B. (appointed December 1, 1930). Salary 8,000*l.* (including entertainment allowance of 1,500*l.*).

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate head men. There are three municipalities, with eight Urban District Councils and fourteen local boards, mainly for sanitary purposes.

Area and Population.

The population of Ceylon (exclusive of the military and the shipping) at the Census held on March 18, 1921, showed an increase of 9·6 per cent. since 1911. The distribution by Provinces, and the average number of persons per square mile in each Province, are shown in the following table:—

Provinces	Area: English sq miles	Population, 1921		Provinces	Area: English sq. miles	Population, 1921

				Grand Total.	—	4,504,549

The estimated population on December 31, 1929, was 5,479,000.

For the race distribution of the population at the census of 1921 and the increase per cent. since 1911 see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1930, p. 100.

Of the population (exclusive of the military and the shipping) enumerated at the census of 1921, the occupation of 2,803,056 or 62·3 per cent. (of whom 1,347,415 were earners and 1,455,641 dependants) was returned as agriculture; 533,400 or 11·9 per cent. (288,697 earners, 244,703 dependants) industrial occupation; 345,824 or 7·7 per cent. (162,376 earners, 183,448 dependants) trade.

The population on the principal estates, mainly consisting of immigrant Tamils from Southern India, numbered, at the census of 1921, 568,850, and formed 12·6 per cent. of the total population. The Indian Tamils on Estates numbered 493,944.

Marriages registered, 1929, 28,916[1]; births registered, 198,007 (100,851 males and 97,156 females); deaths registered, 135,277 (67,940 males and 67,337 females).

The urban population is 12·9 per cent. of the total population. The principal towns and their population (exclusive of the military, shipping, and estates), according to the census of 1921, are :—Colombo, 244,163; Galle, 39,073; Jaffna, 42,436; Kandy, 32,562.

Religion and Education.

At the census of 1921 the numbers of adherents to the principal religions were :—Buddhists, 2,769,805; Hindus, 982,073; Muslims, 302,532; Christians, 443,400, exclusive of the military and the shipping.

Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century B C., and is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants, especially in the southern part of the island. It is (unlike Buddhism in Tibet, China, and Japan) materialistic and atheistic, and in popular usage has a large admixture of the doctrines and practices of popular Hinduism and of the aboriginal wild tribes.

Education is free in vernacular schools, but fees are charged in English schools.

The number of vernacular schools in 1929 was: Government schools, 1,199 (attendance, 111,870 boys and 64,825 girls); Aided schools, 2,055 (attendance, 146,225 boys and 104,871 girls); Unaided schools, 522 (attendance, 9,178 boys and 4,847 girls). There were also 514 English and Anglo-vernacular schools, attended by 81,359 boys and 24,153 girls.

The total sum spent by Government on vernacular education in 1928–29 was 7,185,964 rupees.

The Royal College and the Government Training College with the English school attached to it are Government institutions. The other English schools are grant-in-aid schools; the total grants to which in 1928-29 amounted to 1,775,083 rupees. A University College opened in January, 1921, has (1928–29) 315 students on the roll. Technical education is given in the 'Technical Schools' (598 students in 1929). There are 102 industrial schools.

Justice, Crime, and Pauperism.

The law is Roman-Dutch, modified by colonial ordinances. Kandyan Law is to a certain extent in force in the Kandyan Provinces, and special systems of personal law are recognised for the Muslim community, and for the Tamils of the Jaffna District. The criminal law has been codified on the principle of the Indian Penal Code. There are a Supreme Court, police courts and courts of requests, and district courts, intermediate between the latter and the Supreme Court. Village councils deal with petty offences. In 1929 the number of cases instituted in the police courts and municipal magistrates' courts was 134,450. Offences against the Penal Code dealt with during the year 1929 numbered 17,914; of these, the number disposed of by the courts as true cases was 12,079, and the convictions 3,170[2]; 15,894 convicted persons were sent to prison. Police force, December 31, 1929, 3,160 of all ranks.

[1] This is exclusive of Muslim marriages, which are seldom registered.

[2] For cognizable offences exclusive of theft cases under Rs. 20 and simple assault cases.

There is no poor law, though a few old persons receive a charitable allowance from the Government varying from Re. 1 to Rs. 12·50 each per mensem.

The net public debt on September 30, 1928, incurred entirely for public works, was 12,644,193*l.* sterling and 3,000,000 rupees. There were accumulated sinking funds for their redemption amounting to 4,440,143*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.* and Rs. 1,944,771.14 respectively.

Defence.

In normal times Ceylon pays three-fourths of the cost of the Imperial garrison. At present the defence of the Colony is almost entirely in the hands of local troops.

Production and Industry.

The area of the colony is 16,212,400 acres, of which it is estimated that about 3,200,000 acres are under cultivation, and about 456,000 acres pasture land. The approximate areas under the principal products in 1929 were: paddy, 800,000 acres; other grain, 105,000 acres; cacao, 34,000 acres; cinnamon, 26,000 acres; tea, 457,000 acres; coconuts, 1,100,000 acres; rubber, 534,000 acres. In 1929, the exports of tea were nearly 252 million lbs., of which nearly 155 million lbs. were sent to the United Kingdom. The exports of desiccated coconuts were 690,000 cwts., copra, 2,042,000 cwts., and coconut-oil, 879,000 cwts. In the same year, 180,632,000 lbs. of rubber were exported, of which 40,176,000 lbs. went to the United Kingdom and 114,394,400 lbs. to the United States of America. In 1929, 20,211 acres of crown land were sold and settled. The live stock in 1929 was reported to amount to 2,000 horses, 1,650,000 horned cattle, 57,000 sheep, 45,000 swine, and 184,000 goats. There is a Government Dairy, possessing over 300 head of cattle. There were 81 plumbago mines working at end of 1929. The exports of plumbago in 1929 were 255,000 cwts. Other minerals, such as gold, thorium, and monazite, exist, but, except the last-named, so far have not been found in quantities of commercial importance. There are some hundreds of small-gem quarries, from which sapphires, rubies, moonstones, catseyes, and other gems are obtained. Ceylonese manufactures, which are at present of very minor importance, are weaving, basket work, tortoise-shell boxes, &c., earthenwares, jewellery, metal work, lacquer work, carving, &c. Manufactures on any large scale are confined to the products of agriculture, such as the production of coconut oil. In 1929 there were about 1,800 tea, rubber and cacao factories, 1,100 cinnamon, citronella, coconut, fibre, oil, &c., factories, 15 saw mills, and 37 aerated water, ice, &c., factories.

Commerce.

The values of the imports and exports for six years are given in the following table (Rate of Conversion: 1*l.* = Rs. 15):—

CYPRUS.

Governor.—Sir Ronald Storrs, K.C.M.G., C.B.E. Salary, 3,600*l.*, of which amount 600*l.* is payable to the officer from time to time administering the Government.

Colonial Secretary.—H. Henniker-Heaton, C.M.G. Salary, 1,400*l.*

Cyprus Trade Commissioner in London: Major W. H. Flinn, 1 Queen Anne's Chambers, Dean Farrar Street, Westminster, S.W. 1.

Constitution and Government.—Cyprus is 40 miles from the coast of Asia Minor and 60 from the coast of Syria. At a very early date important Greek and Phœnician colonies were established in Cyprus, and later it formed part of the Persian and Roman Empires. Its government frequently changed hands until 1571, when the Turks conquered the island from the Venetians, and retained possession of it until its cession to England for administrative purposes under a convention concluded with the Sultan at Constantinople, June 4, 1878. On the outbreak of hostilities with Turkey on November 5, 1914, the island was annexed. On May 1, 1925, the Island was given the status of a colony by Letters Patent, and the High Commissioner became Governor. There is an Executive Council, consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, and the Chief Commandant of Police, with three locally resident additional members. The Legislature consists of twenty-four members, nine being office holders, including the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General and the Treasurer, and fifteen elected (for five years), three by Moslems and twelve by non-Moslem voters. The voters are all male British subjects, or foreigners twenty-one years of age, who have resided five years, and are payers of any of the taxes known as 'Verghis.' Municipal corporations exist in the principal towns, elected practically by all resident householders and rate-payers.

Area and Population.—Area 3,584 square miles. Population at 1921 Census: 310,715, including 61,339 Moslems. Population, Census 1911:—Moslems (Ottoman Turks), 56,428; Christians (Orthodox of the Autocephalous Church of Cyprus under the Orthodox Archbishop of Cyprus and three Bishops; Maronites under a Uniat Archbishop of Cyprus, who resides in the Lebanon; Armenians; and Anglicans under the Archdeacon for Cyprus and the Bishop in Jerusalem), 214,480; others, 3,200; total, 274,108. Inhabitants per square mile, 76·48. Births registered 1929, 10,608; deaths, 4,731.

The principal towns are Nicosia (the capital), 18,579; Larnaca, 9,765; Limasol, 13,302; Famagusta and Varosha, 6,980; Paphos and Ktema, 4,117; Kyrenia, 1,910. There are six administrative districts named after these towns.

Education.—The system of elementary education is designed so that each race has its own schools. Besides elementary schools there were in 1929 4 Gymnasiums, a commercial Lyceum, 8 Greek high schools for boys and 4 high schools for girls, a Priests' Training School, and two Moslem high schools, one for boys and one for girls. Total number of elementary schools in 1929, 982 (696 Greek-Christian, 267 Moslem, 6 Armenian, 7 Maronite, 5 Roman Catholic, and 1 Jewish); teachers, 1,379 in elementary schools, of whom 967 were Greek-Orthodox, 342 Moslem, and 70 of other denominations. Total enrolment in elementary schools, 49,070, comprising 8,951 Moslem, 38,908 Greek-Orthodox, 544 Armenian, 205 Maronites, 452 Latins, and 10 Jews. The Government contributed (1929) 65,596*l.* to education. Total expenditure on elementary and secondary education, 133,454*l.* State aided private education is provided in the English school, Nicosia (200 boys), and the American Academy, Larnaca (210 boys). There are 3 weekly newspapers in Turkish and 19 in Greek and 3 in Armenian.

Languages spoken are a local dialect of Modern Greek; Osmanli Turkish by Moslems; English and French by educated classes. English is becoming more and more widely spoken.

Justice.—The law courts have been reconstituted by an Order in Council of 1927, which divided the Colony into three judicial districts, viz., Nicosia–Kyrenia, Famagusta–Larnaca, and Limassol–Paphos. There now are: (1) a supreme court of civil and criminal appeal, with original civil jurisdiction in disputed claims of 300*l.* and over, patents and admiralty actions, and election petitions; (2) three assize courts, having unlimited criminal jurisdiction; (3) three district courts, having, subject to (1) above, an unlimited civil jurisdiction; (4) magisterial courts with summary jurisdiction; (5) three assistant district judges' courts. In all the courts Cypriot (Christian and Moslem) judges take part. There are also three Sheri Courts, for Moslems only, which administer the Moslem Sheri or ecclesiastical law, and a Sheri Tribunal of Appeal. In the year 1929 the number of offences was 31,683, and the number of persons committed to prison was 6,507. Strength of police force, December 31, 1929, 26 officers and 827 men; total, 853.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for five years, exclusive of Grant-in-Aid, and share of the Turkish debt charge, were:—

The above noted expenditure does not include Cyprus' share of the Turkish debt charge, 92,800*l.* per annum, but includes railway expenditure, 1929, 19,887*l.*; public debt, 1929, for harbours, railways and irrigation, 167,739*l.*

Since 1928 Cyprus contributes 10,000*l.* annually to Imperial defence.

Production.—Chief agricultural products in 1929: wheat, 2,195,173 kiles; barley, 2,820,763 kiles; vetches, 238,835 kiles; oats, 241,229 kiles; olives, 7,939,058 okes; cotton, 1,676,254 okes; raisins, 8,924,873 okes; carobs, 259,657 cantars; potatoes, 19,611,222 okes; linseed, 351,736 okes; silk, 13,827 okes; cocoons, 183,289 okes; cheese, 903,627 okes; butter, 24,151 okes; flax, 127,565 okes; hemp, 56,096 okes; wine, 4,406,185 gallons; olive-oil, 2,034,511 okes. In 1930 there were 290,018 sheep, and 235,470 goats. One-third of cultivable land is under cultivation, about 112,788 acres being under vineyard cultivation (1930). The Forest Department has done much for the preservation and development of the forests existing at the time of the British occupation, and for the re-afforestation of denuded districts. The area of delimited forest is 635 square miles. Sponge fisheries are carried on, the take in 1929 being about 4,051 lbs. Gypsum, terra umbra and marble are found in abundance; cupriferous iron pyrites are being mined on a large scale and 291,929 tons of ore were exported in 1929. Asbestos is mined, 13,796 tons being exported in 1929.

Commerce.—The commerce, and the shipping, exclusive of coasting trade, for five calendar years were:—

—	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929

HONG KONG.

Constitution and Government.

THE Crown Colony of Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in January, 1841; the cession was confirmed by the treaty of Nanking, in August, 1842; and the charter bears date April 5, 1843. Hong Kong is the great centre for British commerce with China and Japan, and a military and naval station of first-class importance.

The administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, the Treasurer, and the Director of Public Works (the last being a special appointment), and three unofficial members. There is also a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, and composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, the Treasurer, the Director of Public Works, the Captain Superintendent of Police, the Harbour Master, and the Director of Medical and Sanitary Services (the last four being special appointments), and eight unofficial members, viz., six nominated by the Crown (three of whom are Chinese), one nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Justices of the Peace.

Governor—Sir William Peel, K.B.E., K.C.M.G. Appointed February, 1930. Salary 7,000*l.*, including 2,200*l.* allowance.

Colonial Secretary—W T. Southorn, C.M.G.

Area and Population.

Hong Kong is situated at the mouth of the Canton River, about 90 miles south of Canton. The island is an irregular and broken ridge, stretching nearly east and west about 11 miles, its breadth from 2 to 5 miles, and its area rather more than 32 square miles; separated from the mainland by a narrow strait, the Lyeemoon Pass, about half a mile in width. The opposite peninsula of Kowloon, on the mainland, was ceded to Great Britain by treaty in Oct. 1860, and now forms part of Hong Kong. The city of Victoria extends for upwards of five miles along the southern shore of the beautiful harbour. By a convention signed at Peking on June 9, 1898, there was leased to Great Britain for 99 years a portion of Chinese territory mainly agricultural, together with the waters of Mirs Bay and Deep Bay and the island of Lan-tao. Its area is about 356 square miles, including islands, with about 94,000 inhabitants, exclusively Chinese. Area of Old Kowloon is 3 square miles. Large areas have also recently been reclaimed at Kowloon Bay, Wanchai, and North Point. Total area of colony, 391 square miles.

The population of Hong Kong, excluding the Military and Naval establishments, was estimated to be at the end of 1929 as follows:—Non-Chinese civil population, 18,150; Chinese civil population: City of Victoria (including Peak), 577,500; villages of Hong Kong, 46,080; Kowloon (including New Kowloon), 296,480; New Territories (land), 96,250; population afloat, 109,050; total Chinese population, 1,125,360; total civil population, 1,143,510; 1921 Census returns: 12,856 Non-Chinese, 612,310 Chinese; total 625,166.

The registered births and deaths for five years were as follows:—

Year	Births	Deaths	Births per 1,000 [1]	Deaths per 1,000 [1]
1925 . . .	3,654	14,991	4·64	19·05
1926 . . .	4,041	12,516	4·5	15·90
1927 . . .	7,500	14,761	8·4	16·50
1928 . . .	9,309	14,757	9·5	15·1
1929 . . .	10,223	17,565	9·8	16·8

[1] Birth and death rates are calculated only on the population of Hong Kong and Kowloon, there being no jurisdiction by the sanitary authorities over the New Territories (except New Kowloon).

In 1926 the number of Chinese emigrants was 216,527, and the number of immigrants 128,661; in 1927, 285,593 and 181,100; in 1928, 257,162 and 187,847, and in 1929, 227,523 and 185,390 respectively.

Education.

Education is not compulsory, but all schools are State-inspected, and required to maintain a certain standard of efficiency. There are 5 Government schools, including 1 first-class secondary school, for children of British parentage, with an average attendance of 352 (1929), and 13 Government schools for Chinese boys and two for Chinese girls, with a total average attendance of 3,423. There is one school for Indians, with an average attendance of 118 (1929). There are also numerous schools in receipt of grants. The total number of pupils in all schools in 1929 was 59,120. The total expenditure on education in 1929 was 1,152,375 dollars, net.

The Hong Kong University in 1929 had 314 students, of whom 32 were women. The majority of the students are Chinese. The University is a residential teaching University with six halls of residence.

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, the second court or Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and a third court or Appeal Court, three police magistrates' courts, and a marine magistrate's court. In 1929, 2,056 were committed to Victoria gaol for criminal offences; in 1928, 1,117. The daily average of prisoners in gaol was 1,071 in 1928, and 1,075 in 1929. There is a police force in the colony numbering (1929) 2,007 men, of whom 253 are Europeans, 739 Indians, and 1,015 Chinese.

Finance.

The public revenue and expenditure of the colony were as follows in recent years. The dollar of Hong Kong is of variable value; for 1926 it is here taken at 2*s.* 2½*d.*, 1927, 2*s.* 0*d.*, 1928, 2*s.* 0½*d.*, 1929, 1*s.* 11*d.*

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1926	2,333,268	2,587,103	1928	2,496,839	2,123,024
1927	2,134,453	2,084,506	1929	2,257,303	2,106,728

The revenue is derived chiefly from land-taxes, licences, quarry rent, liquor and tobacco duties, and an opium monopoly.

Public debt, 341,800*l.*, raised in 1887 and 1893 for public works. Another loan, 1,143,933*l.* in Inscribed Stock at 3½ per cent., was raised in 1906 for purposes of railway construction, also a 6 per cent. Public Works (1927) Loan of 5,000,000 dollars was authorised. On December 31, 1929, the balance of assets over liabilities was 9,662,852 dollars.

Defence.

The military expenditure for 1929 was 3,343,095 dollars. The Defence Corps cost 83,758 dollars for 1929. Hong Kong is the headquarters of the China Squadron.

Industry, Commerce, Shipping, and Communications.

The chief industries are sugar refining, ship-building and repairing, rope-making, tin refining, tobacco manufacture, the manufacture of cement, and the manufacture of knit goods. Deep-sea fishing is important, especially for the New Territories.

The commerce of Hong Kong is chiefly with Great Britain, India and Ceylon, Australia, United States, China, Japan, Indo-China, and Siam. Hong Kong is a free port (except as regards the importation of intoxicating liquor and tobacco). Principal articles of trade are sugar and flour, rice, cotton, cotton yarn and cotton and woollen piece goods, silk, hemp, leather, tin, wolframite, mild steel, bulk and case oil (kerosene), oils and fats, peanuts, Chinese medicines, fish and fishery products, tea, coal, cement, condensed milk, matches.

The trade of Hong Kong and the United Kingdom (Board of Trade returns) for five years is given as follows:—

—	1926	1927	1928	1929	1930 [1]
Imports (consignments) into Gt. Britain from Hong Kong	£ 664,502	£ 477,203	£ 481,206	£ 488,924	£ 422,188

In 1929, 52,574 vessels (including 23,522 junks and 7,437 steamships under 60 tons), representing altogether 39,871,149 tons, entered and cleared in the foreign trade. Of these, 4,734 with a tonnage of 11,151,152 were British ocean-going steamers

There is an electric tramway of 9¼ miles, and a cable tramway connecting The Peak district with the lower levels of Victoria. The British section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway was opened to traffic on October 1, 1910.

There were 20 post offices in Hong Kong in 1929; revenue (1929) postal, 816,455 dollars; telegraphic, 190,532 dollars; expenditure, postal, 369,108 dollars; telegraphic, 228,244 dollars (salaries, wages, etc., 151,678, expenditure on new plant, 76,566 dollars. Telegraph lines, including cables, in 1928, 427 miles; telephone wires, excluding military lines, 62,424 miles. There is a wireless telegraph service under the control of the Public Works Department, besides a military and naval wireless station.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The British banking institutions in the Colony are the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, whose head office is at Hong Kong, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, the Mercantile Bank of India, Ltd., and the P. & O. Banking Corporation, Ltd. Note circulation of the three former banks, end of 1929, 78,731,331 dollars. There are also several Chinese and foreign banks.

The currency of the Colony consists of the notes of the above-mentioned banks, and of British, Hong Kong, and Mexican dollars, besides subsidiary coins. The British Dollar is of 416 grains of silver 900 fine, as compared with 417·74 grains of 902·7 fineness of the Mexican dollar.

Subsidiary coins are 50 cent pieces (209·52 grains 800 fine), 20 cent pieces (83·81 grains 800 fine), 10 cent pieces (41·90 grains 800 fine), 5 cent pieces (20·95 grains 800 fine), and 1 cent copper pieces of 115·75 grains of copper or mixed metal.

INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES.

India, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection. In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a concern of the Foreign and Political Department of the Government, whose envoy resides in the country concerned. These countries will be found included in the third part of the Year-Book among Foreign Countries. The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include Indian States. The term is so used, unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c., that follow.

Government and Constitution.

The present form of government of the Indian Empire is established by various Parliamentary Statutes which are now consolidated in the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, the Government of India Act, 1919, the Government of India (Leave of Absence) Act, 1924, the Government of India (Aden) Act, 1929, and other amending Acts of no great intrinsic importance. All the territories originally under the government of the East India Company are vested in His Majesty, and all its powers are exercised in his name. Under the Royal Titles Act, 1876, the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the additional title of Emperor of India.

It is the declared policy of Parliament, as stated in the preamble of the Act of 1919, implementing the Declaration of August 20, 1917, to provide for 'the increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in British India as an integral part of the British Empire.' The Royal Statutory Commission was appointed on November 8, 1927, with The Rt. Hon. Sir John Simon, K.C.V.O., K.C., as Chairman. It made two visits to India in 1928–29, and its report was published in June 1930.

In October, 1929, it was agreed between the Commission and H.M.G. that the Commission's terms of reference covered consideration of the relations of the Indian States with British India, and that after the Commission had reported a tripartite conference of representatives of the British Government, British India and the Indian States should be held to formulate proposals for the new Constitution of India. The decision to hold this Conference was announced by the Viceroy in India in a Gazette Extraordinary on October 31, 1929, together with the statement that 'it is implicit in the Declaration of 1917 that the natural issue of India's constitutional progress, as there contemplated, is the attainment of Dominion Status.' The Conference met in London on November 12, 1930.

Government in England.—The administration of the Indian Empire in England is entrusted to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of not less than eight and not more than twelve members, appointed for five years by the Secretary of State. At least one-half of the members must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment. No member can sit in Parliament. The duties of the Council, which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India. Subject to the Government of India Act and rules made thereunder, the expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council, and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council. The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business.

In exercise of the power given by the Government of India Act, a High Commissioner for India in the United Kingdom was in 1920 appointed to act as agent of the Governor-General of India in Council, and on behalf of provincial governments in prescribed cases, and to conduct any business assigned to him by the Secretary of State in Council.

The salary of the Secretary of State, and the cost of the India Office for other than agency services are borne by the British, and not, as formerly, by the Indian Exchequer.

Central Indian Government.—The superintendence, direction and control of the civil and military government of India is vested in the Governor-General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor-General, or Viceroy (so called since 1858), is appointed by the Crown, and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of India and the seat of government were moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912, the latter being formed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner. The creation of the new Capital at New Delhi was completed in December 1929 by the entry of the Viceroy into his new residence 'The Viceroy's House,' planned by Sir Edwin Lutyens, R.A. The formal opening took place in February 1931. The summer seat of the Government is at Simla [April to October].

Viceroy and Governor-General of India.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Willingdon, G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.B.E. (April, 1931). Salary, Rs.2,56,000 a year.

There is an Indian Legislature consisting of the Governor-General and two Chambers, the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly (opened 1921). The Council of State consists of 60 members, of whom 33 are elected and 27 nominated: not more than 20 may be officials; but not more than 17 officials are at present (1929) nominated. The Legislative Assembly contains 145 members, 41 nominated, of whom 26 are to be official members, and 104 elected. The life of the Council of State is five years, and of the Assembly three years, but dissolution may occur sooner, or the period may be specially extended by the Governor-General. Joint sittings of the two Chambers may be held for the settlement of differences between them. The Legislative Assembly was presided over for the first four years by a President appointed by the Governor-General; thereafter he is to be elected. This Legislature has power, subject to certain restrictions, to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within other parts of India, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The Governor-General, with the assent of His Majesty signified, after copies of the proposed enactment have been laid before both Houses of the British Parliament, may enact measures essential for the safety, tranquillity, or interests of British India or any part thereof, against the wish of the Council or Assembly.

The Members of the Governor-General's Executive Council are appointed by the Crown: three must have had ten years' service in India, and one must be a barrister or pleader of not less than ten years' standing. They have charge of the following Portfolios:—

Home.—Sir James Crerar, K.C.S.I, C.I.E., I.C.S. (July 1927).

Finance.—Sir George Schuster, K.C.M.G., C.B.E., M.C. (November, 1928).

Education, Health and Lands.—Khan Bahadur Mian, Sir Fazl-i-Hussain, K.C.I.E., Kt. (April 1930).

Law.—Sir Brojendra Lal Mitter, Kt., Barrister-at-Law (December, 1928).

Railways and Commerce.—Sir George Rainy, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., I.C.S. (April, 1927).

Industries and Labour.—Sir Joseph William Bhore, C.B.E., K.C.I.E., I.C.S. (April 30, 1930).

The salary of each member is Rs. 80,000 a year.

The Foreign and Political Department is directly under the Governor-General. The Commander-in-Chief is also the Army Member of the Executive Council. At the head of each Department (except the Railway Department which is under the Chief Commissioner of Railways) is one of the Secretaries of the Government of India.

British India is now divided into fifteen administrations. Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the Punjab, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces and Berar, and Assam are each under a Governor; and the N.W. Frontier Province, Ajmer-Merwara, Coorg, Baluchistan, Delhi, and Andaman and Nicobar Islands are each under a Chief Commissioner as far as British territory is concerned. Detailed information regarding the British Provinces will be found at p. 144.

High Commissioner for India in the United Kingdom.—Sir Atul Chandra Chatterjee, K.C.I.E. (appointed 1925), India House, Aldwych, London.

Provincial Government.—According to the Government of India Act, 1919, which came into operation in December, 1920, and January, 1921, the various functions of government are classified as Central and Provincial subjects, the latter being practically definitely committed to the Provincial Governments, while for purposes of convenience certain Central subjects, such as the collection of income tax, may be dealt with by the Provincial Governments as the agents of the Central Government. The Governor-General in Council retains unimpaired powers of control over the Provincial Governments in their administration of 'reserved' subjects, but in 'transferred' subjects is only competent to intervene where it is necessary to safeguard Central subjects or to decide questions where two or more Provinces are concerned, or to safeguard the due exercise and performance of any powers and duties possessed by or imposed on the Governor-General in Council in regard to the High Commissioner, to the raising of loans by local Governments, or under rules made by the Secretary of State in Council. The list of subjects transferred to Indian Ministers, with certain reservations, includes local self-government, medical administration, public health and sanitation, education, public works, agriculture, fisheries, co-operative societies, excise, registration, development of industries, adulteration, weights and measures, and religious and charitable endowments. Certain sources of revenue are definitely allocated to the Provinces, which are required to contribute to the Central Government certain annual sums which are to be the first charge on their revenues.

The Provincial Governments are based upon a scheme of dyarchy, or dualised form of government, and consist of the Governor-in-Council and the Governor acting with Ministers. The Ministers, who are elected members of the Legislative Council, have charge of certain Departments of Government known as 'transferred subjects,' while others, the 'reserved subjects,' are administered by the Governor-in-Council. Thus each side has its share in the conduct of the Government, with responsibility for its own work, while co-ordination is achieved by the influence of the Governor, who is associated with both sections.

The Governor's Executive Council consists of not more than four members, to be appointed by the Crown, one being qualified by twelve years' public service in India. The Legislative Council contains not more than 20 per cent. of official members and at least 70 per cent. (in Burma 60 per cent.) elected members, and, in addition to its legislative functions, votes all expenditure, subject to certain specified exceptions and to the power of the Local Government to incur expenditure, on reserved subjects without the Council's assent if the Governor certifies such expenditure to be necessary. The normal duration of the Legislative Council is three years, but it may be dissolved sooner by the Governor, or its term specially extended for one year. The Ministers are appointed by the Governor to administer the transferred subjects, and are not to be officials. The Governor may not be a member of the Legislative Council, but may address the Council.

The Provinces to which this new form of government has been applied are Bengal, Madras, Bombay, Bihar and Orissa, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, Coorg, Assam and Burma. The minimum number of members in each Legislative Council is: Madras, 118; Bombay, 111; Bengal, 125; United Provinces, 118; Punjab, 83; Bihar and Orissa, 98; Central Provinces, 70; Coorg, 17; Assam, 53; Burma, 92. The numbers may be increased There are 7·8 million voters out of the population of 247 millions in British India, including Burma. In Madras, Bombay, Bengal, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, Assam, Burma, and Bihar and Orissa the franchise has been extended to women; and women are eligible as candidates for the Madras, Bombay, United Provinces, Central Provinces, and Punjab Councils and for these constituencies in the Legislative Assembly.

The provinces are usually formed into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which are the units of administration. At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector and magistrate, or deputy-commissioner), who has entire control of the district, subject to the control of his official superior. Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there are a joint magistrate, an assistant-magistrate, and one or more deputy-collectors and other officials. There are 273 of such districts in British India.

Government of Indian States.—The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Indian States varies considerably in degree; but they are all governed by the Indian Princes, ministers, or councils. The Princes have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States; they maintain military forces within certain limits; the sanction of the Government of India is required before Europeans of certain classes can be employed; and the Supreme Government can exercise control in case of misgovernment. Within these limits the more important Princes are autonomous in their own territories. Some, but not all of them, are required to pay an annual fixed tribute. The number of Ruling Princes and Chiefs having a salute of guns is 119, and of States and Estates without a salute, 441. The total area is 598,138 square miles, with a population of nearly 70 millions.

In 1921 a Chamber of Princes was established as a permanent consultative body to discuss matters relating to affairs of Imperial or common concern. In 1929 a committee under the chairmanship of Sir Harcourt Butler reported on the relations between the Paramount Power and the Indian States. Action on its recommendations is under consideration.

Chancellor (1930).—H.H. the Maharaja of Patiala.

Local Self-Government.

There were at the end of 1927–28, 774 municipalities, with a population of 19 millions. The total number of members of the municipal bodies was 12,677, of whom 11,786 were non-official. The municipal bodies have the care and lighting of the roads, water supply, drainage, sanitation, medical relief, vaccination, and education, particularly primary education; they impose taxes, enact bye-laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government. Their aggregate income in 1926–27 was Rs. 17,00,52,389, exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts amounting to Rs. 19,20,86,861. The aggregate expenditure was Rs. 18,42,75,329, excluding extraordinary and debt expenditure of Rs. 18,17,84,139. By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1883–84, the elective principle was introduced, in a large or small measure, all over India; and has since been further extended by recent legislation. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the ratepayers; everywhere the majority of town committees consists of Indians, and in many committees all the members are Indians. In many municipalities women have the right to vote, and in a few they are eligible for election. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there were 787 district and sub-district Boards or Councils, and 469 Union Panchayats in Madras, with 21,426 members in 1927–28, 15,744 being elected. These Boards are in charge of roads, district schools, markets, public health institutions, &c. Their aggregate income in 1927–28 was Rs. 15,56,01,554, and expenditure Rs. 15,95,91,764.

The persons with a knowledge of English numbered 2·5 millions.

Educational institutions in India are of two classes :—(a) those in which the course of study conforms to the standards prescribed by the Department of Public Instruction or by the Universities or Boards of Secondary and Intermediate Education, and either undergo inspection by the Department, or regularly present pupils at the public examinations held by the Department Universities or the Boards. These institutions are called 'Recognised,' but may be under public or private management. (b) Those that do not fulfil these conditions. These are called 'Unrecognised.' As regards recognised institutions, the system of education operates, in general, through (i) the Primary Schools, which aim at teaching, through the vernacular languages, reading, writing, and other elementary knowledge; (ii) the Secondary Schools, in which the instruction does not go beyond the matriculation or school-leaving certificate standard. The schools are divided into English or vernacular, and also into high and middle schools; (iii) the Intermediate Colleges; and (iv) the Colleges. The colleges are affiliated to eight federal universities—Calcutta (1857), Madras (1857), Bombay (1857), Punjab (1882), Patna (1917), Nagpur (1923), Andhra (1926), and Agra (1927). There are also six unitary teaching and residential universities—Allahabad (1887), Lucknow (1920), Rangoon (1920), Dacca (1921), Delhi (1922), and Annamalai (1929); two denominational universities—the Hindu University at Benares (1916), and the Muslim University at Aligarh (1920) and two universities in Indian States—Mysore (1916) and Hyderabad (Osmania) (1918).

There are in addition, various institutions of a special character, such as technical schools teaching arts and industries, engineering, &c.; law schools; medical schools and colleges; and training colleges and normal schools for the training of teachers, schools for adults, defectives, criminal and hill tribes, labourers and factory children; and reformatory schools for juvenile offenders.

The following table gives the number of institutions and scholars in 1928-29 in British India, including Ajmer-Merwara, British Baluchistan, the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, and the administered areas in Indian States :—

* There are six Boards of Secondary or Intermediate Education in British India which are not included in this table.

There were in 1928-29 in British India 223,796 'recognised' institutions with 11,547,497 scholars, and 34,222 'unrecognised' with 618,342 scholars.

The following was the educational expenditure for recognised institutions in recent years from fees, provincial resources, local rates, municipal funds, endowments, etc. :—

Year	Rs.	Year	Rs.
1923-24	19,90,36,346	1926-27	24,58,47,572
1924-25	20,87,02,222	1927-28	25,82,78,819

A system of State Scholarships exists by which it is possible for a boy to pass from the village school to the University. There are also State Scholarships, awarded by local Governments and the Government of India, to enable the holders to study in the United Kingdom for two or more years.

During 1928-29 the following newspapers and periodicals were published : in Madras, 310 ; Bombay, 314 ; Bengal, 742 ; United Provinces, 620 ; Punjab, 409 ; Burma, 154 ; Bihar and Orissa, 140 ; Central Provinces and Berar, 65 ; Assam, 45 ; Delhi, 79 ; N.W.F.P., 11. The number of printing presses was 5,919 ; and 2,332 books in English or other European languages and 14,815 in Indian languages were published.

Justice and Crime.

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the Province of Agra, the province of Bihar and Orissa, the province of the Punjab and the Province of Burma, have each a supreme high court, with 14, 10, 16, 12, 11, 13 and 11 judges, respectively, in 1930. There is appeal to the Privy Council in England. Oudh has a chief court. The Central Provinces and Berar, North-West Frontier Province, Coorg, Sind, and Chota Nagpur have judicial commissioners. For Assam the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority. Below these courts are, for criminal cases, Courts of Session, and below these, Courts of Magistrates (first, second, and third class). The inferior civil courts are determined by special acts or regulations in each province. The most extensive system consists of the sessions judge acting as a 'District Judge'; subordinate judges ; and below them 'Munsifs.' There are also numerous special courts to try small causes. Side by side with the civil courts there are revenue courts, presided over by officers charged with the duty of settling and collecting the land revenue. The number of civil suits instituted in 1928 was 2,326,000, and of persons under trial in criminal cases 2,211,000.

Nearly all the civil judges, and the great majority of the magistrates, in the courts of original jurisdiction are Indians ; in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay the proportion of Indians in the appellate court is considerable.

The civil police in 1928 were 192,635 in strength, varying from 4·2 per 10,000 of the population in Bihar and Orissa to 25 per 10,000 in the North-West Frontier Province.

[1] Since the introduction of the Reforms from April 1, 1921, definite sources of revenue are now allocated to Provincial Governments. Hence the accounts and estimates of the Government of India now embrace only the transactions of the Central Government. Provincial Governments used to pay annual contributions to the Central Government. The contributions in the first year were Rs. 983 lakhs. These were reduced to Rs 608 lakhs in 1926-27. In 1927-28 there was a permanent remission of 350 lakhs, and a non-recurring remission of the balance Rs. 258 lakhs. There was complete and final remission of Provincial contributions from 1928-29.

[1] Exclusive of Portion of Land Revenue due to irrigation.

[2] The salt duty was raised in 1923, and reduced to previous level in 1924.

[3] The Excise revenue is derived from intoxicating liquors, hemp drugs, and opium consumed in the country. The bulk of the revenue comes from spirits. The excise systems and rates of duty vary from province to province.

[4] Liquors, petroleum, sugar, tobacco, cotton manufactures, metals, manufactured articles, are the chief items from which the customs revenue is derived. Under this head are also included the proceeds of export duties on rice, on jute (imposed in 1916), on tea (imposed in 1916, abolished in 1927), and on hides (imposed in 1919); and of excise duties on motor spirit (imposed in 1917), and on kerosene (imposed in 1922). The import of silver bullion and coin except under licence was prohibited in July, 1917, but the prohibition was withdrawn during 1920-21.

[5] Includes the proceeds of a super-tax imposed in 1917.

[6] The figures from 1924-25 to 1926-27 have been converted at the rate of Rs.10 to the £, and those from 1927-28 at the rate of Rs 13⅓ to the £.

[7] Includes the proceeds of an excess profits duty imposed in April, 1919.

[8] Estimates.

Land Revenue.—This is levied according to an assessment on estates or holdings. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, about one-fourth of Madras, and some districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently at the end of the 18th century; while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to forty years over the rest of India. For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR-BOOK for 1886, p. 799. See also under AGRICULTURE.

The land revenue was contributed in 1929-30 (revised estimate) as follows:—

Administrations	Rs.	Administrations	Rs.
India, General	6,41,000	Punjab	2,64,21,000
Baluchistan	11,05,000	Burma	5,53,66,000
N.W. Frontier Province	22,47,000	Shan States Federation	4,76,000
Madras	6,28,96,000	Bihar and Orissa	1,77,03,000
Bombay	4,98,54,000	Central Provinces and Berar	2,09,32,000
Bengal	3,28,96,000	Assam	1,22,38,000
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	6,99,98,000	Coorg	3,78,000

Opium.—In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is practically confined to the United Provinces, and the area under cultivation in that Province is being gradually reduced. Opium is also grown in many of the Indian States of Central and Northern India. The question of suppressing poppy cultivation in these States has been investigated by a Committee, which started work in November, 1927. After giving careful consideration to the report submitted by the Committee, the Government of India have formulated a scheme which forms at present the basis of negotiations with the States. Public auctions at Calcutta were discontinued from April 1926. Export to China was prohibited in 1913; and in June 1926 the Government of India decided to reduce progressively exports of opium from India, except for strictly medical and scientific purposes, so as to extinguish them altogether at the end of 1935. The maximum for each country is fixed, and a reduction of 10 per cent. of the 1926 exports is made each year.

Year ended March 31	—	Year ended March 31	—
	Rs. Crores		Rs Crores
1924	56.23	1928	54.79
1925	55.63	1929	55.10
1926	56.00	1930 (Estimates)	55 10
1927	55.97	1931 (Estimates)	54 35

Debt.—On March 31, 1930, out of a total debt of 1,131.72 crores (sterling portion converted at 1*s.* 6*d.* = R. 1), 772.52 crores were productive in railways, telegraphs and irrigation; 177.02 crores were unproductive; 39.73 crores on account of cash, bullion and securities held on Treasury account; and 142.45 crores were incurred on behalf of Provincial Governments.

Finance of Separate Governments, and Local Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of each Government, Central and Provincial, in 1928-29 (revised estimates) were as follows:—

Government	Revenue	Expenditure
	Rs.	Rs
India, Central	1,32,84,08,000	1,32,49,08,000
Madras	18,75,88,000	17,53,75,600
Bombay	16,02,48,000	15,97,54,000
Bengal	11,38,46,000	11,48,56,000
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	13,18,60,720	12,37,17,660
Punjab	11,37,40,000	11,49 61,000
Burma	10,45,29,000	11,22,21,000
Shan States Federation	50,93,000	56.03,000
Bihar and Orissa	5,88,59,000	6,11,35,000
Central Provinces	5,38,68,000	5,54,83,000
Assam	2,73,69,000	2,92,81,000
Coorg	15,51,000	15,06,000

Local Funds.—The above excludes the revenue and expenditure of municipalities and of district and local boards. The income of the former is derived mainly from rates, octroi, taxes on houses, lands, vehicles and animals, tolls, and assessed taxes; and of the latter from cesses on land. The gross income for 1927–28 of all municipalities was Rs.36,21,39,250. The gross expenditure was Rs.36,60,59,468. The income of district and local boards was Rs.15,56,01,554, and the expenditure Rs.15,95,91,764.

Defence.

The defence forces of India consist of units of the Royal Air Force, units of the British Regular Army, the Indian Army, the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces, the Indian Army Reserve and the Indian State Forces. With the exception of the last, these forces are administered by the Air Vice-Marshal and the headquarters staff of the Army in India respectively, under the supreme control of the Commander-in-Chief, who is the Army-Member of the Viceroy's Executive Council. The military forces are organised into the Northern, Southern, Eastern and Western Commands, and the Burma Independent district; each Command contains a number of districts and independent brigades. The garrison of Aden was transferred in 1927 from the Indian to the Home Command.

The British regular forces in India are paid by the Indian exchequer. They are organised in brigades and divisions with the Indian Army, the normal proportion being 1 British battalion to 3 Indian. There are 19½ Indian Pack Batteries. The personnel of the remaining batteries of Horse, Field and Garrison Artillery is wholly British except for a proportion of Indian drivers. The Tank Corps and Royal Air Force are wholly British.

The Auxiliary Force, organised under the Indian Auxiliary Force Act, 1920, is confined to persons of British extraction. Enrolment is voluntary, but entails periodical training extending to 64 hours annually for infantry and 80 hours for other arms. The force, which comprises all arms, is liable to be called out or embodied for local service within strictly defined limits, and acts as a second line to the permanent garrison of India. Its strength in 1929 was 31,600.

The Indian Territorial Force was brought into existence in 1920, and is organised on the lines of a militia, with an annual training of 28 days. It is intended to form a second line to the regular Indian Army in time of war, the whole of its personnel being liable to general service. Its strength in 1930 was 18 provincial, 4 urban, and 11 university training corps units. Strength, 15,400.

The Army in India Reserve has been recently constituted, in 2 classes: class A, of men who have completed from 5 to 7 years' army service with less than 15 years' combined service; class B, of men up to 15 years' combined service. Strength in 1929 was 32,436.

The Indian State Forces are raised and maintained by Indian States, and are trained under the supervision of British officers, who act in an advisory capacity. Strength, in 1929, 44,000.

The composition of the forces in India was, in 1930, except for Indian State Forces, as follows:—

	Cavalry Regiments	R.H.A. Batteries	R.F.A. Batteries	Medium Batteries	Pack Batteries	S. & M. Field Troops	S. & M. Field Companies	Infantry Battalions	Pioneer Battalions	Armoured Car Companies
British	5	4	44	9	6	—	—	45	—	8

Auxiliary Force	10	21	4	17	25	7	4	—
Territorial Force	—	—	—	—	22	—	—	11

The strength of the British army in India in 1930 was 61,284, and of the Indian Army 168,660. The Field Army is organised in 4 divisions and 5 cavalry brigades.

The supply and transport services are provided by the Indian Army Service Corps. The medical services of the British troops are provided by the Royal Army Medical Corps, and those of the Indian Army by the Indian Medical Service.

There are units of the Indian Army serving in Iraq, Palestine, and Colonial stations. These are paid by the British exchequer.

The 7th Light Cavalry, the 16th Light Cavalry, the 2/1st Madras Pioneers, the 4/19th Hyderabad Regt., the 5th Royal Battn. 5th Mahratta Light Infantry, the 1/7th Rajput Regt., the 1/14th Punjab Regt., and the 2/1st Punjab Regt. have been selected for Indianisation. Ten Indian gentlemen are now nominated annually to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, to enable them to qualify for commissions in the Indian Army. The preliminary education is given at the Prince of Wales' Royal Indian Military College at Dehra Dun.

The Royal Air Force in India comprises 6 squadrons organised in 3 wings of 2 squadrons each; the Aircraft Depot and Aircraft Parks are directly under R.A.F. Headquarters, India. Its establishment is 260 officers and 1,912 British and 148 Indian other ranks.

The Government of India has decided to complete the reconstruction of the Royal Indian Marine in accordance with the recommendations of the Departmental Committee of 1925, but the force will not have the right to be called the Royal Indian Navy. It has now, however, become a combatant force serving under conditions similar to those originally proposed for the Royal Indian Navy. At present the seagoing units of the R.I.M. comprise the 4 sloops Hindustan (completed 1930), Cornwallis, Clive and Lawrence, 2 surveying vessels and 2 patrol vessels.

Agriculture and Industry.

Agriculture, Land Tenure, &c.- The chief industry of India has always been agriculture. The total number of the population supported by agriculture, including forestry and raising of livestock, was, according to the census of 1921, a little more than 229 millions out of a total population of 318 millions. In most of the provinces there is a Department of Land Records, and in every province a Department of Agriculture. There are staffs of experts in the provinces; an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of private students and of those who have completed the Agricultural Course in provincial colleges; a Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases; an Imperial Institute for veterinary research for the preparation of sera and antitoxins, and an Imperial Institute of Animal Husbandry and Dairying. Following the recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Agriculture, an Imperial Council of Agricultural Research has been established by the Government of India with the object of promoting, guiding and co-ordinating agriculture and veterinary research throughout India. Improved varieties of crops have been introduced in over 12 million acres, the average increased value of the produce being over Rs. 14 crores.

In provinces where the zamíndárí tenure prevails (i.e., where single proprietors or proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds or thousands of acres), the State land revenue is assessed at an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental. The revenue is payable on each estate as a whole, the assessment remaining unchanged for the period of settlement. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, and in parts of the United Provinces and Madras the settlement is a permanent one and not liable to revision. In provinces where the raiyatwárí (or ryotwari) tenure prevails (i.e., where each petty proprietor holds directly from the State, as a rule cultivates his own land, and has no landlord between himself and the Government), the revenue is separately assessed on each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable at once (or after a short term of grace in the case of uncleared lands) on all extensions of cultivation. The raiyatwárí proprietor may throw up his holding, or any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the zamíndár or large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement.

The following table shows in 1927–28 the latest available returns of the land surveyed under the two types of tenure, and the land revenue assessed:—

The net cultivated area actually sown in British India in 1928–29 was 228,166,096 acres.

Of the total area under irrigation in 1928–29, 26,186,675 acres were irrigated by canals; 5,798,579 acres by tanks; 12,954,992 acres by wells; and 4,821,448 acres by other sources. The average area irrigated by Government Works rose from 26,750,000 acres in 1918–20 to 28,100,000 acres in 1925–26. The net return on capital outlay was 6·47 per cent. in 1926–27.

Livestock Census, in British India (exclusive of Baluchistan), 1924–25: oxen, 120,340,000; buffaloes, 30,612,000; sheep, 23,233,000; goats, 39,237,000; horses and ponies, 1,711,000; mules, 70,000; donkeys, 1,411,000; camels, 505,000.

Forests.—The lands under the direct control of the State Forest Department are classified as 'Reserved Forests' (forests intended to be permanently maintained for the supply of timber, &c., or for the protection of water supply, &c.), 'Protected Forests,' and 'Unclassed' forest land. The following table shows the extent of these areas in 1928–29:—

The net revenue from the State forests in 1928–29 was about Rs. 2,27,47,874.

Industries.—The most important indigenous industry, after agriculture, is the weaving of cotton cloths. Other important indigenous industries are silk rearing and weaving, shawl and carpet weaving, wood-carving and metal-working. One of the most important industries connected with agriculture is the tea industry, the average number of persons employed being about 900,000. The area under tea in 1928 was about 770,600 acres, distributed as follows: Assam, 427,200; Bengal, 193,500; Bihar and Orissa, 1,900; United Provinces, 6,000; Punjab, 9,700; Madras, 62,900; Coorg, 400; Tripura (Bengal), 7,600; and the Travancore State, 61,400. The production was, in 1928, 404 million lb. The exports of Indian tea from British India (including the State of Travancore) in 1928–29 were: to United Kingdom, 299,003,000 lb.; Canada, 11,208,000 lb.; United States, 7,686,000 lb.; Persia, 4,154,000 lb.; and to Australasia, 5,796,000 lb. The total exports were 350,502,000 lb. in 1926–27; 362,012,000 lb. in 1927–28; and 359,784,000 lb. in 1928–29.

Some statistics for 1927 of mills, factories, &c., subject to the Indian Factories Act, are given as follows for British India (excluding Indian States and Government factories).

A branch of the Royal Mint was established at Bombay at the end of 1917, but since April, 1919, the Branch Mint has been closed.

In August, 1926, the Royal Commission on Indian Currency and Finance submitted their report, including the recommendation of the stabilisation of the rupee at a rate corresponding to an exchange rate of 1*s.* 6*d.* (gold). In March 1927, the Indian Currency Act made this stabilization statutory.

Since 1900, rupees have been coined as required to meet public demands. The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and during the year 1912–13, and half such profit for the years 1907–08 and 1908–09 were placed to the credit of a separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, with the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government. Any profit arising from this source is at present credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve. On June 30, 1930, the Reserve amounted to 40,000,000*l.*

Notes of the values of one, two-and-a-half, five, ten, fifty, and a hundred rupees are legal tender throughout British India. The total value of notes in circulation on March 31, 1930, including the notes held in Government treasuries and the Head Offices of the Imperial Bank of India, was Rs. 1,77,23,06,294.

Currency, Weights, and Measures.

The monetary unit is the Indian Rupee, the gold value of which is fixed by the Indian Currency Act of 1927 at 1*s.* 6*d.* or 8·47512 grains of fine gold.

The coins in circulation are: silver, 1 rupee which equals 16 annas and weighs one tola or 180 grains troy, eleven-twelfths fine; ½ rupee or 8 anna piece; ¼ rupee or 4 anna piece; ⅛ rupee or 2 anna piece; nickel, 1, 4, and 8 anna pieces; bronze, 1 pice = ¼ anna; ½ pice = ⅛ anna; 1 pie = 1/12 anna or 1/3 pice.

There are Government Currency Notes in circulation in denominations of 100, 50, 10, 5, 2½, and 1 rupee.

A hundred thousand rupees is called 1 lakh and is written thus: Rs. 1,00,000; and one hundred lakhs is called 1 crore and is written thus: Rs. 1,00,00,000. A lakh of rupees when the rupee is 1*s.* 6*d.* is equivalent to 7,500*l.*

Weights and measures are as follows:—

The Maund of Bengal of 40 seers	= 82·28 lbs. avoirdupois.
,, ,, Bombay	= 28 lbs. nearly.
,, ,, Madras	= 25 lbs. nearly.
,, Tola	= 180 gr.
,, Ser of 80 tolas	= 2·057 lb.

BRITISH PROVINCES.

Information concerning the Provinces in British India is given below, in alphabetical order.

AJMER-MERWARA.

An agency subordinate to the factory at Surat was established at Ajmer early in the 17th century. The British received the tract by cession after the Pindari War in 1818. This small province of Ajmer-Merwara consists of one district with three sub-divisions, Ajmer, Kekri, and Merwara, with an area of 2,711 sq. miles and a population of 495,271. The administration is under a Chief Commissioner, who in the capacity of Agent to the Governor-General in Rajputana resides at Mount Abu. The local administration is under a Commissioner. The city of Ajmer has a population of 113,512. The income of the province was Rs. 16·7 lakhs in 1926–27, and the expenditure Rs. 29·5 lakhs. In 1927 there were 10,566 scholars in 178 recognised educational institutions for males; and 1,707 in 20 similar institutions for females. The Government College at Ajmer had 125 students in 1927.

Chief Commissioner.—The Hon. Mr. L. W. Reynolds, C.I.E., C.S.I., M.C., I.C.S. (appointed March 14, 1927); salary, Rs. 48,000 per year.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS.

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland. Five large islands closely grouped together are called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman. There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Ritchie Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands. The total area is 2,508 square miles. The Great Andaman group is about 219 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the padauk or Andaman redwood. The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Bonington, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade. The aborigines, 786 (414 males and 372 females) in 1921, live in small groups over the islands; some are savages of a low Negrito type. The total population of the Andaman Islands in 1921 was 17,814 (15,551 males and 2,263 females). In 1928–29 the forest receipts amounted to Rs. 15,00,706. The coconut, rubber, Manila hemp, and Bahamas aloe are successfully cultivated. In 1929 there were 9,718 head of cattle and 4,627 goats. There is wireless telegraphy with Burma. A mail steamer connects Port Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and Madras. The islands have been used since 1858 by the Government of India as a penal settlement for life and long-term convicts, but the practice is being discontinued, the island being left to develop on free lines. The settlement possesses about 72,363 acres of cleared land. There were, in 1929, 6,985 convicts (including 183 women) in the place, of whom 6,688 (including 179 women) were on ticket-of-leave in the settlement supporting themselves. The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge is the Chief Commissioner. The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair in 1929 was 15,962.

The Nicobar Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman. The British formally took possession in 1869. There are twenty-one islands, nine uninhabited; total area, 635 square miles. The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central, and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nankauri, and Car Nicobar. There is a fine land-locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nankauri, known as Nankauri Harbour. The Nicobarese inhabitants numbered 9,272 (5,242 males and 4,030 females) in 1921. The islanders are known to have pursued the coconut trade for at least 1,500 years. The coconut production is estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some 8 million are sold by barter and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra. The Government is represented by a permanent Assistant Commissioner at Car Nicobar and a Tahsildar at Nankauri. The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars.

Chief Commissioner at Port Blair.—Lieut.-Col. M. L. Ferrar, C.S.I., C.I.E., O.B.E., I.A.: salary, Rs. 36,000 per year.

ASSAM.

Constitution and Government.—Assam first became a British Protectorate at the close of the first Burmese War in 1826. In 1832 Cachar was annexed: in 1835 the Jaintia Hills were included in the East India Company's dominions, and in 1839 Upper Assam was annexed to Bengal. In 1874 Assam was detached from the Administration of the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal, and made a separate Chief Commissionership. On the partition of Bengal in 1905, it was united to the Eastern Districts of Bengal under a Lieut.-Governor. From 1912 the Chief Commissionership of Assam was revived; and from 1921 a Governorship was created. There are two Members (one an Indian) of the Governor's Executive Council for 'reserved' subjects, and two Indian Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council consists of 53 Members, 39 elected, and 14 nominated and ex-officio (not more than 7 may be officials). For the purposes of administration there are two Commissionerships with 12 Districts and 2 frontier tracts. There are 19 Local Boards; and there are 17 Municipalities and 8 Town Committees.

Manipur State (p. 164) is in relation with the Government of Assam.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Egbert Laurie Lucas Hammond, K.C.S.I., C.B.E., I.C.S.; took his seat on June 28, 1927: salary Rs. 66,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The plains districts, the hill districts and the frontier tracts exclusive of the State of Manipur cover an area of 53,015 square miles, with a population of 7,606,230 in British territory. More than half are Hindus: and only 22 per cent. speak Assamese. Over 100 different languages are spoken in the province. The capital is Shillong.

Instruction.—There were two Art Colleges, affiliated to the Calcutta University, with 1,124 students in 1928–29; also the Earle Law College, at Gahuati, founded in 1914, with 80 students on its roll. The number of secondary schools for boys was 376 with 55,215 pupils: primary schools for boys numbered 4,906, with 229,563 pupils. The number of girls at school was 49,169. There were 1,592 pupils in 49 Tea Garden schools of 'A' and 'B' classes.

Justice and Crime.—The Province (Manipur State and the hill and frontier areas excepted) is under the jurisdiction of the High Court of Calcutta. For criminal work there were, in 1927, 2 Sessions Judges and 94 other Officers. In 1927, 26,302 criminal cases were brought to trial, and 39,718 civil suits were instituted. The Assam Rifles, with 5 Battalions—formerly known as the Military Police—supply garrisons for the frontier. There is a civil Police Force of 4,328 under an Inspector-General.

Finance.—The gross revenue for 1928–29 was 275 lakhs of rupees, to which Land Revenue contributed 117 lakhs, Excise 66 lakhs, Forests 38 lakhs, and Stamps 22 lakhs. The total expenditure in 1928–29 was 280 lakhs. General Administration cost 26 lakhs, Education 30 lakhs, Police 27 lakhs, Land Revenue Administration 19 lakhs, and Forests 21 lakhs. The contribution formerly paid by the Local Government was completely remitted by the Central Government during 1928–29.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture employs nearly 89 per cent. of the population. Silk-weaving and Cotton-weaving are the most important of the Home Industries. At the end of 1928 there were 980 Tea Gardens with 427,225 acres under tea. The area of tea plucked in 1928 was 403,906 acres; the total out-turn was 246 million lbs., and the daily average number of persons employed was 543,920. All-India statistics regarding the tea industry are given on p. 131. In 1927–28 there were 6,108 sq. miles of reserved forests. In 1927, 24½ millions of gallons of crude oil were extracted from the oil fields of the province.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1927–28 there were 397 miles of metalled roads, 1,339 miles of unmetalled roads, and 2,223 miles of bridle roads. The open mileage of railways was 1,164 miles.

BALUCHISTAN.

Government.—After the Afghán War, 1878–81, the districts of Pishin, Shorarúd, Duki, Sibi, and Sháhrig were assigned to the British and in November, 1887, were formally constituted as British Balúchistán. In 1883, the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British on an annual quit-rent of Rs. 25,000 and Rs. 30,000 respectively. In 1886, the Bori valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied. In 1887, the Khetrán country, now known as the Bárkhán tahsil, was brought under British control; in 1889 British authority was established in the Zhob valley and Kákar Khurásán; in 1896 Chágai and Western Sinjráni were included in administered territory; in 1899, the Nuskhi Niabat was made over by the Khán of Kalát on an annual quit-rent of Rs. 9,000; and in 1903 the Nasirábád tahsil was acquired from the Khán on an annual quit-rent of Rs. 117,500. The area of British and administered territory, including tribal areas, is 54,228 sq. miles, and the population (1921) 420,648. The chief town is Quetta, with a population (1921) of 49,001. It is the only municipality. The head of the civil administration is the Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Baluchistan. The area under his direct administration is divided as follows: Quetta-Pishín, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Chágai districts and Bolán Sub-division. The revenue administration of the Province is entrusted to an officer who is styled the Revenue and Judicial Commissioner.

Regular troops are cantoned at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman, and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order. There is also a police force, supplemented by levies. The Indian Staff College was opened in Quetta in 1907.

Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Balúchistán.—Sir Beauchamp St. John, K.C.I.E., C.B.E.: salary, Rs. 48,000 per year.

Area and Population.—Area, 134,638 square miles; population (1921 census), 799,625. The main divisions are: (1) British Balúchistán proper, with an area of about 9,096 square miles, consisting of tracts assigned to the British Government by treaty in 1879; (2) Agency Territories, with an area of about 45,132 square miles, composed of tracts which have from time to time been acquired by lease, or otherwise brought under control, and placed directly under British officers; and (3) the States of Kalát and Las Bela, with an area of about 80,410 sq. miles, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khán of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the sea to Bela.

Religion and Education.—The religion of the population is either Musalman, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindu. The Musalmans numbered (1921 census) 733,477; Hindus, 51,348; Christians, 6,693; Sikhs, 7,741; others, 366. At the close of 1927-28 there were 100 public schools and 180 private schools, of which 8 and 2 respectively are girls' schools. There are also 2 European schools for boys and girls. Of the 9,199 pupils 1,711 were girls.

Justice.—Almost all cases in which local men are concerned are referred to 'councils of elders' (locally called jirga) for settlement along the well-tried lines of the ancient customary and tribal law.

Finance.—In the directly administered territory the chief items of revenue are: Taxes on income, land revenue, excise and stamps. In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind. The revenue from all sources in 1929-30 was Rs. 24·86 lakhs; and the expenditure Rs. 107·21 lakhs.

Production and Industry.—The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains; its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rainfall is uncertain and scanty. The agricultural products are wheat, barley, millet, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes; while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance. Panjgúr in Mekrán is famous for its dates.

Commerce and Communications.—Registration of trade was discontinued from April, 1925. There are 203 miles of metalled and 1,823 miles of unmetalled roads and 846 miles of broad gauge and 174 miles of narrow gauge railway.

The North-Western railway, gauge 5ft. 6in., enters Balúchistán near Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain to Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Harnai and the other by Quetta, and reunites at Bostán, whence the line runs to Chaman. There is a line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, and an extension from Nushki up to Duzdap on the Persian border, and also a short narrow gauge line from Khanai to Fort Sandeman, a distance of about 174 miles.

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory, extending to Kalát and through Duzdap to Seistan and Meshed.

A network of telegraph wires covers the north-eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalát, and westwards via Nushki to Killá Robát, where it connects with the Indo-European system, while a further line connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi.

BENGAL PRESIDENCY.

Constitution and Government.—The British first came to the shores of Bengal in 1633, when the first factories were established. A new centre of trade was fixed by Job Charnock at Calcutta in 1690. In 1699 Bengal was constituted a separate Presidency, and there were Presidents and Governors of Fort William from 1700 to 1774, the last being Warren Hastings. There were Governors-General of Fort William from 1774 to 1834. In 1834 the Bengal Presidency was divided into two Presidencies, 'Agra' and 'Fort William in Bengal.' In 1854 the Government of Bengal was entrusted to a Lieutenant-Governor, the offices of Governor-General of India and Governor of Bengal having previously been united in one person. In 1874 the Bengal Province was reduced to Bengal proper, Bihar and Orissa. In 1905 a portion of Bengal proper together with Assam went to form a new Province, Eastern Bengal and Assam. In 1910 the Government of the remainder of Bengal with Bihar and Orissa was constituted into a Lieutenant-Governorship with an Executive Council consisting of three Members. A new Presidency of Bengal, reuniting all the Bengali-speaking districts, was established in 1912 under a Governor in Council (three Members). Finally, from 1921, in accordance with the Government of India Act of 1919, the administration consisted of the Governor with four Executive Councillors (two being Indians) for the 'reserved' subjects and of the Governor with three Indian Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. The hot weather capital is Darjeeling. There is a Legislative Council of 140 Members consisting of 114 elected and 26 nominated and ex-officio Members (not more than 20 may be officials). For administrative purposes there are five divisions, under which there are 27 districts, exclusive of Calcutta. For the purposes of Local Self-Government there are 26 District Boards, all except two with non-official Chairmen; 82 Local Boards; and 2,217 smaller units called Union Boards. There are 115 Municipalities. The Calcutta Corporation was reconstituted by an Act of 1923 with a Mayor, Chief Executive Officer and other officials, all of whom are to be elected by the Corporation; there are 85 Councillors and 5 Aldermen.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Hugh Stephenson, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., I.C.S.: appointed June 6, 1930: salary Rs. 120,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—Bengal in its present form, as reconstituted in 1912, covers 82,277 square miles, of which 76,843 square miles are British territory. The population (1921) is 46·6 millions in British territory and 896,926 in two Indian States. Calcutta with its suburbs accounts for 1,132,246; the urban population of the remainder of the Province is only 4 per cent. of the whole. Howrah has a population of 195,301; and Dacca of 119,450. Mohammedans constitute 53·5 per cent., and Hindus 43·7 per cent. Of the 149,075 Christians, 22,730 were Europeans. Bengali is the mother tongue of 92 per cent. of the total population, though altogether 80 different languages are found spoken in Bengal.

Education.—Recognised Educational Institutions in 1926–27 numbered 58,833, and unrecognised 1,610. The number of pupils in all classes of Institutions was 2,343,380. The Calcutta University is both an affiliating and a teaching University, dating from 1857. Dacca University is a teaching University, founded in 1921. Art Colleges for males number 41 with 22,131 students; of these 9 were maintained by Government. There were 2,675 secondary schools for Indian boys. The primary schools for boys numbered 38,187. Of the total number of pupils in primary schools 53·3 per cent. were Muhammedans and 45·9 per cent. were Hindus. There were 98

Institutions for the training of teachers. There were 731 students in Engineering in 2 Institutions. There were 14,748 Institutions of all kinds for Indian girls. For children of Europeans and Anglo-Indians there were 62 Institutions.

Justice and Crime.—The High Court consists of a Chief Justice and 16 Judges. For Criminal and Civil justice there were in 1927 42 District and Sessions Judges (including Additional Judges). For Criminal justice there were 411 stipendiary and 635 honorary Magistrates, and for Civil justice 44 Subordinate Judges and 235 Munsifs (Civil Judges of the first instance). There were 295,039 criminal cases brought to trial in 1927; and outside Calcutta 588,164 civil suits were instituted. The Bengal Police has a strength of 24,325 under an Inspector-General. The Calcutta force is a separate force under a Commissioner of Police who is directly under Government.

Finance.—The Revenue (revised estimates) collected in 1927–28 was 1,077 lakhs of rupees. To this sum Stamps furnished the largest contribution, nearly 350 lakhs; next, Land Revenue, 315 lakhs, and then Excise, 224 lakhs. Registration fees gave 40 lakhs and Bengal Forests 34 lakhs. On the expenditure side the total was 1,103 lakhs. Police cost 188 lakhs, Education 138 lakhs, General Administration 119 lakhs, and Medical Department 55 lakhs. The administration of Justice cost 108 lakhs. Forests gave a surplus of income over expenditure of 17 lakhs. As a special measure, the annual contribution of 63 lakhs to the Central Government has been remitted for six years from 1922–23.

Production and Industry.—During the close of 1926 there were 1,234 registered factories of all kinds. There were 85 jute mills and a daily average of 325,190 operatives. Cotton mills numbered 12 with 12,781 operatives. The Coal Mining Industry in Bengal had in 1926–27 209 mines, employing 43,506 operatives with an output of 5,137,688 tons. Seventy-seven per cent. of the population depend on agriculture.

Commerce and Communications.—The foreign trade of Bengal in 1927–28 amounted to 89 crores of rupees of Imports and 148 crores of Exports. Cotton goods accounted for 34·06 per cent. of the Imports. Of the Exports, jute manufactures and raw jute accounted for 62·2 per cent. The United Kingdom sent 55·9 per cent. of the Imports, and received 21·6 per cent. of the Exports.

In 1926–27 the length of metalled roads was 3,434 miles and of unmetalled roads 34,261 miles. Bengal possesses no less than 1,876 miles of navigable canals. The length of railways within the province on March 31, 1927, was 3,288 miles.

BIHAR AND ORISSA.

Constitution and Government.—The Province, containing the three different ethnic areas, Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa, was taken from the old Province of Bengal and constituted under a Lieut.-Governor in Council in 1912. After the Reforms Act of 1919, the administration was changed into a Governorship. For the 'reserved' subjects there is an Executive Council with two Members (one an Indian), and for the 'transferred' subjects two Indian Ministers. There is a Legislative Council of 103 Members, 76 elected and 27 nominated and ex-officio (of whom no more than 18 may be officials). For the purposes of administration there are 5 divisions, covering 21 districts.

Governor.—H.E. James David Sifton, C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S.: appointed June 6, 1930: salary Rs. 1,00,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The British territories cover 83,161 square miles, with a population (1921) of 34 millions. The Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur attached to the Province of Bihar and Orissa have an area of 28,664 square miles and a population of 3,959,669. The three principal towns are Patna, the capital (119,976), Bhagalpur (68,873), and Gaya (67,562). The hot weather seat of the Government is at Ranchi. Hindus form the great majority of the population.

Education.—At the census of 1921 the proportion of literates was only 4·7 per cent. as compared with 7·5 for the rest of India. The percentage of Indian boys attending school reached 40·0 in 1928–29. The University of Patna constituted in 1917 is an affiliating University. A Board of Secondary Education was constituted in 1922. In 1928–29 there were 3,717 students in Arts and Science Colleges. There were 125,251 pupils in 882 secondary schools, and 940,708 pupils in 29,673 primary schools. There is a College for Engineering at Patna (Bihar) and a School at Cuttack (Orissa); also the Tirhut Technical Institute and the Ranchi Technical School.

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court (constituted in 1916) at Patna with a Chief Justice and 8 Judges, excluding two temporary additional Judges. On the Criminal side there are Sessions Judges, Stipendiary and Honorary Magistrates. For the administration of Civil Justice there are District Judges, Subordinate Judges, and Munsiffs (Courts of first instance). The Police Force is under an Inspector-General; there is one policeman to 2,367 of the population and to 5·8 square miles of the area of the Province, the combined proportion being less than in any other Province of India.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) for the Bihar and Orissa Province in 1929–30 was Rs. 589 lakhs, including Rs. 193 lakhs from Excise, Rs. 177 lakhs from Land Revenue, Rs. 110 lakhs from Stamps, and nearly Rs. 10 lakhs from the Forest Department. The expenditure was Rs. 611 lakhs. The chief items were: Police Rs. 85 lakhs, Education Rs. 92 lakhs, and General Administration Rs. 75 lakhs. No contribution is required for the Central Government.

Production and Industry.—The Province is principally agricultural; 814 persons per mille depend on agriculture for their livelihood, and 963 per mille live in villages. The principal crop, rice, covers nearly half the cropped area; then come sugar-cane and maize. The area under indigo in Bihar was 15,800 acres in 1928. The coal area is in the Manbhum and Hazaribagh districts of Chota Nagpur. The total output was 14·8 million tons out of 21·5 millions for the whole of India in 1928. The districts of Hazaribagh, Monghyr and Gaya form the most important source of mica in the world. In Singbhum are the Tata Iron and Steel Works at Jamshedpur, with a pay-roll of 30,000 employees, and an additional 16,000 engaged in collieries, mines and quarries. The reserved forests cover an area of 1,799 square miles. In 1929 there were 9,316 Co-operative Societies with a working capital of Rs. 582 lakhs.

Commerce and Communications.—There was in 1924-25 a trans-frontier trade of 526 lakhs with Nepal, and a small maritime trade in Orissa. The total mileage in 1928–29 of metalled roads was 4,677 and of unmetalled roads 27,598. There are also 501 miles of navigable canals in Bihar and Orissa. The East Indian, Bengal and North-Western, Bengal Nagpur and Eastern Bengal Railways traverse the province. There are also 4 light railways with 149 miles.

BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.

Constitutional Government.—The English obtained a factory at Surat in 1616. Bombay was acquired by the Portuguese in 1530, and given in 1661 to Charles II as part of the dowry of Catherine of Braganza. In 1668 the king granted the Island of Bombay to the East India Company for the small annual rent of £10: it was placed under the President of the factory at Surat. The headquarters of the Bombay Governor were transferred from Surat to Bombay in 1708. The early summer seat of Government is at Poona; for the hottest months the Governor resides at Mahableswar. The administration is in the hands of the Governor and an Executive Council of four (of whom two are Indians) for the 'reserved' subjects, and of the Governor with three Indian Ministers (the Minister of Local Self-Government, the Minister of Education and the Minister of Agriculture) for the 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council consists of 114 Members, including the 4 Members of Council. There are 86 elected Members and 28 nominated and ex-officio Members, of whom not more than 16 may be officials; but the present (1930) number is 15 only. There are, in addition to Bombay City, 5 administrative Divisions—Northern, Central and Southern, Bombay Suburban, and Sind—under which are 27 Districts. In 1928–29 there were 155 Municipalities, 27 District Local Boards, and 220 Taluka Boards. The Commissioner in Sind has considerable independent powers. His headquarters is at Karachi.

Governor.—H.E. the Rt. Hon. Sir Frederick Sykes, P.C., G.C.I.E., G.B.E., K.C.B., C.M.G., appointed June 27, 1928. Salary Rs. 120,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The British Districts cover an area of 123,621 sq. miles: population (1921), nearly 19½ millions, mainly Hindus. The Indian States in relation with the Bombay Presidency cover 28,562 sq. miles and have a population of 4 millions (p. 165). The Western India States (p. 171) are in relation with the Government of India. In Sind, the Mohammedans are in the majority. Parsis are only 0·43 per cent. of the population in British territory. The density varies from 71 per sq. mile in Sind to 48,996 in Bombay City. The chief languages are Sindi, Gujarati, Marathi, and in the South Kanarese. The principal towns are Bombay (1,175,914), Ahmedabad (274,007), Poona (214,796), and Karachi (216,883).

Education.—The Bombay University founded in 1857 is an affiliating University. Under the University are 18 Arts Colleges and 11 Professional Colleges, for Engineering, Medicine, Agriculture, Commerce, and Law. In 1928–29 the number of students in the Arts Colleges was 7,132, and in the Professional Colleges 2,667. Recognised and unrecognised Educational Institutions numbered, in 1928–29, 17,042 with 1,230,840 scholars. Secondary schools numbered 548 with 103,927 pupils, and primary schools 14,606 with 1,050,104 pupils. To the total expenditure on education Government contributed 49·6 per cent., local authorities 18·2 per cent., and fees 18·3 per cent.

Justice and Crime.—The High Court of Bombay has a Chief Justice and 9 Judges. In Sind there is the Court of the Judicial Commissioner. Criminal justice is administered by the High Court, the Sessions Judges and 985 Magistrates. The number of persons tried was 259,605 in the year 1928. The Stipendiary Police Force of 18,125 men is under an Inspector-General; but Bombay City is under the control of a Commissioner of Police who commands a force of 4,175 men. Outside of Bombay City the incidence of the Police Force is one to every 821 inhabitants.

Finance.—The estimated revenue of the Government of Bombay for 1930–31 is Rs. 1,573 lakhs, the chief contributions being Rs. 512 lakhs from Land Revenue, Rs. 389 lakhs from Excise, Rs. 173 lakhs from Stamps, and Rs. 78 lakhs from Forests. The estimated expenditure for 1930–31 is Rs. 1,601·5 lakhs. General Administration was estimated to cost Rs. 323 lakhs, Education Rs. 203 lakhs, and Police Rs. 178 lakhs. The contribution of the Bombay Government to the Central Government has now been remitted. Under the head of Capital Expenditure Rs. 421 lakhs have been provided for the construction of Irrigation Works.

Production and Industry.—Sixty-four per cent. of the population are dependent on agriculture. The textile trade is dominant in production. The number of looms in 1929 in Bombay Island was 74,825, and in the rest of the Bombay Presidency 51,399. The number of factories of all kinds was 1,751 in 1929, and the number of operatives in all industries was 366,029, including 74,924 women and 4,527 children. There is a steady decline in the number of child operatives. There are 15,000 sq. miles of reserved forests.

Irrigation.—There are two spheres, the Deccan and Gujarat, and the Sind. The Lloyd Barrage at Sukkur is intended to supply the defect due to the low natural level of the Indus. This scheme provides for the irrigation of 500,000 more acres than the total cultivated area of Egypt; and the estimated cost is over £12,000,000. In Sind 3,171,205 acres were irrigated in 1927–28, and in the Deccan and Gujarat 231,544.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1928–29 Bombay had 9,178 miles of metalled roads and 20,320 miles of unmetalled roads. In 1928–29 the total length of railway open in the Bombay Presidency was 5,689½ miles.

In January, 1928, the electrification of the suburban services to the North of Bombay was inaugurated, and is now extended to Poona.

The total foreign trade in 1928–29 was Rs. 195 crores, and the total coasting trade Rs. 62½ crores. Bombay had Rs. 108¼ crores of Imports and Rs. 86 crores of Exports; Karachi had Rs. 29 crores of Imports and Rs. 25 crores of Exports in 1929–30. India cotton to the extent of 480,000 tons left Bombay for abroad.

BURMA.

Constitution and Government.—As far back as 1612 the East India Company had agents and factories at Syriam (near Rangoon), Prome and Ava. From 1796 there was a Resident at Rangoon. The first Burma War gave in 1826 Arakan and Tenasserim to the British; in 1852 Pegu was annexed by Lord Dalhousie; in 1862 the Provinces in Burma were amalgamated under a Chief Commissioner; and in 1886 Upper Burma was annexed. In 1897 the charge was changed to a Lieut.-Governorship. From 1923 the Province has been constituted a Governor's Province under the Government of India Act of 1919. In the hot weather season the Government moves from Rangoon to Maymyo. The Governor and two Members of the Executive Council (one a Burman) are in charge of the 'reserved' subjects, and the Governor and two non-official Ministers are in charge of the 'transferred' subjects. There are seven administrative Divisions, exclusive of the Shan States (four Lower Burma, three Upper Burma) under Commissioners, and under these again 38 Deputy Commissioners of Districts. The Northern and Southern Shan States, which form part of British India, are administered by their Chiefs under the supervision of the Commissioner of the Federated Shan States. These groups were federated in 1922; and since 1923 there has been a Council of Chiefs. The Legislative Council of Burma consists of 103 Members, of whom 80 are elected and 23 nominated and ex-officio. No more than 14 may be officials.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Charles Alexander Innes, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S.: appointed 1927: salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The area of the Province is 262,732 sq. miles. Burma proper, inclusive of the Chin Hills and Kachin Hill Tracts, covers 184,102 sq. miles. The Shan States cover 62,305 sq. miles; and there are 16,325 sq. miles of unadministered territory. The total population (1921) was 13,212,192. The leading towns are Rangoon, the capital (345,505), and Mandalay (148,917). The proportion of religions per 1,000 in 1921 was: Buddhists, 851; Animists, 53; Hindus, 37; Mohammedans, 38; Christians, 20; and others, 1. The Burmans belong to the Tibetan group. Cultivation of various kinds supported 9,158,932.

Education.—The number of pupils in the 7,282 recognised colleges and schools was 503,564 in 1928–29; and 201,614 in the unrecognised institutions. Burma is the most literate Province in the Indian Empire; far ahead of India in primary education. Higher education is controlled by the University, Anglo-Vernacular and English schools by Government, and Vernacular education by Local Bodies. In almost every village there is a Buddhist monastery, where the three R's are taught. There were in 1928–29, 279,122 pupils in upper and lower primary schools, and 203,056 pupils attending 1,445 secondary schools of all kinds. The teaching University of Rangoon was constituted in 1920, with two Arts Colleges; and there is an Intermediate College at Mandalay. There is also a Forest School at Pyanmana, an Agricultural College and Research Institute at Mandalay, and a Technical Institute and a Veterinary School at Insein (near Rangoon).

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court at Rangoon (constituted 1922) for the control of the administration of Civil and Criminal Justice; there are a Chief Justice and 11 Judges. Besides Sessions Judges there were 602 Stipendiary Magistiates in 1928–29: 135,202 criminal cases were brought to trial in 1928. The number of civil suits instituted was 68,267 in 1928. There is a Civil Police Force of 13,559 officers and men under an Inspector-General; a Rangoon Town Force of 1,525 under a Commissioner of Police; and—the special feature of Burma—several battalions of Military Police, the strength of which is 10,050 men.

Finance.—The revenue receipts (revised estimates) of 1929–30 were Rs. 1,045 lakhs, to which Land Revenue contributed Rs. 554 lakhs, Forests Rs. 183 lakhs, Excise Rs. 127 lakhs, Stamps Rs. 71 lakhs, and Irrigation Rs. 11 lakhs. The expenditure charged to revenue (revised estimates) in 1929–30 totalled Rs. 1,122 lakhs, the largest item being Civil Works Rs. 230 lakhs; next, Police Rs. 161 lakhs; Education Rs. 127 lakhs; and General Administration Rs. 109 lakhs. There was no contribution to the Central Government by the Provincial Government in 1929–30. The net surplus from Forests was Rs. 103 lakhs.

Production and Industry.—The area of reserved Forests at the end of 1928–29 was 29,190 sq. miles. The out-turn of teak by lessees was 309,965 tons. In 1928 the output of tin was, in the Tenasserim area, 3,522 tons; of tungsten ore, 445 tons; of silver, almost entirely from the mines of the Burma Corporation, Ltd., in the N. Shan States, 7,404,728 ounces. The total provincial output of petroleum (1928) was 262,187,263 gallons. The total number of factories of all kinds was 976 in 1929; and the total number of persons employed in factories was 98,077.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1928–29 the whole sea-borne trade of Burma was Rs. 106·5 crores. Customs duty realised Rs. 467 lakhs. The length of metalled roads was 1,576 miles, and there were 7,860 miles of unmetalled roads. Burma had also 60 miles of navigable canals. Its great river, the Irrawaddy, is navigable up to Bhamo, 900 miles from the sea; and its tributary, the Chindwin, is navigable for 300 miles. The railways of the Province were taken over by the Government of India in January 1929. The open mileage for the year 1929–30 was 2,046 miles.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR.

Constitution and Government.—From 1853 the territories of the Kingdom of Nagpur were declared by Lord Dalhousie to have lapsed to the Paramount Power, and were then administered as the Nagpur Province by a Commissioner under the Government of India. With some additions this area was constituted the Central Provinces in 1861. The seat of Government is at Nagpur, but in April and September for two periods of three months and one and a half months respectively, it is transferred to Pachmarhi. Owing to the bankruptcy of Berar and the debts owing to the British Government, a treaty with the Nizam of Hyderabad in 1853 allotted to the British certain districts known as the Hyderabad 'Assigned Districts' for the payment of the Hyderabad Contingent. In 1902 the rights of the Nizam over Berar were leased in perpetuity to the Government of India at an annual rental of Rs. 25 lakhs; and Berar was transferred to the administration of the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces. In 1920 a Governorship was created. Associated with the Governor are two Executive Councillors (one an Indian) for the 'reserved' subjects, and two Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. There are five main administrative divisions with 22 districts, each under a Deputy Commissioner. All the Feudatory States are under a Political Agent. The Legislative Council of 73 has 55 elected Members and 18 nominated and ex-officio Members (not more than 10 may be officials). For Local Self-Government there are 18 District Councils and 2 Independent Local Boards in the Central Provinces, and 4 District Councils and one Independent Local Board in Berar; also 68 Municipalities.

Governor.—His Excellency Sir Montagu Butler, K.C.S.I., C.B., C.I.E., C.V.O., C.B.E.: appointed 1925: salary Rs. 72,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The British Districts of the Central Provinces have an area of 82,109 sq. miles and a population (1921) of 10,837,444; Berar an area of 17,767 sq. miles and a population of 3,075,316; and the Feudatory States an area of 31,176 sq. miles and a population of 2,066,900. The urban population is only 90 per mille. The leading towns are: Nagpur, the capital, 145,193; and Jubbulpore, 108,793. The Hindus in 1921 numbered 13·1 millions (nearly five-sixths of the total population); the Animists 2·1 millions; Mohammedans 0·5 million; and Christians 0·07 million.

Education.—The Nagpur University was established in 1923: to this the Colleges at Nagpur, Jubbulpore and Amraoti are affiliated. There were 2,133 collegiate students in 1929–30. There is a High School Board for regulating and supervising high school education. There were 111,706 pupils in secondary schools in 1929–30. Under the head of primary education there were 4,181 recognised Institutions (with 295,126 pupils) for boys, and 374 similar Institutions (with 24,747 pupils) for girls. For Technical Education there is an Engineering School with 174 students at Nagpur. There are 46 pupils at the Rajkumar College, Raipur.

Justice and Crime.—The Court of the Judicial Commissioner at Nagpur, with a Judicial Commissioner and four Additional Judicial Commissioners, is the highest Criminal and Civil Court. There were in 1929 12 District and Sessions Judges, with 819 Magistrates for criminal cases, and 123 Subordinate Judges for civil cases. There were 41,857 criminal cases tried; and 144,313 civil suits were instituted.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) for 1929–30 was Rs. 539 lakhs. Towards this total Land Revenue contributed Rs. 209 lakhs, Excise Rs. 125 lakhs, Stamp Duties Rs. 70 lakhs, and Forests Rs. 61 lakhs. On the expenditure side the total was Rs. 555 lakhs; General Administration cost Rs. 72 lakhs; next, Police Rs. 63 lakhs; Education Rs. 59 lakhs; Civil Works Rs. 87 lakhs; and Forests Rs. 43 lakhs. The contribution of

Rs. 22 lakhs hitherto payable by the Provincial Government of the Central Provinces and Berar to the Central Government of India was remitted permanently with effect from the year 1928–29.

Production and Industry.—The Agricultural College at Nagpur had 101 students in 1928–29. The result of the distribution of improved seeds by the Department of Agriculture was an increased out-turn valued at about 112 lakhs. The area irrigated from State Works in 1928–29 was 410,219 acres. The number of Co-operative Societies of all kinds in 1928–29 was 3,954. Berar and the Western Districts of the Nagpur Provinces grow cotton. Nagpur is the centre of a cotton-spinning and weaving industry. The Forest Department controls 19,641 sq. miles of Forests: the Forests gave in 1928–29 a surplus of Rs. 13·9 lakhs. The coal output in 1928 was 732,353 tons, and the manganese output was 590,832 tons. There were 893 factories of all kinds, in 1929, with a daily average of 69,291 employees.

Communications.—In 1929–30 there were 5,000 miles of metalled roads, and 3,592 unmetalled. The railway mileage is 2,572, of which 1,734 miles are broad gauge and 838 narrow and metre gauge.

COORG.

This Province came under British control in 1834, when, at the wish of the inhabitants, the reigning Raja, a cruel tyrant, was deposed. At first there was a Superintendent of Coorg, acting under the Commissioner of Mysore and Coorg. In 1881 the Resident in Mysore became the Chief Commissioner of Coorg. The local Administrator is the Commissioner of Coorg at the capital, Mercara. A Legislative Council of 20 was created in 1924. The area is 1,582 sq. miles; and the population (1921) is 163,838. Kanarese is the chief language: Kodagu (Coorg language) is a dialect of old Kanarese. In 1930–31 the estimated revenue was Rs. 15·25 lakhs and the expenditure Rs. 15·76 lakhs. There were, in 1929, 735 boys in high schools and 8,098 in primary schools, and 241 girls in high schools and 680 in primary schools. There are 40,020 acres under coffee, and 2,680 tons were exported in 1928–29.

Chief Commissioner.—The Hon. Lieut.-Col. R. J. C. Burke, I.A.: salary, Rs. 48,000 per year.

DELHI.

The Delhi Province, with an area of 593 sq. miles, was part of the Punjab Province before October 1912, when the enclave was created into a separate province under a Chief Commissioner. In 1915 a tract of land in the United Provinces comprising 65 villages was added to the Delhi Province, and is included in the above-mentioned area. The population is 488,188 (1921); the urban population in Delhi town itself is 304,420.

The revised estimate for the new capital is Rs. 1,601 lakhs; an expenditure of Rs. 1,510 lakhs was incurred up to 31st March, 1930. Accommodation is required for a population of about 66,000.

The University of Delhi, intended to be a unitary, teaching and residential institution, was founded in 1922. There are three Arts Colleges affiliated. There is also the All-India Lady Hardinge Medical College for the Medical Education of Indian Women (opened 1916). A Board of Secondary Education was established in 1926.

The revenue of the Province in 1929–30 (estimate) was Rs. 44 lakhs; and the expenditure (estimate) Rs. 45 lakhs.

Chief Commissioner.—The Hon'ble Sir John Thompson, K.C.I.E., C.S.I.: appointed August 8, 1928: salary, Rs. 36,000 per year.

MADRAS PRESIDENCY

Constitution and Government.—The first trading establishment made by the British in the Madras Presidency was at Peddapali (now Nizampatam) in 1611 and then at Masulipatam. In 1639 the English were permitted to make a settlement at the place which is now Madras; and Fort St. George was founded. By 1801 the whole of the country from the Northern Circars to Cape Comorin (with the exception of certain French and Danish settlements) had been brought under British rule. The administration is now in the hands of the Governor in Council (four members, two being Indians) for 'reserved' subjects, and of the Governor acting with three Indian Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council at present consists of 132 Members, of whom 98 are elected, and 34 nominated and ex-officio. The maximum number of officials is 23. There are 26 Districts each under a District Collector and Magistrate. Under the head of Local Self-Government there are 25 District Boards (all but one under a non-official President), 81 Municipal Councils, and the Corporation of Madras. The summer capital is Ootacamund.

Governor.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Lieutenant Colonel Sir George Frederick Stanley, G.C.I.E., C.M.G.; appointed October 26, 1929; salary Rs. 120,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—Area, 142,260 sq. miles. There are also five Indian States which are separately described (p. 169). Population (1921), 42·3 millions. Principal languages, Tamil, Telugu, Malayalam and Kanarese. The first two account for 78 per cent. of the population. The principal towns are, Madras with 526,911 inhabitants, Madura with 138,894, and Trichinopoly with 120,422. Hindus form 89 per cent., Mohammedans 7 per cent., Christians 3 per cent., and Animists 1 per cent.

Education.—There are three Universities, the Madras University, the Andhra University, and the Annamalai University. The first of these, founded in 1857, is an affiliating University and since 1923 has been discharging teaching functions to a limited extent The Andhra University, founded in 1926, is mainly an affiliating body. The Annamalai University, founded in 1929, is the first attempt in South India at organising a unitary residential type of University. The number of Colleges affiliated to or recognised by the two affiliating Universities in 1929–30 was as follows:—Madras 68, of which 14 were maintained by Government; Andhra 27 (4 maintained by Government). On March 31, 1929, male Arts students numbered 12,832, and women Arts students numbered 488. Public educational institutions numbered 56,013, with 2,729,237 scholars. There were 50,096 public elementary and 528 secondary schools for Indian boys, and 4,722 elementary and 67 secondary schools for Indian girls. Public funds contributed 63 per cent. of the total expenditure on education in 1928–29.

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court with a Chief Justice and 13 Judges. There were in 1928 in all 964 Criminal Courts; and 305,130 criminal cases were instituted in 1928. The Police Force in 1929 numbered 29,687, under an Inspector-General, while there was a force of 2,206 for Madras City. The total number of civil suits instituted was 532,024 in 1928.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) of the Government of Madras was Rs. 1,876 lakhs in 1929–30, the chief contributions being Rs. 764 lakhs from Land Revenue, Rs. 596 lakhs from Excise, Rs. 251 lakhs from Stamps and Rs. 65 lakhs from Forests. The expenditure (revised estimates) in 1929–30 was Rs. 1,754 lakhs. General Administration accounted for Rs. 251 lakhs, Police for Rs. 201 lakhs, and Education for Rs. 268 lakhs. The contribution to the Central Government was completely and permanently remitted from 1928–29. The proportion of the expenditure in the 'transferred' departments to the total expenditure (excluding the contribution to the Central Government) was 40 per cent. in 1929–30.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture engages 71 per cent. of the population. There were in 1928–29, 23 cotton mills with 32,866 workers. The total number of factories working in 1929 was 1,530 with 143,217 operatives. The Madras Government in 1928–29 treated at the Government Quinine Factory 645,907 lbs. of cinchona bark. The area irrigated in 1928–29 was 7,262,096 acres: productive irrigation works showed a return of 7·94 per cent. on the capital outlay. The output of timber by the Forest Department was 4,734,500 cubic feet in 1928–29.

Commerce and Communication.—In 1928–29, Madras Presidency had 21,231 miles of metalled roads, and 10,232 miles of unmetalled roads, as well as 1,493 miles of navigable canals. In 1929–30 there were 4,850 miles of railway, in addition to 136 miles of District Board lines. The imports of private merchandise under the head of Seaborne Foreign Trade were valued in 1928–29 at Rs. 27·59 crores, and the exports at over Rs. 46 crores. Trade to the United Kingdom represented 30 per cent. of the total trade of the Presidency. In 1928–29 the Madras Port accounted for 48·64 per cent. of the total trade; its imports and exports amounted to Rs. 52 02 crores in 1928–29. Cochin is the chief of the other ports.

LACCADIVE ISLANDS.

(Attached to Madras Presidency.)

A group of 14 islands (9 inhabited), about 200 miles off the west or Malabar coast of the Madras Presidency. The northern portion is called the Amindivis and is attached to the collectorate of South Kánara, the remainder to the administrative district of Malabar. Population 13,633, nearly all Mohammedans. The language is Malayalam, but the language in Minicoy, which is considerably to the south of the other islands, is Mahl. The staple products are coconut husk fibre (coir) and coconuts.

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

In 1849 the territory on the frontier was annexed and placed under a Board of Administration at Lahore in the Punjab. The frontier districts were separated in 1901 from the Punjab under the name of the North-West Frontier Province: the districts are Hazara, Peshawar, Kohat, Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. The British territory represents one-third of the whole area of 38,665 sq. miles under the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General; the remaining area is tribal territory, partly under Political Agents, and partly under the political control of the Deputy Commissioners of the British districts. The British territory in the five districts has an area of 13,419 sq. miles and a population of 2,251,340 (1921). About 95 per cent. are Mohammedans. Peshawar, the capital, had in 1921 a population of 104,452. The hot weather capital is Nathia Gali. The chief language is Pashtu, an Iranian tongue with many Punjabi words. The chief Court is that of the Judicial Commissioner and Additional Judicial Commissioner; and there are three Sessions Judges. In 1928–29 the total number of offences reported was 33,528. The total number of civil suits instituted was 20,607. (The gross revenue in 1929–30 (revised estimate) was Rs. 85·41 lakhs, of which Rs. 21·06 lakhs came from Land Revenue, and 10·90 lakhs from Stamps. The gross expenditure (revised estimate, 1928–29) was Rs. 313·57 lakhs, Rs. 23·86 lakhs being Political expenditure, Rs. 133·99 lakhs on Frontier Watch and Ward, Rs. 28·35 lakhs expenditure on Police and Rs. 30·82 lakhs on Civil Works.) In 1928–29 there were 830 recognised educational Institutions for males with 71,296 scholars, and 110 similar Institutions for females, with 9,395 scholars. The percentage of scholars to the total population is 6. The expenditure on Education was Rs. 28·35 lakhs, of which 73·6 per cent. is from Government Funds. Wheat covered 41 per cent. of the acreage sown in 1928–29. The irrigated area in that year was 966,106 acres. The railway line through the Khyber, 27 miles long, with 34 tunnels, from Jamrud to the frontier of Afghanistan, was opened in November 1925.

Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General.—The Hon. Mr. S. E. Pears, C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S.: appointed 1930; salary, Rs. 66,000 per annum.

PUNJAB.

Government and Constitution.—Punjab denotes the land of the five rivers, viz. Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi, Beas and Sutlej. British power in the Punjab began with the dissipation by the successors of Ranjit Singh of the power consolidated by him. In 1849 the country was annexed, and placed under a Board of Administration. In 1853 it was placed under a Chief Commissioner, and by 1859 the Punjab and the Delhi Territory constituted the charge of a Lieut.-Governor. The N.W. Frontier area was separated in 1901, and the Delhi enclave in 1911. In 1921 the administration was handed over to a Governor with an Executive Council of two Members (one an Indian) in charge of 'reserved' subjects, and the Governor with three Indian Ministers in charge of 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council consists of 94 Members, 2 ex-officio, 71 elected, and 21 nominated: of the latter not more than 14 may be officials. There are 29 districts grouped for administrative purposes under five Commissioners. The system of election has been introduced in the membership of all the District Boards, except Simla. There are 107 Municipalities. Lahore is the capital, but from May to October the Government Offices are transferred to Simla, where the Governor's residence is known as Barnes Court.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Geoffrey Fitzhervey de Montmorency, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., K.C.V.O., C.B.E.: appointed August 10, 1928: salary Rs. 1,00,000 per annum.

Area, Population and Religion.—The Punjab proper comprises an area of 99,846 sq. miles and has a population of 20·6 millions (1921). Its Indian States, 34 in number, have an area of 37,059 sq. miles with 4·4 million people. Of the population 55 per cent. is Mohammedan, 31 per cent. Hindu and 11 per cent. Sikh. The leading towns are: Lahore, the capital (281,781), Amritsar (160,218) and Rawalpindi (101,142).

Education.—The University of the Punjab was constituted as an examining University in 1882. It has always maintained an Oriental College and a Law College, also a Commerce College (1927); and since 1920 various departments of University teaching have been added. In 1929–30 there were 11,435 male students in Arts Colleges; in 1928–29 571,242 male scholars in secondary schools, and 359,844 scholars in primary schools. The total expenditure on Education in 1928–29 was Rs. 308 lakhs, of which Rs. 172 lakhs were provided by Government Funds and Rs. 62 lakhs from fees.

Justice and Crime.—The Chief Court of two Judges created in 1866 was converted in 1919 into a High Court at Lahore, consisting of a Chief Justice and 12 Judges, including one inspecting judge who sits for six months in the year. There are 22 permanent District and Sessions Judges, and 5 others. In 1929 the number of criminal cases brought to trial was 134,929, and the number of civil suits instituted was 217,538. The Provincial Police Force of nearly 23,000 officers and men is under an Inspector-General.

Finance.—The revenue in 1929–30 was Rs. 1,114 lakhs, to which the receipts from Irrigation Works contributed the large proportion of Rs. 383 lakhs, Land Revenue Rs. 257 lakhs, Stamps Rs. 118 lakhs, and Excise Rs. 119 lakhs. The expenditure was Rs. 1,147 lakhs. The chief items of expenditure were: Education Rs. 172 lakhs, Police Rs. 124 lakhs, and General Administration Rs. 115 lakhs. The entire contribution of the Punjab to the Central Government was permanently remitted in 1928–29 by the Central Government. The net profit earned by the Irrigation Department has been:—

	Lakhs		Lakhs
1923 24 . . .	Rs. 307	1926–27 . . .	Rs. 270
1924–25 . . .	Rs. 338	1927–28 . . .	Rs. 289
1925–26 . . .	Rs. 357	1928–29 . . .	Rs. 254

Production and Industry.—Agriculture affords subsistence to 60·5 per cent. of the population. In 1930 there were 3,405,836 acres of Forests under the Forest Department. The net profit of this Department in 1929–30 was Rs. 3·07 lakhs. There is a Punjab Arts and Crafts depot at Lahore which serves a dual purpose; the provision of art craftsmen with a market for their wares, and the improvement of design and workmanship. Next to agriculture, hand-loom weaving is the most important industry, both as regards the number of workers engaged and the value of the products: it is estimated that over 200,000 rely on weaving as their main occupation. Agricultural prosperity is mainly due to irrigation: the canal-irrigated area rose from 3 million acres in 1893 to 13 million acres in 1928–29.

The total number of factories registered under the Indian Factories Act is 613, which provide employment to 49,875 operatives.

Commerce and Communications.—The Punjab possesses an extensive system of railway communications. The route mileage (6,827 miles) on the N.W. Railway has been increased by the opening to public traffic of 6 miles of new lines during 1929–30, and in addition 261 miles of new lines were under construction at the end of the year. The main source of wealth lies in the export of wheat and cotton. The wheat traffic to Karachi on the N.W. Railway fluctuates considerably. In 1929–30 the export of wheat was 9,000 tons; and of cotton, 214,000 tons. The passenger traffic on the N.W. Railway was 85·4 millions in 1929–30. There are about 4,000 miles of metalled roads and about 20,000 miles of unmetalled roads in the province, excluding village roads. Punjab has also 220 miles of navigable canals.

UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH.

This territory grew out of various cessions and acquisitions. In 1833 the then Bengal Presidency was divided into two parts, one of which became the Presidency of Agra. In 1835 the Agra area was styled the North-West Province and placed under a Lieut.-Governor. Oudh was annexed in 1856. The two provinces of Agra and Oudh were placed, in 1877, under one administrator, styled Lieut.-Governor of the North-West Province and Chief Commissioner of Oudh. In 1902 the name was changed to 'United Provinces of Agra and Oudh,' under a Lieut.-Governor, and the Lieut.-Governorship was altered to a Governorship in 1921. The administration of the 'reserved' subjects is in the hands of the Governor and an Executive Council of two Members, one of whom is an Indian; and the 'transferred' subjects are under the Governor with three Indian Ministers. The Legislative Council consists of 123 Members. There are 100 elected Members, and 23 nominated and ex-officio Members: of the latter not more than 16 may be officials. There are 10 administrative divisions, covering 48 districts, the average size of which is 2,000 square miles and the average population just under a million. The Municipalities in 1928–29 numbered 85, and the District Boards 48; of the former all but 5, and of the latter all are under non-official Chairmen. There are three Indian States, one of which, Benares, came into existence in 1911.

Governor.—His Excellency Sir William Malcolm Hailey, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I., I.C.S.; appointed August 9, 1928; salary Rs. 120,000 a year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The area of the British districts is 106,295 square miles: population (1921) about 45½ millions; slightly over 1 million are in the 6,267 square miles of the three Indian States. The population is rural to the extent of 89·4 per cent. Lucknow (240,566 in 1921) is the largest city; but the second place is now taken by Cawnpore (216,436) instead of Benares (198,447). Agra had in 1921 185,532, and Allahabad 157,220 inhabitants. Hindus during the last decade have lost numbers to Christianity and Aryaism, but still cover 85 per cent. Mohammedans form 14 per cent.

Education.—The University of Allahabad, first constituted as an affiliating University in 1887, was recognized in 1921 as a unitary teaching and residential University: at the same time it exercised control over the affiliated colleges. Since July 1927 these colleges have been transferred to the new Agra University, which is a purely affiliating and examining University. The Benares Hindu University was constituted in 1916; Lucknow University in 1920; and the Aligarh Muslim University in 1920, all being unitary teaching and residential Universities. All four had 5,764 students in 1928–29. Government maintains an Engineering College at Roorkee, an Agricultural College at Cawnpore, and an Industrial School and a Medical College at Lucknow, besides three Training Colleges for English Teachers at Allahabad, Lucknow and Agra. Educational Institutions of all kinds numbered 26,298 in 1928–29. For secondary education there were 944 Institutions with 158,709 scholars; and for primary education 20,013 schools with 1,139,971 scholars. There were 2,160 institutions for Indian girls with 90,044 scholars. There was compulsory primary education in 29 Municipalities, Government supplying two-thirds of the extra cost involved. The percentage of scholars to the population is 5·7 for males and 0 65 for females. Government contributed 56 per cent. of the total cost of education in 1927–28.

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court of the Agra Province with a Chief Justice and 11 Judges, sitting at Allahabad; also a Chief Court of Oudh (constituted November 1925) with 5 Judges in all, at Lucknow. There are 19 Sessions divisions in Agra and 6 in Oudh. The persons brought to trial were 166,966 in the Agra Province and 98,712 in Oudh in the year 1928. The stipendiary Police Force is under an Inspector-General, with a force of nearly 33,800 officers and men. The village watchmen have in recent years been reduced from about 88,000 to 43,800.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) of the United Provinces in 1929–30 was 1,319 lakhs of rupees. To this total the main contributions were: 700 lakhs from Land Revenue, 179 lakhs from Stamps, 131 lakhs from Excise, 62 lakhs from Forests, and 126 lakhs from Irrigation. On the expenditure side the total (revised estimates) for 1929–30 was 1,237 lakhs. On Education were spent 201 lakhs; on Police 171 lakhs; and on General Administration 139 lakhs. No less than 97 lakhs were spent on the interest on debt incurred on Irrigation Works for which Capital Accounts are kept. On the construction of new Irrigation work, 147 lakhs went in capital expenditure in 1929–30.

Produce and Industry.—Agriculture absorbs 76·8 per cent. of the population; over 34½ million acres were under cultivation in 1928–29, and about 3 million acres were irrigated from canals. The productive canals (excluding the Sarda Canal) gave a net revenue of 5·88 per cent. on the total capital outlay. The Sarda Kuchha and Sarda Oudh estimates have been combined into one project, which is estimated to cost 950 lakhs and to irrigate 1,350,000 acres. The great centre of industry is Cawnpore. In 1929 there were 384 factories in the United Provinces. The cotton mills employ most labour; then follows engineering.

Communications.—There were, in 1928–29, 7,918 miles of metalled and 22 346 of unmetalled roads. On the River Ganges and Gogra 425 miles were kept open for navigation. The trunk lines of the East Indian Railway intersect the province.

INDIAN STATES AND AGENCIES.

Information is given below regarding the leading States and Agencies, arranged in alphabetical order.

Assam State (Manipur).—The only feudatory States with which the Assam Administration has political relations are Manipur and the petty States in the Khasi Hills. Manipur has an area of 8,456 square miles and a population (1921) of 384,016. About one-third are animistic tribes. The revenue is nearly Rs. 8 lakhs. There is a tribute of Rs. 5,000. The ruler is H.H. Maharaja Chura Chand Singh, C.B.E., born 1885; succeeded 1891; salute of 11 guns. Capital, Imphal. The State Administration is under a Darbar consisting of a President (whose services are lent by the Assam Government), three ordinary and three additional Members.

Baluchistan States.—There are two States—Kalat and Las Bela—in relation with the Agent of the Governor-General, who is also the Chief Commissioner of Baluchistan and resides at Quetta. There is the Political Agent, Kalat. The leading chief of Kalat is His Highness Beglar Begi Mir Sir Mahmud Khan, G.C.I.E., Wali of Kalat, who was born in 1864 and succeeded in 1893; he has a personal salute of 21 guns. He is the head of a confederacy of chiefs. The area of Kalat State is 73,278 square miles, and the population 328,281 (1921). The Khan's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to nearly Rs. 17 lakhs annually. In 1926 private property in slaves in Kalat was abolished.

The ruling chief of Las Bela is Mir Ghulam Muhammed Khan, Jam of Las Bela, who was born in 1895 and succeeded in 1921. The area of the State is 7,132 square miles; population, 50,696 (1921); the revenue is about Rs. 3·8 lakhs. The State is under the immediate control of the Political Agent in Kalat.

Baroda.—The State was carved out of the remains of the Moghul Empire under Sivaji and then under the Peshwa, and is interlaced with territory in Gujarat and Kathiawar. The Gaekwar Pílaji acquired portion of Gujarat in 1725. The influence of the British as suzerain dates from 1772. The Gaekwar, Malhar Rao, installed in 1870, was deposed in 1875 for misgovernment, and on May 27, 1875, the widow of Khande Rao adopted as heir the present ruler, a descendant of the founder of the family, who was invested with full ruling powers in 1881. The area of the State is 8,135 square miles; the population, 2,126,522. Baroda City, the capital, has a population of 91,178. The receipts in 1928–29 were Rs. 249 lakhs. Hyderabad.—The territory of this State, the largest and most populous of Indian States, had become a province of the Moghul Empire in 1687. In 1713 the Emperor appointed Mir Kamruddin Ali Khan, otherwise known as Chin Killij Khan, of Turkoman descent, as Subadar or Viceroy of the Deccan with the title of Nizam-ul-Mulk (administrator of the land). Nizam-ul-Mulk became independent, and founded the present dynasty of the Nizam in 1724; and Hyderabad, founded in 1589 by a descendant of the Golconda dynasty which gave way to the Moghuls, became the capital. The present ruler is a direct descendant of the original Nizam-ul-Mulk.

The area is 82,698 sq. miles; and the population, 12,471,770 (1921). Most of the people are Hindus. The administration is carried on, subject to the order of H.E.H. the Nizam, by an Executive Council. There is a Legislative Council of 20 members, in addition to the President. Of these, 12 are official, 6 non-official and 2 extraordinary members. The Government of India is represented by a Resident whose headquarters are at Hyderabad. Besides the Hyderabad Municipality, there are 15 District and 107 Sub-district Boards. There are Regular Troops, Imperial Service Troops and the Golconda Brigade.

In 1928–29 there were 145 officers administering criminal justice, and 134 Civil Judges of all classes. In that year 37,171 criminal cases were instituted and 42,456 civil suits. The District and City Police numbered 14,554. The number of public educational institutions was 4,247 with 291,144 pupils, with a total expenditure from public and private sources of Rs. 86 lakhs. There were 6 Arts Colleges with a total strength of 942 pupils. The revenue (estimate) for 1929–30 is Rs. 8·19 lakhs and expenditure (estimate) Rs. 767 lakhs. The number of co-operative credit societies was 2,073, with about 57,000 members in 1928–29. Jammu and Kashmir.—The State of Kashmir, which had been under Hindu rulers and Mohammedan Sultans, became part of the Moghul Empire under Akbar from 1581. After a period of Afghan rule from 1756 it was overrun by the Sikhs in 1819. Ranjit Singh entrusted in 1820 the territory of Jammu to a feudatory, Gulab Singh, and after the decisive battle of Sobraon in 1846 Kashmir was made over to the latter by Lord Hardinge on payment of the indemnity demanded from the Sikhs. British supremacy was then recognised. The bulk of the population are Mohammedans, though the ruling race is Hindu. The area is 84,258 sq. miles; the population 3,330,518. Geographically the State may be divided into (1) the Tibetan and semi-Tibetan tracts which contain the districts of Ladakh and Gilgit; (2) the Jhelum valley, within which is situated the lovely and world-famous "Happy valley" of Kashmir; (3) the submontane and semi-mountainous tract which includes Jammu, the winter capital of the State, which is connected with the railway system of India; and (4) the outer Hills, in which are comprised the Poonch Illaqa and Bhadarwah: a miniature "Happy valley."

The Government of India is represented by a Resident, who resides at Srinagar. In 1927-28 there were in addition to the High Court 128 Criminal Courts and 14,192 offences were tried. There were also 22,597 civil suits instituted in 67 courts. In 1927-28 there were 9,451 sq. miles of demarcated forests. The trade in 1928-29 was: Imports, 332 lakhs; Exports, 184 lakhs, and the total receipts 251 lakhs. The revenue of the State in 1928-29 was Rs. 251 lakhs. The Civil List amounted to Rs. 24,69,060. In 1927-28 there were two Arts Colleges at Srinagar and Jammu with 868 students. There were in all 1,012 educational institutions with 55,914 pupils, including 4,610 girls.

In addition to agriculture the chief industry is sericulture, which dates back to the 15th century. There are considerable mineral resources which have not yet been fully surveyed. A Department of Industry was created in 1922. It is equipped on modern lines and an up-to-date laboratory has been attached to it. The State has great natural resources and the Department of Industries is intended to help in their scientific development. Industries are being fostered by the Government. In recent years the State has made rapid strides in the field of progress. Primary education for boys has been made compulsory in the cities. A High Court Bench has been constituted. The Agriculturist's Relief Regulation and other legislations have been designed for the protection of the ryots. The marriage of boys below the age of 18 and girls below the age of 14 has been penalised. His Highness' Government has done much to protect the interests of the hereditary State subjects. A Board called the Civil Service Recruiting and Scholarship Selection Board has been set up for regulating appointments and selections for training. A Conference of Representatives is summoned twice every year and their representations are carefully considered by His Highness.

The present ruler is Colonel H.H. Maharajadhiraja Sir Hari Singh Bamadur, K.C.I.E., K.C.V.O., Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir; born 1895; succeeded 1925; salute of 21 guns.

Mysore.—The ancestors of the present dynasty came to Mysore in 1399, and established themselves in Hadinad, a few miles from the capital of the State. By successive conquests, the family extended the kingdom till it reached a position of eminence during the seventh century. The real power passed into the hands of Hyder Ali, a soldier of fortune in the latter part of the eighteenth century. Under him and his son, Tippu Sultan, the territories of Mysore were further extended, till they attained the dimensions of an empire. But on the defeat of Tippu in 1799, the territories were partitioned and the Mysore State, in its present shape, was handed back to the old Hindu dynasty, in the person of Krishnaraja Wodeyar III, the grandfather of the present ruler. Owing to alleged misgovernment, Lord William Bentinck assumed direct administration of the State in 1831; and for fifty years Mysore was thus governed. In 1865, the father of the present Maharaja was adopted as heir by the deposed ruler, and was invested with powers by Lord Ripon in 1881 by an Instrument of Transfer. In 1913, a Treaty was substituted for the Instrument of Transfer. In 1927, the Government of India remitted in perpetuity Rs. 10½ lakhs of the annual subsidy.

The area is 29,475 sq. miles; and the population (exclusive of the civil and military station of Bangalore) 5,859,952 (1921), nearly all Hindus. The administration is carried on under the Maharaja by the Dewan (Prime Minister), and three Members of the Council. There is a Rperesentative Assembly of 273 members and a Legislative Council of 50 members. The Government of India is represented by a Resident at Bangalore. In 1928–29 there were 94 criminal courts besides the Chief Court, and 38 civil courts. There were 19,619 offences reported and 38,945 civil cases instituted in that year. There were 1,962 co-operative societies with 116,586 members. The University of Mysore has 5 Colleges with 3,268 students. The number of educational institutions, public and private, on March 31, 1929, was 8,236, with 318,867 scholars. The total revenue of the State in 1928–29 was Rs. 374 lakhs, and the expenditure chargeable to revenue was 374 lakhs. The State forests cover 3,440 sq. miles. The five mining blocks in the Kolar Gold Fields area produced 375,886 ounces of fine gold in 1928.

The Ruler is Colonel H.H. Maharaja Sir Sri Krishnaraja Wodiyar Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.B.E.; born 1884; succeeded 1895; salute of 21 guns.

North-West Frontier Agencies and Tribal Areas.—Between the border of the British Districts of the N.W. Frontier Province and the Afghan frontier is the tribal territory. The Government of India exercises the minimum of interference. The region is divided into five Political Agencies: Malakand (Dir, Swat and Chitral), Khyber, Kurram, North Waziristan and South Waziristan. There are, further, areas known as Tribal Areas under the political control of the Deputy Commissioners of the five British Districts. All are under the Chief Commissioner of the N.W. Frontier Province in his capacity of Agent to the Governor-General. Chitral is ruled by H.H. Sir Shujaulmulk, K.C.I.E., the Mehtar of Chitral.

The area under tribal territory, including that of the Agencies, beyond the British border is approximately 25,500 sq. miles, with a population of 2,825,136. The protective units are the North Waziristan Scouts, South Waziristan Scouts, Kurram Militia and the Chitral Scouts in the Frontier Corps; a Frontier Constabulary; and Levies and Khassadars.

The Benares State has an area of 875 sq. miles, a population of 362,735 (1921); the approximate revenue is 22 lakhs of rupees.

Captain H.H. Raja Narendra Shah, C.S.I. (born 1898; succeeded 1913; salute of 11 guns) is the ruler of Tehri, which has an area of 4,502 sq. miles, a population of 318,482, and an approximate revenue of 18 3 lakhs.

Western India States Agency.—In 1924 the Indian States in Kathiawar, Cutch and Palanpur (previously under the Government of Bombay) were placed in direct relation with the Government of India through an Agent to the Governor-General in the States of Western India, who resides at Rajkot. There are Political Agents for Banas Kantha, Western Kathiawar, and Eastern Kathiawar Agencies. The States in Kathiawar cover an area of 20,882 sq. miles, with a population of 2,542,000. One is the Nawanagar State with an area of 3,791 sq. miles, and a population of 345,353 under Lieut.-Colonel H.H. Maharaja Shri Sir Ranjitsinhji Vibhaji, G.C.S.I., G.B.E.; born 1872; succeeded 1907; personal salute of 15 guns. The Ruler of Cutch is H.H. Maharao Shri Sir Khengarji Savai Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., who was born in 1866 and succeeded in 1876; he has a local salute of 19 guns. The area of Cutch is 7,616 sq. miles (exclusive of the salt marsh called the Runn of Cutch); the population, 484,547 (1921); and the approximate revenue is 31 lakhs.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Constitution and Government.

Malaya.—The Straits Settlements, a Crown Colony, comprise the Settlement of Singapore (including the Cocos Islands, Christmas Island and Labuan), Penang (including Province Wellesley and the Dindings), and Malacca. Malacca, one of the oldest European settlements in the East, was occupied by the Portuguese under Albuquerque in 1511, and held by them till 1641, when it passed into the possession of the Dutch till 1795 when it was captured by the English. It was restored (under the Treaty of Vienna) to the Dutch in 1818, being finally retroceded to the East India Company in 1825. Penang (Prince of Wales' Island) was the first British Settlement in the Malay Peninsula, being ceded by the Sultan of Kedah to the East India Company in 1786, Province Wellesley being added in 1800. The early history of Singapore is obscure; in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries it became a position of independence and importance till destroyed by the Javanese in 1377, after which date it remained almost uninhabited until 1819, when Sir Stamford Raffles founded the trading settlement, which is now the port and city of Singapore. The original lease of the site of a factory to Raffles, on behalf of the East India Company, by the Sultan and Temenggong of Johore, was followed in 1824 by a Treaty ceding the entire Island in perpetuity to the Company. In 1826, the three Settlements were incorporated under one Government as an Indian Presidency with headquarters at Penang. In 1830, they were incorporated under the Presidency of Bengal, headquarters being transferred in 1832 to Singapore. On April 1, 1867, the Settlements were transferred from the control of the Indian Government to that of the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The Cocos Islands in 1886, Chrismas Island in 1889, and the former Colony of Labuan in 1907, were incorporated in the Colony, in the Settlement of Singapore.

The administration of the Colony is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Resident Councillors of Penang and Malacca, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Colonial Engineer and two unofficial members. There is a Legislative Council, consisting of the General Officer commanding the Troops, twelve other official members, and thirteen unofficial, eleven of the latter nominated and two elected by the Chamber of Commerce at Singapore and Penang. The municipalities of Singapore, Georgetown (Penang), and Malacca are administered by Municipal Commissioners appointed by the Governor.

The Governor of the Straits Settlements is also High Commissioner for the Malay States, and British Agent for British North Borneo and Sarawak.

Governor.—Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G. (February, 1930).

Colonial Secretary.—John Scott, C.M.G. (February, 1929).

Area and Population.

The total area of the colony, with dependencies, is about 1,600 sq. miles. Singapore is an island about twenty-seven miles long by fourteen wide, with an area of 217 square miles, separated from the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula by a strait three-quarters of a mile in width. A number of small islands adjacent form part of the settlement. The seat of government is the town of Singapore, at the south-eastern point of the island. Penang is an island of 108 square miles, off the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula, and at the northern entrance of the Straits of Malacca. On the opposite shore of the mainland, distant from two to ten miles, is Province Wellesley, a strip of territory forming part of the Settlement of Penang, averaging eight miles in width, and extending forty-five miles along the coast, including ten miles of territory to the south of the Krian; total area 280 square miles. The chief town of Penang is George Town. Off the coast of Perak is the small island of Pangkor, which, together with a strip of the mainland, is British territory, the whole being known as the Dindings. Malacca is on the western coast of the peninsula between Singapore and Penang—about 110 miles from the former and 240 from the latter; it is a strip of territory 42 miles in length, and from eight to 25 miles in breadth, with an area of 720 square miles.

The population, according to the census of 1921, was 883,769 (558,741 males and 325,028 females). The estimated population for 1928 and the census totals in 1921, inclusive of the military, are as follows:—

	Singapore [1]		Penang [2]		Malacca		Totals

In 1929 there were 293,167 immigrants from China, and 114,252 from Southern India.

Education.

There is an Education Board consisting of official and unofficial members, and provision exists for an Education Rate. Vernacular instruction is provided for Malays free of charge, and attendance is compulsory. Instruction in English for all nationalities is provided in Government and numerous aided schools, and fees are charged. All the Government schools are unsectarian. There is a reformatory in Singapore for juvenile offenders and vagrants, where industrial instruction is provided.

The numbers of schools and scholars in 1929 were as follows :—

—	No. of Schools	Enrolment	Attendance
Government English schools (boys and girls)	22	9,648	9,251
Grant-in-aid English schools (boys and girls)	28	15,182	14,531

Grant-in-aid Vernacular schools (boys and girls)	39	3,946	3,536
Total	302	49,247	46,405

In the colony are Raffles College, formally opened in 1929, giving a higher education of a University standard in arts and science, and King Edward VII. College of Medicine.

Justice and Crime.

The law in force is contained in local ordinances and in such English and Indian Acts and Orders in Council as are applicable to the colony. The Indian Penal Code, with slight alterations, has been adopted, and there is a Civil Procedure Code based on the English Judicature Acts. There is a Supreme Court which holds assizes at Singapore and Penang every two months, and quarterly at Malacca, civil sittings monthly at Singapore and Penang, and once a quarter at Malacca.

There are, besides, district courts, police courts and marine magistrates' courts. Police force, actual strength 4,027 in 1929.

Finance.

Public revenue and expenditure for six years (1 dollar = 2*s.* 4*d.*):—

Years	Revenue	Expenditure	Years	Revenue	Expenditure

The debt on December 31, 1929, amounted to 6,913,352*l* borrowed for public works; 1,758,668*l.* war loan; and 9,355,000*l.* other loans lent to Federated Malay States Government; total, 18,027,020*l.*

Commerce.

The trade of the Colony of the Straits Settlements is not now separately distinguished; the foreign trade of British Malaya which includes the Colony, the Federated Malay States and the States of Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan and Trengganu passes principally through the two free ports of Singapore and Penang in the Colony and Port Swettenham in the F.M.S.

Rubber, coconuts and palm oil are now cultivated in addition to rice.

The output of the rubber estates amounted in 1930 to 236,775 long tons (1929, 246,113 tons), and native production to 197,078 tons (1929, 199,349 tons).

The principal imports comprise foodstuffs, clothing and machinery; the chief exports, raw materials and articles partly manufactured. There is an important transit trade in the ports of Singapore and Penang.

The following shows the total values of Imports and Exports for five years:—

Yrs	Imports				Exports
	From U.K.	From Colonies, &c.	From Foreign Countries	Total	To U.K.	To Colonies, &c.	To Foreign Countries	Total

[1] Provisional figures.

The principal exports to the United Kingdom in 1929 were tin, 3,196,000*l.*; rubber, 9,590,000*l.*; preserved pineapples, 738,000*l.* The principal imports from the United Kingdom were:—cotton piece goods, 2,591,000*l.*; iron and steel plates, girders, etc., 516,000*l.*; cigarettes, 2,491,000*l.*; machinery, 1,513,000*l.*

Shipping and Navigation.

The total number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of the Colony during 1929, exclusive of native craft, was 14,472, with a tonnage of 22,730,766. The number of native craft was 32,877, with a tonnage of 1,150,059. The number of merchant vessels cleared at the ports of the colony and dependencies was 14,467, with a tonnage of 22,704,629. The total number of native craft cleared in 1929 was 33,365, with a tonnage of 1,171,830.

Communications.

The Straits Settlements at the end of 1929 had 7176 miles of roads, of which 2040 were of asphalt, and 15,500,000 dollars were expended on maintenance and construction in 1929. There is a railway from Singapore to Woodlands on the Johore Straits, and thence across the Johore Causeway to Johore Bahru. The Federated Malay States Railway extends from Parit Buntar in Krian to Kuala Prai in Province Wellesley, whence are steam ferries to Penang. There is a railway from Malacca to Tampin in Negri Sembilan. All the railways have a gauge of one metre, and form a part of the Federated Malay States Railway system, a continuation of which through Johore was opened in 1909. There are cables connecting Singapore and Penang, and land lines from Singapore to Johore, Malacca, Kuala Lumpur, Ipoh, and Penang, from Penang to Alor Star (Kedah), Tung Song and Bangkok (Siam), Taiping, Ipoh, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore, and from Malacca to Tampin Serimban and Kuala Lumpur. There are 2,163 miles of overhead and 6,515 miles of underground telephone line in Penang and Province Wellesley, and 1,932 miles of overhead and 648 miles of underground telephone line in Malacca.

In 1929, 26,140,771 letters and other articles of correspondence were posted, and 19,607,212 delivered. The number of letters sent to China in clubbed packets was 2,127,122. The parcels posted numbered 241,538, those delivered 148,769.

From Labuan there are telegraph cables connecting with Hong Kong, Singapore and Sandakan.

Wireless stations exist at Paya Lebar on Singapore Island and at Penaga in Province Wellesley; their functions at present are limited to ship traffic (except for traffic with Christmas Island and Kuching in Sarawak).

Money, Weights, and Measures.

There are twenty-seven banks with establishments in the Colony. The amount of deposits in the Post Office Savings Bank on December 31, 1929, was 4,306,359 dollars.

The dollar, value 2*s.* 4*d.*, is the standard coin of the Colony, and with the half-dollar and the British sovereign is legal tender for the payment of any amount. A bill was introduced in 1923 to base the currency on British sterling. Subsidiary silver coins are 20, 10, and 5 cent pieces; nickel five cent pieces; copper cents, half-cents, and quarter-cents. On December 31, 1925, Government currency notes to the value of 115,636,274 dollars were in circulation.

The measure of length in use in the Settlements is the English yard, with its divisions and multiples, and land is measured by the English acre. The native terms are, however, still in use. Commercial weights are:—

1 Kati = 16 Tahil = 1⅓ lbs. avoirdupois.
1 Pikul = 100 Kati = 133⅓ ,, ,,
1 Koyan = 40 Pikul = 5,333⅓ ,, ,,

The kati of 1⅓ lbs. is known as the Chinese kati. Another weight, known as the Malay kati, and still in partial use in Penang, is equal to the weight of 24 Spanish dollars, or 9,984 grains. This gives 142·628 lbs. as the weight of the pikul, and 5,705·143 lbs. as the weight of the koyan. The measures of capacity throughout the Colony are the gantang or gallon, and chupak or quart.

The Cocos or Keeling Islands, a group of about twenty small coral islands. Latitude 12° 5′ S. and Longitude 96° 53′ E, 581 miles distant from Java Head (S. 56° W.), and 1,161 miles from Singapore (S. 30° W.). The largest is 5 miles by ½ mile. They were declared a British Possession in 1857, were placed by Letter Patent of October 13th, 1878, under the control of the Governor of Ceylon, and by Letters Patent of February 1st, 1886, under the Governor of the Straits Settlements. In 1903 they were annexed to the Straits Settlements and incorporated with the Settlement of Singapore. Estimated population, 800. There are large coconut plantations, and copra oil and nuts are exported. In 1902 a station on the Cape-Australia cable route was established on Direction Island in the north-eastern part of the group.

Christmas Island.—In the Indian Ocean. Latitude 10° 25′ S. and Longitude 105° 43′ E. It lies 223 miles S. 8° E. of Java Head, and 529 miles N. 79° E. from the Cocos Island. It is densely wooded and of irregular shape, about 12½ miles long (at the longest point), and about 4½ miles wide (at the narrowest point). Area about 58 square miles. The climate is healthy. Average daily maximum and minumum temperatures 87° F. and 75° F. There is a prevalent E.S.E. trade wind. Known to navigators since about the middle of the seventeenth century. The Island was formally annexed on June 6th, 1888. The Island was placed under the administration of the Governor of the Straits Settlements in January, 1889. In 1900 it was annexed to the Straits Settlements and incorporated with the Settlement of Singapore. The Island is administered by a District Officer who is a member of the Malayan Civil Service. There is a small force of Sikh Police drafted from the Straits Settlements Police Force. All the inhabitants (mainly Chinese and Malays), with the exceptions of the District Officer and his staff, are employed by the Christmas Island Phosphate Company, Limited, registered in London, which works the large natural deposits of phosphate of lime to which the Island owes its importance. In 1923 a wireless station was installed, and the Island is now in direct communication with Singapore. Population, 1928, 1,421. Revenue, 1929, 12,130*l.* (approx); expenditure, 1929, 2,500*l.* Imports, 1929, 13,560*l.*, chiefly machinery and engineering stores; exports, 1929, 235,550*l.* (approx), solely phosphate of lime. Tonnage cleared and entered in 1928, 61,267 tons, and in 1929, 70,516 tons; of the latter 7,935 tons were for British, and 62,581 tons for Japanese ports.

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north-west coast of Borneo. It was ceded to Britain in 1846; on January 1, 1907, was incorporated with Singapore, and on December 1, 1912, was created a separate Settlement. Area 30 sq. miles; the population in 1929 was 6,029, including 25 Europeans, 4,180 Malays, and 1,607 Chinese. Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants. Revenue, 148,454 dollars; expenditure (excluding Government Monopolies), 234,571 dollars. Shipping entered and cleared, 1929, 248,774 tons. Trade, 4½ million dollars.

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES.

Constitution and Government.—The Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection. The Governor of the Straits Settlements is ex officio H.M.'s High Commissioner for these States and the other Malay States in the British sphere.

High Commissioner.—Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary to Government.—C. W. H. Cochrane, C.M.G., M.C.S. (Appointed 1930).

The following are the Rulers and Residents of the four States:—

Ruler of Perak.—H.H. Paduka Sri Sultan Iskandar Shah, K.C.M.G. K.C.V.O., ibni Idris. Resident.—Vacant.

Ruler of Selangor.—H.H. Sultan Ala'idin Sulaiman Shah, G.C.M.G., ibni Al-Marhum Raja Muda Musa. Resident.—J. Lornie, M.C.S.

Ruler of Negri Sembilan.—H. H. Muhammad, K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., ibni Al-Marhum Antah, Yang Di-Pertuan Besar, Negri Sembilan. Resident.—J. W. Simmons, M.C.S.

Ruler of Pahang.—H.H. Al-Mu'tasim Bi'llah Al-Sultan Abdullah, K.C.M.G., ibni Al-Marhum Al-Sultan Ahmad Al-Maazam Shah. Resident.—Vacant.

In Perak, Selangor, and Sungai Ujong, which State was subsequently amalgamated with other States to form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan, Residents were appointed in 1874, with a staff of European officers whose duty was to aid the native rulers by advice, and to exercise executive functions. The supreme authority in each State is vested in the State Council, consisting of the Sultan, the Resident, the Secretary to the Resident, and some of the principal Malay chiefs and Chinese merchants. The Residents are under the control of the Chief Secretary and the High Commissioner.

In 1883 the relations of the Straits Settlements with the small Native States on the frontier of Malacca were consolidated. These States were confederated in 1889, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States). In January, 1895, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident; and in July, 1895, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated. The new federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the States of Sungai Ujong, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and five smaller States. In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c., was surrendered to the British Government. This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula. Pahang is situate on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore. In July, 1896, the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan, and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary to Government is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation.

The laws of each State are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils, up to December, 1909, and from that date, in matters common to the four States, by the Federal Council; the State Councils may still legislate in purely State matters.

The Federal Council was created in 1909 in order to give effect to a desire for the joint arrangement of all matters of common interest to the Federation or affecting more than one State, and for the proper enactment of all laws intended to have force throughout the Federation or more than one State. The Federal Council, as now constituted, consists of the High Commissioner for the Malay States (an appointment held ex officio by the Governor of the Straits Settlements) as President, the Chief Secretary to Government, Federated Malay States, the four British Residents, the Legal Adviser, the Financial Adviser, the Principal Medical Officer, the Controller of Labour, Malaya, the Director of Public Works, the Director of Education, S.S. and F.M.S., the Commissioner of Trade and Customs, one additional official member, and twelve unofficial members, who are nominated by the High Commissioner with the approval of His Majesty the King. The Federal Council generally meets at least three times a year. All Federal legislation is passed by it, and the estimates of expenditure and revenue require its approval.

Area.—The areas of these States are approximately :—Perak, 7,800 sq. miles; Selangor, 3,150 sq. miles; Negri Sembilan, 2,550 sq. miles; Pahang, 14,000 square miles; total, 27,500 sq. miles.

Population.—Census 1921 : Perak, 599,055 (378,902 males and 220,153 females); Selangor, 401,009 (267,165 males and 133,844 females); Negri Sembilan, 178,762 (119,569 males and 59,193 females); Pahang, 146,064 (87,892 males and 58,172 females); total 1,324,890 (853,528 males and 471,362 females). The population contained 510,821 Malays, 494,548 Chinese, 305,219 natives of India, 5,686 Europeans, and 3,204 Eurasians. The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese and Indian immigrants. Estimated population, June 1926, 1,476,032. The largest town is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 80,000 inhabitants. Births, 1924, 39,512; deaths, 33,585.

Education.—In 1929, there were 49 English schools (36 for boys, 13 for girls), with an average enrolment of 13,147 boys and 4,230 girls, and an average attendance of 12,513 and 3,943 respectively, maintained or assisted by the Government; also 1,426 vernacular schools (Malay, Tamil, and Chinese), with an average enrolment of 73,265, and an average attendance of 62,654, which are under the control of the Education Department. The total number of schools (1929) was 1,475 with an average attendance of 79,110. There are many Chinese vernacular schools, of which 82 having an enrolment of 8,710 pupils were assisted by the Education Department. Expenditure on education (excluding buildings) in 1929 was 367,199*l.*

Justice and Crime.—The courts in the States are :—(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judge and the Court of Appeal. (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class. (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class. (4) The Court of a Kathi and the Court of Assistant Kathi. (5) The Court of a Penghulu. The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judges the Chief Justice being President. There is a final appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council.

The number of cases of serious crime reported in 1929 was 4,973. The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1929, was 1,086.

The Police Force, with European and Malay officers, consists of an Indian and a Malay contingent. The strength at the close of 1929 was: Gazetted Officers, British and Malay, 67; British Chief Inspectors and Inspectors, 42; Malay and Asiatic Inspectors, 36; Malay subordinate police officers and constables, 2,201; Indians, 1,671; others, 291; total, 4,308.

Finance.—The revenue of the States in 1929 was 9,543,285*l.* (1928 revenue, 11,159,815*l.*), and expenditure, 9,877,114*l.* (1928 expenditure, 12,717,161*l.*).

Leading items of revenue in 1929 were :—railways (net revenue only), 211,496*l.*; licences, 508,367*l.*; customs, 3,615,050*l.*; Excise, 1,752,002*l.*; fees of court, 671,260*l.*; lands and mines, 520,903*l.*; interest, 390,968*l.*; municipal, 377,488*l.*; posts and telegraphs and telephones, 373,293*l.*; forests, 204,795*l.*; light, water and power, 374,434*l.* Expenditure—police, 383,773*l.*; medical, 636,769*l.*; education, 361,111*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 293,808*l.*;

Production.—The staple products are coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, pepper, gambier, nipah and oil palms. The chief industrial enterprises are the cultivation of rubber, and the mining of tin. The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16½ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels. The forests produce many excellent timbers, besides gutta-percha, gums, oils, resins, and canes. In 1929 the total quantity of timber of all kinds taken from the forests, on which payment was made, was 806,333 tons, in addition to a large quantity used free of royalty by the native Malay population and the tin miners. In 1929 the tin export amounted to 67,041 tons, and in 1928 to 61,935 tons. In 1929, 26,782 ounces of gold, and in 1928, 18,693 ounces were produced in the Federated Malay States. Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, mercury, arsenic, manganese, wolfram, scheelite, plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal, but with the exception of coal, they have not so far been discovered in workable form. The exports of tungsten ore in 1929 were 324 tons. The labour force engaged in mining at the end of 1929 was 104,468.

Commerce.—The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1929, with total for 1928:—

—	Perak	Selangor	Negri Sembilan	Pahang	Total 1929	Total 1928

Communications.—There were in 1929, 2,734 miles of metalled cart roads, 107 miles of unmetalled roads, and 1,818 miles of bridle roads and paths; also more than 1,059 miles of paths maintained by the Forest Department. The Government has made, purchased, leased, or is making, the railway systems of the whole peninsula south of the Siamese boundary, including the railway on Singapore Island. When the system is complete, there will be a main trunk line throughout the peninsula, diverging at Gemas in Negri Sembilan into West Coast and East Coast lines, and linking up with the Southern Siamese railway system on the Perlis-Siam and Kelantan-Siam boundaries respectively. The two Siamese lines converge at Haad Yai, in Singora, and thence a single line continues north to Bangkok. On the West Coast, the line is open for traffic from Singapore to Padang Besar (Perlis Siamese boundary), 585 miles, and on the East Coast from Gemas (a point situated at mile 142 on the West Coast Main Line) to Gua Musang (in the south of Kelantan), 200 miles. A section of 82 miles in the north of Kelantan from Tumpat to Kuala Gris, and one of 12 miles from Pasir Mas to Sungei Golok (Kelantan-Siam boundary) are also open. The Siamese line from the Golok to Haad Yai was opened on November 1, 1921, thus making through rail communication between Kelantan and the rest of the Peninsula. The section in Johore, from Johore Bahru to Gemas (120 miles), is leased from the Johore Government. The total mileage open for traffic was 1,114 in 1929. The mileage under construction during 1930 being about 46 miles. A causeway, carrying a double line of railway and a roadway, connects Singapore with the mainland across the Johore Straits.

There were, in 1929, 106 post offices and 67 other places for postal business. In that year 42,995,160 postal packets (registered letters, 1,282,752, and parcels, 347,084) were received and delivered In 1929 there were 3,084 miles of telegraph and telephone lines, and 24,607 miles of overhead wire, of which 21,444 were telephone wires. In addition there were 144 miles of underground cables containing 13,100 miles of wire single line. The net revenue collected by the department amounted to 373,293*l.*, and expenditure 406,745*l.* Savings Banks: 42,956 depositors and 529,697*l.* deposits on December 31, 1929.

Money, &c.—The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins. In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2*s.* 4*d.* or 60 dollars = 7*l.* Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate. Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements.

THE MALAY STATES NOT INCLUDED IN THE FEDERATION.

The Malay States not included in the Federation are five in number, namely, Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan, and Trengganu.

The relations of Johore with Great Britain are defined by a treaty dated December 11, 1885; and, by an amendment to this treaty made on May 12, 1914, the Sultan agreed to accept, and to act upon the advice of, a British officer called the General Adviser. The Sultan is assisted in the administration of the State by an Executive Council, and by a Legislative Council consisting of official and unofficial members.

The rights of suzerainty, protection, administration and control of the other four States were transferred from Siam to Great Britain by the Anglo-Siamese treaty of March 10, 1909. In all four States the Rulers are assisted in the administration by State Councils, and by British Advisers appointed by the British Government.

In these States the currency, weights and measures are the same as in the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States. Their trade is almost entirely carried on with the Straits Settlements.

The religion of the Malays is Mohammedanism.

Johore (area 7,678 square miles, population in 1929, 336,829, of whom 200,780 were Malays, 111,345 Chinese, and 21,245 Indians) lies at the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. Births registered (1929), 18,567; deaths, 11,994. There were (1929) 6 English schools and 129 vernacular schools

Revenue (1929), 17,633,212 dollars (from Customs, 5,893,362 dollars, land 2,510,582, licences 5,073,011); expenditure, 16,200,829 dollars. Imports (1929), 45,372,067 dollars (animals, food, drink and tobacco, 24 331,728; raw materials and articles mainly unmanufactured, 2,444.137; articles wholly or mainly manufactured, 18,467,300, coin and bullion, 128,902; sundries, nil). Exports, 99,206,985 dollars (rubber, 74,712,411 dollars). Rubber output, 1,620,868 pikuls.

At the end of 1929, 733 miles of metalled road had been constructed. The railway from Penang to Singapore traverses Johore for a distance of 120 miles The Johore section has been leased to the Federated Malay States Government for a term of years. Rubber estates are situated on either side along practically the whole length, and thus, with the help of roads and navigable rivers, good communication is available A causeway across the Straits of Johore and connecting Johore with the island of Singapore was opened to railway traffic in October, 1923, and to vehicular traffic in June, 1924.

An efficient medical service and thirteen public hospitals are maintained by the Government. Police force, end of 1929, 1,116

The Postal revenue (1929) was 304,522 dollars. Letters, parcels, &c., received, 4,791,940; despatched, 3,026,234.

Ruler.—His Highness Sultan Ibrahim, G.C.M.G., K.B.E.
General Adviser —C. E. Shaw, O.B.E.

Kedah, on the west coast of the Peninsula, and north of Province Wellesley and Perak, has an area of 3,648 square miles. The population (census 1921) is 338,554, of whom 237,043 are Malays, 59,408 Chinese, 33,019 Indians, 235 Europeans, 75 Eurasians, and 8,779 other races. The capital is Alor Star on the Kedah River, about 70 miles from Penang by sea, and 59 by rail or road. Owing to the Sultan's ill-health, the head of the Government is the Regent. There are (1929) 52 Europeans in the Government service The police force had a strength (June 1930) of 819 men (principally Malays). There were at the end of June 1929, 86 Government schools (about 11,068 pupils), 13 telegraph offices, and 19 post offices. A telephone system extends throughout the State, the wire mileage in 1929 being 1,960. The railway connecting the Federated Malay States and Siam passes through the State. A metalled road (26 miles) connects Alor Star with Perlis, and (29 miles) with the Senggora frontier (Siam), and a metalled road (44 miles) connects it with Province Wellesley. Another metalled road (7 miles) connects Baling with Upper Perak in one direction and with Province Wellesley in the opposite direction. The total mileage of metalled road (1929) is 367. 252 miles of canal were maintained in June 1929. The revenue of the State for the year 1929 (Mohammedan year A.H. 1348) was 6,586,701 dollars, including Customs, 1,880,195; lands, 882,798; and land sales, 168,932 dollars; and the expenditure, 6,937,299 dollars. Public debt, July, 1929, nil. The principal produce of North Kedah is rice. There are rubber (export, 1929, 34,644 tons), coconut, and tapioca estates in South Kedah. Several steamers ply between Penang and the various ports of Kedah. Kedah internal trade (1920–30): imports, 8,605,857 dollars; exports, 34,558,821 dollars. Postal and telegraph revenue, 1929–30, 134,682 dollars; expenditure, 159,288 dollars. Postal articles dealt with, 3,605,290.

Ruler —H.H. Sultan Sir Abdul Hamid Halim Shah, K.C.M.G., ibni Almerhum Sultan Ahmad Tajudin Mukarram Shah (succeeded in 1881).
Regent.—H.H. Tunku Ibrahim, C.M.G., C.V.O.
British Adviser.—T. W Clayton, M.C.S.

Perlis, on the west coast of the Peninsula and north of Kedah, has an area of about 316 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 40,091. Malays numbered 34,167 of the population, Chinese 3,589, Indians 816, and other races 1,519. Police force (1929) 79 N.C.O.'s and men. 19 boys' and 4 girls' schools were maintained in 1929 with about 2,100 pupils. The principal products are rice, tin, and coconuts. There are guano deposits. There are 37 miles of metalled roads and 22½ miles of paths and gravelled roads in the State. The revenue for A.H. 1348 (1929-30) was 487,436 dollars (customs 181,656), and the expenditure 573,738 dollars. Public debt, 1930, nil.

Ruler.—H.H. Raja Syed Alwi, C.B.E.

British Adviser.—L. A. Allen, M.C.S. (acting).

Kelantan, on the east coast of the Peninsula, has an area estimated at 5,713 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 309,300, including 12,799 Chinese. Kota Bharu, the capital, has a population of about 12,000. There are 66 Government elementary schools in the State. The High Court, the Central Court, and the Small Court are at Kota Bharu, and there are District Courts at Kuala Krai, Pasir Puteh, Pasir Mas, and Tumpat respectively. Police force, 1929, 432. The revenue of the State in 1929 amounted to 2,481,140 dollars (licences, excise, &c., 699,617 dollars; customs, 838,545 dollars; land revenue, 548,495 dollars), and the expenditure to 2,215,771 dollars. Public debt (1929) 4,080,684 dollars.

The chief industry is agriculture. About 476,589 acres were under cultivation in 1929. Chief products: rice (180,176 acres), coconuts (57,200 acres), rubber (89,213 acres). Pepper, tapioca, sugar-cane, and maize are grown in smaller quantities for local consumption. The jungle which covers a large part of the State produces some serviceable timber, resin and rattans and bamboos. The State supports cattle (105,399 in 1929), buffaloes (27,504 in 1929), sheep, goats, and poultry. Numerous estates are owned by British companies. Mineral resources are said to comprise gold, galena, and tin, but the existence of these metals in payable quantities has not been proved. The principal manufacturing industries are silk-weaving, boat-building, and brick-making. In 1929, total exports, 7,983,889 dollars; total imports, 7,522,954 dollars (1928, 6,159,455 and 8,356,769 dollars respectively). Chief exports, 1929: betel-nuts, 197,520 dollars; fish, 189,073 dollars; copra, 941,482 dollars; para rubber, 5,732,427 dollars. Tonnage of steamships inwards and outwards, 1929, 144,384 tons. 5,206 fishing and other boats are registered. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. The principal roads are the Kota Bharu-Pasir Puteh road and the trunk road from Kota Bharu to Kuala Krai, and there are others extending a few miles from Kota Bharu. The metalling of these roads is not yet completed. Communication inland is by the rivers. There is railway communication between Tumpat (on the coast) and Kuala Gris (81 miles inland). There is also a line to the Siamese border, on which a daily service is run in connection with the Siamese trains to the Kedah boundary, and thence with the Kedah service to Penang and the Federated Malay States. Kota Bharu is in direct telegraphic communication with Bangkok and Penang (via Siam), and possesses a limited telephone service. There were (1929) 6 post offices and 7 sub-post offices in the State.

Ruler.—H.H. Sultan Ismail, K.C.M.G.

British Adviser.—A. S. Haynes, M.C.S. (Acting).

Trengganu, with an area of about 5,500 square miles, and a population, at the census 1921, of 153,765, lies on the east coast between Pahang and Kelantan. The capital is Kuala Trengganu, with a population of 12,456. There are 18 vernacular schools (1,795 pupils enrolled in A.H. 1348, average attendance 1,289, teachers 58), 1 Government English school (69 pupils) and 1 Chinese school (130 pupils, teachers 6). Trengganu was the last British possession to tolerate slavery for debt. The practice has been abolished by an enactment passed in 1919. Police force 297 in 1348. There are about 92 miles of road in use, and a 60 mile trunk road connecting Kuala Trengganu with Kelantan is under construction. There are telephone exchanges at Kuala Trengganu, Kemaman and Besut. There is telegraphic communication with other parts of Malaya. There are no railways, and communication with the interior is by rivers and good native paths. Steamers connect regularly with Singapore and Bangkok, and locally-built motor-boats maintain passenger services along the Trengganu coast. The industries are similar to those of Kelantan, and the country is of the same general character.

Revenue (1348, June 8, 1929, to May 28, 1930), 1,391,471 dollars, and expenditure, 1,524,706 dollars. Exports in 1929 was 7,191,427 dollars. Imports in 1929 was 5,898,556 dollars. MANDATED TERRITORY IN ASIA.

PALESTINE.

THE natural and historic boundaries of Palestine run from the desert on the east, along the slopes of Mount Hermon over to the Litani on the west, where the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon first break into a series of elevated plateaux, and thence over to the Mediterranean coast, and on the south from the Gulf of Akaba across the Desert of Sinai.

For the present political boundaries, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1928, p. 185.

Government.—After its conquest in 1917-18, by the British Forces, the country remained under British Military Administration till July 1, 1920, when a Civil Administration was set up.

High Commissioner.—Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John Robert Chancellor, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., D S.O. (Appointed July 6, 1928.)

Chief Secretary —Mark Aitchison Young (appointed July 17, 1930).

The country is administered by Great Britain under a Mandate, which was passed by the Council of the League of Nations on July 24, 1922, and came officially into force on September 29, 1923. This provides for the Balfour Declaration of November 2, 1917, to the effect that 'His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of that object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.'

Constitution.—On September 1, 1922, a new constitution was promulgated. It provides for the appointment of a High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief and an Executive Council.

A Legislative Council will replace the Advisory Council and have authority to pass such Ordinances as may be necessary for the peace, order, and good government of Palestine, provided (1) that no Ordinance shall restrict complete freedom of conscience and the free exercise of all forms of worship, save in so far as is required for the maintenance of public order and morals, or tend to discriminate in any way between the inhabitants of Palestine on the ground of race, religion, or language; (2) that no Ordinance shall take effect until either the High Commissioner or His Majesty has assented thereto: (3) that the High Commissioner may reserve any Ordinance for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, and shall so reserve any Ordinance which concerns matters dealt with specifically by the provisions of the Mandate; and (4) that His Majesty may disallow any Ordinance to which the High Commissioner may have assented within one year of the date of the High Commissioner's assent.

In exercise of the powers vested in him by the Palestine (Amendment) Order in Council 1923, the High Commissioner has appointed an official Advisory Council composed of the heads of the principal Government Departments and the District Commissioners of the Northern and Southern Districts. Owing to the abstention from the elections of considerable numbers of the Arab inhabitants, the Legislative Council under the new constitution has not yet been formed, and the Advisory Council will remain in being until such time as the election of a Legislative Council becomes possible.

All Ordinances are laid before the official Advisory Council and made public, as Bills, in the Official Gazette, for one month, before promulgation.

Regulations were made by the High Commissioner in 1927 for the organisation of the Jewish population of Palestine as a religious community and its recognition as such by the Government. The Jewish community thus enjoys autonomy for its internal affairs, religious, cultural and communal, and has power to levy rates on its members. The organs of the community are a Chief Rabbinate and local rabbinical offices, an Elected Assembly, a General Council, which is elected by the Assembly and which represents the community in its dealings with the Government, and local committees. A number of Jews have opted out of this community.

The British Government and Palestine Administration recognise the Jewish Agency (consisting both of Zionists and non-Zionists), which in Palestine is represented by the Palestine Zionist Executive, as the Agency of the Jewish people in all matters pertaining to the upbuilding of the Jewish National Home.

There is a Moslem Supreme Council to control Moslem religious affairs.

English, Arabic, and Hebrew are the official languages of the country.

Area and Population.—Palestine under British Mandate is about 10,000 square miles in extent. The population, taken by official census on October 23, 1922, was 757,182, of whom 590,890 were Moslems, 83,794 Jews, 73,024 Christians, 7,028 Druzes, 163 Samaritans, 265 Bahais, and the remainder Sikhs, Hindus and Metawilehs. The estimated population on June 30, 1930, was 588,849 Moslems, 162,467 Jews, 82,590 Christians, and 9,226 persons of other religions, making a total of 843,132, excluding about 103,000 nomads.

The country is at present divided into two districts: Southern (Jaffa), and Northern (Haifa); and the Jerusalem division.

The chief town, Jerusalem, which had been in Moslem hands since 1244, and under Turkish rule since 1517, surrendered on December 9, 1917. Its population in 1922 was 62,678. The population figures for the other principal towns at the 1922 census were: Jaffa, 47,709; Tel-Aviv, 36,754; Haifa, 24,634; Gaza, 17,480; Nazareth, 7,424; Nablus, 15,947; Safed, 8,761; Tiberias, 6,950; Hebron, 16,577; Ramleh, 7,312; Bethlehem, 6,658; Lydda, 8,103; Acre, 6,420. There was an appreciable increase in Jewish immigration during 1929. Total immigrants (1929), 6,566; Jewish immigrants, year ended December 31, 1929, numbered 2,453 men, 1,937 women, and 859 children—while Jewish emigrants in the same period numbered 1,746.

There are some 750 Arab villages and a considerable number of Arab tribes, and three German Templar (Christian) settlements, Wilhelma, Sarona and Neuhardthof.

The Jewish Settlements are grouped in four districts, namely, in Judea 37 ; in Samaria 13 ; in Lower Galilee 49 ; in Upper Galilee 9. The total population of these settlements is now about 32,000. More than 30 of them are built on land belonging to the Jewish National Fund, which was established by the Zionist Organisation for the purpose of acquiring land to remain the property of the Jewish people, and were founded with the assistance of the Keren Hayesod (Foundation Fund), also created by the Zionist Organisation. The total area of the Jewish settlements exceeds 1,200,000 dunums (4½ dunums equal one acre). The local affairs of the smaller Jewish setttlements are controlled by Vaadim or Councils elected by the male and female residents who own registered holdings or pay taxes. The larger villages, Arab and Jewish, are, for internal order and rates, administered by Local Councils, constituted under Ordinance, which exercise modified municipal powers. Satisfactory progress is being maintained in calastral survey and in land settlement.

Births and deaths for recent years are given in the following table : —

Year.	Estimated Population (mid-year).	No. of Births.	No of Deaths.	Infantile Mortality (per 1,000 births).

[1] Excludes nomad population, estimated at 103,000 in 1922.

Religion.—Jerusalem, being a Holy City for three Faiths, is the seat of a number of Prelates and religious bodies. There are three Christian Patriarchs, Orthodox, Latin and Armenian having the style of 'Beatitude,' and, in addition to the Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem, a Jacobite and a Coptic Bishop.

The Moslems have the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, who is President of the Moslem Supreme Council, and the Jews have two joint Chief Rabbis, one for the Sephardim, the other for the Ashkenazim. These three dignitaries have the style of 'Eminence.' In Nablus there is a Samaritan High Priest.

Education.—The schools maintained by the Government number 310, and contain 21,636 scholars, the great majority of whom are Moslems. In the Government Training Colleges for teachers there are 84 men and 64 women students. Technical education is being carried out in some of the Government town schools. A Law School exists in Jerusalem, in which lectures are given in the three official languages.

The Christian and Jewish Communities provide, the former to a very large extent, and the latter almost entirely, for the education of their own children.

The Jewish Agency, through the Department of Education attached to the Palestine Zionist Executive, controls 230 schools attended by 21,031 pupils, and other Jewish bodies control 98 schools attended by 8,758 pupils, making a total of 328 Jewish schools attended by 29,789 pupils. These institutions include secondary schools in Jerusalem, Tel-Aviv and Haifa, Teachers' Training Colleges (General, Orthodox, Women's and Kindergarten), Schools of Music in Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Haifa, Agricultural Schools, an Arts and Crafts Institute (Bezalel), Evening Classes, and a Technical College at Haifa.

There are 162 Christian Schools, including Orthodox, 24 schools with 2,083 pupils; Catholic, 86 schools with 8,957 pupils; Protestant, 49 schools with 4,022 pupils; miscellaneous, 3 schools with 77 pupils.

There are also 75 private Moslem schools mainly maintained by local committees; these provide for about 4,710 children. Two of these schools include secondary classes.

Non-Government schools receive a capitation grant-in-aid from the Department of Education. The schools of the Jewish Agency receive a block grant of £P20,000 a year.

The Kadoorie Agricultural School for Arab students was opened in 1930.

The Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem, was inaugurated on April 1, 1925, and has 131 students. The new library building, which houses 200,000 books, has now been completed.

Antiquities.—A new Antiquities Ordinance was passed in 1929 to give better effect to the provisions of the Mandate as regards excavation and preservation of antiquities. Eleven privately organised expeditions were at work on various sites during the year 1929. The Department of Antiquities undertook several minor works of conservation, including that of the carved Crusader lintels of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. The new Museum presented by Mr. John Rockefeller, Jun., is nearing completion.

Justice.—The Courts in Palestine are either civil or religious courts. The former have jurisdiction over local subjects in all matters save those of personal status and Waqfs or charitable endowments, and over foreign subjects in all matters, subject to the provisions mentioned below.

There is a Magistrate's Court in every sub-district, and in the larger towns such as Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Haifa, two such courts.

There are four District Courts, each composed of a British President and two Palestinian judges. They serve respectively the sub-Districts of Jerusalem, Hebron, and Beersheba; Jaffa and Gaza; Nablus, Jenin, Tulkarem, and Nazareth; and Haifa, Acre, Tiberias, and Safed. They go on circuit within the area of their jurisdiction. A District Court has jurisdiction in first instance over all crimes except those punishable with death, and civil cases outside the jurisdiction of a magistrate; it also hears appeals from the decisions of magistrates both in civil and in criminal cases. Crimes punishable with death are tried by the Court of Criminal Assize, which consists of the Chief Justice or senior British Judge of the Supreme Court sitting with the District Court.

The highest Court in Palestine is the Supreme Court, which is composed of a British Chief Justice and one other British judge and four Palestinian judges. The Court sits in two forms: (1) as a Court of Appeal, in which capacity it has appellate jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters decided in first instance by the District Courts, the Land Courts and the Court of Criminal Assize; (2) as a High Court of Justice, in which capacity it hears applications of the nature of habeas corpus and of mandamus proceedings.

The Court of Appeal is composed normally of three judges, while the High Court may sit with two judges. In either case a British judge presides.

A Bench of honorary magistrates has been established in Jerusalem, Jaffa, and other towns, who try contraventions for which the maximum penalty does not exceed £P5 fine and 15 days imprisonment. In addition to the bench of honorary magistrates, a stipendiary magistrate has been appointed to try such contraventions in the Municipal Areas of Jerusalem and Jaffa.

Special arrangements exist in the Beersheba sub-district, where minor cases are disposed of according to tribal custom by the Court of Sheikhs. The District Court of Jerusalem visits Beersheba every month to hear appeals from the local courts and to try more serious criminal cases. Liaison Boards have recently been established for the settlement of disputes between Beduin tribes of Palestine and those of adjacent countries.

All matters of personal status affecting Moslems are within the jurisdiction of the Sharia Courts. A Sharia Court consists of a Qadi, and appeals from his decision lie to the Moslem Court of Appeal, which is composed of a President and two members.

Jewish Religious Courts have exclusive jurisdiction in certain matters of personal status of Jews, and jurisdiction by consent in other matters. An appeal from the decision of the Jewish Religious Courts lies to the Rabbinical Council.

The different Christian communities (such as the Orthodox and the Latin), have similar jurisdiction to that of the Jewish courts.

Questions of jurisdiction as between the Civil and Religious Courts are decided by a Special Tribunal composed of two British judges of the Supreme Court and the President of the Highest Court of the Religious Community concerned.

The police establishment (including municipal police) at December 31st, 1929, was 130 officers and 1,859 other ranks, in addition to the British Police, consisting of 8 British officers and 365 other ranks stationed at Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa and Nablus.

1,276 heinous crimes were reported in 1929 (944 in 1928), and 7 death sentences were carried out.

Finance.—For the year ending December 31st, 1929, the revenue was £P2,323,572, and the expenditure £P2,140,032.

The main heads of revenue for the period were: customs, £P917,049; port and marine, £P8,677; licences, taxes, etc., £P761,823; fees of court or office, etc., £P230,843; posts and telegraphs, £P207,288; revenue from Government property, £P16,540; interest, £P104,206; miscellaneous, £P16,650; railways, excess of revenue over expenditure, £P29,195.

Defence.—Palestine falls under the Middle East Command of the R.A.F. Two squadrons of aircraft and four sections of armoured cars are available for Palestine and Transjordan. Two battalions of infantry are distributed over various centres in Palestine. The Transjordan Frontier Force, the cost of which is borne by the Imperial Treasury and Palestine Government, has its headquarters at Zerka, Transjordan, and detachments at Samakh, Beisan, and at certain other stations in Palestine. Its actual strength on December 31, 1929, was 39 officers (16 British) and 645 other ranks. The force is partly mechanised and partly mounted on horses and camels.

Production and Industry.—Palestine comprises four zones of country. On the west, along the shores of the Mediterranean, which are deficient here in good natural harbours, is the maritime plain, which varies in width from 15 to 20 miles at Gaza to about 2 miles at Acre, and at the Plain of Esdraelon stretches for a considerable distance into the interior, and separates the highlands of Galilee from those of Samaria and Judæa. From the coastal plain the country rises into a plateau intersected by deep wadis or valleys, which drop steeply to the east to the third zone, formed by the great depression down which the river Jordan runs to the Dead Sea, and which is prolonged for another 100 miles to the Red Sea as the Wadi Araba. This depression reaches a depth below sea-level of 2,600 feet in the deepest portion of the Dead Sea, the surface of which is about 1,300 feet below sea-level. The Dead Sea is 46 miles long and has an average width of 8½ miles; it receives the waters of the Jordan and of six other rivers and has no outlet, the surplus being carried off by evaporation. It is intensely salt, with a specific gravity one-sixth greater than water, and with 24 per cent. of salt. East of the Jordan Valley the country rises again steeply to a plateau and merges into the Arabian desert.

Palestine is essentially an agricultural country. In 1929 the area under British Administration, exclusive of Trans-Jordan, produced:—Wheat, 85,064 tons; barley, 51,972 tons; durra, 31,000 tons; olives, 224 tons; olive oil, 3,178 tons; lentils, 1,397 tons. In 1929 there were in the country 231,719 sheep, 372,896 goats, 27,541 camels, and 418 buffaloes.

Limestone is found all over the country; sandstone abounds on the coast; gypsum of good quality is found at Mount Usdum and at Mount Gipsia near Melhamia (Galilee). Rock salt abounds in the Jordan Valley and on the shores of the Dead Sea, where also sulphur is obtainable. The Dead Sea contains cooking salt, carnallite, and bromide. A concession for the exploitation of these minerals was granted in 1929. There are medicinal springs near Tiberias and also at El Hamme, for both of which leases have been granted.

The principal industries of export importance are those of wine-making, especially in the Jewish villages Zichron Jacob, Rishon le Zion, and Petach-Tikvah; soap-boiling in Nablus and Haifa; olive oil in Nablus, Acre, and the district round Jaffa. Oranges, grown chiefly in the Jaffa district, are exported to Egypt and Europe. The orange crop exported in 1929 was 1,722,078 cases. The wine production was 3,581,391 litres. Bananas are being successfully grown round Jericho.

According to an industrial census, there were in Palestine in May, 1928, 3,505 industrial establishments (mostly small), employing 18,000 work-people; a sum of 3 5 million pounds was invested on them. There were 14 tobacco factories working in 1929 with an annual aggregate output of about 652,000 kilograms.

Further progress has been made in the reservation of state forests; nearly 821,262 dunums have been reserved out of a total area of 1,500,000 dunums of natural forest land. Extensive planting of timber, fruit and shade trees, has been effected by Government and private agency. Approximately three million trees were planted during 1929—both timber trees and fruit trees, including vines, oranges and olives; 21 nurseries have been maintained during 1929 for the free issue and sale of stock to the public and the provision of material to Government plantations.

Shipping and Communications.—The most important ports of Palestine are Jaffa and Haifa; the two ports of lesser significance are Acre and Gaza. For the calendar year 1929, 1,076 steamers, totalling 2,773,548 tons, and 2,460 sailing vessels, totalling 49,047 tons, arrived at Palestinian ports Palestine possesses no shipping of its own, other than some small sailing vessels and power launches. A modern harbour is under construction at Haifa.

A regular passenger service to Palestinian ports is provided by some 30 shipping lines.

The total length of the Palestine railways is 774 miles, divided as follows: standard gauge (4′ 8½″)—Kantara-El Arish-Rafa-Lydda-Tulkarem-Haifa, 259¼ miles; Jaffa-Lydda-Jerusalem, 54¼ miles; Safrieh-Sarafand, 2⅜ miles; Kafr Jinis-Beit Nabala, 2¼ miles; Ras El Ain-Petah Tikva 4¼ miles; narrow gauge (3′ 6″): Haifa-Samakh, 54⅜ miles; Nassib South Mudawara, 282⅜ miles; Acre Junction-Acre, 11 miles; Afule-Jenin-Nablus-Tulkarem, 61 miles. The section Kantara to Rafa, known as the 'Sinai Military Railway' (125 miles), is being worked by the Palestine Railways on behalf of the Air Ministry. There is through communication with Egypt, and trains connect at Kantara West daily with Cairo, Alexandria, Port Said, and Suez and other parts of Egypt, railway vehicles being sent across the canal by means of a truck transporter.

East of Haifa the Palestine Railways system terminates at Samakh, and the section Samakh-Deraa (Junction of the Hejaz Railway to Medina) is operated by the Hejaz Railway, which in turn is controlled by the Governments of the territories through which it passes. Steam rail cars of the Sentinel-Cammell type have been introduced on certain sections of the railway with success.

There are 445 miles of metalled roads in Palestine extensively used by motor transport, and in addition, many hundreds of miles of tracks passable for wheeled traffic of all kinds during dry weather.

The Imperial Airways, Ltd., have established an aerodrome at Gaza, from which passengers and mails are carried to Egypt and Iraq once weekly in each direction. A weekly flying boat service is also operated between Alexandria, Haifa, and Cyprus.

Posts and Telegraphs.—In 1929 there were conveyed 11,625,742 letters, 942,259 postcards, 5,750,000 printed communications and samples, 153,451 parcels, and 336,902 telegrams. Length of telegraph and telephone trunk lines, 12,822 km. ; local lines, 10,433 km. Number of telephone subscribers, 2,496.

Banking and Currency.—The most important bank in Palestine is Barclay's Bank with branches at Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Nazareth, Tel-Aviv, Nablus, and Acre. The Anglo-Palestine Company has its head office in Jaffa, with branches in Jerusalem, Tel-Aviv, Haifa, Tiberias, and Safed. The Banco di Roma has branches in Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haifa. The Ottoman Bank has branches in Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Nablus, and Amman (Trans-Jordan).

There are also established, in addition, a Jewish Workers' Bank, several Co-operative Credit Institutions, a Building Loan and Saving Association, a Central Bank of Co-operative Institutions and other savings societies.

The standard of currency from November 1, 1927, is the Palestine pound (£P), divided into 1,000 mils, and equivalent in value to the pound sterling. Silver coins, 720 fine, of 100 and 50 mils, weighing 180 and 90 grams respectively, nickel of 20, 10 and 5 mils, and bronze of 2 and 1 mils are used. The 2-mil coin is about equal in value to the United States cent. Gold coins are not being issued for the time being. About £P2,500,000 is in circulation.

The metric system is followed by the Government and local authorities, but the local weights and measures are still largely employed by the public.

Transjordan.—This territory, which roughly corresponds to the area of the old Seljuk Kingdom of Kerak and of the Lordship of Montreal or Oultrejourdain in the Latin Kingdom of Jerusalem, is governed by a local Arab Administration under His Highness the Amir Abdullah Ibn Hussein, K.C.M.G., G.B.E., born in Mecca, 1882, second son of ex-King Hussein of the Hijaz and elder brother of King Feisal of Iraq, who became its ruler in April 1921 and is assisted by an Executive Council. The country is covered by the Palestine Mandate, but the clauses relating to the establishment of a national home for the Jews are expressly excluded from operation therein. In April 1923 a Declaration was made that, subject to the approval of the League of Nations, His Majesty's Government will recognise the existence of an Independent Government in Transjordan, under the rule of His Highness the Amir Abdullah, provided such government is constitutional and places His Britannic Majesty's Government in a position to fulfil its international obligations in respect of the territory by means of an Agreement to be concluded between the two Governments. This agreement was signed in Jerusalem on February 20, 1928, and having been accepted by the Legislative Assembly set up under Article 11 was ratified by the High Contracting Parties on October 31, 1929. The Organic Law has been published, and the Legislative Council assembled for the first time in April 1929. In 1928 a separate commission was issued to the High Commissioner for Palestine appointing him High Commissioner for Trans-Jordan; he is thus High Commissioner for both areas.

For the frontiers of Transjordan, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1929, pp. 191–2.

The population is probably about 260,000. Of these, 220,000 are Arab Moslems, 30,000 Arab Christians; the remaining 10,000 are Caucasian elements (chiefly Circassian) settled by the Turks in Transjordan some 45 years ago following the Turco-Russian war. Most of the towns and larger villages have schools, and the Budget provision for education in 1929–30 is 22,350*l.* The Arab Legion, which comprises Gendarmerie, Police and Prisons and Passport personnel, is a body of 859. Detachments of the Royal Air Force are located at Amman, and there is a military force of some 700 men raised in Palestine and Transjordan, but officered largely by British Officers stationed in the country. This Force is known as the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force. The country to the east of the Hedjaz Railway line is largely desert, but to the west of this line is potentially of high agricultural value. The resources of the country are agricultural and pastoral products, while several antiquity sites, of which the most notable are Amman, Jerash, Kerak and Petra, are becoming an essential part of the itinerary of Eastern tourists. There are also phosphate deposits (undeveloped, though examined). Potash is found in the Dead Sea, and possibly there is oil in the southern area. A metalled road, fit for motor traffic, connects Amman with Jerusalem while unmetalled roads have been constructed making motor traffic possible from Amman to all the chief towns in the country. The road running from Amman to Maan has been continued to Aqaba, and, from this main road, branches run to Madeba, Kerak, Tafileh and Wady Musa (Petra). The towns of Jerash, Irbid, Ajloun, Kufrinji, Remte and Deraa, the last named being in Syrian territory, are joined by good roads to Amman. From Irbid a branch runs to Jisr Mejamie and Jisr Sheikh Hussein on the Palestine boundary. An alternative route from Amman to Deraa may be taken, the road running via Zerka and Mafrak. From this latter, a branch road runs to Remte, El Hosn and Irbid. The oasis of Azrak may be reached by motor car from Mafrak, Zerka or Amman, and from Azrak cars can pass across the desert via Rutba to Baghdad. The Hejaz Railway from Deraa to Kalaat Mudawara runs, with the exception of the first few miles, through Transjordan territory. South of Maan, however, the Railway is in disrepair. The Cairo-Baghdad air route traverses the country from west to east, and there is an aerodrome with a Royal Air Force detachment at Amman, while at Zizia there is a landing ground used by the Imperial Airways Co. as a fuel replenishing station. The estimated revenue of the country in 1929–30 is 359,345*l.* including reimbursements and an estimated Grant in Aid from the Imperial Government of 74,000*l.* Great Britain is represented by a British Resident subordinate to, and the agent of, the High Commissioner for Transjordan. The official language of the country is Arabic.

AFRICA.

ASCENSION ISLAND. See ST. HELENA.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

KENYA COLONY AND PROTECTORATE.

Government.—The Kenya Colony and Protectorate extends, on the Indian Ocean, from the Umba River to Dick's Head, and inland as far as Lake Victoria and Uganda. The Protectorate consists of the mainland dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz., a coastal strip of territory ten miles wide, to the northern branch of the Tana River; also Kau, Kipini, and the Island of Lamu, and all adjacent islands between Rivers Umba and Tana, these territories having been leased to Great Britain in 1895 for an annual rent of 10,000*l*. The colony and protectorate were formerly known as the East Africa Protectorate. On April 1, 1905, this was transferred from the authority of the Foreign Office to that of the Colonial Office, and in November, 1906, the Protectorate was placed under the control of a Governor and Commander-in-Chief and (except the Sultan of Zanzibar's dominions) was annexed to the Crown as from July 23, 1920, under the name of 'The Colony of Kenya,' thus becoming a 'Crown Colony.' The territories on the coast rented from the Sultan of Zanzibar were proclaimed as the Kenya Protectorate.

A treaty was signed (July 15, 1924) with Italy under which Great Britain ceded to Italy the Juba River and a strip from 50 to 100 miles wide on the British side of the river. Following on ratification of the treaty, cession took place on June 29, 1925.

In 1906 Executive and Legislative Councils were constituted, the former consisting of 4 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of 8 official and 4 unofficial members. In 1919 the Legislative Council was enlarged to consist of 11 elected representatives of the European community, three nominated members, two representing the Indian population and one the Arabs, and a sufficient number of official members to give a majority in the Council. A new constitution was adopted in December, 1925, under which the Executive Council consists of 11 members, in addition to the Governor, while the Legislative Council consists of 11 elected European members, 5 elected Indian members, 1 member nominated to represent African interests, 1 elected Arab member, and a sufficient number of ex-officio and nominated official members to give to these a majority. Until such time as five Indian members have been elected, as many Indian members may be nominated as will make the number of Indian members, including elected Indian members, five in all. The constituencies for Europeans, Indians and Arabs are separated from one another (i.e. communal franchise). Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. In 1908 foreign consular jurisdiction in the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Crown.

There are 10 provinces, which are as follows: Coast (capital Mombasa), Ukamba (capital Machakos), Kikuyu (capital Nyeri), Nyanza (capital Kisumu), Northern Frontier Province (capital Isiolo), Nzoia (capital Eldoret), Turkana (capital Kapenguria), Rift Valley (capital Nakuru), Naivasha (capital Naivasha), and Masai (capital Ngong).

Area and Population.—The territory has an area of 224,960 square miles; population in 1929 estimated at 3,003,158, including 16,663 Europeans, 39,504 Asiatics, and 12,504 Arabs. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate; further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Nilotic Kavirondo, the Nandi, the Lumbwa, the Masai, the Somali, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the second largest town; population about 50,000, of whom 1,200 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Kenya and Uganda Railway. Kilindini harbour on the south-western side of the island is the finest land-locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. The principal river in the North is the Tana, which flows into the Indian Ocean. It is navigable for about 400 miles by shallow-draught steamers. Nairobi, the capital and the headquarters of the administration, has 51,599 inhabitants, of whom about 4,411 are European. There are about 2,882 European farmers in the Colony.

Religion, Education, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan; but on the coast Mohammedanism has made great progress. There are many Christian mission societies, British, French, Italian, Swedish, and American, several being Roman Catholic. There were 57 (including 17 European) Government schools in operation in 1929, and over 2,000 mission and native schools. The Supreme Court is at Nairobi, and sessions are held at Mombasa, Nakuru, Eldoret, Kisumu, and other places. District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district. In native cases local ideas and customs are considered. The legal status of slavery has been abolished throughout East Africa.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure for 6 years:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1924	2,111,564	1,861,510	1927	2,846,110	2,515,115
1925	2,430,509	2,339,996	1928	3,020,694	2,834,647
1926	2,627,223	2,414,681	1929	3,333,742	3,505,072

Of the revenue for 1929, customs accounted for 949,725*l.*; licences, duties, taxes, etc., 902,566*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 182,158*l.*; fees, etc., 123,843*l.*; earnings of Govt. depts., 96,988*l.*; revenue from Govt. property and royalties, 74,657*l.*; sale of Govt. property, 60,046*l.*; miscellaneous receipts, 11,767*l.*; reimbursements, 770,843*l.*; interest, 66,399*l.*; and land sales, 85,288*l.* Public debt at end of 1929, 13,500,000*l.*

Agriculture and Mining.—Maize, coconuts, sisal and cotton are crops of major importance at lower altitudes, and coffee, maize, sisal and wheat at higher elevations. In addition, sugarcane, groundnuts, simsim wattle, barley, potatoes and miscellaneous crops are grown according to elevation and rainfall, both for export and home consumption.

The export value of hides and skins is considerable, and dairy and wool industries are growing in importance.

The merchantable forest area extends over 3,300 square miles. At the Coast are found mangroves, ebony, copal and other trees, but 95 per cent. of the forests are in the Highlands. They are mainly Coniferous (Juniper and Podocarpus), but also contain valuable hardwoods such as Camphor and Olive. Pencil Cedar is abundant, and the export of pencil slats promises to be an important industry, as does also the exploitation of the large bamboo forests for paper pulp.

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored. Production for 1929 was: gold, 845 ozs. (value 3,672*l.*); marble, 250 tons (value 2,500*l.*); lime, 1,650 tons (value 1,650*l.*); mica, 3,755 lbs. (value 560*l.*).

Commerce and Shipping.—There is a uniform Customs tariff in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. The Colony and Protectorate of Kenya and Uganda Protectorate are one administrative unit for Customs purposes, and complete freedom of trade exists between the two territories and Tanganyika, Customs Revenue being allocated to the consuming territory.

Imports into Kenya and Uganda (excluding Government stores, bullion and specie), the domestic exports of Kenya and Uganda, and the tonnage entered and cleared—Colony and Protectorate of Kenya—were:—

Years	Trade Imports	Domestic Exports	Customs Revenue	Tonnage entered and cleared
1925	8,628,035	7,821,844	1,192,920	2,630,977
1926	7,680,577	6,010,386	1,150,593	3,108,392
1927	7,851,611	5,397,216	1,176,077	3,615,935
1928	8,747,777	6,661,673	1,345,170	3,820,402
1929	8,920,579	7,020,668	1,390,026	4,104,124

In 1929 the main imports were: cotton piece goods, 1,337,815*l.*; textiles and textile manufactures, 441,505*l.*; motor cars, parts and accessories, 322,839*l.*; instruments and implements, 286,968*l.*; machinery, 241,190*l.*; motor lorries, tractors, parts and accessories, 378,357*l.*; grain and flour, 58,644*l.*; cigarettes, cigars and tobacco, 226,798*l.*; spirits, wines, ale and beer, 180,796*l.*; haberdashery and wearing apparel, 170,452*l.*; motor spirit, 266,479*l.*; kerosene, 163,628*l.*; other oils, fats and greases, 239,806*l.*; iron sheets (galvanised and corrugated), 129,412*l.*; chemicals, drugs and medicines, etc., 115,479*l.*; rice, 160,037*l.*; tea, 73,508*l.*; motor cycles and tricars and parts and accessories, 13,463*l.*; cycles (not motor), 61,900*l.*; sugar, 39,093*l.*; ghee, 37,164*l.*; cement (building), 117,772*l.*

The principal countries of origin were: Great Britain, 36·83 per cent.; British Possessions, 23·10 per cent.; (Total British Empire, 59·93 per cent.); Belgium, 1·51 per cent.; Dutch East Indies, 3·32 per cent.; France, 1·33 per cent.; Germany, 4·62 per cent.; Holland, 5·12 per cent.; Italy, 1·60 per cent.; Japan, 5·67 per cent.; Persia, 1·63 per cent.; United States of America, 12·03 per cent.; other foreign countries, 3·24 per cent.

The principal domestic exports of Kenya and Uganda during 1929 were: cotton (mainly Uganda), 3,315,101*l.*; coffee, 879,895*l.*; fibres, 553,572*l.*; maize, 309,774*l.*; hides and skins, 518,942*l.*; seeds, 476,647*l.*; carbonate of soda, 277,294*l.*; ivory, 38,274*l.*; chillies, 26,143*l.*; wood and timber, 27,848*l.*; wheat meal and flour, 32,060*l.*; other grain and flour, 37,512*l.*; ground-nuts, 34,436*l.*; wool, 48,871*l.*; rubber, 28,818*l.*; barks for tanning, 25,336*l.*; potatoes, 27,052*l.*; sugar, 32,252*l.*; wheat, 38,281*l.*; tin ore, 63,900*l.*

The chief countries of consignment were: Great Britain, 36·91 per cent.; British Possessions, 35·22 per cent.; (British Empire, 72·13 per cent.); Arabia, 0·21 per cent.; Belgium, 6·19 per cent.; Egypt, 0·25 per cent.; France, 1·26 per cent.; Germany, 0·93 per cent.; Holland, 0·45 per cent.; Italy, 1·60 per cent.; Italian East Africa and Colonia Eritrea, 0·83 per cent.; United States of America, 2·30 per cent.; Japan, 10·64 per cent.; other foreign countries, 3·21 per cent.

Communication between the ports of Kenya is kept up by small steamers owned by the British India S.S. Co., Messrs. Cawasji Dinshaw Brothers, at Aden, and the African Wharfage Co., Ltd., at Mombasa.

Communications.—The Kenya and Uganda Railways and Harbours are State Owned; the Railway, which is Metre Gauge, consists of: Main Line, Mombasa island to Jinja, on Lake Victoria to Uganda, 826 miles, other lines in Kenya are: the Nakuru Kisumu line, 131 miles; the Voi-Kahe Branch, 92 miles, with running powers over the Tanga line (Tanganyika Territory) between Kahe Junction and Moshi; the Lake Magadi Branch, 91 miles; the Nyeri line, including the old Thika Branch, 127 miles; the Lake Solai Branch, 27 miles; the Kitale Branch, 41 miles, and the Thomson's Falls Branch, 48 miles. In Uganda, Mbulamuti-Namasagali line, 18 miles; Port Bell-Kampala Railway, 6 miles; Tororo-Soroti Branch, 101 miles; lines under construction are: the Jinja-Kampala (Uganda) extension, 58 miles; the Kisumu-Yala Branch, 32½ miles. The Naro Moru-Nanyuki extension of the Nyeri line, 18 miles. Surveys have been made for Kedowa-Sotik-Kericho line, 66 miles, and the Bukonte-Jinja diversion, 53 miles.

The Harbours comprise the following: the Port of Mombasa, which includes Kilindini Harbour, Mombasa Old Port, Ports Reitz and Tudor; and the Ports of Lamu, Malindi and Kilifi. Kilindini Harbour possesses 4 deep-water quay berths (a fifth berth, in addition to a bulk oil jetty and lighterage berth, is under construction). The quays are equipped with electric cranes.

The Kenya and Uganda Railways and Harbours also operate steamer services on Lakes Victoria, Kioga, Albert, and on the River Nile; and a motor transport service, 75 miles, between Masindi Port on Lake Kioga, and Butiaba, on Lake Albert.

During the year ending December 31, 1929, 1,105,302 tons of goods and 1,161,770 passengers were carried; revenue, 2,448,960*l.*; expenditure, 1,445,070*l.* Telegraphic communications exist along all lines of rail. Through bookings are in operation between Kenya and Uganda Railways and Harbours and Tanganyika Railways and Harbours via Moshi and Mwanza. The country is fairly well provided with roads and tracks. There is a motor road from Nairobi, across Uganda, to Mongalla in the Sudan.

The Post Office of the Colony and Protectorate (inclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Kenya Post Office) received and despatched 13,475,200 letters, packets, &c., and 538,906 telegrams during 1929. The telegraph system has 10,998 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar.

Money.—The currency of the Colony and Protectorate, which is the same as that of the Uganda Protectorate and the Tanganyika Territory, is controlled by the East African Currency Board domiciled at 4 Millbank, London, S.W. 1, who maintain a stable rate of sterling exchange. The standard coin is the East Africa shilling of one hundred cents, introduced as from January 1, 1922, which is legal tender to any amount. Twenty East African shillings equal one East African pound. The subsidiary coins consist of 50 cent (silver), 10 cent, 5 cent and 1 cent (bronze). The paper currency consists of notes of the following denominations: 5, 10, 20, 100, 200, 1,000 and 5,000 shillings. Three banks operate in the colony. Savings bank deposits end of December, 1929, 119,866*l.*

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Brig.-Gen. Sir Joseph A. Byrne, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., C.B. (October, 1930). Salary, with allowances, 8,500*l.*

Colonial Secretary.—H. M.-M. Moore, C.M.G.

THE UGANDA PROTECTORATE.

The territories now comprised within this Protectorate came under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company. In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared over the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories. The present limits are approximately as follows:—On the north, the Uganda-Sudan boundary; on the east, a line drawn from Mt. Zulia on the Sudan boundary along the Turkana escarpment over the top of Mt. Elgon, and along the west boundary of the Colony of Kenya to the eastern shores of Lake Victoria; on the south by Tanganyika Territory (late German East Africa); and on the west by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo. Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza, part of Lake Edward, the whole of Lake George, half of Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, the whole of Lake Salisbury, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Nimule, where the Egyptian Sudan commences. Total area 94,204 square miles, including 13,616 square miles of water. For administrative purposes it is divided into 4 provinces: (1) the Eastern Province, comprising the districts of Busoga, Teso, Lango, Karamoja, Bugwere, Bugishu, and Budama; (2) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua, and West Nile; (3) the Western Province, comprising the districts of Toro, Ankole, and Kigezi; and (4) Buganda Province, with islands in Lake Victoria, comprising the districts of Mengo, Masaka, Mubende, and Entebbe.

The whole Protectorate is now under direct administration; but the native kings or chiefs, whose rights are in some cases regulated by treaties, are encouraged to conduct the government of their own subjects. The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a 'Kabaka,' with the title of 'His Highness.' He is assisted in the government by three native ministers and a Lukiko, or native assembly. In Buganda, and in Bunyoro, Ankole and Toro, also ruled over by native 'Kings,' purely native matters are dealt with by the various Lukikos, but in serious cases there is an appeal to British courts. For Europeans and non-natives justice is administered by His Majesty's courts. The principal British representative is the Governor, who is assisted by a Legislative Council and an Executive Council in carrying out the functions of Government. The headquarters of the British Administration is at Entebbe; the commercial centre is Kampala.

The total population of Uganda (December, 1929) was estimated at 3,410,857, composed as follows: Native, 3,396,323; Asiatic, 12,539; European, 1,995. Among the natives approximately 830,000 are Baganda, the tribe from which the Protectorate takes its name, and which was the most powerful and civilised at the time when the first explorers visited the country. At first educational work was entirely in the hands of the various Missionary Societies, who still receive grants towards scholarships, &c., for students and teachers. Their efforts have now for some years been supplemented by a Government educational scheme, and a University College is established by Government at Makerere (Kampala) for the higher education of natives. The attendance at the Schools in 1929 was 146,6·0 boys and 93,310 girls. About 2,000,000 natives speak Bantu languages; there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river; the rest of the natives belong to the Hamitic Nilotic, and Sudanese groups.

There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. The appeal court consists of the judges of the High Courts of the Colony of Kenya, Uganda, Nyasaland, Zanzibar and Tanganyika territory In 1929, 7,833 criminal cases were tried. There is an armed constabulary force under a British Commissioner of Police and British officers. There is also a volunteer reserve of Europeans.

Cotton is the principal product, and is grown almost entirely by natives. The area under cotton in 1929 was estimated at about 683,495 acres. Other products are coffee, chillies, oil-seeds, tin ore, Para rubber, sugar and tobacco. There are valuable forests.

Total exports in 1929, 4,274,758*l.* (1928, 3,395,270*l.*); cotton, 3,312,668*l.*; coffee, 177,145*l.*; cotton seed, 433,999*l.*; rubber, 28,818*l.*; ivory, 24,758*l.*; hides and skins, 165,444*l.*; tin ore, 63,900*l.* The total value of imports for consumption in 1929 was 2,318,177*l*, consisting mainly of cotton fabrics and manufactures, 605,707*l.* Total imports in 1928 amounted to 3,395,270*l.* The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, and India. There is a uniform Customs tariff in Kenya, Uganda, and Tanganyika.

The revenue and expenditure (exclusive of loan disbursements) for 6 years were:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1924	1,239,790	918,662	1927	1,292,306	1,430,976
1925	1,479,2·4	1,108,396	1928	1,519,237	1,368,188
1926	1,889,641	1,295,612	1929	1,682,918	1 315,997

In 1929 the poll-tax amounted to 588,993*l.*, customs to 439,375*l*, and cotton excise to 231,488*l.* Debt, 1,088,498*l.*

There are steamer services on Lakes Victoria, Kioga, and Albert. The steamers on Lake Albert descend the Nile to Nimule, on the Sudan boundary, whence there is a motor road (about 100 miles) round the rapids extending to Rejaf, the terminus of the Nile steamers from Khartum. The main line of the Kenya and Uganda Railway now extends to Jinja on Lake Victoria, by way of Nakuru, Eldoret, Turbo and Tororo. Lines from Jinja to Namasagali on Lake Kioga, and from Tororo to Soroti serve as feeders to bring in the important cotton crop of the Eastern Province. There is a railway from Port Bell to Kampala, 7¾ miles in length, and a new track is under construction between Kampala and Jinja. A network of all-weather motor roads has been constructed, and a fleet of Government motor vans serves those main routes on which a regular private transport service does not exist.

Mail services by motor and relays of runners radiate from Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja. The Sudan-Egyptian telegraph and telephone system is established to Rejaf. The Uganda telegraph line is extended to Mutir and to Nimule, 89 miles from Rejaf, and also connects with the Belgian Congo via Fort Portal and the Semliki. The length of telegraph and telephone line in the Protectorate is (1929) 3,328 miles. Telephone exchanges are installed at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, Iganga and Mbale, with trunk communication between.

The currency unit is the shilling, introduced in 1921 and standardized, with subsidiary coinage of silver 50 cent pieces, and bronze 10 cent, 5 cent, and 1 cent pieces. East African Currency Board notes of shillings 10,000, 1,000, 500, 200, 100, 50, 20, 10, and 5 are also in circulation. The Savings Bank had 29,948*l.* deposits and 1,949 depositors on December 31, 1929. The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa and Barclays Bank (Dominions, Colonial and Overseas) have branches at Kampala and Jinja.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir W. F. Gowers, K.C.M.G.

Chief Secretary.—P. W. Perryman, O.B.E.

ZANZIBAR.

The Island of Zanzibar is situated in 6° S. latitude, and is separated from the mainland by a channel 22½ miles across at its narrowest part. It is the largest coralline island on the African coast, being 53 miles long by 24 broad, and having an area of 640 square miles. To the north-east, at a distance of some 25 miles, lies the Island of Pemba in 5° S. latitude, 42 miles long by 14 broad, having an area of 380 square miles.

In the sixteenth century the Arabs of the East Coast sought the assistance of the Imams of Muscat to drive out the Portuguese. The subsequent allegiance to Muscat, however, was of a more or less nominal character until Seyyid Said transferred his capital to Zanzibar in 1832. On his death in 1856 the African possessions were, under an arbitration by Lord Canning (then Governor-General of India), declared independent of the parent State. In 1890 the supremacy of the British interests in the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba was recognised by France and Germany, and they were declared a British Protectorate in accordance with conventions by which Great Britain waived all claims to Madagascar in favour of France and ceded Heligoland to Germany. In the same year the mainland possessions, which extended over the coast from Warsheikh in 3° N. latitude to Tunghi Bay in 10° 42′ S. latitude, were ceded to Italy, Great Britain, and Germany, respectively, Great Britain and Italy paying rent for the territories under their protection, while Germany acquired the Sultan's rights by the payment of a sum of 200,000*l.* At a later date Italy also acquired similar rights by payment of a sum of 144,000*l.* The British-rented territories on the mainland were included in the East Africa Protectorate, and now form the Protectorate of Kenya (see above under Kenya). Thus the Zanzibar Protectorate is confined for administrative purposes to Zanzibar, Pemba, and adjacent small islands. In 1891, a regular Government was formed for the Protectorate with a British representative as first minister. In 1906 the Imperial Government assumed more direct control over the Protectorate and reorganised the Government. On July 1, 1913, the control of the Protectorate was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, legal effect being given to the change in the following year.

Constitution and Government.—The Sultan, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub, K.C.M.G., K.B.E. (born 1879), succeeded on the abdication of his brother-in-law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 9, 1911. The Government is administered by a British Resident, who is appointed by commissions under His Majesty's Sign Manual and Signet, and exercises his functions under the Zanzibar Order-in-Council, 1924, as amended by the Zanzibar Order in Council, 1925.

Legislation consists of Decrees of His Highness the Sultan, which are binding on all persons when countersigned by the British Resident under the Order-in-Council.

In 1926 Executive and Legislative Councils were established. The former is presided over by His Highness the Sultan, and the latter by the British Resident. The Legislative Council consists of three ex-officio official members and five others. There are six unofficial members, representing various communities.

Population, Religion, Education, &c.—The population of Zanzibar and Pemba, according to the census of 1924, was 216,790 (Zanzibar, 128,099; Pemba, 88,691). The registered birth rate in 1929 was 19·76 per 1,000 for Zanzibar and 18·47 for Pemba; and the death rate 21·20 and 13·33 respectively. The Arabs are the principal landlords and employers of labour. The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe. According to the 1921 census there were 14,125 non-native inhabitants, including about 270 Europeans, most of whom are English, and about 12,000 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes. Zanzibar town has a population of 38,700.

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi school); the Sultan and the principal Arabs are of the Ibadhi sect. There are 3 Christian Missions: the Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Mission of the Holy Ghost (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission.

Education is free. Subjects of H.H. the Sultan are liable to compulsion, but for others education is voluntary. There are Government schools mainly for Moslems, a number of mission schools, Indian schools supported by different communities for the children of their sects, private schools and a non-sectarian school. The total number of children attending these schools in 1929 was 4,164. There is a Teachers' Training School and a Commercial School. In 1927 education for Arab girls was started under the auspices of government.

Justice.—In cases in which persons subject to the Zanzibar Order-in-Council, 1924, are concerned, justice is administered by His Britannic Majesty's High Court and the Courts subordinate to it, and in other cases by H.H. the Sultan's Court for Zanzibar and the Courts subordinate to that Court. Subordinate Courts are held by Resident Magistrates, Administrative Officers and Arab Qadis, and an appeal lies from those Courts to the British or Zanzibar Court as may be required. An appeal lies from the British Court and from the Zanzibar Court in the exercise of their original civil and criminal jurisdiction to His Majesty's Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa and thence to the Privy Council.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows:—

Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure	Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure
1924	291,787	492,527	451,730	1927	309,159	540,345	606,301

Besides Customs, the chief sources of revenue in 1929 were: interest on loan to Kenya and other investments, 18,142*l.*; electricity department, 27,963*l.*; agriculture, 30,369*l.*; court fees, fines, etc., 95,133*l.*; rent of Kenya Protectorate, 10,000*l.*; rent of Government property, land and houses, 11,479*l.* The chief heads of expenditure in 1929 were: public works, 174,304*l.*; port and marine, 40,774*l.*; police and prisons, 33,073*l.*; electricity and wireless department, 23,235*l.*; judicial department, 25,646*l.*; agriculture department, 40,698*l.*; district administration departments, 27,756*l.*; medical, 51,077*l.*; education, 22,075*l.*; pensions, 31,292*l.*

Public debt at end of 1929, 100,000*l.*; sinking fund, 107,998*l.*

Production and Industry.—The clove industry is by far the most important in the Protectorate, the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba yielding the bulk of the world's supply. It is estimated that there are in both islands about 48,000 acres under cloves and over 3 million trees in bearing, the average output of the last 20 seasons being 19,343,004 lbs. The exports in 1929 were 174,778 cwts., and clove-stems 19,430 cwts. The large plantations are chiefly owned by Arabs, but many natives possess small holdings. The coconut industry ranks next in importance after cloves. It is estimated that there are about 55,000 acres under cultivation and 3½ million trees in both islands. The export of copra amounted in 1929 to 334,071 cwts.

The manufactures are pottery, coir fibre and rope, soap, oil (coconut and simsim), jewellery, and mats. There are no mines in the Protectorate.

Commerce.—The total imports, exports, and shipping for 5 years were:—

[1] Provisional.

Shipping and Communications, &c.—Several British and foreign Steamship Companies have regular services to Zanzibar and all the important ports on the coast of East Africa. The Zanzibar Government steamers maintain regular weekly connection with Pemba, as well as making calls at Dar-es-Salaam.

Ocean-going shipping dealt with in 1929, 1,428,639 tons net (349 vessels); coastwise, 130,849 tons (331 vessels); dhows, 75,985 tons entered and 76,473 tons cleared. Excellent water supplied at 3·5 tons per minute is available for shipping.

There is cable communication with Europe either via Aden or via Durban.

There are 238 miles of roads throughout the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba suitable for motor traffic.

The Government maintains wireless stations in Zanzibar and Pemba, and a telephone system in the town of Zanzibar, which is connected with the District and Agricultural stations in the country. There is also a Telephone Service connecting the three Administrative Districts in the island of Pemba. There are six post offices in the two islands. The number of articles dealt with at the post office in 1929 was 1,574,984 (letters, 1,563,256). The Government Savings Bank at the end of 1929 had 2,982 depositors, with 366,869 rupees on deposit.

The British Indian rupee is universally current; currency notes of Re to 500 rupees are in circulation. The value of notes in circulation on December 31, 1929, was 29,16,815 rupees. Seyyidieh copper pice are legal tender up to 64 pice (= one rupee). A frasla (or frasila) of cloves is equivalent to 35lbs. av.

MAURITIUS.

Mauritius was known to Arab navigators at an early date, probably not later than the tenth century. It was no doubt visited by Malays in the fifteenth century, and was discovered by the Portuguese between 1507 and 1512, but the Dutch were the first settlers. In 1710 they abandoned the island and it was occupied by the French under the name of Isle de France. The British occupied the island in 1810, and it was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 1814.

Constitution and Government.—Under Letters Patent of 1885, 1901, 1904, and 1913, partially representative institutions have been established. The government of the Colony, with its dependencies, Rodrigues, Diégo Garcia, &c., is vested in a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, consisting of the officer in command of His Majesty's troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Procureur-General, the Receiver-General, and such other persons holding office in the service of the Government of the Colony as the Governor, through instructions from the Secretary of State, may from time to time appoint. There is also a Council of Government, consisting of the Governor and twenty-seven members, ten being elected under a moderate franchise, eight ex-officio, and nine nominated by the Governor. The official councillors comprise the four Executive members, the Collector of Customs, the Protector of Immigrants, the Director of Public Works and Surveys, and the Director of the Medical and Health Department.

Governor of Mauritius.—W. E Francis Jackson (Appointed March 7, 1930).

Area, Population, &c.

Mauritius, in the Indian Ocean, 500 miles east of Madagascar, has an area of about 720 square miles. According to the census of 1921, the population of the island, including Dependencies (8,394) and Military (206), was 385,074, consisting of general population, 112,370, Indian population, 265,884, Chinese population, 6,820. The estimated population of Mauritius at end of 1929 was 415,543, including 9,985 in the Dependencies.

Birth-rate (exclusive of Indians) in 1929, 34·5, Indian birth-rate, 32·5 per thousand; death-rate (exclusive of Indians) in 1929, 28·4, Indian death-rate, 31·7 per thousand. Population of Port Louis, the capital, with its suburbs, 54,147 (1929).

In 1921 there were 117,491 Roman Catholics, 3,371 Protestants (Church of England and Church of Scotland). State aid is granted to the Churches, amounting yearly to Rs. 196,107 ; the Indians are mostly Hindus.

Education, &c.

Primary education is free but not compulsory. At the end of 1928 there were 55 Government, 92 aided and 3 technical schools. Average attendance at Government schools, 1929, 9,028 (13,175 on roll); at State-aided schools, 13,826 (19,588 on roll, of whom more than three-fourths were in Roman Catholic schools). For secondary education there is a Royal College and a School (with many scholarships and exhibitions) with (1929) 399 pupils. There were also in 1929 nine aided secondary schools for boys and girls. The total Government actual expenditure in 1928-29 on education was Rs. 1,579,923; the estimated expenditure for 1930-31 was Rs. 1,376,744.

The total number of convictions at the inferior courts in 1929 was 12,536 and at the Supreme Court 19.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE (BRITISH).

The Nyasaland (until 1907 British Central Africa) Protectorate, constituted on May 14, 1891, lies along the southern and western shores of Lake Nyasa, and extends towards the Zambezi. It is administered under the Colonial Office by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council, both consisting of nominated members, the Governor having the right of veto (Order in Council of September 4, 1907). The Laws consist of local Ordinances duly enacted, with such British Acts as are of general application.

Land area, 37,596 square miles, divided into four Provinces, each in charge of a Provincial Commissioner, and nineteen districts, each administered by a Resident and his assistant. Population on Dec. 31, 1929, 1,936 Europeans (mostly in the Shiré Highlands), 1,117 Asiatics, and 1,356,945 natives. The chief settlements are Blantyre and Limbe in the Shiré Highlands, with about 600 European inhabitants; others are Zomba (the seat of Government), Port Herald, and Mlanje; on Lake Nyasa are Fort Johnston, Kota-Kota, Bandawe, Chintechi, Nkata, Likoma, and Karonga. Good motor roads are being made in all directions, and life and property are safe. Education is controlled by the Education Department. Grants in aid are paid to mission societies for native education and there are four elementary schools for European children, which are maintained as private establishments and receive grants from Government. The Government has established a training centre for native teachers. Fourteen Christian missions are at work; in 1929 there were 2,588 native schools with a total roll of 135,746 pupils and an average attendance of 91,396. The total grant in aid paid by Government to missionary societies in 1929 was 8,360*l.* in respect of native education. The grant in aid for European education was 600*l.* These grants were distributed in accordance with the provisions of the Education Ordinance, 1927.

Justice is administered in the High Court, which has jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters, and also as a Court of Admiralty. Subordinate courts are held by magistrates and assistant magistrates in the various districts. Appeals from decisions of the High Court are heard in H.B.M's. Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, sitting at Mombasa.

In the Shiré Highlands coffee is cultivated; in 1928, 46,246 lbs. and in 1929, 100,117 lbs. were exported. Tobacco exported: in 1928, 11,632,497 lbs., and in 1929, 10,340,217 lbs. The area under tobacco in 1929 was 19,269 acres. The area under cotton cultivation in 1929 was 1,219 acres. In 1928, 1,785,611 lbs., and in 1929, 2,121,618 lbs. were exported. Tea-growing is tried on estates aggregating about 8,866 acres (1929); in 1928, 1,407,728 lbs., and in 1929, 1,755,419 lbs. were exported. Cattle in the Protectorate (1929), goats, 201,928; horned cattle, 166,157; sheep, 88,360; pigs, 61,379; asses and mules (mostly belonging to the natives), 214; horses, 6.

The trade ports are Port Herald (Lower Shiré), Kota-Kota, Fort Manning, Karonga, and Fort Johnston (Lake Nyasa).

Direct imports from Great Britain, 1929, 75 per cent. of total; direct exports thereto, 1929, 99·31 per cent. of total.

The imports (1928) consisted chiefly of manufactured articles, 618,489*l.*; provisions, 65,090*l.* The principal exports (1929) were tobacco, 403,678*l.*; cotton, 62,661*l.*; tea, 74,383*l.*

There are military, volunteer reserve, and civil police forces. Police force, December 31, 1928, 16 European officers and 521 African ranks. There is a Marine Transport Department on Lake Nyasa, consisting of three vessels. For ordinary traffic there are small steamers, besides small sailing vessels.

There are 30 post offices through which, in 1929, about 2,373,273 postal packets passed. The postal savings bank had 775 depositors at end of 1928; deposits, 4,624*l.* A railway, of 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, from Chindio on the Zambezi in Portuguese East Africa to Blantyre has been constructed (174 miles). A railway from Murraça on the southern bank of the Zambezi to the Port of Beira (175 miles) in Portuguese East Africa was opened for traffic in April, 1922, thus establishing direct railway communication between Blantyre and Beira. A bridge across the Zambezi to connect these two railways is shortly to be erected, also the railway system is to be extended northwards to Lake Nyasa. During 1928 the new road from Salisbury to Blantyre via Tete in Portuguese East Africa was open for light cars. There is a telegraph line through the Protectorate connecting southwards with Cape Town and northwards with Tanganyika, Kenya and Uganda. Telegraphs are controlled by the Government. At Zomba there is a water-power electric light installation which provides for the whole settlement.

At Blantyre, Zomba, and other centres there are branches of the Standard Bank of South Africa and at Blantyre there is a branch of Barclays (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) Bank. The currency consists of British coin, gold, silver, and bronze. There is no note circulation.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir T. S. W. Thomas, K.C.M.G., O.B.E.

Chief Secretary.—K. L. Hall.

The revenue from customs in 1929 was 5,253*l.*

Public debt, nil; the Colony's assets at December 31, 1929, exceeded the liabilities by 2,666*l.*

The principal export is fibre, tow, rope and twine, 1,445 tons in 1929.

Savings-bank deposits on December 31, 1929, 17,730*l.*, belonging to 228 depositors.

Fruit trees, Norfolk pines, eucalyptus, and cedars flourish in St. Helena. Cattle do well, but there is no outside market for the meat. The flax (phormium) industry is now established, a Government mill having commenced operations in 1908. There are 8 private mills. The area of land under flax was estimated at 2,000 acres in 1927. A lace-making industry was started in 1907. The number of vessels that called at the Island in 1929 was 35 Total tonnage entered and cleared (1929) was 173,459.

The Post Office in 1929 received 309 bags of mail, 1,993 parcels and 1,470 registered articles, and despatched 82 bags of mail, 261 parcels and 2,225 registered articles.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's cable connects St. Helena with Cape Town and with St. Vincent. There are telephone lines, with 41 miles of wire.

St. Helena is an Admiralty coaling station. About two of the Cape of Good Hope Squadron visit St. Helena every year.

Ascension is a small island of volcanic origin, of 34 square miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N.W. of St. Helena. Down to November 1922 it was under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, but it was then transferred to the administration of the Colonial Office and annexed to the colony of St. Helena. There are 10 acres under cultivation providing vegetables and fruit. Investigations are being made into the possibilities of exploiting the minerals on the Island and reports are encouraging.

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which come to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May. Rabbits, wild goats, and partridges are more or less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "wideawake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month. Phosphates and guano are collected. The island is included in the Postal Union.

Resident Magistrate.—E. A. Willmott.

Tristan da Cunha, a small group of islands in the Atlantic, half-way between the Cape and S. America, in 37° 6′ S. lat. 12° 1′ W. long. Besides Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island, there are Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, the former two and the latter one mile long, and a number of rocks. Tristan consists of an extinct volcano rising to a height of 8,000 feet, with a circumference at its base of 21 miles. The habitable area is a small plateau on the north-west side of about 12 square miles, 100 feet above sea-level. Here the struggle for life is great: it is now impossible to grow corn owing to the depredation of rats, which came from a wreck in 1882; and fuel is scarce owing to deforestation. The staple food appears to be the potato. There are apple and peach trees; bullocks, sheep and geese are reared, and fish are plentiful. Besides being inhospitable, the island is extremely lonely. Until the middle of the last century the neighbouring waters were frequented by numerous American whalers, but these have now disappeared, as have also the clippers which called occasionally. Since 1900 the annual visits of a warship have been discontinued. Despite these disadvantages, the community is a growing one. In 1880 it numbered 109, declining to 52 in 1893, since when it has increased to the present figure of 130. The characteristics of the people are longevity, good health, and a certain shyness of disposition. It had been argued that inter-marriage must have a bad effect upon their qualities, but Surgeon Commander Rickard, of the Dublin, who visited the island in 1923, reported that this was not the case. The original inhabitants were shipwrecked sailors and soldiers who remained behind when the garrison from St. Helena was withdrawn in 1817. Many attempts have been made to induce the inhabitants to leave. The lack of educational facilities for their children was the sole argument which carried weight in the eyes of the inhabitants. A proposal to establish a settlement in South Africa for the surplus population has been revived in order to prevent the recurrence of times of scarcity. There is no form of government.

SEYCHELLES.

Seychelles and its Dependencies consist of 101 islands and islets with a total estimated area of 156 square miles. The principal island is Mahé (55 square miles), smaller islands of the group being Praslin, Silhouette, La Digue, Curieuse, and Félicité. Among dependent islands are the Amirantes, Alphonse Island, Bijoutier Island, St. François, St. Pierre, the Cosmoledo Group, Astove Island, Assumption Island, the Aldabra Islands, Providence Island, Coetivy, Farquhar Islands, and Flat Island.

The islands were first colonised by the French in the middle of the eighteenth century, the object being to establish plantations of spices to compete with the lucrative Dutch monopoly. They were captured by the English in 1794 and incorporated as a dependency of Mauritius in 1810. In 1888 the office of Administrator was created, an Executive Council of 2 ex-officio members and 1 nominated member was appointed, with a Legislative Council of 3 official and 3 unofficial members, the Administrator being president of both Councils and having an original and casting vote in the Legislative Council. In 1897 the Administrator was given full powers as Governor, and in November, 1903, he was raised to the rank of Governor.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—de Symons M. G. Honey, C.M.G. (January, 1928).

The population at December 31, 1929, was estimated to be 27,588; census of April 24, 1921, 24,523 (11,974 males and 12,549 females). The death-rate for 1929 was 17·94; the birth-rate 30·59. The number of births in 1929 was 844; deaths, 495; marriages, 176. The capital is Victoria, which has a good harbour. Education is not compulsory. There were in 1929, 27 grant-in-aid schools and 2 other primary schools. In addition, there are 3 secondary schools with a total of 357 pupils. Total number of children attending school in 1929 was 2,845; average attendance, 78·5 per cent. In 1929, 65 cases were brought before the Supreme Court (Criminal Side). The police force numbered 93 of all ranks (1929).

Shipping entered and cleared (1929), 240,052 tons, mainly British, exclusive of coasters trading between Mahé and the dependencies. The British India steamers call every four weeks from Bombay on their way to Mombasa, and every eight weeks on their way from Mombasa to Bombay. There is fairly regular communication between the islands.

There is a good road system in Mahé, and further road-making is in progress in Mahé and in Praslin. In 1929 the post office despatched and received 139,000 letters and post cards, 117,700 newspapers, &c., and 3,875 parcels. There is direct telegraphic communication with Mauritius, Zanzibar, Aden, and Colombo. The Government Wireless Station at Victoria has been reopened for the exchange of radiotelegrams with ships at sea, but the service between Victoria and the Praslin group of islands is still suspended.

At the end of 1929 the Savings Bank deposits amounted to Rs. 241,034 to the credit of 674 depositors.

Current money in the islands consists of rupees and notes.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.

The Somali Coast stretches from Lahadu, west of Zeyla, to Bandar Ziyada 49° E. long. After 1884, when Egyptian control ceased, the territory was administered by the Government of India, but was taken over by the Foreign Office on October 1, 1898, and was transferred to the Colonial Office on April 1, 1905.

By an arrangement with Italy in 1894 the limits of the British Protectorate were defined; but in 1897, by an arrangement with Abyssinia, a fresh boundary as required by that country was determined, and about 15,000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia. An agreement for the regulation of Anglo-Italian relations in Somaliland was concluded on March 19, 1907. The area is about 68,000 square miles; population about 344,700—Mohammedan, and entirely nomadic, except on the coast, where considerable towns have sprung up during the British occupation.

No census of the population other than the Europeans and Indians has been taken, but a rough estimate of the main towns of the Protectorate is as follows: Berbera, between 15,000 and 30,000; Hargeisa, 20,000; Burao, 10,000; Zeilah, 5,000. Police, 555 officers and men on Dec. 31, 1929. Convictions in 1929, 1,138. Revenue in 1929, 105,781*l.*, reckoned at 1*s.* 6*d.* to one rupee. Customs in 1929, 79,577*l.*; expenditure, 1929, 207,067*l.* Free Grant-in-aid in respect of military expenditure, 1929, 55,000*l.* Imports, 1929, 473,294*l.*; exports, 1929, 238,867*l.* Bullion and specie are included. The imports are chiefly rice (183,686 cwt.), dates 51,395 cwt.), sugar (43,823 cwt.), textiles (2,708 423 yds.), and specie; the exports, skins and hides, gum and resins, ghee, cattle, sheep and goats, and specie. Tonnage entered in 1929, 85,498; cleared, 85,125. The rupee is the basis of the currency. Government of India notes are also in circulation. Transport is by camel and motor-car; there are no porters. Besides ordinary telegraphs there are wireless telegraph stations at Berbera, Burao, Hargeisa, Zeilah, Erigavo, and Buramo.

The Protectorate forces now comprise a Camel Corps of 395 officers and men, with a reserve of 146 men, and 553 Police.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Sir H. B. Kittermaster, K.B.E., C.M G. Appointed January 26, 1926.

SOUTH AFRICA.

BASUTOLAND.

Basutoland, an elevated but rugged plateau, forms an irregular parallelogram on the north-east of the Cape of Good Hope Province. The provinces of the Orange Free State, Natal, and the Cape of Good Hope form its boundaries. Area, 11,716 square miles. The territory, which is well watered and has a fine climate, is stated to be the best grain-producing country in South Africa, and the abundant grass enables the Basutos to rear large herds of cattle.

Basutoland has been under the authority of the Crown since 1884, and is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner for South Africa, the latter possessing the legislative authority which is exercised by proclamation. The country is divided into seven districts, namely: Maseru, Leribe, Mohale's Hoek, Berea, Mafeteng, Quthing, and Qacha's Nek. Each of the districts is subdivided into wards, mostly presided over by hereditary chiefs allied to the Moshesh family.

According to the census of 1921 the population numbered 495,937 natives, 1,603 Europeans, 172 Asiatics, and 1,069 coloured. European settlement is in general prohibited, and is more or less limited to the few engaged in trade, Government, and missionary work. Maseru, the capital and largest town, has a population of 1,890 natives and 399 Europeans.

There were 512 native elementary schools and 35 intermediate schools with an average attendance during 1929 of 37,069 pupils; expenditure in connection with education amounted during the year ended March 31, 1930, to 57,110*l*. There are some Normal and Industrial schools (aided). There is also a large and well-fitted Government native industrial school at Maseru. There are 7 white schools with 115 pupils.

The police force at 31st December, 1929, numbered:—12 European officers, 1 drill instructor 30 non-commissioned officers (native) and 309 men natives).

The revenue arises mainly from the Post Office, native tax, licences, and income tax customs rebate from neighbouring territories. Under the Native Tax Law every adult male native pays 1*l.* 5*s.* per annum, and if he has more than one wife by native custom he pays 1*l.* 5*s.* per annum for his wives up to a maximum of 3*l.* 15*s.* A levy of 3*s.* for educational purposes is paid by every adult native. An Income Tax has been enacted on the lines of that existing in the Union of South Africa, and the collections for the year 1929–30 amounted to 10,732*l.*

Revenue	281,522	274,404	292,378	324,790	326,540
Expenditure . . .	267,880	272,627	283,602	316,573	332,949

Native tax yielded 136,237*l.* 10*s.* in 1929-30, and customs, 95,566*l.*, education levy, etc., 14,885*l.* Balance of assets over liabilities, March 31, 1930, was 122,566*l.*, of which 70,000*l.* is Reserve Fund.

The products are wool, wheat, mealies, and Kaffir corn. There are indications of iron and copper, and coal has been found and is used in some parts.

Basutoland is in the South African Customs Union. The total trade in recent years was:—

Imports . .	850,978	665,014	842,893	921,574	706,416
Exports . .	756,106	696,950	839,095	1,013,392	694,794

The imports consist chiefly of blankets, ploughs, clothing, iron and tin ware, and groceries, and the exports (1929) of wool and mohair (530,435*l.*), wheat and wheat-meal (64,408*l.*), Kaffir corn (21,334*l.*), maize and maize-meal (42,144*l.*). In addition to the imports above given, there were goods to the value of 54,686*l.* imported by the government.

There are telegraph offices at the various magistracies in connection with the systems of the Cape Province and Orange Free State.

A railway built by the C.S.A.R., 16 miles, connects Maseru with the Bloemfontein-Natal line at Marseilles Station.

The currency is exclusively British.

Resident Commissioner.—John C. R. Sturrock, C.M.G. (May, 1926).

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.

The Bechuanaland Protectorate comprises the territory lying between the Molopo River on the south and the Zambezi on the north, and extending from the Transvaal Province and Matabeleland on the east to South-West Africa. Area about 275,000 square miles; population, according to the census of 1921, 152,983, of whom 1,743 were Europeans. The most important tribes are the Bamangwato (35,000), under the Chief Tshekedi (acting as regent during the minority of Seretse, the son of Sekgoma, who died in November, 1925) whose capital is Serowe (population 17,000), 40 miles west of the railway line at Palapye Road; the Bakhatla (11,000), under Chief Molefi Pilane; the Bakwena (13,000), under Sebele II.; the Bangwaketse (18,000), under chief Bathoeñ, the eldest son of the late chief Gaseitsiwe; the Batawana, under Mathibe; and the Bamalete (4,500), under Seboko Mokgosi, who assumed the Chieftainship on July 9, 1917. In 1885, the territory was declared to be within the British sphere; in 1889 it was included in the sphere of the British South Africa Company, but was never administered by the company; in 1890 a Resident Commissioner was appointed, and in 1895, on the annexation of the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland to the Cape of Good Hope, new arrangements were made for the administration of the Protectorate, and special agreements were made in view of the extension of the railway northwards from Mafeking. Each of the chiefs rules his own people as formerly, under the protection of the King, who is represented by a Resident Commissioner, acting under the High Commissioner. The headquarters of the Administration are in Mafeking, in the Cape Province, where there is a reserve for Imperial purposes, with ample buildings. An assistant Resident Commissioner was appointed in 1923.

The Territory is divided for administrative purposes into 11 districts, each under a Resident Magistrate. There is a tax of 1*l.* on each hut and 5*s.* Native Fund Tax, for education, &c. Licences for the sale of spirits are granted only at certain railway stations The police force consists of 32 European officers, warrant officers and sergeants, 50 mounted police, and 215 dismounted constables.

Education is provided (there were 10 European, 2 Coloured, and 90 native schools, 1929-30). The European schools were assisted financially by the Government to the extent of 1,720*l.* The native schools, with the exception of the school at Serowe, which is supported by the Chief, are now mainly financed by the Native Fund, the charge to which for 1929-30 was 5,322*l.* The schools are supervised by the various missionary bodies operating in the Reserves (chiefly the London Missionary Society, Church of England, and Dutch Reformed Church).

Cattle-rearing, and agriculture to a limited extent (production of maize and Kaffir corn), are the chief industries, but the country is more a pastoral than an agricultural one, crops depending entirely upon the rainfall. Cattle numbered on May 3, 1921, 495,000 head, sheep and goats, 380,000. During the year 1929, 30,673 head of cattle were exported.

Gold and silver to the total value of 7,548*l.* were mined in 1929-30.

Revenue and expenditure for six years:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure

Chief items of revenue, 1929-30: income tax and poll tax, 40,844*l.*; customs, 30,913*l.*; hut-tax, 42,451*l.*; licences, 6,787*l.*; posts, 15,648*l.*; Chief items of expenditure, 1929-30: Resident Commissioner, 10,440*l.*; district administration, 14,544*l.*; posts, 5,881*l.*; police, 30,322*l.*; administration of justice, 5,605*l.*; public works (extraordinary and recurrent), 17,274*l.*; medical, 11,797*l.*; veterinary, 14,827*l.*; capital works, 21,510*l.* There has been no Imperial grant-in-aid since 1911-12, when the grant amounted to 10,000*l.*

There is no public debt. Excess of assets over liabilities on April 1, 1930, 82,972*l.*

When the Union of South Africa was established, an agreement was made with the Union Government under which duty on all dutiable articles imported into the Protectorate is collected by the Union Customs Department and paid into the Union Treasury, a lump sum representing a certain portion of the annual Customs Revenue of the Union being paid over to the Protectorate. Under this arrangement full figures relating to imports and exports of the Protectorate are not available. The export of dairy products was in 1929, 57,582*l.*

The telegraph from the Cape of Good Hope to Rhodesia passes through the Protectorate. Similarly the railway extending northwards from the Cape of Good Hope traverses the Protectorate. It is the property of the Rhodesia Railways, Limited. In the Protectorate are 23 post offices; receipts, in 1929-30, 15,648*l.*; expenditure, 5,881*l.* In 1929-30, 2,279*l.* was deposited in the Savings Bank and 2,581*l.* withdrawn.

The currency is British. There is no bank in the Protectorate.

Resident Commissioner.—Lieut.-Col. C. F. Rey.

Government Secretary.—C. L. O'B. Dutton.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA.

Rhodesia includes the whole of the region extending from the Transvaal Province northwards to the borders of the Belgian Congo and Tanganyika Territory, bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and the Tanganyika Territory, and on the west by the Belgian Congo, Portuguese West Africa, and Bechuanaland. The region south of the Zambezi (Matabeleland and Mashonaland) is called Southern Rhodesia; that north of the Zambezi is known as Northern Rhodesia.

Prior to October, 1923, Southern Rhodesia, like Northern Rhodesia, was under the administration of the British South Africa Company. In October, 1922, Southern Rhodesia voted in favour of responsible government. On September 12, 1923, the country was formally annexed to His Majesty's Dominions, and on October 1, 1923, the new form of government was established under a Governor, assisted by an Executive Council, and a Legislature. The latter consists at first of a single elected Legislative Assembly, but that body may pass a law constituting a Legislative Council in addition. There must be a session at least once a year, and the duration of the Legislature is five years, unless sooner dissolved. The Legislature may amend, by a two-thirds vote of the total membership, the Letters Patent setting up the Constitution, with certain exceptions (relating to reservation of bills by the Governor, native administration, Crown Land Agent, and Governor's salary). The Crown reserves the right to disallow laws. The powers of the Legislative Council respecting appropriation and Taxation Bills are limited. In July 1928 the franchise was extended to all British subjects over 21 years of age and to married women, subject to certain qualifications.

A native Council may be established in any native reserve, representative of the local chiefs and native residents, to advise the Governor and manage such local affairs as may be entrusted to it.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir Cecil H. Rodwell, K.C.M.G., Appointed August, 1928. (Salary, 4,000*l.*; allowances, 2,000*l.*).

The Cabinet is as follows (Aug. 1928)—

Premier and Secretary for Native Affairs.—H. U. Moffat, C.M.G.
Mines, Works, and Industries.—G. Mitchell.
Agriculture and Lands.—R. A. Fletcher.
Attorney General.—Major R. J. Hudson, M.C., K.C.
Colonial Secretary.—W. M. Leggate, C.M.G.
Treasurer.—P. D. L. Fynn, C.M.G.

High Commissioner in London.—Hon. J. W. Downie, C.M.G.

Area and Population.—The area is 149,000 square miles. The growth of the population is given in the following table:—

Year	Europeans			Asiatic Coloured Total	Native Total	Total Population

" " " 1930	—	—	48,400	4,000	1,060,000	1,092,400

The chief towns are Salisbury (the capital, population, 27,000 (approx.), including 9,900 Europeans), Bulawayo (25,000, including 10,600 Europeans), Umtali, Gwelo, Gatooma, Que Que, Shamva, Wankie and Victoria.

The number of births (European) was 1,093 in 1929, 1,049 in 1928: deaths, 469 in 1929, 400 in 1928.

Education.—At the end of 1929 the schools for Europeans numbered 78 primary, 11 secondary and 2 vocational, the latter including one school—the Matopos School—of a new type specially designed to prepare boys for life on the land. There is a primary teachers' training centre with 12 teachers in training in 1929. There were also 76 aided farm schools, taught by private tutors or governesses, with an aggregate enrolment of 383 pupils. Including these, the total enrolment of European children at the end of the year 1929 was 8,046. There were also 7 schools for coloured children, including Eurafrican and Asiatic, with a total enrolment of 548 pupils; and 1,549 schools for native pupils, with a total enrolment of 96,403 pupils. The total expenditure on public education in the Colony in the calendar year 1928 amounted to 271,418*l.*, against which receipts from boarding and tuition fees were 91,862*l.*

Justice.—There is a High Court with criminal and civil jurisdiction. Single Judges are stationed at Salisbury and Bulawayo and sittings are held at five of the other principal towns twice a year. There are nine principal Courts of Magistrate, also courts presided over by detached Assistant Magistrates and several periodical courts. Natives are subject mainly to the same laws as Europeans, though there are special restrictions relating to arms, ammunition and liquor, and there are laws particularly applicable to natives, such as those dealing with marriage, taxation and registration and passes. Native Commissioners have jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters in which natives only are concerned, but generally exercise jurisdiction in their capacity as Assistant Magistrates.

Finance.—The total revenue for the year ended March 31, 1930,[1] was 2,489,000*l.* (2,333,000*l.* in 1928–29), of which the receipts from stamps and licences were 140,100*l.* (136,500*l.* in 1928–29; Native tax, 343,700*l.* (321,900*l.* in 1928–29); income tax, 499,000*l.* (505,000*l.* in 1928–29); and customs and excise duties, 704,700*l.* (681,100*l.* in 1928–29), and lands department, 112,700*l.* (117,800*l.* in 1928–29). Total expenditure (including loan expenditure), 1929–30,[1] was 2,967,800*l.* (2,930,600*l.* in 1928–29), including 329,300*l.* for education, 323,200*l.* for police and defence, 490,400*l.* for public works and roads, and 346,400*l.* for debt services.

The net amount of the Public Debt outstanding was, at March 31, 1930, 6,142,479*l.* (6,145,881*l.* in 1929).

Production and Industries.—The British South Africa Company has relinquished all rights and interests in the land in Southern Rhodesia, except in the estates which it was already developing and working on 10th July, 1923. The Crown has recognized the Company as the owner of the mineral rights throughout both Southern and Northern Rhodesia. Land has been set apart for tribal settlements ('native reserves'). The country is well adapted for agriculture and European settlers. Live stock (1929): cattle, 2,398,000 (2,326,300 in 1928); sheep, 353,800 (359,300 in 1928), and pigs, 61,300 (68,500 in 1928). Acreage under crops (1929): maize, 325,300 (295,300 in 1928); tobacco, 17,800 (46,600 in 1928); ground-nuts, 9,700 (6,900 in 1928); legumes and fodders, 29,300 (23,400 in 1928). Large fruit orchards have been planted, and nearly all fruit trees thrive, the cultivation of oranges and lemons constituting a rapidly expanding industry. Exports of citrus fruit have increased from 53,000 boxes in 1923–24 to 159,000 boxes in 1929. The sale of dairy produce is a profitable industry. Animal products sold in 1929 include, 513,000 dozen eggs, 1,042,000 gallons milk, 123,000 lbs. cheese, and 1,447,536 lbs. butter.

A Land and Agricultural Bank makes loans to settlers on easy terms of repayment, for the purpose of improving and developing their agricultural holdings. The amount of applications for advances granted was 170,725*l.* in 1929 and 232,280*l.* in 1928. Numerous companies have been formed with the purpose of developing land and minerals.

[1] Provisional figures.

Mining.—The country contains gold and other minerals. The total output of all minerals from 1890 to December 31, 1929, is valued at 95,932,000*l.*, of which gold accounted for 75,080,108*l.* The gold output in 1929 was valued at 2,374,359*l.*, and in 1930 at 2,316,649*l.* The output in 1930 of other minerals was valued at: coal, sales, &c., 476,773*l.*; chrome ore, 519,581*l.*; asbestos, 1,070,847*l.*; copper, 70,014*l.* The total mineral output for 1930 was valued at 100,450,147*l.*

In addition to the foregoing a number of minor industries are now established in the Colony. These include brick and tile works (10), cigarette and tobacco factories (6), cold storage and ice making installations (9), iron and brass founders (13), mineral water manufactories (12), and electric light and power undertakings (14).

Commerce.—The total value of imports (including bullion and coin) into Southern Rhodesia in 1929 was 8,864,000*l.*, the chief being: food and drink, 971,307*l.*; textile goods, wearing apparel, 1,590,000*l.*; machinery, 967,836*l.*; metals and manufactures, including motor cars, 2,278,461*l.*; railway and tramway materials and locomotives, 564,863*l.* The value of the exports, including gold, was 8,637,000*l.* (including re-exports, 1,990,000*l.*), the chief being: raw gold, 2,321,000*l.*; asbestos, 891,000*l.*; maize, 389,000*l.*; chrome ore, 639,000*l.*; animals (cattle for slaughter), 377,000*l.*; tobacco, 503,000*l.* Total imports from the United Kingdom in 1929 amounted to 4,019,000*l.* (4,022,000*l.* in 1928); from the Union of S. Africa, 1,902,000*l.* (1,651,000*l.* in 1928); from the United States, 1,025,000*l.* (952,000 in 1928). Domestic exports to the United Kingdom in 1929, 2,571,000*l.* (2,721,000*l.* in 1928); Union of S. Africa, 2,116,000*l.* (2,163,000*l.* in 1928).

Communications.—The British South Africa Company has a controlling interest in the Rhodesian railway system, the total mileage of which (including the Beira Railway) at the end of 1928 was 2,525. The system begins at Vryburg in the Cape Colony, and extends through the Bechuanaland Protectorate and Southern and Northern Rhodesia to the Belgian Congo and Portuguese East Africa. In conjunction with the railways of the Union of South Africa it provides through communication from Cape Town to the Congo border (2,149 miles), and (by a line from Bulawayo viâ Salisbury) to the port of Beira on the Indian Ocean (2,036 miles). There are also several branch lines in Southern Rhodesia. At a conference in London in 1926, attended by the representatives of the Company and of the Governments of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and the Bechuanaland Protectorate, a scheme was drawn up for the public control of traffic rates, which has resulted in a deduction of the railway rates aggregating 1,128,000*l.* A system of road motor services has been organised, having in September 1929 a total mileage of 1,357 miles.

On December 31, 1929, there were in Southern Rhodesia 206 post offices, 47 of which are money order and savings bank offices. During the year 1929, 12,577,000 letters and post-cards were despatched; 4,500,379 newspapers, books, and parcels, and 216,082 registered articles. The postal revenue for the year 1929 was 235,500*l.*, and the expenditure, 180,090*l.* There is an extensive telephone system in operation. An automatic telephone exchange has recently been brought into operation in Salisbury, and an additional one has been ordered for Umtali.

On January 1, 1905, a Post Office Savings Bank was established, and on December 31, 1929, the deposits amounted to 229,000*l.*

NORTHERN RHODESIA.

By an Order in Council, dated May 4, 1911, the two provinces of North-Eastern and North-western Rhodesia were amalgamated under the title of Northern Rhodesia, the amalgamation taking effect as from August 17, 1911. The limits of the territory, as defined by the Order in Council, are 'the parts of Africa bounded by Southern Rhodesia, German South-west Africa (now South-west Africa), Portuguese West Africa, the Congo Free State (now the Belgian Congo), German East Africa (now Tanganyika Territory), Nyasaland, and Portuguese East Africa.'

An Administrator was appointed by the British South Africa Company with the approval of the Secretary of State, and had, for consultative purposes, an Advisory Council of five members, chosen by the white settlers.

By an Order in Council dated February 20, 1924, the office of Governor was created, an Executive Council constituted and provision made for the institution of a Legislative Council. This latter Council is composed of five ex-officio members, who also constitute the Executive Council, four nominated official members and seven elected unofficial members. On April 1, 1924, the British South Africa Company was relieved of the administration of the Territory by the Crown, from which date the Order in Council of February 20, 1924, took effect.

Northern Rhodesia has an area of 287,950 square miles, and consists for the most part of high plateau country, covered with thin forest. Much of the country is suitable for farming and contains areas carrying good arable and grazing land. The permanent European population in December 1929 was computed at 9,981. The native population on December 31, 1927, was estimated to number 1,298,651. The territory is divided into nine magisterial districts. The seat of Government is at Livingstone, three miles from the Zambesi. The most important centres are Broken Hill, Fort Jameson, Lusaka, Mazabuka, Abercorn, Fort Rosebery, Ndola, and Mongu-Lealui. The police force, called the Northern Rhodesia Police, is composed of natives, with European officers and non-commissioned officers.

There were in December 1929, 6 Government, 9 Farm or Mine Schools, with 33 teachers and 518 pupils. There is 1 Government school for natives, at Mongu, and a large number of Mission stations and schools, many of which receive Government grants.

Imports (inclusive of specie), 1929, 3,602,417*l.*; exports (including specie), 899,736*l.*, including living animals, 8,928*l.*, pig lead, 37,729*l.*; copper, 236,716*l.*; gold (bar), 3,441*l.*; vanadium, 16,389*l.*; zinc, 262,611*l.*; wheat, 13,855*l.*; maize and maize meal, 43,348*l.*; tobacco (unmanufactured), 70,310*l.*; hides, skins, and horns, 39,165*l.*; ivory, 8,922*l.*; timber, 20,316*l.*

Agricultural products are maize, tobacco, wheat, and European fruits. There is timber of various kinds; gold, copper, zinc, lead and vanadium are mined; coal has been discovered. Production 1929: gold, 699 ozs., value 2,969*l.*; copper, 5,465 tons, value 408,258*l.*; lead, 1,635 tons, value 38,852*l.*; zinc, 22,229 tons, value 547,964*l.*; vanadium, 131,290 lbs., value 93,544*l.*; mica, 5,919 lbs., value, 1,479*l.*; manganese, 1,849 tons, value 2,773*l.*; iron ore, 3,556 tons, value 1,778*l.* Total value of mineral production: 1929, 1,097,846*l.*

The trunk line of the Rhodesian railway system traverses Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone to the Congo border. The Zambezi, Kafue, Chambesi, and other rivers of Northern Rhodesia are navigable for a considerable portion of their extent.

There are 41 post offices, 15 being money order offices. There is a telegraph line alongside the railway from Livingstone to the Congo border, and other lines link up Fort Jameson with Nyasaland and Abercorn with Tanganyika Territory and Nyasaland.

SWAZILAND.

Swaziland lies at the South-eastern corner of the Transvaal. On June 25, 1903, an Order in Council was issued conferring on the Governor of the Transvaal authority over Swaziland, and by Order in Council of December 1, 1906, this authority was transferred to the High Commissioner for South Africa.

The seat of the administration is at Mbabane; altitude 3,800 feet.

Area, 6,704 square miles. Population, census 1921: 112,838 (Europeans, 2,235). The Government maintains 13 European schools at different centres, average attendance, 502 in 1929; and 1 native school at Zombode, the kraal of the ex-Chief Regent, average attendance, 97 in 1929. The Government also subsidises certain native schools with an average attendance in 1929 of 6,018, and one school for coloured children, at which the total average attendance in 1929 was 161.

A Special Court, having the full jurisdiction of a Superior Court, and Assistant Commissioners' Courts have been established. A local Swaziland police force was created in 1907. Authorised strength (1929) 25 Europeans and 148 natives. During 1929, there were 2,986 summary convictions, and 29 convictions in the Superior Court. Native chiefs continue to exercise jurisdiction according to native law and customs in all civil matters between natives, subject to a final appeal to the Resident Commissioner.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Constitution and Government.

THE Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, Ch. 9), passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on September 20, 1909. Under the terms of that Act the self-governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony were united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State respectively. There is a Governor-General, and an Executive Council in charge of the Departments of State.

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Assembly. The Governor-General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneousiy or the House of Assembly alone. There must be a session of Parliament every year.

The Senate consists of forty members, eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the non-European races) being nominated by the Governor-General in Council and thirty-two being elected, eight for each Province. Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union; an elected senator must be a registered owner of property of the value of 500*l.* over any mortgage.

The House of Assembly consists, according to the Fifth Delimitation Commission appointed on July 19, 1927, of 148 members chosen in Electoral Divisions in numbers as follows:—The Cape of Good Hope, 58; Natal, 17; Transvaal, 55; Orange Free State, 18. Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union. On April 10, 1930, a Bill was passed giving the vote to all women over 21, and it is proposed to remove the property or wage qualification for men. Each electoral district in each province returns one member, who must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union. A House of Assembly continues five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved.

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not pass a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor-General during the Session. Restrictions are placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate. Provision is made respecting disagreements between the Houses, the Royal Assent to Bills, and the disallowance of laws assented to by the Governor-General.

Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House cannot be elected to the other, but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member. To hold an office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as are also insolvency, crime, and insanity.

Pretoria is the seat of government of the Union, and Cape Town is the seat of Legislature.

Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief.—Earl of Clarendon, G.C.M.G. Appointed January 1931 (salary £10,000 per annum).

The Executive Council was constituted (November 1924) as follows :—

The Governor-General.

Prime Minister and Minister of External Affairs.—General The Honourable J. B. M. Hertzog (3,500*l.*).

Minister of the Interior, of Public Health and of Education.—The Honourable Dr. D. F. Malan (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Mines and Industries.—The Honourable A. P. J. Fourie, (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Railways and Harbours.—The Honourable C. W. Malan (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Finance.—The Honourable N. C. Havenga (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Justice.—The Honourable O. Pirow, K.C. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Defence and Labour.—Colonel The Honourable F. H. P. Creswell, D.S.O. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Agriculture.—General The Honourable J. C. G. Kemp (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Lands.—The Honourable P. G. W. Grobler (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and of Public Works.—The Honourable H. W. Sampson, O.B.E. (2,500*l.*).

Minister of Native Affairs.—Hon. E. G. Jansen.

Secretary to the Prime Minister and Secretary for External Affairs.—H. D. J. Bodenstein, LL.D.

The result of the elections in June 1929 was: Nationalists, 78; South African Party, 61; Labour (Creswell), 5; Labour (National Council), 3; Independent, 1: total, 148.

In each province there is an Administrator appointed by the Governor-General for five years, and a Provincial Council elected for three years, each council having an executive committee of four (either members or not of the council), the administrator presiding at its meetings. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The number of members in each Provincial Council is as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 51; Natal, 25; Transvaal, 50; Orange Free State, 25. The provincial committees and councils have authority to deal with local matters such as provincial finance, education (elementary), charity, municipal institutions, local works, roads and bridges, markets, fish and game, and penalties for breaches of laws respecting such subjects. Other matters may be delegated to these Councils. All ordinances passed by a Provincial Council are subject to the veto of the Governor-General-in-Council.

There is a provincial Revenue Fund in each province. The old colonial capitals are the capitals of the provinces.

The railways, ports, and harbours are managed by a Harbour and Railway Board, under the chairmanship of a Minister of State. The revenues therefrom are paid into a special fund. All other moneys received by the Union are paid into a Consolidated Revenue Fund, on which the interest on debts of the colonies forms a first charge. To the Union has been transferred the public property, real and personal, of the colonies.

The English and Dutch languages are both official. The word 'Dutch' has now been expressly declared by Act of Parliament to include Afrikaans, a local variant of the language of Holland.

High Commissioner in London.—Hon. C. te Water (appointed Sept., 1929.

Agent-General of the Government of India in South Africa.—Sir K. V. Reddi (1929).

Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States.—E. H. Louw (1929).

Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Holland.—D. J. de Villiers (1929).

Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Italy.—B. J. Prendar (1929).

High Commissioner for South Africa and High Commissioner for the United Kingdom in the Union of South Africa.—Sir Herbert Stanley, G.C.M.G. (appointed November 21, 1930).

The High Commissioner for South Africa is responsible for the administration of the territories in Basutoland, the Bechuanaland Protectorate, and Swaziland. The administration of native affairs and affairs specially or differentially affecting Asiatics vests in the Governor-General-in-Council. The government of the native territories of Basutoland, Bechuanaland Protectorate, and Swaziland may be transferred to the Union Government.

Area and Population.

The total area of the Union is 471,917 square miles divided between the Provinces as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 276,536; Natal, 35,284; Transvaal, 110,450; Orange Free State, 49,647.

The census taken in 1904 in each of the four Colonies was the first simultaneous census taken in South Africa. In 1911 the first Union census was taken.

The following tables give the returns of population at the various censuses, classified according to race and sex:—

Year	All Races			European		Non-European
	Total	European	Non-European	Males	Females	Males	Females
1904 . . .	5,175,824	1,116,806	4,059,018	635,117	481,689	2,047,118	2,011,900

1921 . . .	6,928,580	1,519,488	5,409,092	782,035	737,453	2,754,957	2,654,135
1926 . . .	—	1,676,660	—	856,918	819,742	—	—

The 1926 population census was a quinquennial one of Europeans only, and was taken under the provisions of the South Africa Act for the delimitation of political constituencies.

Walvis Bay, area 430 sq. miles, previously included in the area of the Cape Province, has been included for administrative purposes in the mandated territory of South West Africa.

Of the non-European population in 1921, 4,697,813 were Bantu, 165,731 Asiatic, and 545,548 of other races.

The increase in the total population, 1911–21, was: Union, 15·99 per cent.; Cape, 8·49 per cent.; Natal, 19·71 per cent.; Transvaal, 23·81 per cent.; O. F. S. 19·06 per cent. The increase in the European population in the Union, 1911–21, was 19·06 per cent., and in other races 15·16 per cent. The proportion of Europeans to the total population in 1921 was 21·93 per cent.

Principal towns (including suburbs) in the Union classified according to the number of inhabitants of European race, 1921 and 1926:—

Total	856,918	819,742	1,676,660

Migration.—1928. Gross Figures (excluding "Intransit,") European: Arrivals, 33,852; departures, 32,001. Non-European: Arrivals, 4,072; departures, 6,591.

Vital Statistics.—The following table gives the total numbers of marriages, births and deaths registered in the Union for recent years for all races :—

Year	European			Non-European[1]
	Births	Deaths	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Marriages
1924	42,346	15,503	12,742	54,285	44,709	15,832
1925	43,411	15,371	14,002	51,611	41,181	16,231
1926	43,876	16,080	14,908	53,348	41,713	17,090
1927	44,347	16,627	15,622	51,113	45,219	16,972
1928	44,813	17,642	16,848	52,577	45,810	18,131

[1] Partial Registration only.

Owing to wide variation of the laws relating to the registration of births and deaths of natives in the four provinces, and to the entire absence of native registration in one province, the figures of 1923 must be regarded as merely recording registrations and not the total number of actual events. Unifying Act No. 17 of 1923, which came into effect as from January 1, 1924, abolished compulsory registration of native vital events in rural areas, but made registration compulsory in all urban areas throughout the Union.

Religion.

Religions.—The results of the European census of 1926 as regards religions are as follows: — Europeans: Dutch Churches, 921,961; Anglicans, 311,281; Presbyterians, 79,516; Congregationalists, 9,965; Wesleyans, 105,217; Lutherans, 23,371; Roman Catholics, 71,227; Baptists, 17,316; Jews, 71,816; others and unspecified, 13,109; Christian Scientists, 3,930; Apostolic Faith, Mission Church, 15,544; other Christian sects, 32,432; total, 1,676,660. Non-Europeans as at the census of 1921:[1] Dutch Churches, 276,486; Anglican, 420,059; Presbyterians, 115,897; Independents (Congregationalists), 145,723; Wesleyans, 730,022; various Christian Sects, 57,186; Lutherans, 241,807; Roman Catholics, 82,008; Hindus, 109,261; Buddhists and Confucians, 14,127; Mahommedans, 49,936; no religion, 2,402,652; others and unspecified, 763,928; total, 5,409,092.

Education.

Under the South Africa Act, for a period of five years after the establishment of the Union and thereafter subject to decree of Parliament, control of education other than higher education was granted to the four Provincial Administrations. This arrangement still obtains. For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post-matriculation instruction and vocational education shall be deemed to constitute Higher Education.

Higher Education.—By legislation of 1916 three Universities, with teaching and examining functions, were established on April 2, 1918, in place of the University of the Cape of Good Hope, provision being made for the conversion of the South African College into the University of Cape Town, of the Victoria College into the University of Stellenbosch, and of the University of the Cape of Good Hope into a federal University, styled the University of South Africa, with the remainder of the University Colleges as constituent colleges, the names of which, with appropriate details, will be found in the table hereunder. In 1921 the University College of Johannesburg was created the University of the Witwatersrand, and Potchefstroom University College was incorporated as a constituent college of the University of South Africa. In October 1930, Transvaal University College, a constituent college of the University of South Africa, received its charter as the University of Pretoria.

Justice.

The Common Law of the Union is the Roman-Dutch Law, that is, the uncodified law of Holland as it was at the date of the cession of the Cape in 1806. The Law of England as such is not recognised as authoritative, though by Statute the principles of English Law relating to mercantile matters, e.g., companies, patents, trademarks, insolvency and the like, have been introduced. In shipping, insurance, and other modern business developments English Law is followed, and it has also largely influenced civil and criminal procedure. In all other matters, family relations, property, succession, contract, &c., Roman-Dutch Law rules, English decisions being valued only so far as they agree therewith. The prerogatives of the Crown are, generally speaking, the same as in England.

The Supreme Court consists of an Appellate Division with a Chief Justice and two ordinary and two additional Judges of Appeal. In each Province of the Union there is a Provincial Division of the Supreme Court; while in the Cape there are two Local Divisions, and in the Transvaal one, exercising the same jurisdiction within limited areas as the Provincial Divisions. The Judges hold office during good behaviour. The Circuit System is fully developed.

Each Province is further divided into Districts with a Magistrate's Court having a prescribed civil and criminal jurisdiction. From this Court there is an appeal to the Provincial and Local Divisions of the Supreme Court, and thence to the Appellate Division. A distinctive feature of the Criminal system is that Magistrates' convictions carrying sentences above a prescribed limit are subject to automatic review by a Judge.

Persons convicted, all courts, 1929: males, 409,183, females, 55,924.

Finance.

Prior to 1913–14 the expenditure of the four Provinces was entirely met from grants by the Union Government. Since then various Financial Relations Acts have been passed defining the conditions upon which subsidies shall be granted to the Provinces, assigning and transferring to them certain revenues and limiting their powers of taxation. Act No. 46 of 1925 bases the subsidy on the attendance of pupils receiving education, assigns certain revenues collected by the Union to the Provinces and gives special grants to the two smaller Provinces.

Defence.

The South Africa Defence Act 1912, which became law on June 14, 1912, as amended by the South Africa Defence Act Amendment Act of 1922, provides for the establishment of Defence Forces comprising:—

1. The South African Permanent Force, which consists of:—(i) The South African Staff Corps; (ii) The South African Instructional Corps; (iii) The South African Naval Service; (iv) The South African Field Artillery; (v) The South African Permanent Garrison Artillery; (vi) The South African Engineer Corps; (vii) The South African Air Force; (viii) The South African Service Corps; (ix) The South African Medical Corps;

(x) The South African Ordnance Corps; (xi) The South African Veterinary Corps; (xii) The South African Administrative, Pay, and Clerical Corps.

The South African Naval Service includes the officers and men of the South African Division of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve engaged for whole-time service. A surveying vessel of 800 tons and two minesweeping trawlers are maintained in commission.

2. The Active Citizen Force; 3. The Citizen Force Reserve; 4. The Coast Garrison Force Reserve; 5. The Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve; 6. The National Reserve; 7. Rifle Associations; and 8. Cadets.

Every citizen of European descent between the ages of 17 and 60 is liable to render personal service in time of war, and those between 17 and 25 are liable to undergo a prescribed peace training with the Active Citizen Force spread over a period of four consecutive years. The Act states, however, that only 50 per cent. of the total number liable to peace training shall actually undergo that training unless Parliament makes financial provision for the training of a greater number.

The establishment of Rifle Associations is a marked feature of the Act; citizens between the ages of 21 and 25 who are not entered for peace training with the Active Citizen Force are to be compelled to undergo training during these four years in a Rifle Association, thus ensuring that, in course of time, all citizens will at least know how to handle and use a rifle.

Provision is also made in the Act for the cadet training of boys between 13 and 17 in urban and other populous areas where facilities can conveniently be arranged.

The Union is divided into 6 military districts. To each military district have been allotted various units of different arms, to which the citizens entered for peace training in their 20th and 21st years are posted.

Under the 1922 Act the Permanent Force is relieved of all Police duties in peace time for which they were liable under the Act of 1912, and becomes a purely military force. Its strength in June, 1930, was 143 officers and 1,255 other ranks. The strength of the South African Air Force was 28 officers, 258 other ranks and 108 natives (non-combatants); 20 officers, nursing sisters and nurses and 11 other ranks of the Active Citizen Force are in whole-time employment.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—The production of wheat in recent years is shown by the following table.

Other products, excluding Native Reserves, &c., 1928: barley, 38,806,650 lbs.; oats, 190,450,800 lbs.; Kaffir corn, 178,681,000 lbs.; potatoes, 299,476,950 lbs.; tobacco, 22,019,416 lbs. 1927: barley, 51,585,300 lbs.; oats, 195,822,000 lbs.; Kaffir corn, 132,909,800 lbs.; potatoes, 237,901,050 lbs.; tobacco, 20,202,850 lbs

In 1928 the live-stock in the Union was as follows: 10,473,286 cattle; 42,500,276 sheep; 7,475,142 goats; 835,236 pigs (horses, mules, donkeys and ostriches not enumerated).

The production of wool in 1928 was 216,924,103 lbs., and of mohair, 5,268,062 lbs. The export of ostrich feathers in 1928 was valued at 31,458*l.*; hides and skins at 4,656,659*l.* and wattle bark and extract at 975,069*l.* 1928: wool, scoured and greasy, 253,508,000 lbs.; mohair, 7,703,816 lbs.

Cotton-growing is now undertaken by many farmers, the plant being found a better drought resistant than either tobacco or maize. Yield in 1928, 12,013,970 lbs. Sugar is also cultivated; yield of 1927–28 season, 247,273 tons. The area under tea (1928) was 3,357 acres, from which the yield was 3,325,674 lbs. (green leaf). It is estimated that some 15,000 acres of land suitable for tea plantations are available.

On March 31, 1929, the forest reserve areas comprised 2,296,093 acres demarcated, and 470,024 acres undemarcated: total, 2,766,117 acres.

Irrigation.—Technical and financial assistance is given by the State under the Union Irrigation Law of 1912, which was designed to encourage irrigation. The Government expenditure on irrigation in 1926–27, 1927–28, and 1928–29 was 160,331*l.*, 143,139*l.* and 140,055*l.* respectively from Loan Funds and 182,587*l.*, 187,825*l.* and 194,914*l.* respectively from revenue.

Manufactures.—The report on the industrial census in the Union in 1927–28 gives the value added by process of manufacture, &c., as 51,521,333*l.*, and the value of the gross production of the industries covered at 106,981,697*l.* The total number of factories which made returns was 7,360. Value of land and buildings, 23,712,847*l.*, machinery, plant, and tools, 36,402,003*l.*, of materials used, 55,460,364*l.*, and cost of fuel, light, and power, 3,538,585*l.* Average number of persons employed, 207,736 (Europeans, 84,978). Wages paid, 25,293,822*l.* The gross value of the output of the principal groups of industries was: food, drink, &c., 33,919,688*l.*; metals, engineering, &c., 20,872,309*l.*; chemicals, &c., 7,047,015*l.*; heat, light, and power, 6,364,147*l.*: building, &c., 9,696,399*l.*; clothing, textiles, &c., 4,597,081*l.*; books, printing, &c., 5,200,384*l.*; leather, &c., 3,727,276*l.*; stone, clay, &c., 3,446,319*l.*; vehicles, 4,146,138*l.*; furniture, &c., 2,168,671*l.*

Mining.—The table hereunder gives the total value of the principal minerals produced in the Union to December 31, 1928. The value of gold is calculated at 4·24773*l.* per fine ounce up to 1919, when the gold premium came into effect, as from the 24th of July, and from 1925 onwards when the gold premium ceased to operate. Copper, tin, antimony, scheelite, and silver are valued on the estimated pure metal contained in shipments according to the average current prices in London. The value of other base minerals is calculated on average local prices.

Shipping and Communications.

Oversea shipping 1929: entered, 1,468 vessels of 5,233,225 tons net; cleared, 1,465 of 5,245,880 tons. Coastwise: entered, 4,132 vessels of 10,263,779 tons net; cleared, 4,121 of 10,281,653 tons.

Prior to the Union the State Railways of the several colonies were operated by the separate Governments. In May, 1910, the Government lines were merged into one system, the South African Railways, under the control of the Union Government. The total open mileage at the end of March, 1929, was 12,597 (comprising Cape 5,055 miles, Orange Free State 1,548 miles, Transvaal 3,175 miles, Natal 1,455 miles, and South West Africa 1,364 miles), of which 11,701 miles are 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, and 896 miles 2 ft. gauge. Capital expenditure on Government Railways up to March 1929, amounted to 138,921,930*l.* Earnings, 1928–29, 26,090,712*l.*; working expenditure, 1928–29, 20,298,664*l.*, including depreciation amounting to 1,500,000*l.*; passengers, 1928–29, 81,994,517. Mileage of private lines, 1928–29, 411 miles (Cape 249, Natal 84, O.F.S. 4, and South West Africa 74).

At the end of 1929–30 there were in the Union 3,334 post and 2,801 telegraph offices; 6,555,215 telegrams of all classes were forwarded. The number of money orders issued during the year 1929–30 was 634,097, while 601,574 orders were paid. 4,354,317 postal orders were issued, and 3,860,341 paid. The cash revenue of the Department of Posts and Telegraphs, 1928–29, was 3,900,983*l.*; expenditure, 3,095,411*l.* The revenue figures include 541,540*l.*, from the telegraph service, and 1,492,392*l.* from the telephone service.

At the end of March, 1930, there were 36,057 miles of telegraph wire, and 370,826 miles of telephone wire in use; there were 100,473 telephone instruments and 70,041 subscribers. A station working on the "beam" sytsem and in direct communication with the United Kingdom was opened for the acceptance of public traffic on July 5, 1927.

The number of depositors in the Government Savings Bank in the Union at the end of March, 1930, was 420,351, and the amount standing to their credit 6,075,759*l.*

[1] In December, 1920, under the South African Currency and Banking Act, 1920, a Central Reserve Bank was established at Pretoria. It commenced operations in June, 1921, and began to issue notes in April, 1922. Liability for the outstanding notes of the commercial banks was transferred to it on June 30, 1924, and amounted to 165,784*l.* on March 31, 1930. A branch was opened in Johannesburg on September 1, 1925, and further branches at Cape Town, Durban, Port Elizabeth and East London by the end of the year.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

An Act of 1922 provided for the issue of a Union Coinage with denominations identical with those of British Coins, which remain legal tender, and a branch of the Royal Mint has been established at Pretoria.

Union of South Africa silver and bronze coins of 2*s.* 6*d.*, 2*s.*, 1*s.*, 6*d.*, 3*d.*, 1*d.*, ½*d.*, ¼*d.* are being coined and are in circulation. A considerable portion of the gold output is being minted.

An Act (No. 22 of 1922) was passed legalizing the optional use of either the metric or the imperial standard weights and measures, but under a proclamation of 1923 the cwt. has been replaced by the 'cental' of 100 lbs. The following old Dutch measures are, however, still in use:—Liquid Measure: Leaguer = about 128 imperial gallons; half aum = 15½ imperial gallons; anker = 7½ imperial gallons. Capacity: Muid = 3 bushels. The customary surface measure is the Morgen, equal to 2·1165402 acres; 1,000 Cape lineal feet are equal to 1,033 British imperial feet.

PROVINCE OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Constitution and Government.—The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope was originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652. Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803. A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession since that date. It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 13, 1814. Letters Patent issued in 1850 declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming an original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administrator.—The Hon. J. H. Conradie. Appointed 1929. (Salary 2,500*l.*)

The Province is divided into 125 magisterial districts, and the Province proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into 90 divisions. Each division has a Council of at least 6 members (14 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the owners or occupiers of immovable property. The duties devolving upon Divisional Councils include the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges, control of outspans, trekpaths and public servitudes, destruction of noxious weeds, and preservation of public health.

There are 128 Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor or Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom are elected annually by the ratepayers. There are also 70 Village Management Boards.

Area and Population.—The following table gives the population of the Cape of Good Hope at each census :—

[1] Partial registration.

Religion.—In 1926 (Europeans only) there were 678,309 Christians—410,227 members of Dutch Churches, 132,703 Anglicans, 25,539 Presbyterians, 4,494 Congregationalists, 42,043 Methodists, 10,781 Lutherans, 28,023 Roman Catholics, 10,149 Baptists, and 14,350 other Christian sects. Jews 23,984, others 3,844.

Education.—Local school administration is conducted by school boards and school committees, the unit of administration being the school district. There are now (1929) 110 such districts, each under the control of a school board, two-thirds of whose members are elected by the ratepayers and one-third nominated by Government and local authority. Education is compulsory for children of European parentage. Grants in support of education are provided from Provincial Council revenues, primary education being free.

Provincial expenditure in 1929–30 on education (excluding Higher Education, which is under control of the Central Government) amounted to 2,726,974*l.* on European, and 667,043*l.* on non-European education.

In 1929 there were 2,351 public and 34 aided private schools for European scholars, and in addition 12 Institutions for the training of teachers. There were 141,109 European pupils, mostly under School Boards, and a total of 6,393 teachers. There were 2,319 public and aided private schools for non-European scholars, of which 16 were industrial schools and 22 training institutions for teachers. Altogether, there were 5,406 teachers in non-European schools, and a total of 199,683 pupils, mostly under churches and missionary bodies.

Pauperism.—There is no organised system of poor-law relief, but in 1928–29, 30,648*l.* was distributed in such relief.

An Old Age Pension Act was passed in 1928, and came into force on January 1, 1929. The Act provides for an amount of 30*l.* per annum being paid to indigenous European persons who reach the age of 65, and 18*l.* per annum to persons of mixed or coloured race—but not Bantus. Up to July 22, 1929, awards had been made to 31,106 Europeans, and 12,623 coloured persons. It is anticipated that 900,000*l.* will be required to meet the claims in 1929–30.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. Since the passing of the Financial Relations Act, 1913, the Provincial revenue consists of certain revenues assigned to the Province and an amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidy. The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years —

	1924-25	1925-26	1926-27	1927-28	1928-29

PROVINCE OF NATAL.

Constitution and Government.—Natal was annexed to Cape Colony in 1844, placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, erected into a separate Colony. By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893, assented to by Order in Council, June 26, 1893, the Colony obtained responsible government. The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897. The districts of Vryheid, Utrecht and part of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, were annexed in January, 1903. On May 31, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg.

Administrator.—The Hon. H. Gordon Watson (Jan. 1928) (2,000*l.*)

Area and Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,427 square miles) has an area of 35,284 square miles, with a seaboard of about 360 miles. The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland. It is well suited to Europeans. The Province is divided into 41 Magisterial Districts.

The European population has more than trebled since 1879. The returns of the total population at the last six censuses were :—

Census Year	All Races			European		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females
1891 . .	543,913	268,062	275,851	25,787	21,001	242,275	254,850

The figures for 1891 exclude Zululand; those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango.

Population of Durban according to the census of 1921: European 58,085 other 93,557, total 151,642; and of Pietermaritzburg: European 17,998, coloured 18,025, total 36,023. The European population of Durban in 1918 was 48,413, and of Pietermaritzburg, 18,525. The census figures for the European population of Durban in 1926 are 70,883, and of Pietermaritzburg, 19,748.

Education.—With the exception of Higher Technical and Vocational Education which is under the control of the Union Government, Education comes under the Provincial Administration. In 1929 there were, for children of European extraction, 166 schools giving primary, 28 giving beyond primary education, in all 194 schools, which were supported either entirely or partially by Government funds. In addition there were 1 training school for teachers, and 241 farm schools. For non-European children, there were 691 native schools; 76 Asiatic schools and 22 other coloured schools, State and State-aided. The average number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 25,910 for 1929; the average daily attendance 92 per cent. of the number on the registers. The number of native, Asiatic, and coloured children receiving instruction in 1929 amounted to 62,511. A sum of 152,335*l.* was spent on native, Asiatic and coloured education, during the year 1929–30 out of public funds; the corresponding figure in respect of European education was 556,978*l.* It is estimated that only a very small percentage of European children are receiving no education.

Ordinary expenditure, 1928–29: general administration, 60,293*l.*; education, 723,549*l.*; hospitals and poor relief, 159,595*l.*; roads, bridges, works, 313,251*l.* The capital expenditure in 1928–29 was 216,676*l.*

Production and Industry.—On the Coast and in Zululand there are vast plantations of sugar (output, 1928–29, 295,934 tons) and tea, while cereals of all kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, the Acacia molissima, the bark of which is so much used for tanning purposes, and other crops are produced.

The Province is rich in mineral wealth, particularly coal. Other minerals are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin ore. For figures of mineral production, see p. 234.

The various factory industries of Natal in 1927–28 numbered 1,088, with an annual output valued at 24,128,297*l.* They had 11,088,433*l.* invested in machinery, etc.; annually used materials worth 13,776,343*l.*; and paid 4,550,865*l.* yearly in wages to 42,837 employees.

A Whaling Industry was commenced at Durban in 1908. It is regulated by the Provincial Government, as indiscriminate slaughter was driving the whales away from the South African waters.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces

PROVINCE OF THE TRANSVAAL.

Constitution and Government.—The territory was colonised by Boers from Cape Colony in 1836-37. In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers, the territory was annexed by the British Government. In 1880 the Boers rebelled, and in 1881 a Convention was signed restoring self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the British Crown. This arrangement was modified by a Convention in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State ; but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to the Crown. The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties finally resulting in war. This led to the annexation of both States to the British Crown, the one on September 1, 1900, under the name of The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony. Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902. [See STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1906, under The Transvaal.]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council. On December 6, 1906, Letters Patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony. The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910, as an original Province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government for the Transvaal is at Pretoria.

Administrator.—The Hon. J. S. Smit. Appointed November 2, 1928 (salary, 2,500*l.*).

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 110,450 square miles, divided into 37 districts. The following table shows the population at each of the last six censuses :—

Census Year	All Races			European		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females

Education.—All education except that of a university and of a vocational type is under the provincial authority. The Province has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into thirty-two school districts. Instruction in Government Schools, both primary and secondary, is free.

The following statistics of education are for the year ending Dec. 31, 1929: 1,197 primary schools with 122,229 pupils; 40 beyond primary schools, with an enrolment of 11,545 pupils; 635 State and State-aided schools for coloured, native and Indian children, with 72,700 pupils. There are four training institutions for European teachers, with 845 students; and five for coloured and native teachers, with 383 students. During the year 1929, 3,146,393*l.* was expended for educational purposes.

The medium of instruction up to the fourth standard is the home language (English or Afrikaans) of the pupil, but parents may request that the other language be gradually introduced as a second medium. Above the fourth standard both languages may be used at the parents' option or as occasion allows. Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught.

Finance.—For financial arrangements, see p. 228 above.

The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years:—

	1924–25	1925–26	1926–27	1927–28	1928–29

Ordinary Expenditure, 1928–29: General administration, 136,224*l.*; education, 2,947,026*l.*; hospitals and poor relief, 470,193*l.*; roads, bridges, works, 550,525*l.* The capital expenditure in 1928–29 was 251,319*l.*

The Provincial Revenue is mainly derived from Licences, Native Pass Fees, Poll Tax, Transfer Duty and Companies' Tax.

Production and Industry.—The Province is in the main a stock-raising country, though there are considerable areas well adapted for agriculture, including the growing of tropical crops.

The live-stock numbered, in 1928, 3,019,123 cattle; 5,500,600 sheep; 905,651 goats.

For mineral production, see above, p. 234. The Province has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain-mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works, &c. The Transvaal gold output in 1928 was valued at 43,982,119*l.*, in 1929 at 44,259,780*l.*, and in 1930 at 45,558,980*l.*

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces.

PROVINCE OF THE ORANGE FREE STATE.

The Orange River was first crossed by Europeans about the middle of the 18th century. Between 1810 and 1820, settlements were made in the southern parts of the Orange Free State, and the Great Trek greatly augmented the number of settlers during and after 1836. In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole territory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as a British Possession and established what was called the Orange River Sovereignty. Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, as well as by the native policy of the British Government. In 1854, by the Convention of Bloemfontein, British Sovereignty was withdrawn and the independence of the country was recognised.

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much harassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. These were at length conquered. The British Government then stepped in and arranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party. By the treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of the Basutos was incorporated in the Orange Free State.

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899–1902), and was annexed on May 28, 1900, as the Orange River Colony. After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1907, when responsible government was introduced. On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State.

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein.

Administrator.—The Hon. C. T. Wilcocks (salary, 2,000*l.*)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, 61 in all; local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 49,647 square miles; it is divided into 31 districts. The census population has varied as follows:—

Census Year	All Races			European		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females
1880 .	133,518	70,150	63,368	31,906	29,116	38,244	34,252

1926 .	—	—	—	104,392	98,593	—	—

The capital, Bloemfontein, had, in 1921, 19,367 white inhabitants, and 19,667 natives and other coloured persons; total, 39,034. The 1926 Census figures for the European population are 22,695.

Religion.—The census of 1926 (Europeans only) gave the following results: Dutch Churches, 163,504; Anglican Churches, 13,235; Presbyterians, 3,945; Methodists, 7,478; Lutherans, 893; Roman Catholics, 2,516; Apostolic Faith Mission Church, 1,889; Jews, 5,753; others, 3,772.

Education.—Higher and vocational education is under the control of the Union Education Department, while primary and secondary education and the training of teachers are controlled and financed by the Provincial Administration. The amount spent during year ended March 31, 1930, on European education was 892,932*l.*, and on non-European education, 38,066*l.* Under the Education Ordinance of 1920 the Province is divided into 61 School Board Districts, for each of which there is a School Board elected by the School Committees in the district. In 1929 there were 748 European public schools and 83 aided private schools in the Province, with a total enrolment of 44,999 pupils. The number of teachers in European schools totalled 2,126. Similarly, there were 228 non-European public and aided private schools with total enrolment of 23,176 and 2 Training Institutions for native teachers; the number of teachers was 541. Education is free in all public schools up to the University Matriculation standard, but certain schools are allowed to charge fees and to expend the proceeds for the advantage of the schools. Attendance is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 16, but exemption may be granted in special cases or when a child has passed Standard VI and is in regular employment. Unless parents object, the two official languages—English and Afrikaans—are taught to all pupils, the home language of the pupil being the chief medium of instruction and the second language being introduced gradually during the primary school course. In all the towns and villages of the Province there are either secondary or intermediate schools preparing pupils up to the standard of the University Matriculation. The Normal College trains about 200 teachers annually.

Finance.—For financial arrangements see p. 232 above. The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years:—

Production and Industry.—The Province consists of undulating plains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracts for agricultural purposes. The rainfall is moderate. The country is still mainly devoted to stock-farming, although a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in the Eastern Districts.

For Mineral Statistics see p. 236.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces.

The money, weights, and measures are English. The land measure, the Morgen, is equal to about 2·1165 acres.

WEST AFRICA.

These Possessions are the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria; the Gambia Colony and Protectorate; the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories; and the Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate.

Parts of Togoland and the Cameroons are also included as mandated territories.

NIGERIA.

History and Constitution.—This territory comprises a number of areas formerly under separate administrations. Lagos, bought in August, 1861, from a native king, was placed under the Governor of Sierra Leone in 1866. In 1874 it was detached, together with the Gold Coast Colony, and formed part of the latter until January, 1886, when a separate 'Colony and Protectorate of Lagos' was constituted. Meanwhile the National African Company had established British interests in the Niger valley, and in July, 1886, the company obtained a charter under the name of the Royal Niger Company. This Company surrendered its charter to the Crown in 1899, and on January 1, 1900, its territories were formed into the two Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria. The latter absorbed the 'Niger Coast Protectorate,' which was formed in May, 1893, from the 'Protectorate of the Oil Rivers,' which had been constituted in June, 1885. In February, 1906, Lagos and Southern Nigeria were united into the 'Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria,' and on January 1, 1914, the latter was amalgamated with the Protectorate of Northern Nigeria to form the 'Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria,' under a Governor. Lagos is the seat of the Central Government.

The Colony of Nigeria had its boundaries defined afresh, and the Protectorate was divided into two groups of provinces, the 'Northern Provinces' and the 'Southern Provinces,' each under a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the King, and subject to the control and authority of the Governor.

The British mandated territory of Cameroon is now attached to Nigeria for administrative purposes.

The Executive Council of the Colony was made, from January 1, 1914, the Executive Council of the Protectorate also. It consists of a few of the senior officials. There is a Legislative Council, created by Order in Council in November 1922, consisting of the Governor, the members of the Executive Council, and other official members (total official membership not exceeding 30); three members elected by the ratepayers of Lagos; one member elected by the ratepayers of Calabar; four members selected respectively by the Chambers of Commerce of Lagos, Port Harcourt and Kano, and the local Chamber of Mines; two members to represent respectively Banking and Shipping interests; and eight members to represent African interests in those parts of the Colony and Southern Provinces which do not return elected representatives. This Council legislates for the Colony and the Southern Provinces of the Protectorate, laws affecting the Northern Provinces being enacted by the Governor as heretofore.

Governor of Nigeria.—Sir Donald C. Cameron, K.C.B. (appointed December, 1930).

Chief Secretary to the Government.—G. Hemmant, C.M.G.

Lieutenant-Governors in the Protectorate.—Capt. W. Buchanan-Smith, C.M.G., M.C. (Southern Provinces); C. W. Alexander, C.M.G. (Northern Provinces).

There are altogether 24 provinces, including Cameroons, each under the immediate control of a Resident. In many provinces the administration is in the hands of the paramount chief and his officials.

Area and Population.—Area approximately 335,700 square miles; population, 19,409,001, including about 5,939 Europeans (Northern Provinces: 275,724 square miles, 11,047,275 population. Southern Provinces: 89,670 square miles, 8,361,726 population). The population of the Northern Provinces consists of several principal racial groups of Sudanese origin, in many of which a state of political organisation had been reached which facilitated and encouraged the policy of administration through native rulers and chiefs and existing native institutions. Similar conditions existed in a limited area in the Southern Provinces and the same policy has been extended mutatis mutandis to the thickly populated areas of more primitive peoples.

Justice.—The Chief Justice is the president of the Supreme Court of Nigeria, and three other judges are stationed in Lagos and one in Calabar. Police Magistrates have District Courts at Lagos and Ebute Metta, and Station Magistrates at Port Harcourt, Ibadan, Warri, Onitsha, Enugu, Calabar, Kaduna, Jos, Lokoja, Kano, and Zaria. In the other places where the Supreme Court has jurisdiction, District Officers have the same powers as Police and Station Magistrates. In each province is a Provincial Court consisting of the Resident and his assistants, and such Justices of the Peace as may be appointed by the Governor. Native courts exist in Mohammedan localities where there are chiefs and councillors, and amongst pagan tribes Judicial Councils with limited judicial powers have been established in localities where the intelligence of the natives renders such a policy possible. The number of persons summoned before the District and Provincial Courts in 1929 was 26,826 of whom 20,450 were convicted; while 115,583 persons were convicted in the Divisional and Native Courts.

Religion and Education.—Northern Provinces.—In this area the majority of the population has adopted the religion and social system of Islam. There are, however, regions into which Islam has not penetrated, and where therefore, the social life of the people is still very primitive and their religion some form of animism. In the Mohammedan Emirates education is chiefly in the hands of the Government, while the Missions concentrate upon the Pagans. The main principles underlying the educational policy are the use of vernacular in elementary education, the correlation at every stage of manual and literary subjects, and the provision at the top of more advanced education for the best pupils from the lower grades. The latest figures show that there are 30,203 Koran Schools with 300,500 pupils, 253 Elementary and Primary Schools with 9,200 pupils, 12 Middle Schools with 1,000 pupils, and 2 Training Institutions having a combined roll of 140 students.

Southern Provinces.—Although the vast majority of the inhabitants are wholly pagan, Christianity, presented by the various Christian Missions, and Islam, assimilated by contact with numerous African adherents, are rapidly gaining ground. The lower stages of education are mainly given in Mission schools or schools conducted by the African Churches and similar agencies. More advanced education is given in some Mission and Government institutions. The direction of policy and the supervision and inspection of all schools is undertaken by the Government Department of Education. The latest figures show that there are, in the Elementary or Primary grade, 2,732 schools with 185,500 pupils, and also 19 Secondary Schools with 700 pupils, and 15 Training Institutions having a total roll of 500 students.

Six British, three French, one American, and the Basel Missionary Societies are working in the country as well as the Salvation Army and the different African Churches.

There is established in each native State in the Northern Provinces a Treasury which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance. There are also native treasuries in a few of the more advanced States in the Southern provinces.

Production and Industry.—The products are palm-oil (exports 1929, 131,845 tons) and kernels (exports 1929, 251,477 tons); cotton lint (exports 1929, 117,302 cwt.), cocoa (exports 1929, 55,236 tons), mahogany (exports 1929, 17,211 tons), tin ore (exports 1929, 15,129 tons). Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed. The natives have worked iron, lead, and tin for centuries. There are also deposits of coal, silver, galena, manganese ore, lignite, and monazite (which contains thorium).

Mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, that Company receives half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals won between the main stream of the Niger on the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the east, for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900.

Commerce.—The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Sapele, Koko, Akassa, Degema, Port Harcourt, Bonny, Opobo, Calabar, Tiko, and Victoria. Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are many well-made roads.

Considerable trade is carried on in the Northern Provinces. There is also a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga in the west, the Sahara in the north, and Lake Chad and Wadai in the east, make use of Kano as an emporium.

The trade and shipping of Nigeria are shown as follows (bullion and specie are included):—

Year	Trade		Shipping entered and cleared
	Imports	Exports	Total	British only
	£	£	Tons	Tons

Imports from the British Empire, 1929, 9,772,187*l.*, and from U.S.A., 1,005,162*l.*

Communications.—The railway system comprises (1) a Western line from Lagos to Kano (704¼ miles), crossing the Niger by bridge at Jebba, with branches from Minna to Baro (111 miles) and from Zaria to the Bauchi tin fields (Jos) (133 miles, light railway); and from Zaria Ka to Kaura Namoda (137 miles); and from Ifo to Idogo (27 miles). The Kano–N'Guru extension was opened on October 1, 1930. (2) An Eastern line (569 miles) from Port Harcourt to Kaduna on the Western Railway, crossing the Benue by train ferry at Makurdi with a branch line connecting from Kafanchan junction (mile 458¼) with the tinfields (Jos)—62¾ miles. Total capital expenditure on Nigerian railway, to end of March, 1930, 19,765,483*l.*; gross receipts, 1930, 2,692,661*l.*; working expenditure, 1,229,365*l.*; gross expenditure, 1,655,716*l.*; net profit, 1,036,945*l.*; passengers carried, 3,851,060; goods and minerals transported, 929,608 tons.

The Railway also control the Udi Coar Mines at Enugu, the output of which was 347,115 tons for the year ending March 31, 1930.

There is a wireless station at Lagos under the control of the Eastern Telegraph Company for ship to shore communication.

In 1929 there were 159 Post Offices in Nigeria and the British sphere of the Cameroons. The Savings Bank on Dec. 31, 1929, had 9,842 depositors, with 37,743*l.* to their credit.

A special silver coinage for West Africa was introduced in 1913, the denominations being 2*s.*, 1*s.*, 6*d.*, and 3*d.*, of the same size, weight, and fineness as corresponding coins of the United Kingdom. The new currency, with adequate reserves in London, based on gold and securities, is under the control of the West African Currency Board. A nickel coinage (penny, half-penny, and tenth of a penny) is also in use. In 1916 local currency notes were introduced (present denominations 20*s.* and 10*s.*), and in 1920 an alloy coinage of similar denominations to the silver coinage was added.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd., and Barclays (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) Bank, Ltd., have branches in Nigeria.

GAMBIA.

Governor.—Herbert R. Palmer, C.M.G., C.B.E. (2,500*l.*, and 750*l.* allowances). Appointed February, 1930.

Gambia was discovered by the early Portuguese navigators, but they made no settlement. During the seventeenth century various companies of merchants obtained trading charters and established a settlement on the river, which, from 1807, was controlled from Sierra Leone; in 1843 it was made an independent Crown Colony; in 1866 it formed part of the West African Settlements, but in December, 1888, it again became a separate Crown Colony. It is administered under a Governor with an Executive and a nominated Legislative Council containing an unofficial element. With the exception of the Island of St. Mary, on which Bathurst, the capital, stands, the whole Colony is administered on the Protectorate system. Since 1901 both banks of the Gambia have been under direct British control up to the Anglo-French boundary.

Area of Colony proper, 4 square miles; population, 10,000. In the Protectorate (area, 4,130 square miles) the population in 1921 was about 200,000.

There were, in 1929, 6 elementary Government-aided schools and 3 Government Mahommedan schools, with 2,164 pupils enrolled, and an average attendance of 1,228; Government grant, proportional to results (1929), 1,954*l.* Of the elementary schools 2 are Roman Catholic, 3 Wesleyan, and 1 Anglican. The Wesleyans and Roman Catholics each have 2 secondary schools with a total of 38 boys and 108 girls enrolled. In May, 1929, Government opened a Vernacular School in the Protectorate, and this has had an average attendance of 31 pupils. In June, 1929, a Government Vocational School was opened at which boys from the assisted elementary schools attend for one half day a week. Total Government expenditure on education (1929), 6,455*l.*

There is a company of the West African Frontier Force of 142 men. The armed police has a strength of 142 men

The tonnage of the 565 vessels entered and cleared in the foreign trade in 1929 was 1,280,888 tons, of which 869,626 were British.

Internal communication is maintained by steamers or launches. There are four post offices, but postal facilities are afforded to all river towns by means of a weekly travelling post office on the Government river mail-steamers. Postal packets and parcels dealt with in 1929, 321,869. Bathurst is connected with St. Vincent (Cape de Verde) and with Sierra Leone by cable, but there are no local railways. Bathurst is in wireless communication with Georgetown, Kuntaur and Basse in the Protectorate. The Post Office Savings Bank had 643 depositors holding deposits value 1,639*l.* in 1929. A special

West African alloy currency was introduced in 1920 (see under Nigeria, p. 254). West African currency notes in circulation December 31, 1929, amounted to 201,544*l*. There is one bank in the Colony, the Bank of British West Africa.

GOLD COAST.

The Gold Coast first became known through Portuguese navigators in the fourteenth century, and English and Dutch traders and companies exploited the district in the seventeenth century, their main object being the slave traffic. The Dutch held settlements on the coast until 1871, when a convention was made transferring them to the English. The Colony stretches for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea, between the French Ivory Coast and Togoland. It is administered by a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council. Attached to it inland are Ashanti and the Northern Territories. The British mandated territory of Togoland is also attached to the Gold Coast for administrative purposes.

The area of the Colony, Ashanti, and Protectorate is about 80,000 square miles; population, census 1921, 2,078,043; Europeans, 2,165. Chief towns: Accra, 38,000; Sekondi, 10,000; Cape Coast, 15,000; Keta, 10,000; Winneba, 7,000; Saltpond, 6,500; Koforidua, 5,500.

In the Colony, Ashanti, the Northern Territories and the British mandated territory of Togoland there were, in 1929–30, 32 Government Schools (including 2 kindergarten, 1 technical and 4 junior trade schools), 246 assisted schools (including 2 secondary schools and 3 training colleges) which are under the control of the various missions, and the Prince of Wales' College at Achimota (formally opened on January 28, 1928), and including kindergarten, primary, secondary and university courses and classes for the training of teachers). The total number of pupils on the roll of Government and assisted schools was 40,259, of whom 8,691 were girls, and 464 were teachers in training. There are in addition a large number of non-assisted schools supported by the various religious bodies. Government expenditure on education in 1929–30 (including the Northern Territories but excluding Achimota) was 215,300*l*.

The strength of the police, which is distributed throughout the Gold Coast Colony, Ashanti, British Mandated Togoland and the Northern Territories is (1930–31) 39 European officers and 2,018 other ranks. Summary convictions (1930–31) 23,131.

Staple products and exports, cocoa, gold, manganese, diamonds, kola nuts, mahogany, palm kernels, rubber, copra, and palm oil; in 1929 there were 150 horses, 50 asses, 100,000 sheep and goats, and 1,500 pigs and 35,000 cattle. Many of the coast inhabitants are fishermen, and there is considerable traffic in dried fish by rail into the interior.

There is a wireless telegraph station at Takoradi. The number of letters, packets, &c., handled in the postal service in 1929–30 was 8,322,068. In 1929–30 the savings bank had 12,361 depositors with 98,362*l.* to their credit.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd. and Barclay's Bank (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) operate in the Colony and Ashanti. For currency, see p. 254. West African currency notes in circulation at March 31, 1928, amounted to 1,691,166*l.*; March 31, 1929, 1,831,663*l.*; March 31, 1930, 1,935,379*l.*

Ashanti was placed under British protection on August 27, 1896. Under Orders in Council of September 26, 1901, the country was definitely annexed by Great Britain, the Governor of the Gold Coast being appointed Governor of Ashanti, though only some of the laws and ordinances of the Gold Coast apply to the annexed territory. The area is 24,560 square miles and the population (census 1921) was 407,000; Europeans (1921), 400. Kumasi, the chief town, has about 25,000 inhabitants. For purposes of education, Ashanti is considered as part of the Gold Coast. The number of children in the Government schools was (1929) 1,154, and in the mission schools, 3,668. At the Agricultural and Forestry Training Centre 48 students were in residence during 1928–29. Police force (1929–30), 3 European officers and 267 other ranks. Prosecutions, 1929–30, 6,066, but there is little serious crime. There are 1,191 miles of motor roads. Agriculture is the staple industry. 60,413 tons of cocoa were exported by rail in 1928–29. Gold output (1929–30), 131,198 oz. (557,330*l.*). Average number employed in mining industry, 3,004 in 1929–30.

In the western parts of the Colony are rich forests of mahogany, cedar, &c., and trees yielding fruits, oil, rubber, and gum copal. This district has been opened up by a trunk motor road from Kumasi to Pamu on the western frontier, via Sunyani, with the accompanying branch roads. The country is well watered, and with proper restraint it would contain inexhaustible supplies of valuable forest products. On the eastern side the forests are sparser, though timber and oil trees are common and game fairly plentiful; the products there are chiefly maize, yams, coco-yams, bananas, ground-nuts, and cocoa, the plantations of which are rapidly extending.

In 1929 there were 1,000 cattle, 50,000 sheep and goats, and 8,000 pigs.

The Northern Territories lying to the north of the parallel of 8° N. lat., bounded on the west and north by the French possessions and on the east by Togoland, were placed under British protection in 1901. They are administered, under the Governor, by a Chief Commissioner and 21 Political officers. The country is divided into two provinces Northern and Southern, with headquarters at Tamale in the Southern Province, 237 miles north of Kumasi. Population (1921), 527,914; Europeans (1921), 49. Chief towns, Tamale, 4,000; Navrengo, 15,000. Area of the Protectorate, 35,000 square miles; Mandated Territory is about 10,000 square miles in addition. Police force (1929-30), 2 European officers and 309 other ranks. The Mohammedans have substantial mosques; there are Roman Catholic and other missions. For purposes of education the Northern Province is considered as part of the Gold Coast, though still having a separate Ordinance and Rules. A new scheme of education was inaugurated on April 1, 1927, under a Superintendent of Education, with European masters on his staff. Government schools exist at Tamale, Gambaga, Salaga, and Wa. Pupils in 1929, 761. There is now a veterinary school in Tamale. There are also Mohammedan schools. There are 794 miles of motorable roads in dry season. The chief crops grown are yams, guinea corn, millet, maize, rice, and tobacco. Livestock, 1929: cattle, 110,000; sheep and goats, 250,000; donkeys, 9,550; horses, 2,850. There are 5 quarantine stations through which foreign cattle and sheep enter the Protectorate. Gold-bearing quartz and alluvial deposits, and mica, exist.

SIERRA LEONE.

The Colony of Sierra Leone originated in the sale and cession, in 1788, by a native King to English settlers, of a piece of land intended as a home for natives of Africa who were waifs in London; and later it was used as a settlement for Africans rescued from slave-ships. It lies between French Guinea on the north and the Republic of Liberia on the east and south-east. Sierra Leone proper consists of a peninsula about 26 miles long, and 12 miles broad, with an area of about 260 square miles, terminating in Cape Sierra Leone. The Colony of Sierra Leone extends from the Scarcies River on the north, to the border of Liberia on the south, 180 miles. Inland it extends to a distance varying from 8 to 20 miles and includes the Yellaboi and other islands towards the north, as well as Sherbro and several smaller islands to the south, but the Isles de Los were ceded to France under the Convention of 1904. There are for the Colony and Protectorate a nominated Executive Council and a Legislative Council consisting of the Governor, twelve official members, three elected unofficial members, and not more than seven nominated unofficial members, of whom three are paramount chiefs of the Protectorate. Elected members must be 25 years of age, and hold their seats for five years. The franchise is confined to males.

Area of the Colony 4,000 square miles approximately; population (census 1921), 85,163. Europeans, 1921, numbered 1,161. The birth-rate (1929) was 24·8 per thousand, and the death-rate 32·8; infantile mortality-rate 319 per 1,000 registered births. Owing to the fact that many births escape registration, the birth-rate appears lower and the infantile mortality-rate higher than they really are. Chief town, Freetown, 44,142 inhabitants (1921). The battalion of the Royal West African Frontier Force has its headquarters at Wilberforce, Freetown. Freetown, the greatest seaport in West Africa, is a second-class Imperial coaling-station, with an excellent harbour.

In 1929, after the amalgamation, there were 48 primary schools, belonging to missionary societies and assisted from public funds, and 1 Government primary school. The average attendance in these 49 schools was 4,591. Salaries paid by Government, under amalgamation scheme, to African teachers in mission schools, including grants to European teachers at Roman Catholic schools, amounted to 10,070*l.* There were 7 assisted secondary schools with an average attendance of 689. The grant awarded these secondary schools amounted to 1,144*l.* One of these (the Albert Academy) includes industrial work in its curriculum. There were also 2 assisted industrial schools with an average attendance of 95, and one (The Sir Alfred Jones' Trades School) controlled by Government with an average of 24 boys. The assisted industrial schools received grants amounting to 204*l.* Besides these there were 2 Secondary, 1 Preparatory to Secondary, and 2 Primary unassisted schools.

The Government conducts in Freetown a Model School for primary and post-primary education with an average attendance of 303, and a secondary school for boys with an average attendance of 80. Fourah Bay College which is under the management of the Church Missionary and Wesleyan Missionary Societies is affiliated to the University of Durham.

Police force at end of 1929 had an authorised strength of 305, including 6 European officers. In 1929, 32 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court, and 55 in the Circuit court.

The tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in the foreign trade (excluding vessels in Admiralty service) was (1929) 4,812,566 tons, of which 2,984,305 tons were British.

A Government railway, a single line of 2ft. 6in. gauge, is open from Freetown to Pendembu, near the Liberian frontier, a length of 227½ miles. From Bauya Junction, 64¼ miles from Freetown, a branch line runs to Makeni, a distance of 83 miles. Total line open, 1929, was 310 miles, excluding sidings. Total receipts 1929, 233,512*l.*, gross expenditure 286,843*l.* There are over 2,008 miles of telegraph and telephone, including electric-train-staff lines. In 1929, 2,096,664 postal packets were dealt with in the Colony; money order transactions amounted to 46,533*l.* There are 1,097½ miles of combined telegraph and telephone wires in operation. There are 74 post offices and postal agencies. At the end of 1929 there were 7,499 depositors in the savings bank with 63,402*l.* (inclusive of interest) to their credit. The West African Silver Currency was introduced in 1913 (see under Nigeria, p. 251), and in 1920 West African Alloy Coinage was put into circulation; but British coins are still used. Currency notes of the West African Currency Board are in circulation (150,000*l.* at the end of 1928). The Bank of British West Africa and the Colonial Bank have their headquarters at Freetown.

The Protectorate.—The Protectorate was proclaimed August 21, 1896. On March 7, 1913, an Order in Council was issued providing for its administration; this was revoked and replaced by an Order in Council of January 16, 1924. The Order applies to the territories, not being portions of the Colony of Sierra Leone, lying between the sixth and tenth degrees of north latitude and the tenth and fourteenth degrees of west longitude, and beginning at the extreme southerly point of the Colony on the Anglo-Liberian boundary, as delimited under the provisions of the Anglo-Liberian Conventions, November 11, 1885, and January 21, 1911. The Protectorate extends inland about 180 miles.

The Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the time being of the Colony of Sierra Leone is also the Governor of the Protectorate. Authority is given to the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone, by ordinance, to exercise and provide for giving effect to the powers and jurisdiction acquired by the Crown.

The Protectorate has an area of 27,000 square miles, and a population, according to the census of 1921, of 1,456,148 (natives, 1,450,903). The whole territory has been divided into two Provinces, each of which is placed under a European commissioner. Circuit courts are held at the chief centres of population. There are also district commissioners' courts, chiefs' courts for purely native cases (not serious crime), and combined courts (a chief and a non-native) for small debts and trivial misdemeanours (assaults, abusive language) arising between native and non-native. The chief articles of imports are cotton goods, spirits, hardware and tobacco; the chief exports are palm kernels, kola nuts, palm oil, and ginger. A platinum-bearing area of about 40 square miles has been discovered. Platinum and gold are now being mined in small quantities. Two large hæmatite deposits have been discovered and exploitation of one deposit is being proceeded with. Deposits of chromite of commercial value have been found at a short distance from the Government Railway. There were 126 mission primary schools, 75 of which received assistance from the Government. The average attendance at the assisted schools was 3,471 and the grant paid them was 2,858*l.*; 6 assisted secondary schools with an average attendance of 366, and which received grants amounting to 796*l.*; one industrial school with an average attendance of 49, and which received a grant of 92*l.* 5*s*; a Government School for the sons and nominees of chiefs at Bo, with 161 pupils at the end of 1929; in 1929, Government opened a Central School at Koyeima, the 136 pupils from the old school at Njala being transferred there. There were also 8 smaller Government Rural Schools, with a total of 297 pupils; 20 apprentices were in training at the Agricultural College at Njala.

Governor.—Arnold Weinholt Hodson, C.M.G. (1930).

Colonial Secretary.—C. E. Cookson.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN.

Government.

The rule of Egypt in the Sudan, after having gradually extended during the course of 60 years, was interrupted in 1882 by the revolt of the Mahdi, who, with his successor, the Khalifa, held the country from 1885 for about 13 years under a desolating tyranny. In 1896 an Anglo-Egyptian army commenced operations for the recovery of the lost provinces, and on September 2, 1898, the overthrow of the Khalifa was completed. In November, 1899, he was killed by the Egyptian forces near Gedid.

A convention between the British and Egyptian Governments, signed at Cairo, January 19, 1899, provides for the administration of the territory south of the 22nd parallel of latitude by a Governor-General, appointed by Egypt with the assent of Great Britain, and declares the general principles in accordance with which the administration shall be carried on. The British and Egyptian flags shall be used together; laws shall be made by proclamation; no duties shall be levied on imports from Egypt, and duties on imports from other countries, via the Red Sea, shall not exceed those levied in Egypt; the import and export of slaves is prohibited, and special attention shall be paid to the Brussels Act of 1890 respecting the import and export of arms, ammunition, and spirits.

The Sudan is divided into thirteen Provinces under Governors. Administration is carried out through British District Commissioners one or more of whom are appointed to each of the districts into which the provinces are subdivided. Native administrative officers are employed under the District Commissioners. Courts of Sheikhs and Chiefs have varying powers of limited jurisdiction over their tribesmen in accordance with native custom throughout the country.

In 1910 a Governor-General's Council was created to assist the Governor-General in the discharge of his executive and legislative powers. All ordinances, laws and regulations are now made by the Governor-General in Council.

Area and Population.

Extending southwards from the frontier of Egypt to Uganda and the Belgian Congo (approximately N. lat. 5°), a distance of about 1,650 miles, and stretching from the Red Sea to the confines of Wadai in Central Africa, the subject territory has an area of 1,008,100 square miles. The population in 1929 was estimated at 5,579,776. The Gambela Enclave, situated within the boundaries of Abyssinia, is leased by the Sudan Government from the Abyssinian Government as a Trading Post. The Eritrea-Sudan frontier and the frontier with French Equatorial Africa have been delimited and demarcated, as also has the greater part of the frontier with Abyssinia (see under Abyssinia). The chief towns are: Khartoum, population 42,240, the capital; Omdurman (the old Dervish capital), population 102,983; Khartoum North and Rural District, population 102,512; Wadi Halfa, Merowé, El Damer, Atbara, Port Sudan, Suakin, Kassala El Dueim, Kosti, El Obeid, Nahud, Wad Medani, Singa, and El Fasher.

Education.

The schools under the Central Authority are classified as follows:—(1) The elementary vernacular schools (Kuttabs), 87 in number (January, 1930), situated in all parts of the country, and with a total number of about 8,348 pupils. Instruction is given to boys from 7 to 12 years of age. (2) The primary schools, of which there are now 10—at Khartum, Omdurman, Wad Medani, Atbara, El Obeid, Halfa, Rufaa, Berber, El Dueim and Port Sudan. The number of boys in attendance is 1,276. The school at Gordon College is attended by 553 pupils. There is also in the Gordon College buildings a training college attended by 8 students, who are eventually drafted out as Kadis in district courts. The industrial workshops, of which there are three, at Khartoum, Omdurman and Atbara, are attended by 387 boy apprentices. There is a training college for girls in Omdurman attended by 61 students, and 21 other girls' schools, attended by 1,858 girls altogether. Affiliated to the Gordon College are the Wellcome Tropical Research Laboratories, where investigations are carried on in connection with diseases and with the economic products of the country. In addition to the above the Central authority aids 768 native schools (Khalwas) attended in 1930 by 26,880 boys.

Justice.

The Courts of Justice as well as the Registry of Lands, the Department of Government Lands, and the offices which deal with the legal business of the Government, are administered by the Legal Secretary, who has a permanent seat ex-officio on the Governor-General's Council.

The High Court of Justice for the trial of civil suits comprises the Court of Appeal and Courts of original jurisdiction. Judges of the High Court sitting singly have general original jurisdiction. The Court of Appeal is constituted by any two or more Judges of the High Court sitting together.

The general superintendence of the High Court is vested in the Chief Justice. In addition to the Chief Justice there are four Judges of the High Court.

Subordinate to the High Court in every province is the Province Court. This comprises a Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, and District Judges of three grades. An Appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from a decree made in a suit of value more than £E50 if the value of the relief claim in the appeal is more than £E50. There are wide powers of revision exercised by the Court of Appeal or the Province Judge in matters where there is no right of appeal.

In Provinces where there is neither a High Court Judge nor a specially appointed Province Judge the Governor acts as Province Judge, and in any District where there is no specially appointed District Judge, the district commissioners and assistant district commissioners act as District Judges. There are six specially appointed British District Judges, and seven specially appointed District Judges of the second grade.

The Mohammedan Law Courts administer the Moslem religious law in cases between Mohammedans relating to succession on death, marriage, divorce, and family relations generally, and also Mohammedan charitable endowments.

In some districts there are native courts presided over by sheikhs, chiefs, or village elders. This system is being developed and extended.

Criminal justice is administered either by single magistrates, or courts of three magistrates. Judges of the High Court, and District Judges of the first and second grades, governors of provinces, district and assistant district commissioners, and some subordinate administrative officials are magistrates; there are also native notables appointed as magistrates to sit as members of courts. Decisions of courts in the more serious cases require confirmation either by the Governor of the province or by the Governor-General, both of whom have extensive powers of revision. Rights of appeal exist.

The Sudan penal code is an adaptation of the Indian penal code.

Defence.

Egyptian troops were evacuated in 1924, and a new Sudan Defence Force, owing allegiance to the Governor-General, has been created.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the Sudan are as follows (£E1 = £1 0*s.* 6*d.*):—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£E	£E		£E	£E
1925 . .	4,866,883	4,375,670	1928 . .	6,646,883	6,045,286

1927 . .	5,929,945	5,550,489	1930[1] . .	4,929,000	4,929,000

[1] Budget estimates (including net receipts only from Railways and Steamers).

The main sources of revenue in 1929 were: Land Tax (£E91,856); Animal Tax (£E154,338); Royalties (£E132,043); Customs (£E729,654); Railways and Steamers (£E2,549,582); Posts and Telegraphs (£E173,364).

These figures do not include the revenue and expenditure of Local Provincial Services, which amounted in 1925, to £E239,937 and £E203,168; 1926, to £E208,168 and £E192,422; 1927, to £E157,174 and £E143,673; 1928, to £E133,577 and £E116,743; 1929, to £E126,729 and £E108,719.

Production and Commerce.

The Sudan is the chief source of the world's supply of gum arabic, exports of which in 1929 amounted to 16,787 tons, valued at £E687,672. Egyptian cotton has been well established, and increasing quantities, which compare favourably with corresponding varieties grown in Egypt, are being produced annually. In 1929–30 the area of cotton on the Gezira Irrigation Scheme (put into operation in 1925) was increased to 174,000 acres and produced a crop of 405,670 kantars of 315 lbs. seed cotton The areas of cotton grown on the Gash and Baraka Deltas were 55,500 and 45,000 acres respectively and produced 80,000 and 54,600 kantars of 315 lbs. seed cotton. In addition, increasing quantities of high-grade, long-staple American cotton are produced in the Northern Provinces of Berber and Dongolla under irrigation, and as a rain crop in the Kassala, Fung, Blue Nile and White Nile, Kordofan, Upper Nile, and Mongalla Provinces. The total area under cotton in the 1929–30 season is recorded as 355,594 acres, and the crop of 1929–30 amounted to 27,480 tons of lint and 61,000 tons of cotton seed.

Other products of the Sudan include sesamé, senna leaves and pods, groundnuts, dates, hides and skins, salt, ivory and gold. The principal grain crops are dura (great millet), the staple food of the people in the Sudan and used as cattle and poultry food outside the Sudan, and dukhn (bulrush millet). The cattle and sheep trade of the Sudan is capable of great development. For some years Egypt has depended to a great extent on the Sudan for her meat supply.

In 1929 there were in the Sudan approximately 22,000 horses; 350,000 asses; 1,000 mules; 1,505,000 cattle; 2,200,000 sheep; 200,000 goats; and 400,000 camels. Pigs are kept by the Nubas only—about 5,000.

The forests which line the Blue Nile River banks, rich in fibres and tanning material, extend to the frontier of Abyssinia. On the White Nile they contain valuable trees—the ebony tree, the gum acacia, the bamboo, the rubber creeper, whilst the sudd area in the upper reaches is composed of an inexhaustible quantity of papyrus. The finest gum forests are in Kordofan, and the best rubber in the Bahr el Ghazal.

Gold is being successfully exploited in the Sudan, a mine being worked at Gabait in the Red Sea Province. Natural salt fields on the Red Sea coast near Port Sudan supply the whole needs of the country, and considerable quantities are exported annually to Abyssinia. In 1928 and 1929 the output from the salt fields totalled 12,186 tons and 11,688 tons respectively. A new company has been formed, at Port Sudan, for the manufacture of salt on a large scale by evaporation of sea-water, and some experimental pumping has been carried out.

[1] Includes goods of non-Egyptian origin imported into the Sudan via Egypt.

The value of imports from abroad other than tobacco, etc., in parcels post from all countries in 1929 was £E114,612. These imports are now classified in the same way as other imports.

The following table shows the value of the principal imports for 1928 and 1929:—

Internal Communications.

There is a railway from Wadi Halfa to Khartoum with connections to the Red Sea at Port Sudan and Suakin, to Kareima in Dongola Province and Sennar and El Obeid. There is also a line 498 miles long from Haiya on the Atbara—Port Sudan line to Sennar on the Blue Nile passing through Kassala (near Eritrea) and Gedaref. A new section from Gedaref to Makwar, 140 miles, was opened in 1929. The total length of the line open for traffic is 1,990 miles. The gauge is 3ft. 6in.

There is a motor transport service throughout the year between Juba and Aba (Belgian Congo) a distance of 125 miles, and between Juba and Nimule (104 miles) on the Uganda border, from the end of December to the third week in March. Motor transport, privately owned in Kenya, operates between Nairobi and Kampala and Juba during dry season—November to April.

All navigable arms of the Nile and its tributaries between Assuan (Egypt) and Rejaf are served by a fleet of Government steamers.

There is telegraphic communication with Egypt, Erythrea, and Abyssinia, and also wireless communication with Gambela in Western Abyssinia and submarine cable communications with the Hedjaz. There are 19 wireless stations, 5,700 miles of telegraph and telephone routes, and 17,970 miles of wire, including those maintained by the Sudan Government Railway. There are 81 stationary Post and Telegraph Offices and 19 travelling Post Offices, and one office is opened to telegraph business only. In 1929, 19,901,363 postal packets were dealt with, 287,219 parcels and 914,907 telegrams. There were 1,297 telephone subscribers.

BRITISH MANDATED TERRITORIES IN AFRICA (TANGANYIKA, SOUTH-WEST AFRICA, CAMEROONS, AND TOGOLAND).

TANGANYIKA TERRITORY (LATE GERMAN EAST AFRICA).

Government.—German East Africa was conquered in 1918, and was subsequently divided between the British and Belgians. In March 1921 the district of Ujiji and part of Bukoba, formerly administered by the Belgians, were handed over to British jurisdiction. The country is administered under mandates approved by the League of Nations. The mandates lay down conditions directed against slavery, forced labour (except for essential public works and services), abuses in connection with the arms traffic, the trade in spirits, usury, and security of labour. The interests of natives are safeguarded.

Under an Order in Council, dated July 22 1920, the Territory is administered by a Governor, who is assisted by an Executive Council, all of whose members are nominated. A Legislative Council has been constituted as from Oct. 1, 1926, consisting of 13 official members and not more than 10 non-official members. Rights in or in relation to any public lands vest in the Governor, but the Secretary of State for the Colonies may appoint, if he sees fit, another trustee or trustees to exercise such right. A Native Affairs Department was established in 1926.

Area and Population.—The Territory extends from the Umba River on the north to the Rovuma River on the south, the coast-line being about 500 miles in length, and includes the adjacent islands. The northern boundary runs approximately north-west to Lake Victoria at the intersection of the first parallel of southern latitude with the eastern shore (Mohuru Point). The boundary on the west follows the Kagera River (the eastern frontier of Ruanda), thence the eastern boundary of Urundi to Lake Tanganyika. The western boundary then follows the middle of Lake Tanganyika to its southern end at Kasanga (formerly Bismarckburg), whence it goes south-east to the northern end of Lake Nyasa. Rather less than half-way down the lake the boundary turns east and joins the Rovuma River, whose course it follows to the sea. The total area is about 374,000 square miles, which includes about 20,000 square miles of water. Dar-es-Salaam is the capital, population, 25,000.

The native population consists mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race, and was enumerated (April 1921) at 4,107,000. Asiatics numbered 14,991 (Indians 9,411, Goans 798, Arabs 4,782), and Europeans 2,447. In 1929 the European population was estimated at 6,630 and the native population at 4,794,000. According to German law every native born after 1905 is free, but a mild serfdom was continued under German rule. Legislation for the abolition of slavery was enacted in 1922.

Education.—There were in 1929, 88 Government schools, 1,622 Roman Catholic schools and 1,281 Protestant schools, with an average attendance of 86,263 pupils. The amount allotted to education in the 1929–30 Estimates was 100,977*l.* There are 3 schools for the children of Dutch settlers in the Arusha District and another European school at Ngare Nairobi in the Moshi District. A school for young European children has been established in Dar-es-Salaam, and a correspondence course exists for children in outlying districts.

There is a monthly paper published by the Government in Swahili.

Finance.—The revenue in 1929–30 was 1,992,675*l.*; expenditure 2,084,898*l.* The chief items of revenue were licences, taxes, etc., 915,419*l.*; customs, 744,220*l.*; fees of court or office, 112,898*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 71,030*l.* The chief items of expenditure were: public works, 296,605*l.*; provincial administration, 375,545*l.*; medical and sanitation, 248,233*l.*; military, 117,932*l.*; police and prisons, 137,861*l.* Estimates 1930–31: revenue, 2,054,500*l.*; expenditure, 2,145,912*l.*

Loans have been received from the Imperial Government in the years 1920–21 to 1925–26, amounting to 3,135,446*l.* for capital improvements and developments and have been expended upon railway works, 1,293,614*l.*; other works, 766,324; restoration of war damage, 177,909, and to meet deficits upon recurrent account, 897,599*l.* Interest at 5 per cent. and sinking fund at 1 per cent. is being paid on the loan for railway and other works, while the balance is temporarily free of interest, but repayment is to be considered in 1933. A further loan of 2,070,000*l.* was raised in the home market in June, 1928, under the East African Guaranteed Loan Bill. Railway works, 1,736,000*l.*; ports and harbours, 100,000*l.*; other works, 234,000*l.* The loan bears interest at 4½ per cent. No payment of sinking fund for redemption need be made for a period of three years from date of flotation.

Defence.—The Southern Brigade Headquarters, two battalions and one company of the Nyasaland Battalion of the King's African Rifles are stationed in the Territory. The police force consisted (1929) of 1,768 all ranks.

Production and Industry.—The total area under forest other than savannah forest is approximately 4,071 square miles of which 95·2 per cent. is Government forest reserves, 3·4 per cent. awaits reservation, and 1·4 per cent. is valuable forest in private ownership. These forests contain some good merchantable timbers in large quantity, among which Pencil Cedar, Yellow-Wood and Mvule are the most important. In addition, valuable species of hard woods occur as single trees or in groups widely scattered throughout large areas of savannah forest. Ebony is plentiful near the coast, and the creeks and river mouths support extensive mangrove woods valuable as a source of tanning bark and poles. The possible output of the Territory's forests far exceeds the present local consumption. The approximate production of timber and fuel wood in 1929 was 381,700 and 10,608,000 cubic feet respectively.

The chief export crop of the territory is sisal fibre, the export of which in 1929 reached 45,728 tons, valued at 1,485,593*l.*, as compared with 36,186 tons, valued at 1,111,429*l.* in 1928. Other major export crops are: coffee, cotton, groundnuts, copra, simsim and grains. Cultivation of tea and tobacco by Europeans in the south-western highlands is proceeding, although still in the experimental stage.

In 1929 there were 4,867,444 cattle, 2,134,596 sheep and 2,906,638 goats in the territory.

The value of minerals produced in 1929 was: diamonds, 88,030*l.*; gold, 38,630*l.*; salt, 39,200*l.*; mica, 14,780*l.*; tin, 2,825*l.*; red ochre, 257*l.* Companies desiring to investigate the mineral resources can obtain information and assistance from the Mines Dept., Dar-es-Salaam.

In 1929, 565 steamers (exclusive of coastal boats) of 2,337,974 tons, and 4,436 dhows of 98,942 tons, entered and cleared the various coast ports from places beyond the Territory.

The chief seaports are Dar-es-Salaam, Tanga, Lindi, and Mikindani.

Communications.—Light motor traffic is now possible over 10,683 miles of road during the dry season.

There are two railways of metre gauge in the territory. The Tanga Railway from Tanga to Moshi (219 miles), with a branch line from Rau Rivir via Sanya to Arusha (55 miles); the construction of the direct route from Moshi to Sanya approaches completion. The Central Railway from Dar-es-Salaam to Kigoma (772 miles), with a branch line from Tabora to Mwanza (235 miles). Also a 60 c.m. tram line from Mingoyo near Lindi to Ndanda (57 miles). This is worked by hand during certain periods of the year only. There are steamers on Lakes Victoria, Nyasa and Tanganyika.

Dar-es-Salaam is in telegraphic communication with many inland centres and with the adjoining territories Nyasaland, Kenya, Uganda and Northern Rhodesia. Cable communication exists between Dar-es-Salaam and Zanzibar and communication with the Belgian Congo is effected by wireless between Kigoma and Albertville. A wireless station with a range of 450 miles spark transmission and 1,000 miles continuous wave transmission was erected at Dar-es-Salaam in 1927. There are 119 Post Offices and Postal Agencies, 97 of which are Telegraph Offices. Telegraph Money Order and Savings Bank business are conducted at 22 Head Offices, and Postal Order and ordinary Money Order business at 31 Sub Offices. Telephone Exchanges are established and Trunk Telephone communication is in operation between 37 Inland centres and also with Mombasa.

East African currency is in use consisting of a silver shilling, the equivalent of 100 cents; a 50 cent silver piece; copper and bronze 10 cent, 5 cent, and 1 cent pieces. There are currency notes in denominations ranging from 5 to 1000 shillings. Four banks, the National Bank of India, the Standard Bank of South Africa, Barclays Bank (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) and the Banque du Congo Bélge, have branches in the country.

SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.

Situation and Physical Features.—This country is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa and North Rhodesia, on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south and southern portion of the eastern boundary by the Cape Province of the Union, and on the remainder of the eastern boundary by the Bechuanaland Protectorate and North Rhodesia. On the western coast, a strip varying from 60 to 100 miles in width and extending from the Orange River in the south to the Ugab River, which borders on what is known as the Kaokoveld, consists of barren desert, and this is also the case in that portion of the Great Kalahari depression which is included in the country on its eastern boundary. The eastern portion is, however, not barren, being good grazing land.

The Kunene River and the Okavango, which form portions of the northern border of the country, the Zambesi, which forms the eastern boundary of the Caprivi Strip, the Kwando or Mashi, which flows through the Caprivi Strip from the north between the Okavango and the Zambesi, and the Orange River in the south, are the only permanently running streams. But there is a system of great sandy dry river beds throughout the country, in which water can generally be obtained by sinking shallow wells; these are the Kuiseb, Swakop, Omaruru and Ugab on the west, the Fish River in the south, the Nosob, the Auob and the Elephant Rivers in the south-east, and a series of what are known as Omuramba in the north-east, with numerous smaller stream beds. In the Grootfontein area, which geologists describe as a "karst" region, there are large supplies of underground water, but except for a few springs, mostly hot, there is no surface water throughout the country.

Government and Administration.—The country was annexed by Germany in 1884, but was surrendered to the Forces of the Union of South Africa on July 9, 1915, at Khorab. It is now administered by the Union under a Mandate from the League of Nations, dated December 17, 1920. The laws of the Union, subject to local modifications, if required, may be applied to the country and are gradually being introduced.

The Administration is conducted from Windhoek, and the country is divided into 17 Districts controlled by Magistrates. In addition there is a Native Commissioner at Windhoek who has charge of all Native Affairs in the Territory. Under him are officers at the larger labour centres and Superintendents of Reserves in the Districts where there are large Native Reserves. The officer in charge of Native Affairs in Ovamboland keeps in touch with the Ovambos living there. There is also an officer stationed at Kuring Kuru on the Okavango River, who keeps close touch with the natives living along the North-Eastern border of the territory.

Windhoek, the capital, is situated in the centre of the territory, and with its surrounding district contains a population of 4,602 Europeans (1926 Census) and 13,753 (estimated) Natives.

The administration has been vested by the Union Parliament in the Governor-General of the Union, who has delegated his powers to an Administrator with full authority to legislate. By Act No. 42 of 1925 the Union Parliament conferred a Constitution on South-West Africa, providing for an Executive Committee, an Advisory Council, and a Legislative Assembly with such powers, authorities and functions severally as are in the Act defined.

Administrator.—A. J. Werth (April 1926).

Area and Population.—The total area of the country including the Caprivi Zipfel is 322,394 square miles; that of Walvis Bay, administered by S.W.A., 374 square miles.

The European population according to the figures of the 1926 Census amounts to 24,115. The Native population is estimated at 237,701. As large areas of the country, particularly along the coast and in the north, are uncivilised, it has been impossible to procure precise figures. In particular it has been difficult to estimate the numbers of the Bushmen, who still exist in considerable numbers in the north-eastern portion of the country.

The principal native races are the Ovambos, Hereros, Bergdamaras or Klipkaffirs, Hottentots and Bushmen.

The Ovambos are a Bantu race and follow agriculture. They still possess to its full extent tribal organisation.

The Hereros are a pastoral people who formerly owned enormous herds of cattle. The Germans oppressed them, their tribal organisation completely disappeared and they were scattered throughout the country on farms and in the different towns, where they formed the ordinary source of labour. The Herero makes an excellent herd. Since the British occupation of the country Reserves have been set apart for them and they have considerably increased in numbers and in animal wealth.

The Bergdamaras are, it is believed, also of Bantu origin, though some authorities hold that they belong rather to the Hottentot race whose language they now speak. They are an inferior tribe and were alternately the slaves of the Hereros and the Hottentots in pre-European days, as the former or the latter were in the ascendant.

The Hottentots, so called, consist of two distinct sections: one, whose remnants are found in the central portions of the country, being of pure native extraction, the source of which is but little understood; the other is composed of tribes resulting from an admixture of European blood in the Cape with the Hottentot races residing there a couple of centuries ago, which, after conflict with their European neighbours, sought refuge across the Orange River.

The Bushmen are the oldest inhabitants of South-West Africa and are found in considerable numbers in its eastern portion from Lat. 26° to the Northern boundary.

In the centre of the country just south of the Windhoek district is the Bastard Gebiet occupied by a race known as the Bastards, whose origin is much the same as the second class of Hottentots mentioned above, except that the admixture of European blood is much greater, and their ordinary language is Cape Dutch. These people have a measure of self-government under a council of which the local Magistrate is Chairman. They number about 5,000.

Education.—European.—There are (1929) 63 Government schools with 3,623 pupils, and 56 registered private schools with 1,368 pupils. Of the children in Government schools 1,056 are accommodated in hostels which are conducted by the Administration in conjunction with 22 of the Government schools. The general policy has hitherto been to bring the country children into these hostels and so obviate the necessity of single-teacher country schools. In consequence of the expenditure involved, however, this policy is now being modified, and wherever possible Government farm schools and aided private farm schools are being established. There are 19 Government farm schools and 46 aided private farm schools.

Native.—The education of the Natives is under the direct supervision of the various Missions. There are (1929) 64 Government-aided mission schools with 4,428 pupils. There are 2 Training Schools for Native Teachers, subsidised by the Government, with 69 student teachers in training.

Finance.—In 1929-30 the revenue amounted to 867,524*l.* and the expenditure to 1,202,389*l.* (including 272,841*l.* loan expenditure, and 192,071*l.* expenditure in connection with settlement of Angola farmers). The Estimates for 1930-31 are: revenue 707,000*l.*, expenditure 1,516,710*l.* (including 358,890*l.* loan expenditure, and 265,000*l.* from Union Government in connection with settlement of Angola farmers).

The principal source of revenue is the tax on diamonds, which is 66 per cent. of the gross proceeds less 70 per cent. of the working costs.

For the purposes of Customs and Excise revenue the territory is included in the South African Customs Union, and a lump sum based on the customs and excise duties on goods consumed in the territory is paid over to the Administration. The total annual revenue from this source is now approximately 270,000*l.*

Production and Industry.—South-West Africa is essentially a stock-raising country, the absence of water rendering agriculture, except in the Northern and North-eastern portions, almost impossible. Generally speaking the southern half of the Territory is suited for the raising of small stock, while the central and northern portions are better fitted for cattle. It is estimated that in 1929 there were about 636,661 head of cattle, 2,435,550 head of small stock, 18,998 horses, 53,830 donkeys and 1,792 mules.

The staple product is diamonds, which are found along the coast from the Orange River to Conception Bay. The fields are alluvial and the deposits shallow. The stones are small but of a very good quality. Other minerals worked are copper, rich deposits of which exist at Tsumeb and in the neighbourhood, vanadium, marble and tin. Gold and silver are known to exist but in too small quantities to work remuneratively.

Commerce.—Imports and exports for 6 years :—

Year	Imports.	Exports.	Year.	Imports.	Exports.
	£	£		£	£
1924	1,777,164	2,851,473	1927	2,490,816	3,475,561
1925	2,189,851	2,828,222	1928	2,881,562	3,355,937
1926	2,507,625	3,292,986	1929	3,981,848	3,595,313

Imports from overseas, 1929, 1,247,256*l.*; Union of South Africa, 1,834,592*l.* Exports overseas, 2,999,665*l.*; Union of S. A., 595,648*l.*

The bulk of the direct imports into the country are landed at Walvis Bay, which is now administered as a portion of South-West Africa, and the Government proposes to develop this port as the main harbour.

Communications.—The railway line between De Aar Junction and Prieska has been extended through Upington across the Orange River and joined up with the line from Kalkfontein south to Windhoek..

The whole of the railway system, from De Aar in the Union to the border and within the border, is controlled by the S.A. Railways and Harbours Department through the System Manager in Windhoek.

The total length of the line inside South West Africa is 1,096 miles of 3ft. 6in. gauge, and 353 miles of 2ft. gauge. There are also 98 miles of private line, most of which have been constructed for the service of the diamond fields south of Luderitz.

At the 31st March, 1929, there were 109 Post Offices and 395 Private Bag Services distributed by rail or road transport. The number of articles posted was 3,801,876 and 5,365,152 were received.

On 31st March, 1929, there were 4,194 miles of trunk lines, 2,795 miles of telegraphs, 1,469 miles of super-imposed telegraphs and telephones, 682 miles of rural telephones and 1,077 miles of farm telephone lines; 85 telegraph offices, 41 telephone exchanges, and 1,293 telephone subscribers.

A Post Office Savings Bank was established in 1916. The number of accounts open at 31st March, 1929, was 4,947, with a credit of 171,794*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.*

At Walvis Bay there is a 3½ k.w. Coastal Wireless Station.

BRITISH CAMEROONS.

The Cameroons, lying between British Nigeria and the French Congo, extends from the coast north-eastwards to the southern shore of Lake Chad. It was captured from the Germans in February, 1916, and is now divided between the British and French under a Declaration signed at London July 10, 1919. The British portion is a strip, area about 34,236 square miles and population estimated at 700,050, stretching from the sea along the Nigerian frontier to Lake Chad. Bantu negroes live near the coast, Sudan negroids inland. The country is administered under a mandate which contains provisions directed against slavery, forced labour (except for essential public services) and abuses of the traffic in arms and spirituous liquors. The northern part is attached to the Provinces of Bornu and Yola in Nigeria, and the southern part known as the Cameroons Province, to the Southern Provinces of Nigeria. There are Government schools at Victoria.

The soil in the coast region is fertile. In Victoria, experiments are being made towards the cultivation of cloves, vanilla, ginger, pepper, and other products; there is an active trade in ivory and palm-oil; hardwood and ebony are abundant, and gold and iron have been found.

There are graduated direct taxes for the native population. Europeans are not subject to direct taxation. The revenue and expenditure are incorporated in the accounts for Nigeria. Government revenue for 1928-29, 88,904*l.*; expenditure, 138,501*l.*

Imports into the British Cameroons in 1929, 214,621*l.*; exports, 307,607*l.* Chief exports: bananas (dried), palm kernels, palm oil, cocoa, coffee and rubber. Chief imports: textiles, spirits, timber, salt, iron wares, flour, kerosene, fish, rice, tobacco, cigarettes, motor spirit, coopers' stores, hardware, and colonial produce. In 1929, 137 vessels, having a total tonnage of 265,738, entered Victoria, and 97 vessels (53,908 tons) entered Tiko.

The mark was in use until July 1, 1922, on which date British currency, similar to that in use in Nigeria, was substituted for it.

Administrator of British Zone.—The Governor of Nigeria.

TOGOLAND.

Togoland, between the Gold Coast Colony on the west and French Dahomey on the east, was surrendered unconditionally by the Germans to British and French forces in August, 1914. On September 30th, 1920, the country was divided between France and Britain in accordance with the Franco-British declaration of July 10th, 1919. The boundary between the two spheres extends from the north-west corner in a general direction south-east and south, terminating not far from the port of Lome, but so that no part of the British sphere reaches the coast. (See map in the YEAR BOOK for 1920.) The area allotted to Great Britain is approximately 12,600 square miles, and for administrative purposes it is attached to adjacent provinces of the Gold Coast Colony and Northern Territories. The population, according to the 1921 census, is 188,265 (including 20 non-Africans, of whom 15 are Europeans).

For purposes of education the British mandated territory is considered as part of the Gold Coast.

In the British mandated area the Ewe Mission has 50 schools with 2,229 pupils, average daily attendance 2,042, and the Roman Catholic Mission has 12 schools with 816 pupils, average daily attendance 758.

The revenue and expenditure of the area are now included in the figures for the Gold Coast. Expenditure still greatly exceeds revenue.

Separate figures for imports and exports are no longer available, being included in the general total for the Gold Coast.

The principal imports are cotton goods, salt, and tobacco. Principal exports are palm oil, palm kernels, cocoa, kola nuts, and raw cotton.

BERMUDA.

A Colony, with representative government, consisting of a group of 360 small islands (about 20 inhabited), 580 miles east of North Carolina, and 677 miles from New York, noted for its climate and scenery; favourite winter resort for Americans, who number some 30,000 annually.

The Spaniards visited the islands in 1515, but they had previously been discovered (the exact date is unknown) by Juan de Bermudez, after whom they were named. No settlement was made, and they were uninhabited until a party of colonists under Sir George Somers was wrecked there in 1609. A company was formed for the 'Plantation of the Somer's Islands, as they were called at first, and in 1684 the Crown took over the Government.

Governor.—Major-Gen. T.A. Cubitt, C.M.G., C.B., D.S.O., appointed 1931 (salary 3,400*l.*+1,000*l.* for entertainment allowance), assisted by an Executive Council of 7 members (four official) appointed by the Crown, a Legislative Council of 9 members (three official), also appointed by the Crown, and an elected House of Assembly of 36 members; 1,523 electors.

Area, 19·3 square miles (12,360 acres, 2,759 under cultivation). Civil population at census 1921, 20,127 (7,006 white); 13,021 belong to Church of England (census 1921). Estimated civil population, 1929, 31,500 (15,550 white). In 1929 the birth-rate was 24·34 and the death-rate 11·81 per 1,000; there were 205 marriages. In 1929 there was an excess of immigration over emigration of 233. Chief town, Hamilton; population 3,000. Bermuda is an important naval base on the North America and West Indies Station, with dockyard, victualling establishment, &c. Police force, 1929, 60.

Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 13, and Government assistance is given by the payment of grants, and, where necessary, school fees, but there are no Government schools. The aided schools must reach a certain standard of efficiency, and submit to Government inspection and control. In 1929, 32 aided primary schools, with 3,719 pupils, and 4 secondary schools, received in Government grants 13,225*l.* There are 2 garrison schools and 1 naval school; about 15 other primary schools receiving no Government grant.

The registered shipping consisted (1929) of 13 steam vessels of 26,421 tons net, 1 motor ship of 19,086 tons, and 20 sailing vessels of 3,378 tons net, and two motor boats of 93 tons net; total net tonnage, 48,978. In 1929 the total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared was 4,073,457 tons, of which 3,774,332 were British.

There are 220 miles of telephone wire under the control of the military, and 15 of telegraph cable. There is also a private telephone company, with over 1,600 miles of wire. Cables connect the islands with Halifax, Nova Scotia, Turks Island, and Jamaica. There were (1929) 19 post offices in the colony; the number of letters and post cards dealt with in the year 1929 was 3,784,052; newspapers, book packets and circulars, 914,440; parcels, 95,123. The post office revenue was 48,908*l.*, and expenditure, 16,455*l.* Savings bank deposits on December 31, 1929, were 91,486*l.* to the credit of 4,712 depositors.

There are two banks in the Island, the Bank of Bermuda, Ltd., and the Bank of N. T. Butterfield and Son, Ltd., both local. Bills of exchange issued by the Treasury Chest Office in the Colony form the basis of exchange with the outside world.

The currency, weights, and measures are British. The British 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes are legal tender. The Bermuda Government is also authorised to issue 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes up to an amount not exceeding 40,000*l.* A considerable quantity of American paper is also in circulation, being largely used for remittances to the United States.

CANADA.

(Dominion of Canada.)

Constitution and Government.

The territories which now constitute the Dominion of Canada came under British power at various times, by settlement, conquest, or cession. Nova Scotia was temporarily occupied in 1628 by settlement at Port Royal, was ceded back to France in 1632, and was finally ceded by France in 1713, by the Treaty of Utrecht; the Hudson's Bay Company's charter, conferring rights over all the territory draining into Hudson Bay, was granted in 1670; Canada, with all its dependencies, including New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763; Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was established as a separate colony in 1858. As originally constituted, the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower Canada, now Ontario and Quebec—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament known as 'The British North America Act, 1867,' which came into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation. The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom'; that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in his name by a Governor-General and Privy Council; and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons.' The present position of Canada in the British Commonwealth of Nations was defined at the Imperial Conference of 1926: 'The self-governing Dominions are autonomous Communities within the British Empire, equal in status, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown.' The Dominion has its own representatives in the United States, France and Japan, and was elected a member of the Council of the League of Nations in 1927. Provision was made in the British North America Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North-West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion; Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision. In 1869 Rupert's Land, or the North-west Territories, were purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company; the province of Manitoba was erected from this territory, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870. On July 20, 1871, the province of British Columbia was admitted, and Prince Edward Island on July 1, 1873. The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabaska, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and admitted on September 1, 1905.

In February 1931 the Government of Norway formally recognised the Canadian title to the Sverdrup group of Arctic islands. Canada thus holds sovereignty in the whole Arctic sector north of the Canadian mainland.

The members of the Senate are nominated for life, by summons of the Governor-General under the Great Seal of Canada. By the Amendment of the British North America Act, 1867 (May, 1915), which came into effect in 1917, the Senate consists of 96 senators—namely, 24 from Ontario, 24 from Quebec, 10 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick, 4 from Prince Edward Island, 6 from Manitoba, 6 from British Columbia, 6 from Alberta, and 6 from Saskatchewan. The total number may not exceed 104. Each senator must be 30 years of age, a born or naturalised British subject, and must reside in, and be possessed of property, real or personal, to the value of 4,000 dollars, within the province for which he is appointed. The House of Commons is elected by the people, for five years, unless sooner dissolved, the province of Quebec always having 65 members (one for each 36,283 persons at the 1921 census), and the other provinces proportionally, according to their populations at each decennial census. The sixteenth Parliament, elected on Sept. 14, 1926, comprised 245 members, in accordance with the Representation Act of 1924 which, as the result of the census of 1921, fixed the representation as follows: 82 for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 14 for Nova Scotia, 11 for New Brunswick, 17 for Manitoba, 14 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 21 for Saskatchewan, 16 for Alberta, and 1 for the Yukon Territory. Voting is by ballot. Women have the vote and are eligible for election to the Dominion Parliament.

State of the Parties in Parliament, elected on July 28, 1930: Conservatives, 138; Liberals, 87; Liberal-Progressives, 3; United Farmers of Alberta, 10; Progressives, 2; Labour, 3; and Independent, 2.

The Speaker in the House of Commons has a salary of 6,000 dollars per annum, the Deputy Speaker an allowance of 1,500 dollars, and each member an allowance of 4,000 dollars for the session, subject to deductions for non-attendance.

The Speaker and members of the Senate have the same sessional indemnity as the Speaker and members of the House of Commons, with no extra allowances.

Governor-General.—The Right Hon. Lord Bessborough, G.C.M.G. Appointed February 9, 1931. Salary, 10,000*l.* per annum.

He is assisted in his functions, under the provisions of the Act of 1867, by a Privy Council composed of Cabinet Ministers and other persons.

The following is the list of the Cabinet, which was sworn in on August 7, 1930, in order of precedence, which in Canada attaches generally rather to the person than to the office:

Prime Minister, President of the Privy Council, Secretary of State for External Affairs and Minister of Finance (pro tem.).—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, M.P.

Minister without Portfolio.—Sir George H. Perley, K.C.M.G., M.P.
Minister of Fisheries.—Hon. E. N. Rhodes (Senator).
Minister of Labour.—Hon. Gideon Robertson (Senator).
Minister of Justice and Attorney-General.—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, M.P.
Minister of Trade and Commerce.—Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P.
Minister of Railways and Canals.—Hon. R. J. Manion, M.P.
Minister of National Revenue.—Hon. E. B. Ryckman, M.P.
Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. J. A. Macdonald, M.P.
Postmaster-General.—Hon. Arthur Sauvé, M.P.
Minister of Pensions and National Health.—Col. the Hon. Murray MacLaren, M.P.
Minister of Public Works.—Hon. H. A. Stewart, M.P.
Secretary of State.—Hon. C. H. Cahan, M.P.
Minister of National Defence.—Col. the Hon. D. M. Sutherland, M.P.
Minister of Marine.—Hon. Alfred Duranleau, M.P.
Minister of Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs.—Hon. Thomas G. Murphy, M.P.
Solicitor General.—Hon. Maurice Dupré, M.P.
Minister of Immigration and Colonization and Minister of Mines.—Hon. W. A. Gordon, M.P.
Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. Robert Weir, M.P.

Each minister with portfolio has a salary of 10,000 dollars a year, and the Prime Minister 15,000 dollars, in addition to the 4,000 dollars sessional allowance. The Leader of the Opposition receives a salary of 10,000 dollars, in addition to the sessional allowance.

The Department of External Affairs is the medium of communication between the Government of Canada and the governments of other countries. Canada has diplomatic representatives at Washington, Paris, and Tokyo, and the Governments of the United States, France, and Japan are also represented at Ottawa.

High Commissioner for Canada in Great Britain.—Hon. G. H. Ferguson, K.C. (appointed November 28, 1930), Canadian Building, Trafalgar Square, London, S.W. 1.

High Commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada.—Sir William Henry Clark, K.C.S.I., C.M.G. (appointed April 25, 1928), 114 Wellington Street, Ottawa Canada.

Canadian Advisory Officer, League of Nations.—Dr. W. A. Riddell (appointed 1925), 41 quai Wilson, Geneva, Switzerland.

Canadian Minister in the United States.—Major William D. Herridge, D.S.O. (appointed March 8, 1931).

United States Minister in Canada.—Lieut.-Colonel Hanford MacNider (appointed Aug. 1930).

Canadian Minister in France.—Hon. Philippe Roy (appointed 1928), 1 rue François Premier, Paris, France.

French Minister in Canada.—(Vacant Sept. 1930), Wellington Street, Ottawa.

Canadian Minister in Japan.—Hon. H. M. Mailer (appointed 1929), Tokyo, Japan.

Japanese Minister in Canada.—Mr. Iyemasa Tokugawa (appointed 1929), Wellington Street, Ottawa.

Provincial Government.

The nine provinces have each a separate parliament and administration, with a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Governor-General in Council at the head of the executive. They have full powers to regulate their own local affairs and dispose of their revenues, provided only they do not interfere with the action and policy of the central administration. Among the subjects assigned exclusively to the provincial legislature are: the amendment of the provincial constitution, except as regards the office of the Lieutenant-Governor; direct taxation for revenue purposes; borrowing; management and sale of crown lands; provincial hospitals, reformatories, &c.; shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer, and other licences for local or provincial purposes; local works and undertakings, except lines of ships, railways, canals, telegraphs, &c., extending beyond the province or connecting with other provinces, and excepting also such works as the Dominion Parliament declares are for the general good; marriages; administration of justice within the province; education. Quebec has two Chambers and the other Provinces one Chamber. The North-West Territories and the Yukon Territory are governed by Commissioners assisted by Councils.

Area and Population.

The following is the population of the area now included in the Dominion:—

Year	Population	Year	Population
1806–7 (est.)	433,000	1881	4,324,810
1825	860,000	1891	4,833,239
1851–2	2,383,500	1901	5,371,315
1860–1	3,183,000	1911	7,206,643
1871	3,689,257	1921	8,788,483

The estimated population in 1930 was 9,934,500.

The census population of the Prairie Provinces as at June 1, 1926, was as follows: Manitoba, 639,056; Saskatchewan, 820,738; Alberta, 607,584; Total, 2,067,378. Total rural, 1,313,681; Total urban, 753,697.

The following are the areas of the provinces, etc., with the population at recent censuses:—

[1] The water areas here assigned to Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and British Columbia are exclusive of the territorial seas, that to Quebec is exclusive of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Ontario is inclusive of the Canadian portions of the great lakes of the St. Lawrence system.

[2] By Federal Act passed during the session of 1912, the boundaries of the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba were extended at the expense of the North-West Territories. Ontario was enlarged by 146,400 square miles, Quebec by 351,780, and Manitoba by 178,100.

[3] As amended by the Labrador Boundary Award.

Of the total population in 1921, 6,832,747 were Canadian born, 1,065,454 British born, and 890,282 foreign born, 374,024 of the latter being U.S. born.

For figures for the population in 1921 according to origin see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1928, p. 278.

[1] Approximate.

The total 'urban' population of Canada in 1921 is given as 4,352,122, against 3,272,947 in 1911.

While the registration of births, marriages and deaths is under provincial control, the statistics for the nine provinces are now by arrangement compiled on a uniform system by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The following table gives the provisional results for 1929 :—

Education.

By the British North America Act the Provincial Governments have control in educational matters. In all provinces except Quebec the number of private schools is small, so that elementary and secondary education in Canada is almost entirely State-controlled. In Quebec primary education is only partly State-controlled. Roman Catholic secondary education is given by independent institutions, mainly consisting of State-subsidised classical colleges for boys and convents for girls. Except for a few independent schools, Protestant education, primary and secondary, is State-controlled. Primary schools—i. e. elementary schools, and in all provinces, except Ontario, continuation schools other than regular secondary schools—are free, and the same is true of secondary education in most provinces. In Quebec (except in certain municipalities) a fee is collected for primary education for every child of school age without reference to school attendance. In the same province Catholic and Protestant schools are under one Department of Public Instruction and are supported by a common system of taxation, but are administered independently. In Alberta, Ontario, and Saskatchewan minority elementary schools, whether Protestant or Catholic, are called Separate Schools, and are under the same provincial administration as majority schools. Secondary education in these three provinces is non-sectarian.

There are 6 State-controlled universities in Canada, and 17 independent of provincial control, making 23 in all, with 4,210 professors, lecturers, etc., and 57,254 students in 1928–29. The 97 colleges in Canada had 25,137 students registered in 1928–29.

[3] Exclusive of British Columbia University.

As a result of assistance given by the Dominion Government to the provinces in providing for technical and vocational education, the enrolment of students in technical schools increased from 56,774 in 1921 to 121,252 in 1929.

In 1930 there were in Canada 1,609 periodical publications, classified as follows: Dailies, 116; tri-weeklies, 5; weeklies, 966; semi-weeklies, 21; monthlies, 388; semi-monthlies, 56; miscellaneous, 57.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court in Ottawa, having appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction in and throughout Canada. There is an exchequer court, which is also a colonial court of admiralty, with powers as provided in the Imperial 'Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890.' There is a Superior Court in each province; county courts, with limited jurisdiction, in most of the provinces; all the judges in these courts being appointed by the Governor-General. Police magistrates and justices of the peace are appointed by the Provincial Governments.

For the year ended September 30, 1929, total convictions for indictable offences were 24,097; total convictions for all offences amounted to 321,966.

[1] Figures subject to revision.

At the beginning of 1929 investments abroad totalled 1,746 million dollars, and foreign investments in Canada totalled 5,904 million dollars.

Defence.

'The National Defence Act, 1922,' which came into force January 1, 1923, provides for a Department of National Defence presided over by the Minister of National Defence.

Militia.—Canada is organised in 11 military districts, each under a Commander and his District Staff.

The militia of Canada is classified as active and reserve, and the active is sub-divided into permanent and non-permanent forces. The permanent force consists of 11 units of all arms of the service, with an authorised establishment limited to 10,000, but at present the strength is 3,629. The non-permanent active militia is made up of cavalry, artillery, engineers, machine gun, signalling, infantry and other corps. The total establishment of the Canadian non-permanent militia totals 8,971 officers and 114,580 other ranks, organised as follows:—

	Regiments	Batteries		Battalions	Companies	Troops	Units or Detachments

[1] Machine Gun Companies.

The reserve militia consists of such units as are named by the Governor in Council and of all able bodied citizens between the ages of 18 and 60, with certain exemptions.

The reserve of the active militia consists of (1) reserve units of city and rural corps, (2) reserve depots, (3) reserve of officers.

The above organisations are supplemented by numerous cadet corps and rifle associations. The Royal Military College at Kingston, Ontario, provides both a military and a general education for about 200 cadets. The course extends over four years. Each year there are available for graduates a number of commissions in the Canadian Permanent Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force, also in the British Army and the Royal Air Force. R.M.C. graduates are given one year's seniority in the British or Indian armies because their course is longer than that given at Woolwich or Sandhurst.

The estimated expenditure for the militia for the year ending March 31, 1931, was 11,061,800 dollars.

Navy —The Royal Canadian Navy was established in 1910. Its authorised complements are: 104 officers and 792 men of the permanent force (Royal Canadian Navy), 70 officers and 430 men of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve; and 70 officers and 930 men of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve. The vessels at present maintained in commission are the destroyer Champlain and the mine-sweeping trawlers Festubert and Ypres, based on Halifax, N.S.: the destroyer Vancouver and mine-sweeping trawlers Armentières and Thiepval, based on Esquimalt, B.C. Two British-built destroyers, the Saguenay and the Skeena, of 1,320 tons each, will be completed in 1931, to replace the Champlain and Vancouver. There are several small craft, some armed, used for fisheries protection and patrol duty on the eastern and western coasts and on the Great Lakes, but these are attached to the Department of Marine and Fisheries or to the Customs Department, and do not normally form part of the naval forces. H.M.C. dockyards are at Halifax and Esquimalt, having been taken over from the Imperial Government in 1910. Naval depots are maintained at both bases, and are used as training headquarters for the personnel of the R.C.N., R.C.N.R., and R.C.N.V.R.

The appropriations for naval services for 1929–30 amounted to 3,600,000 dollars.

Aeronautics.—The direction and control of aeronautics in Canada, both civil and military, come under the jurisdiction of the Department of National Defence. The powers and duties involved are exercised, under the direction of the Minister, by four separate branches of the Air Services, namely:—(a) the Royal Canadian Air Force; (b) the Directorate of Civil Government Air Operations; (c) The Controller of Civil Aviation; (d) The Aeronautical Engineering Division. The total personnel of the above four branches as at August 1, 1930, was 177 officers and 681 airmen. The Royal Canadian Air Force administers and controls all military air operations. The proposed establishment of the Royal Canadian Air Force is (i) Permanent Active Air Force, 202 officers and 803 airmen; (ii) Non-Permanent Active Air Force, 85 officers and 130 airmen.

The foregoing personnel does not include cadets and boys who undergo flying training and artisan training each summer at Camp Borden. The number undergoing such training during the summer of 1929 is as follows:—University and R.M.C. Cadets, 72; boys from various technical schools, 39. The estimated expenditure for the R.C.A.F. for 1930–31 was 2,510,000 dollars.

The Directorate of Civil Government Air Operations administers and controls all air operations carried out by State aircraft other than those operations of a military nature. The personnel consists of R.C.A.F. officers and other ranks who are loaned to this branch for various periods of duty, and a small number of civilian tradesmen. The work of this branch consists of carrying out operations for other Dominion Government Departments such as air photography for the Department of the Interior, Topographical Surveys Branch; forest fire patrol and suppression for the Forest Service of the Department of the Interior; experimental dusting operations for the Department of Agriculture; transportation for the Department of Indian Affairs; air mail investigation for the Post Office Department; and any other operation which is requested by a Dominion Government Department, such as the investigation of ice conditions in the Hudson Straits which was carried out during the 1927–28 season.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police.—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police is an armed police force organised in 11 divisions under a Commissioner whose headquarters are at Ottawa; on July 31, 1930, its strength was 56 officers, 1,065 other ranks, and 123 special constables.

The duties of the Police are to enforce Dominion Statutes (except the Criminal Code, which is enforced by the Provincial authorities); to assist the other Departments of the Dominion Government, and to enforce the observance of law in the Yukon, in the Northwest Territories, in the islands of the Arctic Ocean, and in Indian Reserves and the National Parks. By an agreement which came into effect on July 1, 1928, the Force enforces criminal and Provincial laws in the Province of Saskatchewan under the direction of the Attorney General of the Province. Assistance from time to time is rendered in certain circumstances to other Provincial authorities.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—Though the manufacturing industries now predominate, Canada is largely agricultural, and among her natural resources arable lands stand unrivalled. Present information permits only a rough estimate of their actual extent, but it is believed that about 381 million acres are physically suitable for agriculture. Grain growing, dairy farming, fruit farming, ranching and fur farming, are all carried on successfully. The following table shows the estimated agricultural wealth and production for 1929:—

	Values in dollars		Production in dollars
Land	3,316,061,000	Field crops	979,750,000
Buildings	1,382,684,000	Farm Animals	210,437,000
Implements and Machinery	665,172,000	Dairy Products	290,000,000

Production of the year	1,667,218,000
Total	7,978,633,000	Total	1,667,218,000

Field Crops—In 1929, 61,207,034 acres were under field crops, those most widely cultivated being wheat, oats, hay and clover, barley and rye.

The following are the revised estimates of January 1930 for acreage and yield of grain crops for the year 1929 :—

Dairying.—The dairying industry of the Dominion is carried on most extensively in Ontario and Quebec, although there are dairy factories in all of the provinces. The total number of creameries in Canada in 1929 was 1,202, of cheese factories, 1,290; and the total value of all products of dairy factories, 142,665,521 dollars.

Fruit Farming.—The value of fruit production by provinces in 1929 was (in dollars): British Columbia, 6,766,550; Ontario, 8,656,097; Nova Scotia, 2,830,088; Quebec, 1,145,846; and New Brunswick, 192,659; total, 19,591,240 dollars. The production of apples in 1929 was (in barrels): Nova Scotia 1,737,876, Ontario 808,967, British Columbia 1,101,357, Quebec 187,180, New Brunswick 35,000; total, 3,870,380 (total 1928, 3,235,970 barrels). The commercial crop of apples in 1929 is estimated at 3,870,380 barrels, valued at 10,461,075 dollars.

Miscellaneous.—The wool-clip of Canada for 1930 was estimated at 21,016,000 lb., valued at 2,522,000 dollars. The production in 1929 of tobacco, which is practically confined to Ontario and Quebec, was estimated at 29,786,100 lb. from 37,700 acres. The total production of eggs (for 1929), 278,096,578 dozens, valued at 85,380,522 dollars, and the 1929 value of maple products 6,118,656 dollars.

Forestry.—The total area of land covered by forests is officially estimated at 1,151,454 square miles. Of this 865,880 square miles are productive and accessible, a little over a third of this area bears timber of merchantable size.

The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, those of Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and the Railway Belt and Peace River Block of British Columbia having been recently transferred to the provinces concerned by the Dominion Government.

Fisheries.—In the calendar year 1929 the capital invested in vessels, gear, canneries, etc. (including working capital and stocks on hand) was 62,336,057 dollars. The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in 1929 was 53,518,521 dollars. The principal kinds of fish marketed in 1929 were: salmon, 14,976,110 dollars; halibut, 4,832,297 dollars; lobsters, 5,696,542 dollars; codfish, 5,394,636 dollars; herrings, 2,861,965 dollars; haddock, 1,951,642 dollars; sardines, 1,626,764 dollars; whitefish, 2,453,703 dollars; trout, 1,320,858 dollars; pickerel, 1,453,847 dollars; pilchards, 2,563,137 dollars; smelts, 1,190,908 dollars. The exports in calendar year 1929 were valued at 37,546,393 dollars (dry-salted codfish, 4,748,472 dollars; canned lobsters, 3,113,631 dollars; fresh lobsters, 2,266,008 dollars; canned salmon, 8,865,089 dollars). The number of persons employed in 1929 was 80,373, including those in shore work and canneries. The number of factories and canneries in operation in 1929 was 711.

Mining.—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N. and W. Ontario, Alberta, and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce in 1929 was 310,850,246 dollars, and in 1930, 276,865,000 dollars. The principal metals and minerals produced in 1929 and 1930 were as follows:—

[1] The metals copper, lead, and silver, are, for statistical and comparative purposes, valued at the final average value of the refined metal. Pig-iron is valued at the furnace. Non-metallic products are valued at the mine or point of shipment, and structural material and clay products at the point of shipment. [2] Not available.

Production of pig-iron in 1930 was 747,000 tons, and steel, 1,011,700 tons.

The Fur Trade.—In 1928–29 (year ended June 30), 5,019,038 pelts valued at 18,054,499 dollars, were taken. Exports in 1929–30 were valued at 24,181,208 dollars, imports at 13,289,043 dollars. Exports to the United States amounted to 12,662,308 dollars; to the United Kingdom, 10,360,730 dollars. Fur auctions are now held on a large scale at Montreal and Winnipeg. The more important animals raised on fur farms are fox, muskrat, beaver, mink, racoon, marten, karakul sheep, and skunk. The value of animals and pelts sold from the farms during the year 1928 was 6,106,105 dollars. There were in 1928, 3,676 fox farms and 468 other fur farms in Canada.

Commerce.

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and of the Dominions (except Australia) and of a number of the Crown Colonies. Commercial Treaties conceding most-favoured-foreign-nation rates of duty are in force with over twenty countries.

Exports and imports entered for home consumption in the Dominion (merchandise only):—

Shipping and Navigation.

The registered shipping on December 31, 1928, including vessels for inland navigation, consisted of 5,308 steamers and 3,337 other vessels; total, 8,645; total net tonnage, 1,366,074. The sea-going and coasting vessels that entered and cleared during the year ending March 31, 1929, were as follows:—

Vessels	Entered.		Cleared.
	No.	Tons	No.	Tons.
Sea-going:

Total	95,047	49,046,588	93,905	48,007,097

During the fiscal year 1929, the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports on inland waters between Canada and the United States were: Canadian, 21,033 of 20,557,222 tons; United States, 54,724 of 18,769,478 tons.

During the fiscal year 1929, 328 vessels, with a tonnage of 49,798 tons, were built in Canadian shipyards.

Internal Communications.

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk. Up to March 31, 1929, 216,585,487 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone (capital expenditure). The heavy expenditures in recent years have been due to the construction of the Welland Ship Canal on which 103,513,216 dollars had been spent to March 31, 1929. The lock gates were first opened on April 21, 1930. In 1929, 28,317 vessels, of 16,064,422 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 13,699,647 tons of freight, chiefly grain, lumber, iron ore and coal.

On January 11, 1909, a treaty was signed at Washington between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the use of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States. The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by the King on the recommendation of the Dominion, and three appointed by the President of the United States. This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, has jurisdiction in all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters. Precedence is given by the treaty to uses of the waters in the following order, viz., (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation, (3) for power and irrigation.

The total single track mileage of steam railways in Canada on December 31, 1929, was 41,410. The total mileage, including second track, yard track and sidings was 55,152.

The lines built or acquired by the Canadian Government are now consolidated in one system, known as the Canadian National Railways, covering over one-half of the single track mileage, including two transcontinental lines with termini in Canada at Saint John, Halifax, Vancouver and Prince Rupert, and the Grand Trunk with termini at Portland, Maine, U.S.A., and Chicago.

The mileage in private ownership is mainly that of the Canadian Pacific Railway, 14,655 in 1929. The main line of this road from Vancouver, B.C., to Saint John, New Brunswick, is 3,367 miles.

Statistics of the Canadian steam railways for 1929: passengers, 39·1 millions; freight, 115·2 million short tons; gross receipts, 534,106,045 dollars; net receipts, 101,028,932 dollars; capital liability, 3,966,357,355 dollars.

Electric railways in 1929, 57, mileage 1,637; passengers during the year, 836,729,851; tons of freight carried, 3,662,765. The gross earnings in 1929 reached an aggregate of 58,268,980 dollars. Operating expenses amounted to 40,085,140 dollars. Paid-up capital, 222,422,815 dollars.

On March 31, 1929, there were 12,430 post offices. Net revenue, 31,170,904 dollars; expenditure, 33,483,058 dollars. At the end of the fiscal year 1929 there were 3,915 rural mail delivery routes, on which were erected 206,459 boxes.

Money order offices on March 31, 1929, 6,066; orders issued, 17,210,316, value 203,129,237 dollars. The Ocean Mail subsidies and steamship subventions paid by the Government amounted to 1,026,375 dollars in the fiscal year 1929.

There were 53,777 miles (10,765 being Government) of telegraph lines in Canada in 1928, and 337,971 miles of wire (including 14,299 miles of Government lines), with 4,909 offices; 3,982,867 miles of telephone wire on December 31, 1928, and 1,334,534 telephones (13·8 per 100 population).

Wireless Telegraphy.—On March 31, 1930, there were 936 coast and land wireless stations, 319 ship wireless stations, 91 broadcasting stations, and 424,146 private receiving stations for the reception of broadcast programmes.

The ship and shore wireless traffic for the twelve months ended March 31, 1930, amounted to 440,912 messages and 9,167,302 words.

Wireless "beam" stations are operated at Montreal for direct communication with Great Britain and Australia, and a station at Louisburg, N.S., provides a long distance service to ships.

Money and Credit.

The Bank Acts of Canada impose stringent conditions as to capital, notes in circulation, limit of dividend, returns to the Dominion Government, and other points, on all chartered banks. On December 31, 1929, there were 11 incorporated banks making returns to the Government, with 4,069 branches. The following are some particulars (in dollars) of the banks for 1928, the figures being an average of the twelve monthly returns: capital paid up, 137,269,085; notes in circulation, 178,291,030; total on deposit, 2,696,747,857; liabilities to the public, 3,215,503,098; assets, 3,528,468,027; percentage of liabilities to assets, 91·13.

In addition to the capital there was in 1929 the sum of 150,636,682 dollars of rest or reserve funds belonging to the banks.

Bank debits in the clearing house centres of Canada for 1929 amounted to 46,670,481,838 dollars, against 43,476,959,100 dollars in 1928. Of the transactions of 1928, Montreal had over 33 per cent., Toronto 29 per cent., Winnipeg 10 per cent., Ottawa 4·3 per cent., and Vancouver 5·1 per cent.

Government post-office savings-banks have been in operation in Canada since 1868. The post-office savings-banks had on July 31, 1930, deposits amounting to 26,755,984 dollars.

The deposits in special savings-banks amounted on July 31, 1930, to 68,646,805 dollars.

Currency, Weights, and Measures.

The denominations of money in the currency of Canada are dollars, cents and mills. The cent is one-hundredth part of a dollar, and the mill one-tenth part of a cent. A five-cent. nickel coin has been issued. The standard of fineness for gold coins is nine-tenths fine, and British and United States gold coins are legal tender. The privilege of issuing notes is restricted to the Dominion Government and the chartered banks. The legal equivalent of the British sovereign is 4·86⅔ dollars.

The Dominion Government issues Dominion notes, which are legal tender, in denominations of $1, $2, $5 and certain other larger denominations used chiefly in clearing-house transactions between banks. They may be issued in any amount. Prior to the war, the security behind Dominion notes consisted of 25 per cent. gold for the first fifty million dollars of such notes and dollar for dollar in gold for amounts in excess of fifty million. They were redeemable in gold. The war necessitated the suspension of redemption in gold, and by special legislation the Government was given power to issue Dominion notes to the banks upon the pledge of satisfactory securities and interest at not less than 5 per cent. per annum was charged the banks. At the same time banknotes were made legal tender, and an issue of twenty-six million dollars of Dominion notes without security as formerly prescribed by law, largely to implement railway guarantees, was legalised. Redemption in gold was resumed on July 1, 1925.

Dominion notes in circulation on Aug. 31, 1930, amounted to 162,696,067 dollars.

The Ottawa Branch of the Royal Mint was established in pursuance of The Ottawa Mint Act, 1901, and an annual sum not exceeding 200,000 dollars is payable to the Imperial Treasury for the purpose of defraying the salaries of officials and other expenses of the Mint, the fees and all sums received being retained by Canada. The Mint issues gold, silver and copper coins for circulation in Canada, and sovereigns and half-sovereigns coined will be legal tender in every country under the British flag. Coinage for Newfoundland was struck at the Mint in 1917 and 1918.

In 1929 gold bullion to the value of 9,061,524 dollars was received for treatment, and bullion to the value of 9,682,363 dollars was issued. No gold was struck. Coin issued: bronze, 123,300 dollars; nickel, 267,000 dollars; silver, 1,081,000 dollars.

The legal weights and measures are the Imperial yard, pound avoirdupois, gallon, and bushel; but the hundredweight is declared to be 100 pounds and the ton 2,000 pounds avoirdupois, as in the United States.

CANADIAN PROVINCES.

ALBERTA.

Constitution and Government.—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867, and amending Acts; also in the Alberta Act of 1905, passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province. In the British North America Act, provision was made for the admission of the new provinces from time to time, including the then North-West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion. Upon the granting of autonomy to the North-West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except those with respect to schools, lands, and the public domain, were made to apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada. On October 1, 1930, the natural resources were transferred from the Dominion to Provincial Government control. The province is represented by 6 members in the Senate and 16 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant-Governor, who is appointed by the federal government, but actually in the Executive Council or the Cabinet of the Legislature. Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the name of the king.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people. Woman suffrage has been established in the province.

There are 63 members in the Legislature (1930)—39 United Farmers of Alberta, 11 Liberals, 4 Labour, 6 Conservatives, and 3 Independents.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour Dr. W. Egbert.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and Provincial Secretary.—Hon. John E. Brownlee.

Attorney-General.—Hon. J. F. Lymburn.

Minister of Agriculture and Public Health.—Hon. Geo. Hoadley.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. O. L. McPherson.

Minister of Railways and Telephones.—Hon. Vernor W. Smith.

Minister of Education.—Hon. Perren E. Baker.

Minister of Lands and Mines, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. Richard Gavin Reid.

Minister Without Portfolio.—Hon. Mrs. Irene Parlby.

Agent General in London.—Herbert Greenfield, 125, Pall Mall, S.W.1.

Local Government.—Municipal Districts, formerly known as Local Improvement Districts, comprise the area within the limits of nine townships, i.e. 18 miles square (324 square miles), or as near to this as natural features will allow. Each Municipal District is a body corporate and governed in most cases by an elected council of six members, the chairman of whom is called the Reeve. The councillors are elected by a vote of all persons who are assessed for property within the Municipal District, together with the vote of the wife, husband, son, daughter, father or mother of such assessed persons, provided these relatives reside on the land of the assessed person.

Towns operate under the Town Act, 1927, except one which carries on under special charter. Villages are erected by Order of the Minister of Municipal Affairs, and are governed by the Village Act. The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll. These must be twenty-one years of age, and assessed for property of the value of one hundred dollars and upwards. The village council consists of three members elected annually, the Chairman being Mayor of the village.

There are seven cities in Alberta, namely: Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Wetaskiwin, Red Deer, Medicine Hat, and Drumheller. These cities operate under special charters granted by the North-West Territorial Assembly, and later confirmed by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Alberta. The governing body consists of a Mayor and a council of from six to ten members, according to the size of the city.

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 255,285 square miles, 252,925 sq. miles being land area and 2,360 sq. miles water area, The population (1926), 607,584; in 1921, 588,454, in 1916, 496,525; in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 73,022. In 1921 the rural population numbered 365,550 (54,489 in 1901), and the urban 222,904 (18,533 in 1901). There were 8,745 Indians in 1921, or 1·49 per cent. of the total population. Population of the principal cities (1926):—Calgary, 65,513; Edmonton, 65,163; Lethbridge, 10,893; Medicine Hat, 9,536; Red Deer, 2,006; Wetaskiwin, 1,884.

The vital statistics for 5 years are given as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1925 . . .	14,564	4,271	4,449	10,115
1926 . . .	14,455	4,498	5,156	9,299
1927 . . .	14,897	4,707	5,059	9,838
1928 . . .	15,692	5,776	5,699	9,993
1929 . . .	16,329	5,884	5,851	10,478

Education.—Schools of all grades are included under the term of public school. The same boards of trustees control the schools from the kindergarten to entrance to the university. All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants, which are distributed to encourage elementary, secondary, and technical education and agricultural training. In 1929 there were 3,640 schools, 64 being consolidated schools and 13 being rural high schools, with 164,850 pupils. There are Normal schools at Calgary, Camrose and Edmonton for the training of teachers. The attendance during 1929 was 801. The University of Alberta, organised in 1907, had, in 1928–29, 1,516 students.

Justice and Crime.—Judicial power of the province is vested in the Supreme Court, consisting of two divisions, the appellate and trial divisions. The judges are appointed by the Dominion Government, and hold office for life unless impeached by Parliament. There are also minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction. The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to 600 dollars. By the Small Debts Act of 1918, as amended in 1924, Justices have jurisdiction over matters up to 100 dollars. There are also Juvenile Courts having power to try boys and girls under 16 years of age.

The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources:—(1) Dominion subsidies; (2) School lands; and (3) Provincial sources.

—	1926	1927	1928 [1]	1929	1930
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenue . . .	11,912,128	12,263,400	16,149,896	15,265,084	15,829,865

[1] Fifteen months ending March 31, 1928.

The gross bonded debt of the province March 31, 1930, amounted to 106,888,380 dollars. Of this amount 38,936,134 dollars represent assets which are self-supporting. There are other revenue producing but not self-sustaining assets amounting to 5,500,000 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Alberta is pre-eminently an agricultural province. Within the surveyed area of the province, which comprises about 85,000,000 acres, there are about 60,000,000 acres which may be classed as lands capable of agricultural development. Up to the present, however, little more than one-sixth of this area has been brought under cultivation.

For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock, see under Canada above. The wool clip for 1930 was 3,116,000 lbs.

Grain elevators (1929–30), 1,707, with a capacity of 64,647,000 bushels.

A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal area at 16,588 square miles containing 90,000 million tons, 80,000 million being lignite. The output in 1929 was 7,147,350 tons, valued at 22,896,024 dollars. Natural gas is found abundantly in numerous localities. In 1929, 18,845,900 cubic feet, valued at 4,583,117 dollars, was consumed. High grade gasoline is profitably extracted from the gas in Turner Valley. In 1929, 992,000 barrels of crude petroleum were produced, valued at 3,476,620 dollars. Immense deposits of bituminous sand containing on an average 15 to 18 per cent. bitumen are situated in the McMurray district in northern Alberta. Value of total mineral production in 1929, 34,652,128 dollars.

Alberta has 12,072,960 acres of forest reserves.

The lakes of the province abound in whitefish, pickerel, pike and trout, but the industry is not developed to any great extent. Value of fish marketed, 1928, 725,050 dollars.

Manufacturing in the province: Flour, oatmeal, cement, and linseed oil mills, pork and beef packing houses, clay, brass and iron, glass, wood, clothing, canning, biscuit and macaroni factories, large railway repair shops and oil refineries.

Statistics of manufactures for 1928: number of industrial establishments, 778; capital, 92,190,476 dollars; number of employees, 10,559; salaries and wages, 11,382,772 dollars; cost of materials, 59,398,697 dollars; value of products, 100,744,401 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The principal exports of the province consist of grain, live-stock, meat and meat products, wool, fish, butter, eggs, mining and timber products.

Length of railway lines 5,568 miles in 1929. Alberta's modern telephone system is owned and operated by the Provincial Government except in the town of Banff and city of Edmonton. Automatic exchanges are operated at Calgary, Lethbridge, and Medicine Hat and Drumheller. 209,939 miles of wire serve 327 exchanges and 283 toll stations. There are 80,602 rural and urban subscribers, and first-class long distance service is available to all points in the Province and to every other Province in the Dominion and every State in the United States as well as to Mexico, Cuba and many points in Europe.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Constitution and Government.—British Columbia (then known as New Caledonia) and Vancouver Island originally formed part of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession. In 1849 Vancouver, and in 1858 British Columbia, were constituted Crown Colonies, and in 1866 the two Colonies were united. On July 20th, 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by 6 members in the Senate, and 14 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and Legislative Assembly of 48 members on the system of executive administration known as a "responsible government." The Assembly is elected for five years, every adult, male or female (British subjects), having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour Robert R. Bruce (1926).

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Railways.—Hon. S. F. Tolmie, P.C.
Provincial Secretary and Commissioner of Fisheries.—Hon. S. L. Howe.
Attorney-General.—Hon. R. H. Pooley, K.C.
Minister of Lands.—Hon. N. S. Lougheed.

President of the Council.—Hon. W. C. Shelly.
Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C.
Agent-General in London.—Hon. F. P. Burden, British Columbia House, 1/3, Regent Street, S.W.1.

Area and Population.—British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, has an area of 372,630 square miles, of which 369,191 square miles are land area, and 2,439 square miles water area, but exclusive of territorial seas. It lies between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north.

The subdivisions of the Province are as follows: Kootenays, east and est, 26,346 square miles; Yale, 10,462; Lillooet, 16,100; Vancouver and Westminster, 7,066; Cariboo, 148,594; Skeena, 123,896; Vancouver Island and Comox, 20,952.

The last census (1921) places the population at 524,582; in 1911 the population was 392,480; and in 1901 it was 178,657. Census Bureau estimate (1929), 591,000.

Some of the principal cities and towns are: Victoria (the capital), population, (1921), 60,000; Vancouver, 344,000; New Westminster, 15,450; Nanaimo, 9,088; North Vancouver, 13,492; Nelson, 7,000; Prince Rupert, 7,500.

The movement of the population for five years was as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1924	10,119	4,038	5,004	5,115
1925	10,342	4,223	4,945	5,397
1926	10,063	4,418	5,474	4,589
1927	10,084	4,720	5,750	4,334
1928	10,312	4,901	5,901	4,111

Education.—A complete system of free and non-sectarian education was established by Act in 1872. Attendance is compulsory from the age of seven to fifteen. The central control is vested in the Council of Public Instruction, composed of the members of the Executive Council.

There were 79 high schools, with 14,545 enrolled pupils and 515 teachers and 10 junior high schools with 4,797 pupils, and 126 teachers in 1929. The number of elementary schools was 1,012, with 3,079 teachers and 95,913 pupils. There were 32 superior schools with 669 pupils and 33 teachers. The Provincial University was founded by Act in 1908. It began operations as a teaching institution in 1914, and in 1929-30 there were 1,900 students, with 248 more at Victoria College. There are 2 normal schools, with 365 students in attendance in 1929-30.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure:—

	Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars		Revenue Dollars	Expenditure Dollars
1923-24	19,621,208	21,476,272	1926-27	20,528,080	20,788,095

Statistics of manufactures for 1928 (exclusive of construction and custom and repairs industries): Industrial establishments, 1,624; capital, 367,898,589 dollars; employees, 48,984; wages and salaries, 58,734,703 dollars; cost of materials, 137,185,812 dollars; gross value of products, 270,851,669 dollars.

The total available water power of the Province has been estimated at over six million H.P., of which 559,792 H.P. was developed at the end of 1929.

Commerce.—In 1928–29 the imports amounted to 94,041,183 dollars, and the exports to 237,583,500 dollars. Exports consisted of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, lead, copper, zinc and coal), grain, sea products (chiefly salmon, halibut, herrings, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, pulp and paper, fruit, etc.

The catch of whales off the coast of British Columbia totalled 388 in 1929 (305 in 1928).

Communications and Shipping.—The Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National lines are at present the principal railways in the Province. The C.P.R. has three main lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Kettle Valley Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on the inland lakes, besides a large fleet of ocean-going and coasting steamers. The Canadian National has two main lines, diverging in Yellowhead Pass, Mount Robson Park, one with ocean terminus at Prince Rupert and the other at Vancouver, besides steamship lines. The Pacific Great Eastern Ry., owned and operated by the Province, runs north and south through the heart of the country. The railway mileage in 1928 was 5,280. British Columbia has a greater number of telephones per capita than any other province, having a total of 127,387 on January 1, 1930.

In the fiscal year of 1928–29, 10,667 sea-going vessels entered inwards, 10,805 sea-going vessels cleared outwards; and 41,420 coastwise vessels entered and 41,527 cleared.

Banking.—Bank clearings for five years:—1925, 941,516,745 dollars; 1926, 1,038,843,176 dollars; 1927, 1,085,902,893 dollars; 1928, 1,288,246,552 dollars; 1929, 1,445,640,200 dollars.

MANITOBA.

Constitution and Government.—Manitoba was known as the Red River Settlement before its entry into the Dominion in 1870. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 55 members elected for five years. Women have been enfranchised. Proportional representation has been adopted for the 10 seats in the City of Winnipeg, and the transferable vote for all other constituencies. The province is represented by 6 members in the Senate and 17 in the House of Commons of Canada. The Crown lands and other natural resources of the Province, formerly in the hands of the Dominion Government, were transferred to the Province as from July 15, 1930.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour J. D. McGregor (January, 1929).

Premier, President of the Council, Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. John Bracken.

Minister of Mines and Natural Resources, Provincial Lands Commissioner, and Provincial Secretary.—Hon. Donald G. McKenzie.

Provincial Secretary and Municipal Commissioner.—Hon. D. L. McLeod.

Minister of Agriculture and Immigration, and Railway Commissioner.—Hon. A. Prefontaine.

Minister of Education.—Hon. R. A. Hoey.

Attorney-General and Minister of Telephones and Telegraphs.—Hon. W. J. Major, K.C.

Minister of Health and Public Welfare.—Hon. Edward W. Montgomery, M.D.

State of parties in Legislative Assembly: Progressive (Government), 28; Conservative, 15; Liberal, 7; Labour, 3; Independent, 2.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 251,832 square miles (224,777 sq. miles land and 27,055 sq. miles water). In 1912 its boundaries were extended to the shores of Hudson Bay. (See map STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1912.) The population in 1911 was 461,394, in 1916, 553,860, in 1921, 610,118, in 1926, 639,056. The rural population in 1921 was 348,502 (184,775 in 1901), 360,861 in 1926. The number of houses in 1921 was 117,541 (49,784 in 1901); the number of families in 1921 was 128,984 (51,056 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1926):—Winnipeg (capital), 191,998 (Greater Winnipeg, 336,200 in 1929); Brandon, 16,443; Portage la Prairie, 6,513; St. Boniface, 14,187.

Vital statistics for 4 years :—

[1] Eight months.

Provincial funded debt, April 30, 1929 : 87,701,771 dollars. Estimated assets, 136,875,364 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The southern part of Manitoba is rich agricultural land, while the northern two-thirds of the province form part of the Canadian shield, an area underlain by pre-Cambrian rocks which have been proved to be rich in mineral deposits in other parts of Canada. Estimated arable land, 25,000,000 acres, of which about 30 per cent. is under cultivation. For particulars of agricultural production and number of live-stock, see under Canada above. The wool clip for 1930 was 1,268,000 lbs.

Total value of minerals, 1929, 4,459,756 dollars, largely building material and gypsum. The Province has proved gold and copper deposits of great extent, which are being developed. The numerous lakes in Manitoba furnish large quantities of excellent fish. Value marketed in 1929, 2,634,705 dollars. Forest reserves in Manitoba 2,477,523 acres.

Statistics of manufactures for 1928 : 871 industrial establishments, with a capital of 159,721,124 dollars ; employees, 25,166 ; wages and salaries, 32,569,223 dollars ; cost of materials used, 88,284,693 dollars ; and value of products, 159,435,094 dollars.

Communications.—In the year 1929, the Province had 4,294 miles of railway as compared with 3,074 miles in 1907. There are (1929) 313,697 miles of telephone wire in Manitoba, and 79,546 telephones.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Constitution and Government.—New Brunswick was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534. It was acquired by the English under the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and was settled by the English as early as 1761. In 1784 it was separated from Nova Scotia. The Government is at present vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 48 members elected for five years. Franchise—any male or female British subject of full age, after six months' residence. Last election, August, 1925 :—Liberals 12, Conservatives 35, Independents 1. The province is represented by 10 members of the Senate and 11 in the Canadian House of Commons.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. H. H. McLean.

The members of the Ministry are as follows (1925) :—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. J. B. M. Baxter.
Provincial Secretary and Treasurer.—Hon. A. J. Leger.
Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. Lewis Smith.
Minister of Health and Labour.—Hon. Dr. H. I. Taylor.
President of Executive Council.—Hon. L. P. D. Tilley.
Minister of Public Works.—Hon. D. A. Stewart.
Minister of Lands and Mines —Hon. C. D. Richards.
Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. E. A. Reilly, K.C.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 27,985 square miles, of which 27,911 square miles are land area. There are 7¾ million acres of Crown lands, principally lumber lands. The population in 1921 was 387,876; in 1911, 351,889. The rural population in 1921 was 265,648. Population of the principal cities (1921):—Saint John, 47,166 ; Moncton, 17,488 ; Fredericton (capital), 8,114.

Education.—Education is free and undenominational. There are three Universities. The University of New Brunswick, at Fredericton, founded in 1800, had 168 students in 1922; the Mount Allison University at Sackville had 265 students; and the University of St. Joseph's College at Memramcook had 53 undergraduates in 1923. There were (1927) 80,690 pupils and 2,533 teachers in the 2,311 public schools. Total expenditure on public schools in 1926-27, 3,071,315 dollars.

Finance.—The finance for recent years is shown as follows (years ended October 31) :—

Year	Ordinary Revenue	Ordinary Expenditure	Year	Ordinary Revenue	Ordinary Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1922	3,117,445	3,046,869	1925	2,667,611	4,154,780
1923	3 445,878	3,708,971	1926	4,382,655	4,145,820
1924	3,838,084	3,827,960	1927	4,933,029	4,917,287

Funded debt, October 31, 1927, 36,554,409 dollars.

Production and Industry.—New Brunswick is productive in agricultural manufacture, mining, fishing, and forest products. The total area under field crops in 1927 was 889,276 acres. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada, pp. 290, 291. The wool clip for 1930 was 875,000 lbs.

The Government owns over 10,600 square miles of forests and a similar area is owned privately. In 1926 the total timber cut in New Brunswick from both Crown and Private Lands, including sawn lumber, lath, shingles, railway ties, pulpwood, etc., was in excess of 730 million feet, board measure. Of this amount sawn lumber formed 405 million feet and pulpwood was equivalent to 239 million feet. The total value of forest products, including sawn lumber, lath, shingles, pulp and paper, etc., and also pulpwood exported totals over 30,000,000 dollars. The capital invested in sawmills, pulp mills, logging and driving equipment, etc., is placed at 42,000,000 dollars, and wages amount to over 7,500,000 dollars annually.

A considerable variety of minerals is known to exist in the Province, such as iron, copper, antimony, lead, zinc, tungsten, manganese, bituminous coal, gypsum, oil shale, salt, diatomite. The only active mining in the year 1929 was in coal, copper, antimony, and gypsum. Quantities of good limestone exist in the southern part of the Province, and are quarried for lime, the pulp industry and as a fertilizing agent. Various granites are quarried and manufactured at St. George, and there is an active industry in pulpstones at Quarryville. Natural gas and oil are produced near Moncton. Coal output, 1928, 207,738 short tons.

In 1927 there were 872 industrial establishments, with a capital of 99,087,327 dollars, employing 18,970 persons; salaries and wages, 14,999,101 dollars; cost of materials, 42,780,582 dollars; value of products, 72,666,665 dollars.

The total value of fisheries in 1928 was 4,996,898 dollars, and in 1927, 4,406,602 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The exports of the Province in 1928–29 amounted to 71,896,273 dollars; the imports for consumption to 24,764,939 dollars.

The Province had 1,935 miles of steam railway operating in 1927, as compared with 1,503 miles in 1907. In 1927 there were 47,993 miles of telephone wire and 31,254 telephones.

NOVA SCOTIA.

The first permanent settlement was made by the French early in the seventeenth century, and the province was called Acadia until finally ceded to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

Constitution and Government.—Under the "British North America Act" of 1867 the Legislature of Nova Scotia may exclusively make laws in relation to local matters, including direct taxation within the Province, and the administration of justice. The Legislature of Nova Scotia consists of a Lieutenant-Governor, appointed and paid by the Federal Government, and holding office for five years; and a House of Assembly of 38 members, chosen by popular vote every five years. The province is represented in the Dominion Senate by 10 members, and in the House of Commons by 14.

The franchise and eligibility to the Legislature are granted to every person, whether male or female, if of full age (21 years), a British subject, and a resident for one year in the county of which the polling district forms part, and if not by law otherwise disqualified, or in receipt of aid as a pauper.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour The Hon. Frank Stanfield (appointed November, 1930).

The Members of the Ministry are as follows (appointed 1930) :—

Premier and Minister of Public Works and Mines.—Col. the Hon. G. S. Harrington, K.C.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. O. P. Goucher.

Attorney-General and Minister of Lands and Forests.—Hon. W. L. Hall, K.C.

Minister of Highways.—Hon. P. C. Black.

Provincial Secretary-Treasurer.—Hon. J. Doull.

Minister of Health.—Dr. G. H. Murphy.

Ministers Without Portfolio.—Hon. J. Fred. Fraser; Hon. A. Parsons.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 21,428 square miles, of which 21,068 square miles are land area, and 360 square miles water area. The population in 1929 was 550,000 (estimated); in 1921 was 523,837; in 1911, 492,338; in 1901, 459,574; and in 1891, 450,396.

Population of the principal cities and towns (1921) :—Halifax, 58,372; Sydney, 22,545; Glace Bay, 17,007; Dartmouth, 7,899 : Amherst, 9,998; New Glasgow, 8,974; Sydney Mines, 8,327; Truro, 7,562; Yarmouth, 7,093.

The vital statistics for three years are as follows :—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births
1926-27	11,134	2,861	6,259	4,875
1927-28	11,062	3,255	6,077	4,985
1928-29	10,931	3,256	6,202	4,729

Religion.—The denominations according to the Census of 1921 were:—Roman Catholics, 160,802; Presbyterians, 109,860; Baptists, 86,833; Anglicans, 85,604; Methodists, 59,065; and Congregationalists, 2,372.

There are also various other sects with small numbers of adherents.

Education.—Education in Nova Scotia is free, compulsory, and undenominational. Besides the elementary schools, high schools and academies, there are in Halifax a Maritime Provinces school for the blind and one for the deaf. A large Provincial Agricultural College is established at Truro; also a Normal School for the training of teachers. The Provincial Technical College grants degrees in civil, mining, chemical and electrical engineering. It also conducts correspondence courses in numerous subjects. Besides this central institution there are, working under its supervision, coal mining schools near all the collieries, and engineering and technical schools of various kinds in the industrial centres.

The total expenditure on education in 1928 was 3,781,217 dollars. The Province has 9 universities and colleges; 3,319 schools, with 3,358 teachers and 112,898 pupils.

Justice and Crime.—Justice in Nova Scotia is administered by the following courts: Courts for the collection of small debts; county courts; inferior courts in criminal cases; courts of superior jurisdiction; a divorce court and probate courts. The supreme court of appeal is composed of a chief justice and six judges. There are also courts for the revision of assessment rolls and voters lists, and a court for juvenile delinquents.

In 1928–29, 2,740 persons were imprisoned for various crimes and misdemeanours.

Finance.—In Nova Scotia there is no general direct Government taxation. The revenue is raised from the Dominion subsidy; royalty on coal and other minerals; succession duty; special taxes on banks, incorporated companies, partnerships, automobiles and theatres, marriage licences, and statutory fees.

Revenue, expenditure, and debt for five years :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1924	5,461,383	5,577,872	31,159,640
1925	4,467,484	5,969,544	36,000,928
1926	5,744,574	6,327,042	35,253,323
1927	6,517,072	6,566,148	41,708,457
1928	6,933,629	7,543,077	43,757,113

Production and Industry.—Nova Scotia is largely an agricultural Province. Fruit-growing is specially profitable, and apples are the most important fruit grown; in 1930 the estimated crop was about 2,000,000 barrels. Nova Scotia is admirably adapted for dairying. Owing to the cool, moist climate, fodder may be raised easily, and the pastures are excellent. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock, see under Canada above. The wool clip for 1930 was 1,638,000 lbs.

Principal Minerals are (Sept. 30, 1929): coal, 6,339,492 tons; coke, 459,305 tons; tar, 7,012,027 tons; gold, 1,568 ozs.; gypsum, 1,021,081 tons; salt, 30,625 tons.

The known coal fields embrace 1,000 square miles. The gold districts cover about 10,250 square miles.

The estimated forest area of Nova Scotia is over 12,000 square miles. The principal trees are spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, birch, oak and maple. The estimated value of the forest products in 1926 reached the sum of 14,500,000 dollars.

The fisheries of the Province in 1929 had a value of 11,455,491 dollars, including cod fishery, 3,504,583 dollars, and lobster fishery, 3,210,504 dollars. In 1929, 7,446,835 dollars were invested in this industry, and about 16,000 men were employed.

The number of industrial establishments was (in 1928) 1,408, with a capital invested of 118,050,902 dollars, employing 18,000 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 16,230,000 dollars; value of products, 107,900,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The imports entered for consumption during 1927 were 23,479,462 dollars; the exports, 53,226,985 dollars.

The country is covered with a network of railways, 1,451 miles in extent. There are 18,000 miles of highways. Besides this, subsidised boats ply round the shores making regular calls at all the important ports.

In 1928 there were 76,935 miles of telephone wire and 41,219 telephones.

ONTARIO.

Constitution and Government.—From 1791 to 1867 Ontario was called Upper Canada. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor, a cabinet, and one chamber with 112 members. The latter are elected for four years by a general franchise. Women have the vote and can be elected to the chamber.

Lieutenant-Governor.—The Honourable W. D. Ross.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier, President of Council and Minister of Education.—Hon. G. S. Henry.
Attorney-General.—Hon. W. H. Price, K.C.
Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. E. A. Dunlop.
Secretary and Registrar.—Hon. L. Macaulay.
Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. T. L. Kennedy.
Minister of Public Works and Labour.—Hon. J. D. Monteith.
Minister of Lands and Forests.—Hon. W. F. Finlayson.
Minister of Mines.—Hon. Charles McCrea.
Minister of Health.—Hon. J. M. Robb.
Minister of Welfare.—Hon. W. G. Martin.
Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. R. J. Cooke, Hon. F. T. Syme.

Agent-General in London.—Wm. C. Noxon, 163 Strand, W.C. 2.

At the elections for the Provincial Legislature held on October 30, 1929, the following parties were returned:—Conservatives, 90; Progressives, 5; Liberals, 12; United Farmers of Ontario, 1; Labour, 4; total 112.

Area and Population.—The greatest extent of the Province from east to west is 1,000 miles and from north to south 1,075 miles. The area is 407,262 square miles (365,880 sq. miles land area and 41,382 water). The Province is roughly divided into two sections by a line running westward from Mattawa on the Ottawa River to Georgian Bay—southern (or old) Ontario, the older settled portion, with an area of about 77,000 square miles, and northern (or new) Ontario, with an area of about 330,000 square miles, of which 146,400 square miles, the district of Patricia, was added in 1912. Estimated population of the principal cities (1928):—Toronto (capital), 569,899; Ottawa, 121,000; Hamilton, 127,447; London, 66,132.

The estimated population for 1929 was 3,271,800. The population of the City of Toronto in 1929 was officially estimated at 606,370. The Indian opulation of the Province in 1921 was 26,436.

Education.—There is a complete State system of elementary and secondary schools. There is one provincial University—the University of Toronto, founded in 1827, with (1927) 659 professors and lecturers. The other Universities are Queen's at Kingston, Western Ontario at London, McMaster at Toronto, and Ottawa in Ottawa, which are private foundations. The first two are now undenominational and are aided by the State. The Royal Military College at Kingston is maintained by the Dominion Government. There were, in 1928, 7,219 elementary schools and 483 secondary day schools, attended by 724,989 pupils. There are 19,863 certificated teachers engaged in these elementary and secondary schools. The total expenditure by the Government of Ontario on education in 1929 was 10,278,187 dollars.

Finance.—The revenues of the Province are derived from the sale of Crown lands, timber, mining, liquor sales, amusement, gasoline and betting taxes, succession duties and other fees, supplemented by a subsidy from the Dominion. The revenue and expenditure in recent years were as follow :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1924-25	46,602,803	51,710,168	1927-28	58,426,982	58,198,746
1925-26	50,841,042	51,653,183	1928-29	64.549,717	61,906,824
1926-27	56,306,224	55,947,001	1929-30	57,325,000	57,953,000

Production and Industry.—The Province is rich in agricultural and mineral resources. The land under cultivation is about 14,000,000 acres, more than 1,000,000 additional acres are cleared, and 25,358,000 acres are assessed. Of the total land surface of the Province, which is 234,000,000 acres, the amount of arable land is much larger than the portion now under cultivation. Beyond the cultivated portion it is estimated that northern Ontario alone contains some 20,000,000 acres of alluvial soil, not including the vast stretches of agricultural land south and west of James Bay. The farm values for 1928 were :—Land, 940,311,406 dollars; buildings, 518,209,271 dollars; implements, 171,181,259 dollars; and live-stock, 239,493,997 dollars. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada above. The wool clip for 1930 was 6,325,000 lbs.

The mineral production in 1929 included gold, 1,622,689 ozs., value 33,543,913 dollars; silver, 8,753,859 ozs., 4,649,275 dollars; nickel in matte exported, 14,069 short tons; nickel, metallic, 70,741,300 lbs.; nickel oxide, 14,916,784 lbs.; copper in matte exported, 8,449 short tons; copper, metallic, 71,917,576 lbs.; platinum metals, 27,446 ozs.; Portland cement, 4,624,712 barrels; crude petroleum, 121,125 barrels; natural gas, 8,572,900 m. cubic feet. Total value of metallic minerals in 1928, 71,267,003 dollars, and in 1929, 83,330,153 dollars. Non-metallic minerals and structural materials in 1928 were worth 28,816,119 dollars, and in 1929, 33,228,758 dollars. The total value of the mineral production of Ontario in 1928 was 100,305,919 dollars as against 116,558,911 dollars in 1929.

Total area of forests 240,000 square miles; chief timber is spruce, pine and poplar.

In 1928 Ontario had 9,900 manufacturing establishments, with a capital of 2,275,921,056 dollars, employing 320,729 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 391,375,947 dollars; cost of materials, 1,034,501,240 dollars; gross value of products, 1,949,724,119 dollars.

Communications.—There were in 1927, 51,989 miles of public road with an expenditure during 1926–27 of 13,383,702 dollars. In 1925 there were 10,908 miles of steam railway in Ontario, as compared with 7,368 in 1907. There were (1925) 1,241,647 miles of telephone wires and 511,286 telephones in 1926.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

This island was discovered by Sebastian Cabot in 1497; it was first settled by the French, but was taken from them in 1758. It was annexed to Nova Scotia in 1763, and constituted a separate colony in 1769.

Constitution and Government.—Prince Edward Island entered the Confederation on July 1, 1873. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 30 members, who are elected for 4 years, half by real property holders and the remainder by universal male and female suffrage. Women can also be elected to the Assembly. State of Parties (elected July, 1927): Liberals, 24; Conservatives, 6.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Frank R. Heartz.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier, Provincial Secretary, Treasurer and Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. W. M. Lea.

Minister of Public Works and Highways.—Hon. J. P. McIntyre.

Attorney and Advocate-General.—Hon. T. A. Campbell.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. J. Blanchard; Hon. B. W. Le Page; Hon. W. B. Butler; Hon. J. F. McNeill, M.D.; Hon. P. Sinclair.

Area and Population.—The province, which is the smallest in the Dominion, lies at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the mainland of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia by Northumberland Strait. The area of the island is 2,184 sq. miles. The total population (1921 census) was 88,615. The rural population in 1921 was 69,522 (88,304 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—Charlottetown (capital), 12,347; Summerside, 3,228.

Religion and Education.—The population of the Province at the census of 1921 was divided among the different creeds as follows;—Roman Catholic, 39,312; Presbyterian, 25,945; Methodist, 11,408; Baptist, 5,816; Anglican, 5,057. There were (1930) 472 schools, 615 teachers, 17,180 pupils. This is exclusive of 3 Roman Catholic convent schools at Tignish, Summerside and Charlottetown, with 551 pupils. There are two colleges, Prince of Wales College, head of the Provincial school system, and St. Dunstan's, a Roman Catholic institution, both in Charlottetown. Total expenditure on public education in 1928 was 485,137 dollars.

Finance.—

—	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenue	664,590	747,060	738,851	827,087	840,226
Expenditure	714,195	724,958	851,981	828,646	836,436

The expenditure does not include sinking fund or highway improvement, the outlay on the latter in 1929 being about 214,000 dollars.

The total liabilities of the Province amounted on 31st December, 1929, to 2,558,740 dollars; assets calculated at 1,585,505 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The farm land occupied in 1921 was 1,216,483 acres. Field crops in 1928 covered about 540,619 acres. The land in natural forest covers 356,996 acres, and in pasture 293,454. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada above. The wool clip for 1930 was 496,000 lbs.

Silver fox breeding is extensively carried on, and pelts are shipped to United States and European markets; breeding foxes are exported to all northern countries. The value of fur-bearing animals on farms in 1929 was estimated at 4,500,000 dollars.

The total value of the fisheries in 1928 was 1,279,407 dollars. Of the total, lobsters make up 832,431 dollars, smelts, cod, herring and oysters being, in the order named, the largest other items.

The fishing season of 1928 showed a considerable falling off in production as compared with the previous year, notably in lobsters. Oysters abound in Richmond Bay, where the beds extend to 15,000 acres. The Dominion Government has possession and control of the oyster areas surrounding the Province. It is believed that the industry will soon be of major importance.

In 1927 there were 291 industrial establishments, with a capital of 3,081,504 dollars, employing 2,232 persons; salaries and wages, 687,849 dollars; cost of materials, 2,855,438 dollars; value of products, 4,493,628 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The trade of Prince Edward Island is chiefly with the other provinces of Canada and this inter-provincial trade does not appear in the trade statistics. In 1928-29 the exports to other countries amounted to 956,045 dollars; the imports entered for consumption to 1,808,713 dollars. In 1927 the province had 276 miles of railway. A railway and automobile ferry steamer of great power is in operation, connecting the lines of the Canadian National Railway in Prince Edward Island with those on the mainland. Daily steamship communication with the mainland was successfully maintained for the first time during the winter of 1917-18, and has since continued without interruption. In 1927 there were 5,623 miles of telephone wires and 4,669 telephones.

QUEBEC.

Quebec was formerly known as New France or Canada from 1535 to 1763; as the Province of Quebec from 1763 to 1790; as Lower Canada from 1791 to 1846; as Canada East from 1846 to 1867; and when, by the union of the four original provinces, the Confederation of the Dominion of Canada was formed, it again became known as the Province of Quebec.

Constitution and Government.—The Provincial Government is modelled on that of the Dominion organization and is in the hands of a Lieutenant-Governor and a responsible Ministry, assisted by a Legislative Council of 24 members, appointed for life by the Lieutenant-Governor, and a Legislative Assembly of 85 members elected for 5 years. Members of both Houses receive 2,500 dollars per session. Quebec is the only Canadian Province in which women are not enfranchised or eligible for election to the Legislature, but a Bill is being presented by the Government at the session, 1931, giving the married women of the Province a status in respect of legal rights equal to that enjoyed by their husbands and removing existing anomalies. Last election, May 16, 1927: Liberals 75, Conservatives 10.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Henry George Carroll (appointed April, 1929).

The members of the Ministry (June, 1929) are as follows:—

Premier, Attorney-General, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. L. A. Taschereau.

Minister of Lands and Forests.—Hon. Honoré Mercier.

Provincial Secretary.—Hon. Athanase David.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. Adelard Godbout.

Minister of Colonisation, Game and Fisheries.—Hon. H. La Ferte.

Minister of Public Works and Labour.—Hon. A. Galipeault.

Minister of Roads and Mines.—Hon. J. E. Perrault.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. E. Moreau, Hon. L. Lapierre, Hon. J. H. Dillon, Hon. Alfred Leduc, J. E. Ouellet, N. Pérodean, G. W. Scott.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. L. J. Lemieux, 2 Cockspur Street, London, S.W. 1.

Area and Population.—The area of Quebec (as amended by the Labrador Boundary Award) is 594,434 sq. miles (583,895 sq. miles land area and 10,539 sq. miles water). Of this extent, 351,780 sq. miles represents the Territory of Ungava, annexed in 1912 under the Quebec Boundaries Extension Act. The population in 1921 was 2,361,199 (1,180,028 males and 1,181,171 females) as against 2,005,776 in 1911, or an increase of 17 per cent. Of the 1921 population 357,108 were of British and 1,889,277 of French origin. The rural population in 1921 was 1,038,128, and the urban population 1,323,071. According to religious beliefs, in 1921, 2,023,993 were Roman Catholics, 121,967 Anglicans, 73,748 Presbyterians, 41,884 Methodists, 47,766 Jews and 14,148 Protestants. Population of the principal cities (Municipal Statistics, 1929):—Montreal, 1,325,000; Quebec (capital) 165,000; Hull, 40,000; Verdun, 51,140; Three Rivers, 65,000; Sherbrooke, 40,303.

Education.—The province has four Universities: McGill (Montreal, Protestant) founded in 1841, with 4,240 students in 1928-29; Lennoxville, also Protestant, founded in 1845, with 161 students in 1928-29; Laval (Quebec), founded in 1852, and University of Montreal (Montreal), the centre of higher education for the Catholic population of the province, with 6,890 students in Quebec in 1928–29, and 8,656 in Montreal. Quebec had, in 1928, 8,145 schools of all kinds, with 611,783 pupils and 23,743 teachers. All the schools are sectarian, i.e., are either Catholic or Protestant. The total expenditure on education was 30,881,877 dollars in 1928.

Finance.—The ordinary revenue and expenditure for 6 years:—

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1925	25,021,329	24,278,192	1928	34,807,783	32,821,225
1926	27,206,335	26,686,189	1929	39,976,283	35,964,487
1927	30,924,997	29,078,708	1930	43,585,050	39,374,910

The total public debt at June 30, 1928, was 58,827,531 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the basic industry of the Province. According to the latest Federal estimates, the total area under cultivation in the Province, during 1929, was 7,051,605 acres and the value of the crops 153,664,000 dollars. The principal varieties cultivated are wheat, oats, barley, rye, peas, buckwheat, mixed grains, flaxseed, corn, potatoes, turnips, hay and clover and alfalfa.

The wool clip for 1930 was 4,968,000 lbs.

There are about 187,766 sq. miles of forests, made up as follows: private forests, 9,951 sq. miles; wood lots under location tickets, 2,023 sq. miles; forests leased, 80,188 sq. miles; township forest reserves, 915 sq. miles; and timber lands not leased, 94,689 sq. miles. Quebec leads the Canadian Provinces in pulpwood production, having more than half of the Canadian total. In 1928, 2,018,566 tons of pulp and 1,628,872 tons of paper were produced, valued at 104,881,667 dollars.

The principal fish are cod, mackerel, lobsters, salmon, and herring.

The value of the mineral production of the province was 46,454,820 dollars in 1929. Asbestos constitutes the principal element of production, with 306,055 tons valued at 13,172,581 dollars in 1928. Quebec produces more than 85 per cent. of the world's asbestos. Among other minerals produced are copper, feldspar, gold, graphite, magnesite, mica, molybdenite, phosphate, silver, zinc, lead, brick, cement, granite, lime, marble and tiles.

The number of fur farms in the Province in 1928 was 989, with property and buildings valued at 1,106,033 dollars and animals in captivity estimated at over 3,236,466 dollars. Of all the wild animals, the fox has proved the most adaptable to breeding. The total value of pelts of animals captured was over 3,500,000 dollars, of these beavers rank first with a total value of 688,736 dollars. The royalties collected on pelts taken during the same year netted to the Government the sum of 94,480 dollars.

In 1928 there were 7,231 industrial establishments in the province, with a capital of 1,583,350,884 dollars; employees, 204,959; salaries and wages, 217,887,481 dollars; cost of materials, 510,580,872 dollars; value of products, 1,073,162,291 dollars. Among the leading industries are pulp and paper, cotton and its products, cigars and cigarettes, railway rolling stock, butter and cheese, flour and its products, boots and shoes, saw mills, electric light and power, slaughtering and meat packing, breweries and rubber goods.

Commerce and Communications.—Total imports for consumption in 1928-29 amounted to 320,549,122 dollars; total exports to 417,586,970 dollars.

Quebec had 4,921 miles of railway and 446 miles of tramway in 1928.

There were 276,292 telephones and 2,514 post offices, as well as 821 telegraph offices in 1928. It is estimated that there are 37,000 miles of road in the Province, of which 12,502 are improved.

THE NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

Constitution and Government.—The Northwest Territories comprise the Territories formerly known as Rupert's Land and the North-western Territory, except such portions thereof as form the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the Yukon Territory, together with all British territories and possessions in North America and all islands adjacent thereto, not included within any province, except the Dominion of Newfoundland and its dependencies. The Territories were reconstituted September 1, 1905, and for administrative purposes were divided into three Provisional Districts, namely, Mackenzie (527,490 sq. miles), Keewatin (228,160 sq. miles), Franklin (554,032 sq. miles) this division having come into effect on January 1, 1920.

The seat of Government is located at Ottawa. By Order in Council of March 16, 1918, the Northwest Territories are governed by the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and five Councillors appointed by the Governor-General in Council. The Commissioner in Council has power to make ordinances for the Government of the Territories under instructions from the Governor-General in Council or the Minister of the Interior respecting direct taxation within the Territories in order to raise revenue, etc., establishment and tenure of territorial offices, and the appointment and payment of officers, maintenance, etc., of prisons, municipal institutions, licenses, solemnization of marriage, property and civil rights, administration of justice and generally all matters of a merely local and private nature in the Territories.

Commissioner.—William Wallace Cory, C.M.G.

Deputy Commissioner.—Roy Alexander Gibson.

Council.—Charles Camsell, Oswald Sterling Finnie, Hugh Howard Rowatt, Duncan Campbell Scott, Cortlandt Starnes.

Area and Population.—The area of the Territories is 1,309,682 sq. miles. The population (estimated) is 12,000, including 7,100 Eskimos and 3,800 Indians.

This territory, including the counties of Demerara, Essequebo, and Berbice, named from the three rivers, was first partially settled by the Dutch West India Company about 1620. The Dutch retained their hold until 1796, when it was captured by the English, and was finally ceded to Great Britain in 1814.

Constitution and Government.—The British Guiana Order in Council, 1928, providing for the Government of the Colony and for the Constitution of a Legislative Council in place of the Court of Policy and Combined Court which have been determined, came into operation on July 18, 1928. The Legislative Council consists of the Governor as President, and ten Official Members and nineteen Unofficial Members. Executive and administrative functions are exercised by the Governor and Executive Council. The law of the Colony, both civil and criminal, is based on the common and statute law of England, except that the English law of personal property applies to both movable and immovable property, with certain exceptions, and the Roman-Dutch legitimatisation per subsequens matrimonium is preserved. There is absolute equality of males and females before the law as regards divorce, property, succession and all other matters. Appeals lie to the Full Court of the Supreme Court and to the West Indian Court of Appeal, and from each of these Courts to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

[1] During the year loans of £69,813 and £2,090,000, the former having been subscribed to in the preceding year, were issued locally and by the Crown Agents respectively, while redemptions to the amount of £8,046 were affected. Advances made to the Colony by the Crown Agents amounted at the close of the year to £123,000.

Production.—Under cultivation, 161,159 acres; 57,247 acres in sugar canes (sugar output, 117,254 tons from 56,126 acres in 1929); 52,959 acres under rice (output 1929, 72,096 tons of paddy, equal to 43,000 tons of rice); coconuts, 28,000 acres; coffee, 5,905 acres; cacao, 1,438 acres; rubber, 1,400 acres; limes, 660 acres. Livestock (1929) estimated at: cattle, 153,639 (72,000 in hinterland); horses, 3,702 (2,613 in hinterland); sheep, 26,695; goats, 15,772; swine, 22,811; donkeys, 7,169. British Guiana is rich in gold. Mining commenced in 1884, and from 1884 to December 31, 1929, the output of gold is valued at 9,782,668*l.*; in the year 1929, 7,294 oz. valued at 27,124*l.* were produced. In the period 1901–2 to 1929 the diamonds won amounted to 1,659,026 carats, valued at 6,932,940*l.*; in the year 1929, 125,799 carats, valued at 471,746*l.* Deposits of manganese ore and mica have been found, and oil is also believed to exist. There are huge deposits of bauxite (the ore of aluminium), 185,151 tons being exported during 1929.

Commerce.—Imports and exports for five years:—

Shipping.—In 1929, 2,860 vessels, with a total tonnage of 1,324,312, entered and cleared (in 1928, 2,569 vessels of 1,060,534 tons), mainly British, Norwegian and Dutch. The registered vessels in 1929 were 12 steamers of 1,297 tons, 3 motor vessels of 161 tons, and 22 sailing vessels of 3,276 tons.

Communications.—There are 88 miles of railway; 450 miles river navigation; 39 miles of canals; 427 miles of driving or motor road, 17 miles of bridle road and 497 miles of trails, including a Government cattle trail of 182 miles, from Takama on the Berbice River to Annai on the Rupununi Savannah. There are 73 post-offices, of which 46 are telegraph offices, 40 money order offices, 42 savings banks, and 9 travelling post offices. There are about 561 miles of post-office telegraphs and cables, and a telephone exchange in Georgetown and New Amsterdam having (1929) 3,941 miles of aerial wire, 13 miles of aerial cables, and 28½ miles of submarine cables, with 1,994 instruments; 120 miles of land line are also maintained for railway, telephones, and signals.

The Georgetown wireless station communicates with five wireless stations in the interior, and with stations in neighbouring countries and on ships. A Direction Finding service is available for shipping.

Money.—Accounts are kept in dollars and cents (1 dollar = 4*s.* 2*d.*). In circulation are British gold, silver and bronze coin, with some silver 'bits,'—fourpenny pieces—local coins. United States gold coins are also current and are legal tender. Notes are issued by the Royal Bank of Canada and Colonial Bank in denominations of 5, 20, and 100 dollars, and there are Government currency notes of one and two dollars. The face value of the latter in circulation at 31 December, 1929, was 104,167*l.*

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Major Sir J. A. Burdon, K.B.E., C.M.G. (2,000*l.*), assisted by an Executive Council of seven members, and a Legislative Council consisting of six official and seven unofficial members.

British Honduras is a Crown Colony on the Caribbean Sea, south of Yucatan, and 700 miles west from Jamaica. Its early settlement was probably effected by woodcutters from Jamaica about 1638, and from that date to 1798, in spite of opposition from the Spaniards, settlers held their own and prospered. In 1786 the Home Government appointed a Superintendent, and in 1862 the settlement was declared a Colony, subordinate to Jamaica. It became an independent colony in 1884.

Area and Population.—Area, 8,598 sq. miles. Population, census 1921, 45,317 (22,564 males, and 22,753 females). Estimated population at December 31, 1929: 51,228 persons (25,341 males, 25,887 females). The birth-rate per 1,000 (1929) was 39·31, and the death-rate 20·92. In 1929 there were 396 marriages. Primary schools (1929), 75; children enrolled, 7,564; average attendance, 5,865; Government grant (expended), 14,679*l.* There are 4 schools with secondary departments, and altogether about 544 pupils. They are under denominational management and none receive aid from Government. The total school roll, including private schools, was 8,520, and attendance 6,732. The police force contains (December 1929) 3 officers, 118 non-commissioned officers and men. Chief town: Belize; population, census of 1921: 12,661 (5,896 males, and 6,765 females).

Besides the staple products, mahogany and logwood, there are bananas, citrus fruits, cacao, plantains, &c. The higher parts afford good pasturage for cattle.

Shipping and Communications.—Tonnage entered, 1929, 312,581 tons (575 steamships, 308,021 tons). Registered shipping, 1929, 130 sailing vessels, 1,060 tons, and 87 motor and steam vessels, 1,125 tons. In 1929, 650,700 letters and post-cards, and 283,812 books, newspapers, and parcels passed through the post office. Telegraph and telephone lines connect Belize with Corozal and Consejo on the coast, Orange Walk on New River, San Antonio on the Rio Hondo, and other stations in the north, El Cayo and Benque Viejo in the west, Stann Creek and Punta Gorda in the south. Telegraph line (1929), 925 miles; offices, 32. In 1928-29, 17,754 local and foreign telegrams were sent, and 10,120 telephonic conversations were held. There are 25 miles of railway. In 1929, 6,331 radio telegrams were transmitted. Belize is an overnight stopping place of the Pan American daily air mail and passenger air service between Miami, Fla., and Cristobal, Canal Zone.

Money and Credit.—The Royal Bank of Canada took over the business of the local bank in 1912. There are 6 Government savings banks; depositors,

1,474, deposits 213,188 dollars on March 31, 1930. United States gold is the standard of currency. The British sovereign and half-sovereign are legal tender for 4·867 dollars and 2·433 dollars respectively. There are (March 31, 1930) a paper currency of 491,616 dollars in Government notes and a subsidiary silver coinage of 190,160 dollars in circulation. There is also a bronze cent piece and a nickel-bronze five-cent piece, whose issues amount to 6,150 dollars and 5,000 dollars respectively.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. It was soon frequented by the Portuguese, Spanish and French for its fisheries. Guy, Calvert and others made unsuccessful attempts to colonise the island, but in the 17th century English colonists established themselves there. A French station also existed on the island, and there were constant disputes as to fishing rights. Although exclusive British sovereignty was ceded in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, these disputes were not finally settled till 1904.

The coast is rugged, especially on the south-west, where the coast range reaches an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet. The hills attain their summit within a few miles of the salt water, and then spread out into an undulating country, consisting largely of barrens and marshes, and intersected by numerous rivers and lakes. On the borders of the lakes and watercourses good land is generally found, and in some cases, as about the Exploits, the Gander and the Humber, it is heavily timbered.

Constitution and Government.—The Governor is assisted by an Executive Council (not exceeding 10 members), a Legislative Council (not exceeding 24 members), and an elected House of Assembly consisting of 40 representatives. Members of the Legislative Council receive 250 dollars per session; members of the Legislative Assembly receive 1,000 dollars per session. For electoral purposes the whole colony is divided into 37 districts or constituencies. Women were enfranchised by an Act of the Legislature passed in 1925.

After the general election of October, 1928, the Government supporters in the House of Assembly numbered 28, the opposition 12.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir John Middleton, K.B.E., C.M.G., appointed August, 1928; salary 15,000 dollars, with travelling allowance of 2,500 dollars.

The Ministry (October, 1930) is as follows:—

Prime Minister and Minister of Justice.—Hon. Sir R. A. Squires, K.C.M.G., K.C.

Colonial Secretary.—Hon. A. Barnes, B.Sc., Ph.D.

Minister of Finance and Customs.—Hon. P. J. Cashin.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.—Hon. W. W. Halfyard.

Solicitor General.—Hon. F. G. Bradley, K.C.

Chairman, Board of Health.—Hon. H. M. Mosdell, M.B.
Ministers without Portfolios.—Hon. Sir W. F. Coaker, K.B.E., Hon. Dr. A. Campbell, Hon. P. J. Lewis, Hon. T. K. Cook.

Not in the Cabinet:

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—H. B. C. Lake.
Minister of Public Works.—R. Hibbs.
Minister of Agriculture and Mines.—J. F. Downey.

The ministers with departments receive salaries of 4,000 dollars each.

Area and Population.—Area, 42,734 square miles. Population in 1929, 266,401 (134,554 males and 131,847 females). Dependent on Newfoundland is Labrador, the most easterly part of the American continent. The boundary between the said Dependency and the Province of Quebec, which had, for many years, been in dispute, was defined by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in March 1927, as being, in effect, the watershed of the rivers flowing into the Atlantic Ocean, the coastal boundaries being from Blanc Sablon, on the South, to Cape Chidley, on the North. As a result of this decision an estimated area of some 110,000 sq. miles, formerly in dispute, was confirmed as under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland. The population of Labrador in 1929 was 4,163 (2,228 males, 1,935 females). Of the total Newfoundland population in 1921, 65,448 were engaged in the fisheries, 3,227 were farmers, 4,862 mechanics, and 1,117 miners. Capital, St. John's, 41,157 inhabitants (1928); other towns (1921), Harbour Grace, 3,825; Bonavista, 4,052; Carbonear, 3,320; Twillingate, 3,217, and Grand Falls, 3,769. The birth rate in 1928 was 24·97, and the death rate (1928), 14·15 per 1,000. Immigrants (1928), 13,611; emigrants (1928), 15,573.

Religion and Education.—Of the total population in 1921, 84,665 belonged to the Church of England, 86,576 were Roman Catholics, 74,205 Methodists, 1,876 Presbyterians, 13,023 Salvation Army, 2,688 other denominations. The number of schools of all kinds (1929) was 1,156: Church of England, 398; Roman Catholic, 334; Methodist, 336; and other denominations, 88. The attendance in 1929 was: Church of England, 19,410; Roman Catholic, 19,998; Methodist, 17,405, and others, 3,767; total, 60,580: total expenditure, including Government grants, fees, &c., 1,021,083 dollars.

—	1925-26	1926-27	1927-28	1928-29
	Dollars.	Dollars.	Dollars.	Dollars.
Revenue	9,752,521	8,932,436	9,466,005	10,025,649
Expenditure.	9,865,167	10,533,409	10,740,925	11,132,822

Of the Revenue for 1928-29, 8,308,339 dollars were from Customs. Public debt (June 30, 1928), 79,477,478 dollars.

Production, &c.—The total value of all crops harvested in 1921 was 4,824,090 dollars. In 1921 (census figures) there were in Newfoundland 16,340 horses, 27,721 cattle, 86,732 sheep, and 14,573 swine. Some fine pine forests exist to the north, and large saw mills have been established. The mineral resources of Newfoundland are considerable. Large beds of iron ore have been found on Bell Island in Conception Bay, on the east coast, and other rich deposits have been discovered on the west coast. The total deposits are estimated at about 3,600 million tons. Copper ore and pyrites are worked. Coal is found near St. George's Bay on the west coast, and in the Grand Lake district. In the eastern part of the island gold-bearing quartz rock and extensive deposits of silver and lead ore have been found. Extensive paper and pulp mills have been erected at Grand Falls, Bishop's Falls, Corner Brook, Lomond in Bonne Bay, and Alexander Bay.

Imports and Exports, including bullion and specie, for five years:—

Of the imports (1928-29) the value of 6,211,906 dollars came from the United Kingdom; 11,832,415 from Canada; 9,880,431 from the United States. Of the exports the value of 7,578,190 dollars went to the United Kingdom; 3,046,802 to Canada; 11,596,643 to United States; 2,164,764 to Portugal; 2,492,054 to Spain; 1,462,582 to Italy; 3,539,489 to Brazil.

Shipping.—Total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in 1928-29, 2,936,658 tons, of which 1,635,573 tons were British. Vessels registered December 31, 1929, 2,659 sailing vessels of 111,243 tons, 89 steam vessels of 32,762 tons, and 134 motor vessels of 5,876 tons; total, 2,882 vessels of 149,881 tons.

Fishing is the principal occupation of the population. The principal fish are cod, salmon, halibut, lobster, caplin, and seal: the value of the fishing products is about four millions sterling annually.

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1904, France renounced her exclusive fishing rights under the treaty of Utrecht, but retained the right to fish in territorial waters from St. John's Cape northwards to Cape Ray for all sorts of fish, including bait and crustacea. An award of The Hague court in 1910 secured the right of Great Britain to make fishing regulations without the consent of the United States, subject to any limitations imposed by treaty. It also confirmed Great Britain's contention that the whole extent of a bay from headland to headland is comprised within territorial waters.

There were engaged in the Bank cod fishery during 1929, 1,033 men, and 56 Newfoundland sailing vessels, aggregating 4,299 net tons. The catch in 1929 totalled 106,995 quintals of dry fish, valued at 855,960 dollars. The output of the cod-fishery is estimated at 1,293,502 quintals of dry fish, valued at 11,823,588 dollars. There were about 12,931 small sailing vessels, boats (including motor boats), &c., utilised, and 27,500 men employed in this fishery. In 1928, the exports of codfish, including the Labrador fishery, amounted to 1,573,748 quintals. In 1929 fresh lobsters were exported, 68,372 lbs., valued at 14,275 dollars, and preserved, 17,179 cases, valued at 331,341 dollars.

During 1930, 241,236 seals were caught; 17 vessels and 2,295 men were engaged in the seal fishery. In 1929 the catch was 201,856 seals.

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1926: 905 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3ft. 6in., and 47 miles of private line. Communication between various points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 17 first-class steamers; 13 owned by Government Railway, each of which connects with some central point on the railway. There were in 1929 (including 60 Labrador stations) 911 post offices, 173 of which were telegraph offices; there were 63 telegraph offices which were not post offices. There were about 716 Government postal telephone stations, most of them being in post and telegraph offices. Letters and cards sent in 1929, 8,000,000; newspapers, books, parcels, &c., 4,500,000. The postal and telegraph revenue, 1929, was 796,447 dollars, and the expenditure, 1,275,171 dollars. Telegraph line open (1929), 7,000 miles of wire; about 2,000 miles of telephone wire.

In December, 1929, the Newfoundland Savings Bank held 2,189,824 dollars standing to the credit of 4,274 depositors; this is in addition to the amounts held by the Savings Departments of the four banks doing business in St. John's.

The legal coin of the colony is the gold dollar, equivalent to 4*s.* 1½*d.* of British money.

Dominica contains a Carib settlement with a population of about 400, the majority being of mixed Negro blood, but about 100 apparently pure Caribs.

Administrator.—His Honour E. C. Eliot.

TRINIDAD.

Trinidad, which lies immediately north of the mouth of the Orinoco, and includes Tobago administratively, was discovered by Columbus in 1498 and colonised by the Spaniards in the 16th century. About the period of the Revolution a large number of French families settled in the island, where the French element is still preponderant. In 1797, Great Britain being at war with Spain, Trinidad was occupied by the British, and ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Amiens in 1802.

Governor.—Sir Alfred Claud Hollis, K.C.M.G., C.B.E. (5,500*l.*, and allowances 375*l.*), appointed Nov. 27, 1929. There is an Executive Council consisting of the Governor, as President, the Colonial Secretary, Attorney-General, and Treasurer and such other persons, not being ex-officio members, as may from time to time be appointed; there is also a Legislative Council with the Governor as President, twelve official and thirteen unofficial members. Of the unofficial members six are nominated and seven are elected. Women over thirty years of age have the franchise.

Colonial Secretary.—Hon. S. M. Grier, C.M.G.

Area: Trinidad, 1,862 square miles; Tobago 114. Population: census 1921, 365,913 (186,802 males and 179,111 females). Estimated population, end of 1929, 403,275. Capital, Trinidad, Port of Spain, 67,877. The white population is chiefly composed of English, French, Spanish and Portuguese. The large majority of the inhabitants are natives of the West Indies, of African descent, the balance being made up of East Indians, estimated at 130,542, and a small number of Chinese. English is spoken generally throughout the Colony. Births, 1929, 12,695; deaths, 7,779; marriages, 2,020.

Education.—At the close of 1929 there were 288 Elementary and Intermediate schools in the Colony, 44 being Government and 244 Assisted Schools. There were 252 schools in Trinidad and 36 in Tobago. Of the 244 Assisted Schools 96 were Roman Catholic, 55 Church of England, 69 Canadian Presbyterian Mission, 12 Wesleyan, 11 Moravian and 1 Baptist. There were 2 Government and 3 Assisted Intermediate Schools. The following Colleges afford facilities for the higher education of boys: the Queen's Royal College and its affiliated institutions, the St. Mary's College in Port-of-Spain, and the Naparima College in San Fernando. The St. Joseph's Convent and the Bishop's High School in Port-of-Spain and the Naparima Girls' High School in San Fernando, which are also affiliated to the Queen's Royal College, provide similar education for girls. The number of pupils on the roll at December 31, 1929, was: Queen's Royal College 277, St. Mary's College 423, Naparima College 162, St. Joseph's Convent School 503, Bishop's High School 135, the Naparima Girls' High School 133, and the Bishop's High School, Tobago, 55. The affiliated institutions work under the same curriculum as the Queen's Royal College, and receive a Government grant-in-aid.

Police force, 879 all ranks (December 31, 1929). In 1929 the number of summary convictions was 23,023.

The principal imports in 1929 were boots and shoes, 121,214*l.*; butter and butter substitutes, 108,397*l.*; motor vehicles and parts, 223,437*l.*; coal, 106,911*l.*; cocoa (raw, for export) (11,683,055 lbs.), 242,595*l.*; cotton manufactures, 385,540 (includes cotton piece goods, 9,523,501 yards, 282,435*l.*); fish, 132,987*l.* (includes 24,053*l.* canned); rice (33,939,910 lbs.), 233,839*l.*; flour, 324,574*l.*; bags, 442,395*l.*; hardware, 147,447*l.* (includes implements and tools, 58,224*l.*; machinery (a) sugar, 33,797*l.*; (b) mining, 757,126*l.*; and (c) other kinds, 101,295*l.*; meats, 132,766*l.* (includes pickled and salted beef and pork, 3,757,653 lbs., 83,006*l.*): metals, 157,145*l.*; milk, (80,217 cases), 112,090*l.*; and wood and timber, 246,398*l.*

Imports, 1929, were consigned principally from the United Kingdom (32¼ per cent.); U.S.A. (26 per cent.); and Canada (17 per cent.). Exports were shipped chiefly to United Kingdom (26½ per cent.); U.S.A. (32½ per cent.); and Canada (8½ per cent.).

Shipping: The number of vessels entered and cleared during the year 1929 was 4,708, with a tonnage of 7,713 116. There were 2,483 arrivals of 3,970,921 tons, and 2,225 departures of 3,742,195 tons, of which 54 per cent. was British. (These figures do not include His Majesty's ships or tankers.)

Of the total area of 1,264,891 acres (Trinidad, 1,191,678 acres, and Tobago, 73,213 acres), about 696,696 acres have been alienated. About 313,222 acres were under cultivation (1926). Asphalt: The pitch lake is situated in the Ward of La Brea, comprising 114 acres, was first leased as a whole in 1888 for 21 years, and in accordance with the terms of the lease, it was renewed for a further period of 21 years from February 1, 1909, to January 31, 1930. On February 19, 1925, a fresh demise of the pitch lake comprising 109 acres was made to the Trinidad Lake Asphalt, Limited, for 21 years from February 1, 1930. The quantity of asphalt produced during 1929 was 219,603 tons. The quantity of asphalt exported was 164,311 tons of the value of 432,085*l.*, and yielding a revenue of 81,521*l.* The development of the oilfields continues in a satisfactory manner, and the Colony is now the second largest producer of petroleum within the Empire. The number of companies operating at the close of 1929 was 15. During 1929, 305,047,820 imperial gallons of crude oil were extracted. Four refineries are at work in the Colony and all grades of petroleum products from petrol to road oil are produced, while two or three small topping plants produce petrol, distillate and residual oils.

There are 1,074 miles of main and 1,261 miles of local roads. Government railway: 118 miles of 4 ft. 8½ in. gauge; 117 miles of telegraph and 11,490 miles of telephone (1929). Cable: Communication by cable with the United Kingdom, Europe, North America, and other parts of the world is maintained by the Pacific Cable Board and the West India and Panama Telegraph Company.

The Pacific Cable Board system has no wireless station in Trinidad, but three wireless stations are maintained by the Trinidad Government, namely, stations at Port-of-Spain, North Post, and Tobago. The North Post Station dealt exclusively with ship and Tobago traffic, while communication with British Guiana, St. Martin, Venezuela and Paramaribo is carried out by Port-of-Spain.

Number of post offices, 119; of telegraph offices, 44. There are four private banks. British currency and United States gold are legal tender. There is no Colonial coinage, but Government 1 and 2 dollar notes (4*s.* 2*d.* and 8*s.* 4*d.*), and 1,000 dollar notes (208*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*) are issued. Government savings-banks are established in 35 districts with a Head Office in Port-of-Spain, the amount of deposits at the end of 1929 being 467,926*l.*, and the total number of depositors, 36,100.

In TOBAGO the culture of rubber, cotton and tobacco has been introduced. The cacao industry is receiving increasing attention, and very considerable areas are being planted in coconuts.

AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA.

THE British Territories in Australasia comprise the Commonwealth of Australia; the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Norfolk Island, the Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji. The British possessions in Oceania include the Solomon and Tonga Islands, and many other groups of islands and islets scattered over the Pacific. There are also the mandatory territories of New Guinea, Western Samoa, and Nauru.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed on January 1, 1901.

On September 1, 1906, the administration of Papua was transferred to the Commonwealth (see Papua).

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King, represented by a Governor-General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives. There must be a session of Parliament at least once every year. The Senate consists of 36 Senators (at least six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years. In general, the Senate is renewed to the extent of one-half every three years, but in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected. The House of Representatives consists, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to population (excluding aborigines) as shown by the latest statistics, but not less than five for any original State. Number in 1930, 76. The Northern Territory (since divided into two separate Territories, viz, North Australia and Central Australia), by virtue of an Act passed in 1922 elects a member who is not entitled to vote, but may take part in any debate in the House. The House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved. Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural-born subject of the King, or have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth. He or she must be of full age, must possess electoral qualification, and have resided for three years within the Commonwealth. The franchise for both Chambers is the same and is based on universal adult (male and female) suffrage.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament embrace commerce, shipping, &c.; finance, banking, currency, &c.; defence; external affairs; postal, telegraph, and like services; census and statistics; weights and measures; copyright; railways; conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State; and other matters. The Senate may not originate or amend money bills; and disagreement with the House of Representatives may result in dissolution, or, in the last resort, a joint sitting of the two Houses. No religion may be established. The Federal Parliament is a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories. If a State law is inconsistent with a Commonwealth law, the latter prevails.

At the election for the Lower House held on October 12, 1929, the following parties were returned: Labour, 46; Nationalist, 14; Country Party, 10; Independent, 4; Country Party Progressive, 1; total, 75.

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercised by the Governor-General, assisted by an Executive Council of thirteen responsible Ministers of State. These Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament; they are paid salaries and allowances not exceeding, in all, 25,300*l.* a year.

Governor-General.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Sir Isaac Alfred Isaacs, P.C., K.C.M.G., Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies (salary, £10,000). Appointed December 2, 1930.

The Cabinet was appointed on October 22, 1929, and reconstructed February, 1931, is as follows:—

Prime Minister, Treasurer, Minister for External Affairs and Industry.—Rt. Hon. James Henry Scullin, P.C.

Vice-President of the Executive Council, and Assistant Minister for Works.—Senator the Hon. John Barnes.

Treasurer.—Hon. Edward Granville Theodore.

Attorney-General.—Hon. Frank Brennan.

Postmaster-General and Minister for Works and Railways.—Hon. Albert Ernest Green.

Minister for Trade and Customs.—Hon. Francis Michael Forde.

Minister for Home Affairs.—Hon. Arthur Blakeley.

Minister for Health and Minister in Charge of Repatriation.—Hon. John McNeill.

Minister for Defence.—Hon. J. B. Chifley.

Minister for Markets and Transport.—Hon. Parker John Moloney.

High Commissioner for Commonwealth in London.—Major-General Hon. Sir G. de L. Ryrie, K.C.M.G., C.B., V.D. (Appointed March 22, 1927.)

Official Secretary for the Commonwealth in London.—T. Trumble, C.M.G., C.B.E., Australia House, Strand.

Commonwealth Trade Representative in France.—C. H. Voss, 6 Rue Halévy, Paris.

Commissioner-General for Australia in the United States of America.—Vacant.

Official Secretary for the Commonwealth in America.—D. McK. Dow, "Cunard Building," 25 Broadway, New York City.

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judicature and an Inter-State Commission on Trade and Commerce, and for the admission or creation of new States. The Inter-State Commission was brought into existence in 1913 and the Commissioners were appointed for a term of seven years At the expiration of this period no fresh appointments were made. In 1911 the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales the Yass-Canberra site for the Federal Capital, with an area of 912 square miles. Building operations were begun in 1923 and Parliament was opened at Canberra on 9th May, 1927, by H.R.H. the Duke of York. A further area of 28 square miles at Jervis Bay was acquired in 1917 for purposes of a Naval College, with the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto.

Proposed laws for the alteration of the Constitution must be submitted to the electors, and they can be enacted only if approved by a majority of the States and also a majority of all the electors voting.

[1] Excluding full blood aboriginals. These are estimated to number about 60,000. The nomadic habits of the tribes in the wild state render close computation difficult.

The estimated population on December 31, 1930, was 6,476,031.

The number of occupied private dwellings in Australia (in 1921 census) was 1,107,010. In New South Wales, 414,468; Victoria, 318,936; Queensland, 153,313; South Australia, 104,295; Western Australia, 70,185; Tasmania, 44,432; Northern Territory, 1,005; Federal Capital Territory, 376. In addition to the occupied private dwellings there were in Australia at the time of the census 46,175 other dwellings (hotels, boarding houses, hospitals, gaols, etc.). There were also 51,166 unoccupied dwellings, and 6,339 being built.

Pensions and Maternity Allowances.

The Invalid and Old Age Pension Acts provide for the payment of invalid and old age pensions at such rates as the Commissioner deciding the question deems sufficient, but so that the amount shall not exceed 52*l.* a year, nor the pensioner's whole income (including the pension) exceed 84*l.* 10*s.* a year. By special provision, made in 1920, a permanently blind person may receive an amount of pension (not exceeding £52) as will make his total income equal to £221 per annum, or such other amount as is declared to be a basic wage. Old age pensions are granted upon application to persons who are at least 65 years of age and have lived in Australia or Australian territory at least 20 years. In the case of women, however, and of men subject to certain disability, the pension may be paid from age 60. Invalid pensions are granted to persons who have lived at least 5 years in Australia, have there become incapacitated, and have no other sufficient means of support. On October 9, 1912, a Maternity Act was passed providing for the payment of an allowance of 5*l.* in respect of every viable child born (alive or dead) in Australia. The mother must be a native of the Commonwealth or intend to settle permanently therein. No payment is made in the case of an aboriginal or an Asiatic. The disbursements for old age and invalid pensions and maternity allowances are shown under Finance above. The numbers of pensioners in the Commonwealth on June 30, 1930, were:—Old age, 155,196; invalid, 63,304; total, 218,500. War pensioners at June 30, 1930, numbered 279,285. To June 30, 1930, the total number of claims for the maternity allowance was 2,349,326, the claims passed for payment in 1929-30 numbering 128,598.

Justice.

The judicial power of the Commonwealth is vested in a Federal Supreme Court (the High Court of Australia), consisting of a Chief Justice and five Justices, appointed by the Governor-General in Council. The High Court has original jurisdiction in all matters arising under treaties, between States of the Commonwealth, or affecting representatives of other countries, as well as in other matters as empowered by the Parliament. It may also hear and determine appeals from judgments of its own Justices exercising original jurisdiction, and from judgments of any other Federal Court, or of the Supreme Court of any State, subject to certain rights of final appeal to the King in Council. The Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration consists of a Chief Judge and two other Judges.

Finance.

Actual revenue and expenditure for 1926-27 to 1929-30 are given in the following table. Under the 'Surplus Revenue Act, 1910,' the amount payable by the Commonwealth to each State was a sum equivalent to 25 shillings per head of the population as estimated by the Commonwealth Statistician at 31st December in each year. In 1927 the States Grants Act abolished the per capita payments as from 30th June, 1927. In 1929 in accordance with a Commonwealth Referendum, the Commonwealth took over all State Debts existing on 30th June, 1927, and will pay 7,584,912*l.* a year for 58 years towards the interest charges thereon, and will make substantial contributions towards a sinking fund to extinguish existing debts in 58 years and future debts in 53 years. The Commonwealth Government will arrange all future borrowing for both Commonwealth and States through a Loan council consisting of representatives of Commonwealth and State Governments.

The aggregate public debt of the several Australian States on June 30, 1930, was 727,639,836.

Exclusive of loans raised for the States, the Commonwealth public debt on June 30th, 1930, was 372,957,362*l.*, the total public debt of Australia at the end of June being therefore 1,100,597,198*l.*, or 170*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* per head of population.

Defence.

Army.

The principle of the defence policy of Australia from 1911 to 1929 was the universal compulsory training of a Citizen Army, but from the 1st November, 1929, the constitution of the forces on a voluntary basis was adopted. Permanent troops are maintained only in such numbers as are necessary to administer and instruct the Militia Forces. The administrative organisation consists of a central administration and 6 districts, corresponding to the 6 States. The Military Board, under the presidency of the Minister of Defence, has responsibility for control and administration. The Council of Defence, under the presidency of the Prime Minister, deals with policy and insures its continuity, and co-ordinates the requirements of the sea, air and land. The Militia Force is organised in 2 cavalry divisions and 5 infantry divisions. Each cavalry division comprises 3 cavalry brigades and divisional troops. Each cavalry brigade comprises 3 regiments. The divisional troops are comprised of 5 field artillery batteries, 2 engineer squadrons, 8 train companies, 6 field ambulances, 2 sanitary sections and 6 veterinary sections.

Each of the first 4 infantry divisions is composed of 3 infantry brigades each of 4 battalions and divisional troops, which include for each division: 9 field artillery batteries, 4 engineer companies, 3 signal companies, 4 train companies, 3 field ambulances, 1 sanitary section and 1 veterinary section, The 5th division comprises 3 mixed brigades. The garrison troops of the permanent and militia forces are organised in 6 district bases. The garrison artillery of permanent troops consists of 10 garrison and 1 field batteries. The garrison artillery of militia forces consists of 12 batteries, and there are 6 fortress companies.

As a result of the International Conference held at Washington in 1921 Militia Force training is confined to the more populous centres.

An arsenal has been established, which will be more in the form of a munition supply branch aiming at insuring the supply of war needs through Australian trade rather than that Government-owned factories shall be designed on a scale necessary for the purpose. Properly situated mobilisation stores are being provided.

Military education is provided at the Royal Military College, Duntroon, from which cadets may obtain permanent commissions.

Rifle clubs receive a subsidy and a free grant of ammunition.

On April 30th, 1930, the strength of the permanent force was 1,669, and of the militia forces, 25,785.

Navy.

Since 1913 the Commonwealth has undertaken the obligation of fleet building, with maintenance of its own vessels. The policy of the Commonwealth is to make Australia self defending. Having accepted the position that a fuller Imperial partnership is necessary for the future security of the Empire, and that a definite place in the Pacific has been allotted to Australia, the Government agreed in 1911 to furnish an Australian Fleet Unit, called the 'Royal Australian Navy.' The ships of the Royal Australian Navy in May, 1930, included the 10,000 ton cruisers Australia and Canberra; the older cruisers Adelaide (5,500 tons) and Brisbane (5,400 tons); the aircraft tender Albatross (6,000 tons, with accommodation for 9 seaplanes); the flotilla leader Anzac; 5 destroyers, 4 sloops, the depôt ship Penguin, the submarines Otway and Oxley, and two fleet auxiliaries. Owing to financial stringency, the only ships maintained in full commission at the end of 1930 were the Australia, Canberra, Albatross, and Anzac.

Air Forces.

There is a Royal Australian Air Force, administered by the Air Board, consisting of three Air Force members and a finance member. To this force is entrusted the air defence of Australia, the training of personnel for co-operation with the naval and military forces, and the refresher training of pilots engaging in civil aviation. The present establishment of the force includes the following units:—(a) Headquarters, Royal Australian Air Force, with representation at the Air Ministry in London; (b) a Flying Training School, (c) a stores depôt, and (d) one station containing two service squadrons and one flight. The Minister is represented by a representative Air Council, which includes officers of the Navy, Army, and Air Force, and the Controller of Civil Aviation. The approved establishment of the Air Force in April, 1930, was 104 officers and 788 airmen. The Air Force and Civil Aviation expenditure (excluding war services) for the year 1928–29 was £804,053.

Production.

Up to the year 1928, 767,809,583 acres, representing 40·33 per cent. of the total area of Australia, were either unoccupied or occupied by the Crown; only 6·21 per cent. had been actually alienated (118,252,152 acres); 3·36 per cent. (63,959,383 acres) was in process of alienation; and 50·10 per cent. (953,689,982 acres) was held under the various forms of leases and licences.

The area under crops (distinguishing the principal crops) in Australia and the yield in 1928–29 were as follows:—

Crops	Total Acreage	Total Yield	Yield per Acre
	Acres	Bushels	Bushels
Wheat	14,840,113	159,679,421	10·76
Oats	1,045,670	14,108,677	13·49

[1] Beets worked. The sugar manufactured was 2,096 tons.
[2] Tons per acre of productive crops.
[3] Including 110,547 tons for wine from 46,519 acres of productive vines.
[4] Gallons per acre of productive vines.
[5] Malting: other 19·53. [6] Ordinary: sweet potatoes, 4·27.

The total area under all crops in 1928-29 was 21,189,557 acres. The total value of agricultural production in the same year was 89,439,831*l.* For the year 1929-30 the estimated area under wheat was set down as 14,930,744 acres, and the estimated yield as 126,476,863 bushels. Of Australia's total forest area of 24,500,000 acres, 15,895,781 acres have been permanently dedicated for timber.

At or about the end of 1928 there were in Australia 1,942,753 horses, 11,300,757 cattle, 103,430,773 sheep, and 910,181 pigs. At the end of 1929, according to official estimates, there were 106,117,278 sheep.

The production of wool in 1928-29 amounted to 968,152,935 lb., and the exports (Australian produce) to 763,339,527 lb. greasy, valued at 55,902,618*l*, and 47,201,063 lb. scoured and tops, valued at 5,710,377*l*. Of the total production of 968,000,000 lb. of wool in 1928–29, about 883,000,000 lb. consisted of wool shorn, 31,000,000 lb. were made up of dead and fellmongered wool, while 54,000,000 lb. were contained on skins exported. The butter produced in the year 1928–29 amounted to 289,883,200 lb.; cheese 30,217,101 lb.; bacon and hams, 74,499,397 lb.

The mineral output was valued as follows in 1928 and 1929:—

Mineral	1928	1929	Mineral	1928	1929
	£	£		£	£
Gold	1,944,054	1,807,411	Coal	10,695,530	8,674,587

Copper	639,428	1,052,025
Tin	664,030	458,680	Total	22,402,070	17,868,755

The total mineral production up to the end of 1928 was valued at 1,171,942,567*l.*; of this amount 627,852,464*l.* was the value of gold. Gold production, 1926, 521,316 fine oz.; 1927, 508,291 fine oz.; 1928, 457,669 fine oz.

Statistics of the manufacturing industries in Australia in 1928–29 are given as follows: Number of establishments, 22,916; hands employed, 450,482; salaries and wages paid, 90,986,908*l.*; value of plant and machinery, land and buildings, 239,348,849*l.*; value of materials used, 238,938,566*l.*; value added by manufacture, 167,625,316*l.*; value of output, 420,447,288*l.*

The estimated value of the products of Australia in recent years was:—

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem. The value of goods exported is generally the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptation of the term.

The Customs Tariff Act of 1921–30 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia, and for reciprocal tariff agreements with other countries. A reciprocal customs tariff which had been in operation between Australia and the Union of South Africa since 1906, was repealed by Customs Tariff 1926. The repeal came into force on 1st July, 1926. On September 1, 1922, a reciprocal tariff agreement, modified in 1922, 1926, and 1928, came into operation between Australia and New Zealand, and in 1925 an agreement was made with Canada, and is now in operation.

The Customs Tariff (Papua and New Guinea Preference) 1926 came into force on April 1st, 1926, and provides that imports of certain goods specified in the schedule to the Act, and being the produce of the Territory from which they were imported, shall be free of duty.

The staff employed on Government Railways numbered 110,545 persons.
Private railways in Australia, open for general traffic, 1929, 925 miles.

A trans-continental railway from north to south is under construction. The terminus of the Northern Territory line has been carried down from Mataranka to Birdum (316 miles from Darwin), while the existing line from Port Augusta to Oodnadatta has been extended as far north as Alice Springs.

In Victoria a scheme for the electrification of the railways in the Metropolitan area has been carried out. Electric railways are also under construction in Sydney.

The State railway gauge is: In New South Wales, 4ft. 8½in. (40 miles, 3ft. 6in.); in Victoria, 5ft. 3in. (122 miles, 2ft. 6in.); in Queensland, 3ft. 6in. (30 miles, 2ft. 0in.); in South Australia, 5ft. 3in. for 1,449 miles, the rest, 3ft. 6in.; in W. Australia, 3ft. 6in.; and in Tasmania, 3ft. 6in. (25 miles, 2ft. 0in.). Of the Federal lines, the gauge of the Trans-Australian and Federal Territory is 4ft. 8½in.; and that of the Oodnadatta and Northern Territory is 3ft. 6in. A commission has recommended a uniform 4ft. 8½in. gauge, and this has been accepted in principle. The unification is estimated to cost 20,851,000*l.*

At June 30, 1929, 5,911 telephone exchanges with 384,358 lines and 505,554 instruments connected were in operation.

During the year 1928–29 92,000 flights, of a total duration of 27,268 hours, were carried out by civil aircraft, 1,992,070 miles were covered and 66,400 passengers were carried.

Subsidized aerial mail services are in active operation from Perth to Wyndham on the west coast of Western Australia; from Brisbane to Camooweal and Cloncurry to Normanton, Queensland; from Perth to Adelaide, and from Hay to Broken Hill and Melbourne. Approximately 3,540,000 passenger miles have been flown, and 23,500 paying passengers and 35,000 lbs. of letters carried. The route mileage of the existing subsidized services is 5,879, while regular unsubsidized commercial services are also in operation over 2,709 miles.

At June 30, 1929, 634,259 motor vehicles, including 474,359 motor cars, 88,049 motor cycles, and 71,851 commercial vehicles were registered in Australia. The Revenue derived from Registration fees and Motor Tax was 4,167,034*l.* for the year. The registrations were equivalent to 99·5 vehicles per 1,000 of population.

Wireless telegraphy stations are in operation in all the State Capitals, and in certain other places. 300,528 wireless Broadcast Listeners' licences had been issued at June 30, 1929, and 311,648 at June 30, 1930. The National Broadcasting Service controlled by the Postmaster-General's Department now operates eight broadcasting stations. In addition twenty-three other stations were licenced at 30th June, 1930. Two beam stations have been erected, one for direct communication with London, and the other for direct communication with Canada, United States, and Mexico; direct beam wireless service with London was established on April 8, 1927, and with Canada, etc., on June 16, 1928.

Money and Credit.

On January 20, 1913, the Commonwealth Bank was opened at Sydney. Deposits (general and savings bank) at March, 1930, were 75,809,281*l.*, of which 14,201,751*l.* represented non-interest bearing deposits and 48,501,102*l.*, the deposits of the savings bank which was created a separate department on 9th June, 1928. The bank started without capital, and began to make profits in 1913–14. At June, 1929, the capital was 4,000,000*l.*, which was transferred from the reserve and redemption funds. The reserve fund amounted to 618,585*l.* Aggregate net profits to June 30, 1929, amounted to 7,514,935*l.*

There are, besides, 20 private banks trading in Australia. Their paid-up capital on June 30, 1929, was 72,958,682*l.*, and the amount of reserved profits, 51,609,974*l.*

The total liabilities of cheque-paying Banks trading in the Commonwealth, in the quarter ended June 30, 1930, were 333,696,677*l.*, and the deposits, excluding Savings Bank deposits in the Commonwealth Bank were 310,512,610*l.*

The total number of accounts open in the Savings Banks in the Commonwealth on March 31, 1930, was 5,084,973, and the amount on deposit, 213,320,000*l.*

There are 2 mints in the Commonwealth, at Melbourne (opened 1872), and Perth (1899). Besides issuing gold coin (sovereigns and half-sovereigns) they also issue gold bullion, partly for the use of local manufacturers (jewellers and dentists), and partly for export. Since 1916 silver and bronze coins have been minted at the Sydney and Melbourne Mints on behalf of the Commonwealth Treasury. The Sydney Mint was closed at the end of 1926.

The gold issues during 1929 are shown in the following table:—

Mint	Coin			Bullion	Total
	Sovereigns	Half-Sovereigns	Total
	£	£	£	£	£
Melbourne . . .	436,719	—	436,719	131,261	567,980
Perth	1,606,625	—	1,606,625	2,904	1,609,529
Total . . .	2,043,344	—	2,043,344	134,165	2,177,509

Silver coinage to the value of 128,000*l.*, and bronze to the value of 18,540*l.*, were issued during the year ended June 30, 1929.

On June 30, 1930, notes issued by the Commonwealth and unredeemed amounted to 44,914,326*l.* The amount of gold held in reserve on that date was 19,931,102*l.*, representing 44·38 per cent. of the liability. Bank notes ceased to circulate after 1911.

NORFOLK ISLAND. 29° S. latitude, 168° E. longitude, area 13 square miles, population (June 30, 1929) 932 (490 males and 442 females). The island was formerly part of the Colony of New South Wales and then of Van Diemen's Land. It has been a distinct settlement since 1856, and under an Order-in-Council of 1900 was governed by the Governor of New South Wales; but from July 1, 1914, the affairs of the island have been administered by the Commonwealth Government. The island, which is very picturesque and possesses a delightful climate, coupled with a fertile soil, is especially suitable for the cultivation of citrus fruits, bananas, and coffee. In 1928-29 the imports (mostly from the Commonwealth) were valued at 55,894*l.*, and the exports, 33,027*l.*

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Constitution and Government.

New South Wales became a British Possession in 1788; a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1843, and responsible government in 1856. New South Wales federated with the other Australian States to form the Commonwealth of Australia in 1901. The legislative power of the State is vested in a Parliament of two Houses, the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of not less than twenty-one members (92 in September, 1930), appointed by the Crown for life. Members travel free on the State railways and tramways. The President receives an annual salary of 1,020*l.*, and the Chairman of Committees, 595*l.* The Legislative Assembly has 90 members. On December 4, 1930, a preliminary Bill for the abolition of the Legislative Council was passed, but on December 23, 1930, the New South Wales Supreme Court ruled that the Bill cannot be presented to the Governor for the Royal Assent without a referendum. The High Court on March 16, 1931, supported this view. Postal voting is permissible. Every man or woman, being a natural born or naturalised British subject above 21 years of age, having resided six months in the Commonwealth, three months in the State, and one month in the electorate, is qualified to be enrolled as an elector, and enrolment is compulsory. Members of the Legislative Assembly are paid an annual salary at the rate (since April, 1930) of 743*l.* 15*s.* per annum, and they are allowed to travel free on Government railways and tramways in the State. The leader of the Opposition receives an additional allowance of 250*l.* per annum. The duration of a Parliament is not more than three years. The Women's Legal Status Act, 1918, gives women the same political rights as men.

The Legislative Assembly, elected in October, 1927, consists of the following Parties: Labour, 42; Nationalists, 35; Country Party, 13.

The executive is in the hands of a Governor, appointed by the Imperial Government.

Governor.—Air Vice-Marshall Sir Philip Game, K.C.B., D.S.O. (Appointed January, 1930.)

Lieut.-Governor.—The Honourable Sir Philip Whistler Street, K.C.M.G.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is advised by a Cabinet consisting of the following members (November 4, 1930):—

Premier and Colonial Treasurer.—The Hon. J. T. Lang, M.L.A.

Secretary for Mines and Minister for Labour and Industry.—The Hon. J. M. Baddeley, M.L.A.

Attorney-General.—The Hon. A. A. Lysaght, M.L.A.

Minister for Agriculture and Minister for Forests—The Hon. W. F. Dunn, M.L.A.

Colonial Secretary.—The Hon. M. Gosling, M.L.A.

Minister for Education.—The Hon. W. Davies, M.L.A.

Secretary for Lands.—The Hon. J. M. Tully, M.L.A.

Minister of Justice.—The Hon. J. Lamaro, M.L.A.

Secretary for Public Works.—The Hon. M. A. Davidson, M.L.A.

Minister for Health.—The Hon. J. McGirr, M.L.A.

Minister for Local Government.—The Hon. W. J. McKell, M.L.A.

Assistant Minister for Labour and Industry—The Hon. W. T. Ely, M.L.A.

Honorary Minister in the Legislative Council.—The Hon. J. M. Concannon, M.L.C.

Agent-General in London.—The Hon. A. C. Willis (appointed March 9, 1931); Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2

Local Government.

A system of Local Government extends over the whole of the State, except the Western Land Division, where, however, seven municipalities are incorporated. There are 181 boroughs and municipal districts under the title of municipalities, and in addition 138 corporate bodies called shires. The central Government of the State affords financial assistance to the municipalities and shires in the form of endowment or of grants for special purposes, e.g. road-making. The total Government Assistance in 1928 was for Municipalities 378,285*l.*, and for Shires 1,270,696*l.*

Area and Population.

The area of New South Wales, inclusive of Lord Howe Island, but exclusive of the Federal Capital Territory (912 sq. miles at Canberra and 28 at Jervis Bay), is 309,432 square miles.

The population (including aboriginals) at six consecutive censuses was :—

Year	Males	Females	Total	Pop. per square mile	Average increase per cent per annum.
1871	275,551	228,430	503,981	1·61	3·69

[1] Excluding Federal Capital territory (1,724 in 1911, 2,572 in 1921).

The population at March 31, 1930, was: males, 1,264,440 ; females, 1,220,759 ; total, 2,485,199.

For population according to race and also for foreigners (both as in the 1921 census), see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1928, p. 357.

For occupational census returns in 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1925, p. 359.

At the end of 1929 the population of Sydney,[1] including suburbs and shipping, was 1,238,660. The chief country municipalities, with their populations, were as follow :—Newcastle and suburbs, 104,640 ; Broken Hill, 23,260; Lithgow, 15,320 ; Cessnock, 14,120 ; Maitland, E. & W., 11,790 ; Holroyd, 14,420 ; Goulburn, 12,740 ; Katoomba, 10,100 ; Bathurst, 9,510 ; Lismore, 10,050 ; Wagga Wagga, 9,030 ; Albury, 9,580 ; Orange, 8,610 ; Wollongong, 10,230 ; Kurri Kurri, 7,032 ; Fairfield, 7,570 ; Tamworth, 7,890 ; Grafton and South Grafton, 6,810 ; Liverpool, 6,140 ; Armidale, 7,270 ; Dubbo, 5,920 ; Dundas, 5,500 ; Forbes, 4,970 ; Glen Innes, 4,680 ; Inverell, 5,350 ; Cowra, 4,450 ; Parkes, 5,830 ; Windsor, 3,310 ; Queanbeyan, 4,030, Illawarra, Central and North, 18,950.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years :

Year	Marriages	Total Births	Ex-Nuptial Births	Total Deaths	Excess of Births
1925	18,522	54,615	2,756	20,823	33,792

Education.

The State maintains a system of national education, and instruction is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14 years. In all State schools education is free. There is a large number of private schools subject to State inspection.

There were at the end of 1929, 3,153 and in 1928, 3,156 Government schools, classified (1929) as follows:—High schools 34; public primary schools 2,001; provisional schools 577; half-time schools 44; travelling schools 1; evening continuation schools 49; correspondence schools 1; subsidised schools 443; industrial and reformatory schools 3; total 3,153 schools. During December quarter, 1929, there were 371,330 children enrolled, and an average attendance of 298,743, with 12,400 teachers. The pupils receiving Kindergarten instruction at Government schools (1929) numbered 14,596. In 1929 the expenditure on Public Instruction (exclusive of technical education) was 5,054,379*l.*

At the end of 1929 there were 743 private schools (with 92,236 pupils and 4,716 teachers), of which 526 were Roman Catholic Denominational Schools, having 3,096 teachers and 75,311 scholars. The Church of England Denominational Schools numbered 58 with 582 teachers and 6,230 scholars; other denominational schools 26, teachers 276, pupils 3,174. The undenominational private schools numbered 133, the teachers 762, and scholars 7,521.

The University of Sydney, founded in 1850, had (1929) 2,520 individual students (including 705 women) with 286 professors, lecturers and demonstrators. There are 4 denominational colleges, Church of England, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist, and a college for women (unsectarian), affiliated to the University. The Technical College, with branch schools, had a total enrolment of 33,280 in 1929.

Widows' Pensions and Family Allowances.

For particulars of old age and invalidity pensions see under Australia. The numbers current in New South Wales on June 30, 1929, were: old age, 54,584 (Males, 23,401; Females, 31,183); invalidity and accident, 23,966 (Males, 10,486; Females, 13,480).

The Widows Pensions Act of New South Wales, 1925-29, provides for pensions to widows with dependent children under fourteen years of age, also to other widows in special cases. The maximum pension is 1*l.* per week with 10*s.* for each child under 14 years. The amount of each pension is ascertained by deducting from the maximum annual amount 1*l.* for each 1*l.* by which the widow's net income exceeds 26*l.* Pensions became payable on March 10, 1926. On July 1, 1929, pensions were being paid to 6,328 widows, the amount paid during the year was 637,551*l.*

The Family Endowment Act, 1927-28, as amended by the Family Endowment (Further Amendment) Act of 1929, provides for the payment of endowment in respect of each dependent child except one under 14 years of age in cases where the 'family income' for such continuous period of one or more quarters, not exceeding four, preceding the date of claim as shows the highest average family income is less than the appropriate living wage (fixed by the Industrial Commission to cover the maintenance of a man, wife and one child). The Endowment, at the rate of 5*s.* per week, is payable to the mothers. A residence qualification of two years in New South Wales is prescribed in respect of the mothers and of the children except when a child is under 2 years and was born in the State. During the year 1928-29 the claims numbered 48,720 and at the 30th June, 1929, endowment was payable to about 42,000 families, the fortnightly liability being 56,808*l.*, the average rate of endowment per claim being 35*l.* per annum, equivalent to the endowment of 2·7 children per family. State relief is also given to neglected and destitute children.

Justice and Crime.

In New South Wales legal processes may be grouped within the Lower or Magistrates Courts, or the Higher Courts presided over by Judges. There is also an appellate jurisdiction. Prisoners charged with capital crimes must be tried before the Supreme Court.

Children's Courts have been established with the object of removing children as far as possible from the atmosphere of a public court. Fair Rents Courts were established in 1916, their function being the determination of the fair rental of small dwellings and retail shops. There are also a number of tribunals exercising special jurisdiction, e.g. the Industrial Commission, the Workers' Compensation Commission.

In 1929 there were 113,398 convictions before magistrates at Courts of Petty Sessions and Children's Courts, and 846 distinct persons were convicted at the Higher Courts. On June 30, 1929, there were 1,701 convicted prisoners in gaol.

Finance.

[3] Including revenue collected by the Federal Government and returned to State.

From 1910 to 1927 the State received from the Commonwealth an annual payment at the rate of 25*s.* per head of population. This arrangement has been replaced by an agreement between the States and the Commonwealth which provides for the transfer to the Commonwealth of the debts of the States, annual contributions by the Commonwealth towards the payment of interest on such debts, the establishment of sinking funds in respect of these debts and new loans, and joint borrowing and management of loans through an Australian Loan Council. The scheme was brought into operation as a whole as from July 1, 1927. The continuance of the provisions as to payment of interest, sinking funds and transferred properties was contingent upon the amendment of the constitution to permit the Federal Parliament to validate the agreement. The amendment was approved by a majority of the electors in all states on November 17, 1928.

The following table shows the net expenditure exclusive of expenditure from loans (cf. note at the foot of the last table):—

The amount of the Funded Debt on June 30, 1929, was 256,791,944*l.* (exclusive of Closer Settlement Debentures, &c., 1,848,650*l.*), with mean rate of interest 4·9 per cent. Of this amount about 88 per cent. has been spent on reproductive works. There is a general sinking fund as well as sinking funds in respect of specific loans. The total credits to the sinking fund amounted to 1,281,212*l* in 1928–29. The moneys have been applied in purchasing or paying off stock, debentures, &c., or in temporary investment in approved securities. The credit balances amounted to 427,474*l.* at June 30, 1929.

Production and Industry.

I. Land Settlement.

The total area of land alienated or in process of alienation from the Crown on June 30, 1929, was 67,245,750 acres, exclusive of Federal Capital Territory. The total area of land neither alienated nor in process of alienation was 130,790,750 acres.

II. Agriculture.

In 1928-29 there were 5,440,762 acres under crops (exclusive of areas double cropped).

The area under cultivation in New South Wales during four years and the principal crops produced were as follows :—

The area sown for wheat during the season 1929-30 was 4,366,000 acres, of which 3,497,100 acres were for grain, 377,200 were reaped for 325,400 tons of hay, while 458,800 acres failed and 32,900 acres were fed off. The estimated total yield of wheat grain was 35,844,000 bushels.

In 1929 the area planted with cane-sugar was 15,881 acres, production, 147,414 tons; grapes, total area, 15,200 acres, wines, 1,481,846 gallons.

The principal fruit-culture of the State is that of the orange. There were in June, 1929, 33,255 acres under citrus fruit, with a production of 3,031,820 bushels. The total area under fruits was 76,009 acres, and the total production was 5,116,976 bushels. During 1928-29 the production of bananas was 81,455 cases from an area of 1,912 acres.

At June 30, 1929, the State had approximately 50,185,000 sheep and lambs,[1] 2,784,615 cattle, 567,371 horses, and 311,605 swine. The production of wool as in the grease was in the year ended June 30, 1930, 458,181,000 lbs. In the year ended June 30, 1929, production of butter was 96,244,230 lbs.; cheese, 6,339,052 lbs.; bacon and ham, 23,087,271 lbs.

There were 128,600 persons engaged permanently in rural holdings during the year ended June 30, 1929.

The estimated forest area is 11,000,000 acres. The total area of State forests amounts to 5,255,635 acres, and 1,564,858 acres have been set apart tentatively as timber reserves. The revenue from royalties, licences, &c., amounted in the year ended June 30, 1928 to 226,667*l.*, and in 1929 to 210,743*l.* There were 477 saw-mills, in the year ended 30th June, 1929, the employees numbering 4,639; the value of plant and machinery was 813,170*l.*, and land and buildings 986,290*l.* The estimated value of production from Forestry in 1926-27 was 1,82,000*l.*

The number of sheep and lambs on December 31, 1929, was 50,740,000 approximately.

III. Mines and Minerals.

The aggregate value of all minerals won in N.S.W. to the end of 1929 was 442,470,134*l.* The following table gives details for the year 1929:—

Mineral	Quantity 1929	Value 1929	Total value to end of 1929

1929	63,491,123	47,176,407	2,118,4*8	49,289,890

The chief exports are wool, wool tops, butter, wheat, flour, fruits, sugar, tobacco, timber, meats (frozen and preserved), hides and skins, tallow, leather, pig-lead, tin, copper, coal, and gold.

Of the total value of trade of New South Wales in 1929, an amount of 23,619,283*l.* was imported from Great Britain and Northern Ireland and 13,011,047*l.* exported thereto.

The vessels engaged in the interstate and oversea trade which entered the ports of New South Wales in 1929–30 numbered 2,797, net tonnage 8,582,186 tons; the clearances were 2,739 vessels, 8,419,803 tons. Of the total net tonnage for the year 1928–29, 35 per cent. was owned in Australia, 40·5 in Great Britain, 7·5 per cent. elsewhere in the Empire, and the balance (about 17 per cent.) was foreign. Sydney Harbour is the principal port of Australia. The number of vessels, coastal, interstate, and oversea, which entered in 1929–30 was 6,192, and the net tonnage 8,941,495.

On March 31, 1930, 5,974 miles of Government railway were open; the capital expended on lines open was 124,329,422*l.*; the revenue for 1928–29 was 19,615,616*l.*; the expenditure, 14,978,050*l.*; the number of passengers carried, 151,116,086. There are 7 private railways having a total mileage of 112 miles (mainly colliery lines). All tramways are the property of the Government. There were, on March 31, 1930, 210 miles of tramways open for traffic, the capital cost being 11,743,189*l.* The gross earnings for 1928–29 were 4,457,890*l.*; the working expenses, 3,835,644*l.*

The number of registered motor vehicles on June 30, 1930, was 246,194, including 29,410 motor cycles and 45,309 vans and lorries.

There are 109,457 miles of roads in New South Wales, including 24,946 miles metalled. There are 4,972 bridges over 20ft. span with total length of 404,281 feet.

Banking and Credit.

There were 16 banks trading in New South Wales in 1930, the assets in the June quarter being: coin, 2,249,926*l.*; bullion, 4,873*l.*; landed and house property, 3,472,418*l.*; notes and bills of other banks, 623,404*l.*; balances due from other banks, 4,889,830*l.*; Government and municipal securities, advances and other assets, 151,023,652*l.*; total assets, 178,031,185*l.* (including 15,767,082*l.* Australian notes and cash in Commonwealth Bank).

The liabilities of the banks (exclusive of those to shareholders) were, for June, 1930; Notes in circulation, 63,870*l.*; bills in circulation, 1,479,146*l.*; deposits not bearing interest, 48,287,572*l.*; deposits bearing interest, 82,130,753*l.*; total deposits, 130,418,325*l.*; balances due to other banks, 7,715,003*l.*; all other liabilities, 314,970*l.*; total liabilities, 139,991,344*l.*

Statistics of Savings Banks at March 31, 1930: 1,726,416 accounts, 80,723,033*l.* deposits. These figures include the returns of the Savings Bank Department of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia.

Permanent Building Societies also receive money on deposit, the amount as at June 30, 1929, being 616,457*l.*

LORD HOWE ISLAND, 31° 33′ 4″ S., 159° 4′ 26″ E., a dependency of New South Wales, situated about 436 miles north-east of Sydney, area, 8,220 acres, of which only about 300 acres are arable, population (1929), 112.

The Island, which was discovered in 1788, is of volcanic origin. Mount Gower, the highest point, reaches a height of 2,840 feet.

A Board of Control at Sydney, under the Government of New South Wales, manages the affairs of the island and supervises the Kentia palm seed industry.

VICTORIA.

Constitution and Government.

Victoria, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was, in 1851, proclaimed a separate colony, with a partially elective Legislative Council, and in 1855 responsible self-government was conferred. The legislative authority is vested in a Parliament of two Chambers. The Upper House consists of 34 members, elected for six years, and the Lower of 65, elected for three years (unless sooner dissolved). Members of the Council must be in possession of an estate of the net annual value of 50*l.* for one year prior to their election; and electors must be in the possession or occupancy of property of the rateable value of 10*l.* per annum if derived from freehold, or of 15*l.* if derived from leasehold or the occupation of rented property. No electoral property qualification is required for graduates of British or Colonial universities, matriculated students of the Melbourne University, ministers of religion of any denomination, certificated teachers, lawyers, medical practitioners, and officers of the army and navy active and retired. One-half of the members of the Legislative Council retire every three years. The members of the Legislative Assembly require no property qualification, and are elected by universal male and (since 1908) female suffrage, and no person may vote in more than one district, nor twice in the same district. Clergymen of any religious denomination are not allowed to hold seats in either the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are entitled to reimbursement for expenses at the rate of 500*l.* per annum, and members of the Legislative Council at the rate of 200*l.* per annum. Members of both Houses have free passes over all the railways.

The Legislative Assembly, elected on November 30, 1929, consists of the following parties:—Labour, 30; Nationalists, 18; Liberals, 2; Country Party, 10; Country Party Progressives, 4; Independents, 1. Total, 65.

Governor.—Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Arthur H. T. Somers, D.S.O., M.C., K.C.M.G.

Lieutenant Governor.—Hon. Sir William H. Irvine, K.C.M.G.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet of responsible ministers.

The Ministry (appointed December 12, 1929) is as follows:—

Premier, Treasurer and Minister of Markets.—Hon. E. J. Hogan, M.L.A.

Chief Secretary.—Hon. Thomas Tunnecliffe, M.L.A.

Minister of Education and Labour.—Hon. John Lemmon, M.L.A.

Attorney-General, Solicitor-General and Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. William Slater, M.L.A.

Minister of Lands and Water Supply.—Hon. H. S. Bailey, M.L.A.

Minister of Railways and Minister in Charge of Electrical Undertakings.—Hon. John Cain, M.L.A.

Minister of Public Works, Mines and Immigration.—Hon. J. P. Jones, M.L.C.

Minister of Forests and Minister of Health.—Hon. W. J. Beckett, M.L.C.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. G. C. Webber, M.L.A., Hon. R. T. Pollard, M.L.A., Hon. R. Williams, M.L.C., and Hon. E. L. Keirnan, M.L.C.

The number of salaried ministers is limited to eight, and their total salaries to 10,000*l.* At least four of the Ministers must be members of either the Legislative Council or the Assembly, but not more than two shall be members of the Council, nor more than six be members of the Assembly.

Agent-General for Victoria in Great Britain.—W. Leitch, C.B.E. Offices: Melbourne Place, The Strand, W.C. 2.

Local Government.

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities. The former, called cities, towns, and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than nine square miles, and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 300*l.* upon a rate of one shilling in the £. The latter, called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding a revenue of 1,500*l.* on a rate of one shilling in the £. In 1929 there were 56 urban and 140 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits.

Area and Population.

The State has an area of 87,884 square miles, or 56,245,760 acres, about $\frac{1}{14}$ part of the whole area of Australia. The State is divided into 37 counties, varying in area from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population, as shown by census returns, is exhibited in the following table:—

Date of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of Increase per cent.

The estimated population at December 31, 1929, was 1,777,065 (881,650 males, 895,415 females); and on March 31, 1930, was 1,783,649.

The average density of the population is 20 persons to the square mile, or one person to every 32 acres.

The population in 1921 included 4,179 Chinese and 586 aborigines; in 1911, 5,601 Chinese and 643 aborigines.

At the date of the census of 1921, the Australian-born numbered 1,330,136, or 87 per cent. of the population; natives of New Zealand, 11,210; of British Isles, 161,117; of Germany, 3,693; of other countries, 20,171; 1,111 were born at sea and the birthplaces of 3,842 were unspecified.

For occupational census, 1921, see The Statesman's Year Book for 1925, p. 369.

Inclusive of the suburbs the estimated population on December 31, 1929, of Melbourne was 1,018,200, or considerably more than half of that of the State; Geelong, 43,580; Ballarat, 42,200; Bendigo, 33,700; Mordialloc, 10,400; Warrnambool, 8,200; Chelsea, 7,250; Castlemaine, 7,170; Wonthaggi, 7,000; Mildura, 6,100; Shepparton, 5,700; Hamilton, 5,320; and Ararat, 5,300.

The following are the births, deaths, and marriages in the State for five years:—

Year	Marriages	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Surplus of Births
1925	13,370	35,922	1,543	15,836	20,086

1928	13,186	34.498	1,625	17,708	16,790
1929	12,935	33,604	1,461	16,717	16,887

The annual rates per 1,000 of the population in 1929 were as follows: marriages, 7·31; births, 18·99; deaths, 9·45; infantile deaths, 47·23 per 1,000 births.

The recorded immigration into and emigration from the State of Victoria by sea were as follow in recent years:—

Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)	Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)
1924	88,467	72 458	1927	90 338	77,391
1925	77,487	64 567	1928	78.158	73,288
1926	88,026	74,109	1929	74,936	75,038

Of the immigrants in 1929, 36,191 were females, and of the emigrants 35,661 were females.

Religion.

There is no State Church in Victoria, and no State assistance has been given to religion since 1875. At the date of the census of 1921 77 per cent. of the population were Protestants, 21 per cent. were Roman Catholics, and a half per cent. were Jews. The following were the enumerated numbers of each of the principal religions in 1921:—Episcopalians 620,445 (including 'Protestant,' so stated, 18,636); Presbyterians, 257,072; Methodists, 183,829; other Protestants, 100,097; Roman Catholics, 322,565; Jews, 7,677; Buddhists, Confucians, &c., 1,367; others (including unspecified), 38,228.

Education.

Educational establishments in Victoria are of four kinds, viz., the University, established under a special Act and opened in 1855, with its four affiliated colleges, State schools (primary and secondary), technical schools or colleges, and registered schools.

Affiliated to the University are four colleges—Trinity, Ormond, Queen's and Newman—in connection with the Church of England, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches respectively. In 1929 the students who matriculated numbered 621, the direct graduates numbered 427, and there were 2,854 students attending lectures.

Public instruction is strictly secular; it is compulsory for children between the ages of 6 and 14, and is free. In 1928 there were 2,566 State schools with 7,987 teachers, a total enrolment of 257,562 scholars, and an average attendance of 178,031, or 69 per cent. of the numbers on the roll. Amongst persons aged 15 years and upwards at the census of 1921, about 98 per cent. were able to read and write. In 1927-28 the total cost of public instruction, including grants to the University, was 3,570,537*l.*—all paid by the State. Secondary education is for the most part under the control either of private persons or proprietary bodies, usually connected with some religious denomination. There were, in 1928, 500 registered schools in Victoria, with 2,325 teachers, and a net enrolment of 65,245 scholars. A large proportion of these were in connection with the Roman Catholic denomination, the members of which do not as a rule avail themselves of the free education afforded by the State.

Under the auspices of the Education Department are 29 technical schools, 26 junior technical schools, 36 high schools (including agricultural high schools), 46 higher elementary schools, and 12 schools of domestic arts. In 1928 there were 950 teachers attached to the technical schools, irrespective of agricultural and horticultural colleges, the gross enrolment of pupils at senior technical schools being 17,997. The attendance at junior technical schools numbered 7,514 in 1928.

Pensions, &c.

On July 1, 1909, the Federal Old Age Pensions Act came into operation, and the State pensioners were taken over by the Federal authorities. The number in Victoria on June 30, 1930, was 45,495. Pensions are also granted to invalids, 18,641 being on the register on June 30, 1930. The amount paid in old age and invalid pensions during 1929-30 was 3,129,765*l.*

The number of war pensions in force in Victoria on June 30, 1930, was 93,884 and the annual liability of the Commonwealth Government in connexion therewith was 2,296,164*l.*

An Act was passed by the Federal Parliament in October, 1912, providing for the payment, on application, of 5*l.* to the mother of every child born in the Commonwealth, no additional sum to be paid for twins. During the year ended June 30, 1930, the allowance was granted to 33,381 mothers in the State of Victoria.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court with a Chief Justice and six puisne judges. There are courts of general and petty sessions, county courts, courts of insolvency, courts of mines, and courts of licensing.

The following are the criminal statistics for 1929:—Arrested, 18,637; summarily convicted, 12,340; committed for trial, 910; and sentenced after committed, 609.

There are 6 gaols and 6 reformatory prisons in Victoria, besides 3 police gaols. At the end of 1929 there were confined in these prisons and police gaols 1,171 males and 51 females.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the State in the years shown were:—

Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1925	24,304,887	24,170,483	1928	27,357,917	27,521,270

1927	27,128,700	27,744,903	1930	27,323,842	28,496,712

In 1929-30 the principal items of revenue were from State taxes (including motor car taxes), which amounted to 7,377,421*l.*, and from railways, 11,729,153*l.*; among the principal heads of expenditure were 9,216,112*l.* on the railways, and 2,969,156*l.* on education.

The amount raised by taxation (exclusive of taxes collected by Commonwealth) as shown in the above table, viz. 7,377,421*l.*, was equivalent to a proportion of 4*l.* 3*s.* per head of population.

Victoria has a debt, incurred in the construction of public works, which amounted, on June 30, 1930, to 162,288,994*l.* Of this debt 74,540,172*l.* was borrowed for the construction of railways; 23,148,873*l.* for waterworks; 24,883,146*l.* for discharged soldiers' settlement; 9,367,415*l.* for closer settlement; 9,214,705*l.* for country roads; 16,361,580*l.* for electricity supply; and 4,773,103*l.* for other public works and purposes.

The estimated total value of the rateable property of the State in 1929–30 amounted to 680,650,113*l.*, and the annual value was 36,286,555*l.*

Production and Industry.

I. Agriculture.

Of the total area of Victoria about 34,776,844 acres at the end of 1928 were either alienated or in process of alienation. Of the remainder about 4,492,533 acres are at present suitable for agriculture; 6,584,858 acres for pastoral purposes; 91,460 acres are held under perpetual lease; 62,170 acres are held under other leases; State forests, timber, water, and other reserves, 5,795,549 acres; auriferous land, 494,330 acres; roads, 1,794,218 acres; and unsold land in towns, &c., 2,160,028 acres.

The total number of holdings in 1928-29 was 74,912.

The following table shows the areas under the principal crops and the produce of each for five years :—

Years ended March 31	Total Area Cultivated	Wheat		Oats		Barley		Potatoes		Hay

QUEENSLAND.

Constitution and Government.

Queensland, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was formed into a separate colony in 1859, and responsible government was conferred. The power of making laws and imposing taxes is vested in a Parliament of one House—the Legislative Assembly, which comprises 72 members, returned from 72 electoral districts for three years, elected by ballot. Members of the Assembly are entitled to payment of 500*l.* per annum, with travelling expenses, and an allowance for stationery and postage. At the General Election of May, 1929, there were 509,999 persons registered as qualified to vote under the 'Electors Act Amendment Act of 1914.' This provides for male and female adult franchise, a twelve months' continuous residence in the State being the only proviso.

Prior to 1922 there was also a Legislative Council, but this has been abolished.

The Legislative Assembly, elected in May, 1929, is composed of the following parties: Ministerialists (National and Country Progressive), 44; Independent, 2; Labour Party, 26.

Governor of Queensland.—Lt.-Gen. Sir T. H. J. C. Goodwin, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., F.R.C.S. (appointed February, 1927.) (Salary, 3,000*l.*)

The Executive Council of Ministers consists (1930) of the following members:—

Premier, Chief Secretary and Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Hon. A. E. Moore.
Secretary for Public Instruction and Works.—Hon. R. M. King.
Treasurer.—Hon. W. H. Barnes.
Home Secretary.—Hon. J. C. Peterson.
Attorney-General.—Hon. N. F. MacGroarty.
Secretary for Public Lands.—Hon. W. A. Deacon.
Secretary for Agriculture and Stock.—Hon. H. F. Walker.
Secretary for Railways.—Hon. G. Morgan.
Minister for Labour and Industry.—Hon. H. E. Sizer.
Secretary for Mines.—Hon. E. A. Atherton.

Each Minister has a salary of 1,000*l.*; the Vice-President of the Executive Council receives 300*l.* in addition.

Agent-General for Queensland in Great Britain.—Sir E. H. Macartney, (Salary, 1,500*l.*) Office.—409 Strand, London. Secretary, L. H. Pike.

Provision is made for Local Government by the subdivision of the State into areas denominated respectively cities, towns and shires. These are under the management of aldermen and councillors, who are elected by the Parliamentary electors and are charged with the control of all matters of a parochial nature, more especially the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges within their allotted areas. Shires for the most part consist of purely rural districts.

The number and area of these subdivisions, together with the receipts and expenditure for the year 1929, were :—

Area and Population.

Queensland comprises the whole north-eastern portion of the Australian continent, including the adjacent islands in the Pacific Ocean and in the Gulf of Carpentaria. Estimated area 670,500 English square miles, with a seaboard of 2,250 miles. In 1825 a branch penal settlement was made at Moreton Bay ; in 1842 free settlers were admitted to the country, and during the next twenty years great progress was apparent.

The increase in the population at different periods since 1846 has been as follows :—

Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum
1846	2,257	—	1871	120,104	6·74	1901	498,129	2·78

[1] Estimated at 31st Dec.

At the census of April, 1921, the population consisted of 398,969 males, and 357,003 females. The estimated population on June 30, 1930, was 942,270 (499,603 males, 442,667 females). In 1921 there were 3,502 male and 80 female Chinese ; 873 male and 142 female 'Polynesians' ; 1,036 male and 43 female Japanese ; 2,080 persons of other Asiatic, &c., races. The total number of aboriginals according to the census June 30, 1929, was 14,177 full-bloods, and 3,869 half-castes.

For occupational census, 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1928, p. 374.

Of the total population, 1921, 592,295 persons (exclusive of aboriginals) were born in Australia ; 128,082 in the British Isles ; 148,163 in Europe ; 6,741 in Asia ; 740 in Africa ; 1,764 in America ; 1,015 in Polynesia.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years :—

Years	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Excess of Births

The immigration and emigration, including arrivals and departures by sea and by rail across the border:—Immigration, 1927, 70,424; 1928, 68,894; 1929, 63,829. Emigration, 1927, 65,196; 1928, 63,188; 1929, 61,658.

Brisbane, the capital, with an area of 385 square miles, had in 1929 a population of 318,631. The estimated population of the chief towns at the same date was: Rockhampton, 30,000; Townsville, 31,300; Maryborough, 12,000; Gympie, 9,800; Ipswich, 26,053; Toowoomba, 25,570; Charters Towers, 9,200; Bundaberg, 11,250; Mt. Morgan, 4,500; Cairns, 9,750; Warwick, 7,000; Mackay, 9,120.

Religion.

There is no State Church. Previous to 1861 valuable grants of land had been made to the principal religious denominations, which they still retain. The following were the numbers in 1921:—Church of England, 309,786; Church of Rome, 172,662; Presbyterian, 91,610; Methodist, 77,566; Lutheran, 17,891; Baptist, 14,735; other Christian sects, 44,132; Hebrew, 1,003; other non-Christians, 3,264; no religion, 3,926; unspecified, &c., 19,397.

Education.

Primary secular education is free and compulsory. According to the marriage statistics, 99·89 per cent. of persons married during 1929 were able to read and write. The Public Expenditure on account of education, science and art, for the year 1929 was 1,828,528*l*. During the year 1929 there were 1,731 State schools (including 13 high schools and 131 provisional schools, also 17 'Rural Schools,' 4 Intermediate, one Farm Home and 3 Aboriginal schools) in operation, with 4,440 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 112,489 pupils. Secondary education is provided for by 10 grammar schools, 6 for boys and 4 for girls, with, in 1928, 99 teachers and an average attendance of 1,729 pupils; 13 'High Schools' with (1929) 117 teachers and 2,404 scholars. There were besides (1928) 187 private schools, with 1,101 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 24,487 pupils. The Government grants annually a considerable number of scholarships (2,490 in 1929–30), tenable for two and a half years, to the various grammar schools. There were 15 technical schools in 1929 with 14,920 enrolled students. The Queensland University (established in 1911) in Brisbane had, at the end of 1928, 14 professors, 30 lecturers, and 18 other members of staff, with 588 students on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

Justice is administered by Supreme Courts, Magistrates' Courts, and Courts of Petty Sessions. In these last Justices of the Peace sit, presided over in the more important centres by Police magistrates. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and six puisne judges. The total number of persons convicted of serious offences by the Superior Courts in 1928–29 was 244, and the summary convictions at petty sessions in the same year numbered 25,563 (including cases of bail estreated). Including penal establishments, there were, at the end of 1929, 7 prisons, with 393 male and 12 female prisoners. The total police force, including native troopers, averages about 1,290 men.

Pauperism, Pensions, etc.

Charitable institutions and hospitals are maintained by public subscription, supplemented by State endowment; benevolent asylums, an institution for the blind, deaf, and dumb, refuges and homes are also maintained by the Government or receive State assistance. Old Age and Invalid Pensions are payable by the Commonwealth. The number of Old Age Pensioners in the State at June 30, 1930, was 20,398, and of Invalid Pensioners, 9,166. The number of War Pensioners at the same date was 28,705 (including dependants). Maternity allowance was paid to 18,490 mothers during 1929–30.

Finance.

The following table shows the net revenue and expenditure of Queensland during five years ending June 30 :—

—	1925-26	1926-27	1927-28	1928-29	1929-30

Of the total area of the State, 18,486,184 acres (1929) have been alienated: in process of alienation, under deferred payment system, are 5,911,240, leaving 404,722,576 acres still the property of the Crown, or about 94·31 per cent. of the total area. The receipts from the sale of land up to the end of 1929 amounted to 11,388,240*l.*

A large proportion of the area is leased in squatting runs for pastoral purposes, amounting to 203,842,480 acres in 1929, besides 76,124,204 acres in grazing farms and homesteads, and 20,262,680 acres under occupation licence. Perpetual Leases, 4,698,247 acres; Prickly Pear Leases, 11,706,320. The live-stock in 1929 numbered 500,104 horses, 5,208,588 cattle, 20,324,303 sheep, and 236,037 pigs. The total area under cultivation in 1929 was 1,269,242 acres, and of this 1,046,235 acres were under crops, and 223,007 acres lying fallow, idle, etc., also 639,871 acres laid down with permanent artificial pasture. In addition, 12,562 acres were cleared and prepared for ploughing. The wool production, expressed as greasy, was in 1924–5,140,862,541 lbs., valued at 15,553,572*l*; 1925–6, 146,985,689 lbs., valued at 10,993,305*l.*; 1926–7, 119,847,967 lbs., valued at 9,423,046*l*; 1927–8, 126,429,938 lbs., valued at 10,635,919*l.*; 1928–29, 138,988,930 lbs., valued at 9,943,500 lbs.

A considerable area consists of natural forest, eucalyptus, pine and cedar being the timbers mostly in demand, although a considerable quantity of more ornamental woods are utilised by cabinet makers. The amount of wood cut in the various saw mills in 1928–9 was (in superficial feet):—pine, 59,383,859; cedar, 140,159; hardwood, 36,044,373; other, mostly cabinet timber, 11,293,689; number of railway sleepers, 555,283; total value, 2,081,498*l.* This value is exclusive of planing work valued at 182,736*l.*, and 5,571,174 super feet of Oregon pine and Redwood (value 96,866*l.*) sawn from imported Oregon flitches. The quantity actually cut for all purposes is nearly double these quantities. The Plywood Industry is important; 24,901,448 sq. ft. of plywood were produced, the value being set down at 207,680*l.* Forest reservations total 5,209,344 acres (1929), areas for National Parks 155,536 acres.

The crops, &c., in two years were as follows:—

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

South Australia was formed into a British Province by Letters Patent of February, 1836, and a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1851. The present Constitution bears date October 24, 1856. It vests the legislative power in a Parliament elected by the people. The Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The former is composed of twenty members. Every three years half the members retire, and their places are supplied by new members elected from each of the five districts into which the State is divided for this purpose. The executive has no power to dissolve this body. The qualifications of an elector to the Legislative Council are, to be twenty-one years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject of His Majesty, and have been on the electoral roll six months, besides having a freehold of 50*l.* value, or a leasehold of 20*l.* annual value, or occupying a dwelling-house the rent of which is not less than 17*l.* per annum, or a registered proprietor of a Crown lease with improvements to the value of at least 50*l.*, the property of the elector; head teacher of a college or school residing on premises; postmaster or postmistress residing in the building; railway stationmaster resident in premises; member of police force in charge of a station; officiating minister of religion. By the Constitution Amendment Act, 1894, the franchise was extended to women, who voted for the first time at the General Election of April 25, 1896. There were 132,517 registered electors in 1929. The qualification for a member of Council is merely that he be thirty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject, and a resident in the State for three years. Each member of the Council and also of the House of Assembly receives 400*l.* per annum and a free pass over Government railways. The salary of members was increased from 200*l.* per annum on December 1, 1921, but reduced by 5 per cent. for one year from December 1, 1930.

The House of Assembly consists of 46 members elected for 3 years, representing 19 electoral districts. The qualifications for an elector are that of having been on the electoral roll for 6 months, and of having arrived at 21 years of age; and the qualifications for a member are the same. There were 325,250 registered electors in 1929. Judges and ministers of religion are ineligible for election as members. The election of members of both houses takes place by ballot.

The House of Assembly, elected on April 5, 1930, consists of the following parties: Labour, 30; Liberals, 13; Country Party, 2; Independent, 1.

The executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and an Executive Council, consisting of 6 responsible Ministers and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Governor of South Australia.—Brigadier-General the Hon. Sir Alexander G. A. Hore-Ruthven, V.C., K.C.M.G., C.B., D.S.O., May, 1928. (Salary, 5,000*l.* per annum.)

The Chief Justice (Hon. Sir George J. R. Murray, K.C.M.G., 2,500*l.*), being also Lieutenant-Governor, acts during the absence of the Governor.

The departments of the Public Service are controlled by the following Ministers (appointed April 17, 1930):—

Premier, Treasurer, and Minister of Education.—Hon. L. L. Hill, M.P.

Chief Secretary, Minister of Agriculture, and Commissioner of Forest Lands.—Hon. S. R. Whitford, M.L.C.

Attorney-General and Minister of Railways.—Hon. W. J. Denny, M.P.

Commissioner of Crown Lands, Minister of Mines, and Minister of Marine.—Hon. R. S. Richards, M.P.

Commissioner of Public Works, Minister of Industry and Minister of Labour and Employment.—Hon. J. McInnes, M.P.

Minister of Local Government, Minister of Immigration, Minister of Repatriation, and Minister of Irrigation.—Hon. J. Jelley, M.L.C.

The provision for the payment of Ministers was increased from 5,000*l.* to 7,750*l.* to date from December 1, 1921, but reduced by 15 per cent. for one year from December 1, 1930. They are jointly and individually responsible to the Legislature for all their official acts, as in the United Kingdom.

Agent-General for South Australia in London.—Hon. Sir Henry N. Barwell, K.C.M.G., Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2.

Area.

The total area of South Australia is 380,070 square miles. The settled part of the State is divided into counties, hundreds, municipalities, and district councils, the last being the most general, as they cover most of the settled districts. There are 48 counties proclaimed, covering 54,194,880 acres. This area covers the settled portion of the State, 44,289,753 acres being in occupation. Outside this area there are three extensive pastoral districts—the western, northern, and north-eastern, covering 189,049,920 acres, 98,061,965 being under pastoral leases, with a population of less than 5,000. There are 39 municipalities and 157 district councils.

1926-27	15,509,780	17,123,012	1929-30	9,367,357	15,009,496

The chief exports of the State are wool, wheat, wheat-flour, copper and other minerals, meats, butter, honey, wine, fruits (fresh and dried), skins and hides, tallow, leather, and manures.

In 1928-29, 1,224 vessels of 4,640,476 tons entered. Nationality—British, 3,680,126 tons; Foreign, 960,350 tons.

The State possesses about 46,500 miles of roads. There were (1930)

3,738 miles of railway in the State, including the Transcontinental Railway which has been built from Port Augusta in South Australia to Kalgoorlie in Western Australia, and which, in connection with various State lines, completes a through rail connection between Brisbane, on the east coast, and Fremantle on the west coast. Of the Transcontinental line, which is of 4ft. 8½in. gauge, 600 miles are within the borders of South Australia.

There are several good harbours, and the river Murray (navigable for 2,000 miles) is used for conveying the produce grown on the irrigation settlements along its banks. In the city and suburbs are 140 miles of electric tramways.

Banks.

There are 10 banking associations in addition to the Commonwealth and State Government Banks. In 1930 their deposits were 22,434,405*l.* and advances 23,705,844*l.*

The State Savings Bank is managed by a board of trustees appointed by the Government, and has 40 branches and 373 agencies. On June 30, 1930, there were 503,326 accounts open, with a total balance of 21,866,365*l.* The Commonwealth Savings Bank (not included above) had 65,220 accounts open and 2,130,442*l.* deposits at the end of March, 1929. WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

In 1791 Vancouver, in the Discovery, took formal possession of the country about King George Sound. In 1826 the Government of New South Wales sent 20 convicts and a detachment of soldiers to King George Sound and formed a settlement then called Fredericks Town. In 1827 Captain James (afterwards Sir James) Stirling surveyed the coast from King George Sound to the Swan River, and in May, 1829, Captain (afterwards Sir Charles) Fremantle, took possession of the territory. In June, 1829, Captain Stirling founded the Swan River Settlement, now the Commonwealth State of Western Australia, and the towns of Perth and Fremantle, and was appointed Lieutenant-Governor.

Large grants of land were made to the early settlers, and agricultural and pastoral occupations were pursued by a small population with varying success, until, in 1850, the State was in a languishing condition, and the inhabitants' petition that it might be made a penal settlement was acceded to. Between 1850 and 1868, when transportation ceased, 9,718 convicts were sent out. The Imperial convict establishment was transferred to the Colonial Government on March 31, 1886.

In 1870 partially representative government was instituted, and in 1890 the administration was vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council was, in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it was provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 60,000, it should be elective. In 1893 this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated July 18, of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict. No. 14) amending the constitution.

By the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for six years. Members must be 30 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural-born British subjects or naturalized for 5 years and resident in the State for 5 years. Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling-house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease or licence from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17. The Legislative Assembly consists of 50 members, each representing one electorate, and elected for 3 years. Members must be 21 years of age, be either natural-born subjects of the Crown and have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, or naturalized for 5 years and have resided therein for 2 years. Electors must be 21 years of age, natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims. Members of and electors for both Houses may be of either sex. Enrolment for the Legislative Assembly is compulsory. No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds a sufficient qualification. Members of the Legislature are paid 600*l.* a year, and travel free on all Government railways. The entire management and control of the unalienated lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State.

State of political parties (1930):—Legislative Council: Labour Party, 5; Country Party, 7; Others, 18. Legislative Assembly: Labour Party, 23; Nationalist Party, 16; Country Party, 10; Independent, 1.

Governor.—H. E. Col. Sir William Robert Campion, K.C.M.G., D.S.O. (1924).

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Sir Robert Furse McMillan, Kt. (June, 1921).

The salary provided for the Governor is 4,000*l.* per annum. He is assisted in his functions by a cabinet of responsible ministers, as follows:—

Premier and Treasurer.—Hon. Sir James Mitchell, K.C.M.G., M.L.A

Minister for Country Water Supplies.—Hon. Charles F. Baxter, M.L.C.

Attorney General.—Hon. Thomas A. L. Davy, M.L.A.

Area and Population.

Western Australia includes all that portion of the continent situated to the westward of 129° E. longitude, together with the adjacent islands. The total estimated area of the State is 975,920 English square miles, or, 624,588,800 acres. It is divided into 38 magisterial districts.

The enumerated population in the various census years was as follows :—

Years	Males	Females	Total
1848	2,818	1,804	4,622
1859	9,522	5,315	14,837
1870	15,375	9,410	24,785
1881	17,062	12,646	29,708
1891	29,807	19,975	49,782
1901	112,875	71,249	184,124
1911	161,565	120,549	282,114
1921	177,278	155,454	332,732

There were enumerated, in 1921, 1,956 half-caste aborigines. The estimated full-blood aboriginal population in the State on June 30, 1930, was 23,166.

Of the total population in 1921, 248,866 were returned as born in Australia, of whom 142,947 were recorded as natives of Western Australia. The number of married persons was 121,635 (61,899 males and 59,736 females); widowers, 4,528; widows, 8,526; divorced, 316 males and 294 females; unmarried, 108,792 males and 85,843 females. The conjugal condition of the remaining 2,798 persons was not stated. The number of males under 21 was 72,346, and of females 70,455. The population on December 31, 1929, was estimated to be: males, 225,861; females, 190,902; total, 416,763; and on June 30, 1930: males, 226,253; females, 192,446; total, 418,699.

Perth, the capital, had an estimated population on December 31, 1929, within the 10-mile radius area of the Metropolitan district, of 202,888. This, however, includes the chief port of the State, Fremantle, with its suburbs, the population of which, 1929, was estimated at 33,336. The other principal municipalities, with population in 1929, are:—Claremont, 6,500; Boulder, 5,432; Kalgoorlie, 5,300; Midland Junction, 5,300; Bunbury, 5,070; Northam, 4,935; Geraldton, 4,790; Albany, 3,980; Collie, 3,720.

The movement of population for the State in 5 years is given as follows:—

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Immigrants	Emigrants
1925	2,746	8,185	3,315	32,920	29,731
1926	2,844	8,301	3,350	30,732	29,120
1927	3,107	8,481	3,393	35,275	26,818
1928	3,309	8,704	3,640	36,039	27.522
1929	3,367	9,051	3,930	32,847	72,078

Illegitimate births:—1925, 335; 1926, 325; 1927, 331; 1928, 334; 1929, 368.

Religion.

The religious division of the population was as follows at the census of 1921:—Church of England, 153,229; Methodists, 39,108; Presbyterians, 28,377; Congregationalists, 6,557; Baptists, 5,541; other Protestants, 14,618; Roman Catholics, 64,488; Catholics (Undefined), 2,048; other Christians, 2,930; Hebrews, 1,919; Mohammedans, 826; Buddhists, 1,177; other non-Christians, 654; indefinite, 1,478; no religion, 1,774; not stated, 8,008.

Education.

Of the total white population of 15 years and upwards in 1921, 3·97 per cent. were stated to be unable to read. Primary education is compulsory.

The following table gives particulars of schools and pupils for three years:—

[1] Budget estimate.

Over two-fifths of the public income is derived from railways and tramways (3,981,995*l.* for the year ended June 30, 1930), and the rest mainly from various forms of taxation (1,452,793*l.*), lands, timber, and mining (474,863*l.*), business and trading concerns (1,429,518*l.*), surplus returned to the State of the Commonwealth Revenue derived from Customs, Excise, Post Office and other receipts and interest on transferred properties (773,432*l.*) and Royal Mint and other receipts (1,637,914). Western Australia had a net public debt of 70,174,350*l.* on June 30, 1930, the annual charge for which was 3,445,302*l.* The amount of accrued sinking fund on June 30, 1930, was 1,019,975*l.*

For Defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

Up to June 30, 1930, of the entire acreage of the State, 14,506,064 acres had been alienated; on that date 21,533,054 acres were in process of alienation: the area alienated and in process of alienation thus amounting to 36,039,118 acres. At the same date there were in force leases comprising an area of 245,389,958 acres, of which 241,504,687 acres were pastoral, and 1,402,898 acres were timber, while 53,111 acres were under mining leases, and 31,472 acres were Miners' Homestead leases.

The chief crops for two recent years were as follows:—

Crops	1928-29	1929-30	1928-29	1929-30
	Acres	Acres	Bushels	Bushels
Wheat . . .	3,343,530	3,568,225	33,790,040	39,081,183

The estimated acreages sown with wheat, oats and barley for the season 1930–31, for grain, hay and green food, are respectively 4,208,998, 554,150, and 24,503 acres.

The total forest area is 4,781,682 acres; the greater proportion of the State is carrying trees of some description providing timber for development; the number of superficial feet cut was (1928–29) 174,324,082 (including jarrah, 121,309,666 superficial feet.)

The live-stock at the end of 1929 consisted of 159,479 horses; 836,614 cattle; 9,556,823 sheep; 64,522 pigs; 17,800 goats; 3,446 camels; and 9,560 mules and donkeys.

The wool clip in 1929 was 67,150,718 lb.; the exports 62,493,603 lb. (excluding 5,411,874 lb. on skins), valued at 2,771,533*l.*

Gold was first obtained in Western Australia in 1886. The sensational gold finds at Coolgardie and Kalgoorlie in 1892 and 1893 gave an impetus to Western Australian gold mining, which, in a few years' time, placed this State at the head of all the Australian Colonies as regards gold output. The aggregate output to the end of 1929 was 37,887,447 fine oz., valued (according to prices realised) at 163,525,247*l.* There were in the State, in 1929, 392 leases of gold mines; men employed in the mines, 4,002, viz., 1,928 above and 2,074 underground; output of gold, 377,176 fine oz., value 1,602,142*l.*

The total value of the mineral output of the State in 1928 was 2,128,179*l.*, and in 1929, 2,087,893*l.* Principal minerals in 1929 were coal, 544,719 tons, value 426,706*l.*; gold, 377,176 ozs., value 1,602,142; silver, 49,834 ozs., value 5,509*l.*

There were, on June 30, 1929, a total of 1,469 industrial establishments in the State, employing either machinery or at least four hands. The total number of persons employed by them was 21,819, as against 21,308 in 1928. The gross output of these establishments for the year ended June 30, 1929, was computed at 17,454,430*l.* The total estimated value of Western Australian production during 1928 was 31,992,701*l.*, distributed as follows: agricultural, 11,942,067*l.*; pastoral, 6,533,601*l.*; dairy, poultry, and bee-farming, 1,883,782*l.*; forestry and fisheries, 2,287,948*l.*; mining, 2,294,254*l.*; manufacturing, 7,051,049*l.*

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of Western Australia, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

The total value of the imports and exports, including inter-State trade, in 5 years is shown in the subjoined statement:—

June	1925-26	1926-27	1927-28	1928-29	1929-30
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports . .	16,462,572	18,376,063	18,287,876	20,022,911	18,732,015
Exports . .	14,581,657	15,151,959	18,240,775	17,185,986	17,761,701

The most important of the exports for 1929-30 were wheat (6,129,218*l.*) and flour (770,177*l.*), wool (2,771,533*l.*), gold specie (4,635,803*l.*), timber (807,427*l.*), pearl shell (165,700*l.*), pearls (12,901*l.*), hides and skins (369,089*l.*).

There were on the West Australian register on December 31, 1929, 57 steamers of 6,697 tons, and 327 sailing vessels of 10,774 tons; total, 384 vessels of 17,471 tons. Tonnage inwards and outwards, 1928-29, from and to ports outside the State, 7,363,100.

For the year ending June 30, 1930, the State had 4,111 miles of State Government railway, and 450 miles of Commonwealth line, the latter being the western portion of the Trans-Australian line (Kalgoorlie-Port Augusta), which links the State Railway System to those of the other States of the Commonwealth.

Money and Credit.

A branch mint was opened at Perth in 1899. The issues of Imperial coin to the end of June 1929 were: gold, 102,837,212*l.*; silver, 15,600*l.*; bronze, 2,000*l.* The issue in 1928-29 was: gold, 1,647,707*l.*; silver and bronze, nil.

There are nine banks in Western Australia besides the State Government Savings Bank and the Commonwealth Bank of Australia and Savings Bank. The total paid-up capital of the cheque paying banks in the quarter ended June 30, 1930, was 35,764,153*l.*, of which 4,000,000*l.* is profit transferred to Capital Account by the Commonwealth Bank; deposits, 12,206,734*l.*; total average liabilities, 13,264,519*l.*; total assets, 26,224*l.*

State Government Savings Bank.—The amount due to depositors on June 30, 1930, inclusive of interest, was 8,394,693*l.*, whilst in addition an amount of 93,672*l.* was due under the head 'Schools Savings Bank.'

Branches of the Commonwealth Savings Bank were opened in this State at the beginning of 1913. On June 30, 1930, 3,240,252*l.* stood to the credit of 101,401 depositors.

TASMANIA.

Constitution and Government.

Abel Jans Tasman discovered Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania) on November 24, 1642. The island became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales; in 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated; in 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1856 responsible government came into operation. On January 1, 1901, Tasmania was federated with the other Australian States into the Commonwealth of Australia.

Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The Council has 18 members, elected on a property qualification of 10*l.* freehold or 30*l.* a year leasehold. Certain professional men and all 'returned soldiers' are also electors. Members sit for 6 years, and retire in rotation. There is no power to dissolve the Council. The House of Assembly has 30 members, elected for 3 years by adults with six months' residence in the State. Members of both Houses are paid according to the district represented. The amounts vary from 370*l.* (Buckingham) to 500*l.* (Darwin) a year. Women received the right to vote in 1903. Proportional representation was adopted in 1907, the method being the single transferable vote in 6-member constituencies. By-elections are superseded (from 1919) by a recount of the votes at the preceding General Election. At the election in 1928 for the House of Assembly 14 Labour, 1 Independent, and 15 Nationalist members were returned.

Governor.—Vacant.

The Cabinet (appointed June, 1928) is composed as follows :—

Premier and Treasurer.—Hon. J. C. McPhee.

Chief Secretary and Minister of Railways and Mines.—Hon. C. E. W. James.

Attorney General and Minister of Education.—Hon. H. S. Baker.

Minister of Lands and Works and Agriculture.—Hon. Sir Walter Lee.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. Edward Hobbs, Hon. A. L. Wardlaw, M.L.C., Hon. C. W. Grant.

Each of the ministers has a salary of 950*l.* per annum. The Premier has an additional 200*l.* a year. A minister must have a seat in one of the two Houses.

Agent-General in London.—D'Arcy Wentworth Addison, Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2.

Official Secretary.—H. W. Ely, I.S.O.

Area and Population.

Area, with Macquarie (170 square miles), 26,215 square miles or about 16,778,000 acres, of which 15,571,500 acres form the area of Tasmania Proper, the rest constituting that of a number of small islands, in two main groups, the north-east and north-west.

The population has increased as follows (census returns about April 1) :—

Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum	Year	Population	Increase per Ct. per Annum
1861	89,977	2·44	1901	172,475	1·64
1871	99,328	1·13	1911	191,211	1·04
1881	115,705	1·38	1921	213,780	1·12
1891	146,667	2·36	1930	215,976	0·11

In 1921 there were 107,743 males and 106,037 females. The average density is 8·15 persons to a square mile. Of the total population in 1921, 5·96 per cent. were natives of the British Isles, 0·44 per cent. natives of other European countries, and 92·44 per cent. natives of the Commonwealth and New Zealand There were 371 Hindus, 234 Chinese, and 106 other coloured Asiatics. The pure aboriginal is extinct.

The births, deaths, and marriages for five years were as follows:—

Year	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1925	5,218	1,504	1,996	3,222
1926	4,988	1,435	1,912	3,076
1927	4,833	1,432	2,033	2,800
1928	4,691	1,499	2,132	2,559
1929	4,797	1,712	2,175	2,622

Population of the capital, Hobart, and suburbs (March 31, 1930), 57,500, of Launceston and suburbs, 29,200.

Religion.

In 1921, belonging to the Church of England, 112,222; Roman Catholics, 33,106; Catholics (undefined), 2,359; Methodists, 27,171; Presbyterians, 14,796; Baptists, 5,332; Congregationalists, 4,543.

Education.

Primary education is free and secular, and compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. Nine-tenths of the primary teaching is at State schools. Secondary education is about equally divided between the new State High Schools and the older endowed schools. The 5 State High Schools in 1929 had an average attendance of 1,435. There are 4 Technical Schools, and 3 junior Technical Schools, with a total enrolment of 1,716.

The University of Tasmania, established 1890, had 233 students taking courses for degrees in 1928. University expenditure in 1928 (exclusive of capital expenditure) was about 19,173*l*. In 1928, 11 Tutorial Classes were provided by the University at different centres for the Workers' Educational Association.

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, courts of petty sessions and general sessions, the latter presided over by a stipendiary magistrate, assisted by justices of the peace. The Supreme Court is both a court of first instance and a Court of Appeal in all jurisdiction, civil and criminal. The State is also divided into four districts with local civil courts presided over by Commissioners who are also police magistrates, and petty sessions have all the powers of two justices of the peace. Petty offences and a limited number of civil claims are dealt with, in petty sessions and in general sessions by justices of the peace. During the year 1928, 6,835 persons were summarily convicted, and 98 persons were committed for trial. The total police force on June 30, 1929, was 241. There was 1 gaol, with 76 male inmates, at the end of June, 1929.

Old Age Pensions.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Tasmania on June 30, 1929, was: Old Age, 7,347; Invalid, 2,685; War, 11,751.

Revenue and Expenditure.

The revenue is derived chiefly from taxation (income, land, death duties and taxation of betting), and from the rental and sale of Crown lands. The customs and excise duties are in the hands of the Commonwealth, which Government makes a special grant to Tasmania and contributes a fixed amount per annum towards interest on the State's Public Debt.

—	1927-28	1928-29	1929-30	1930-31 [1]
	£	£	£	£
Revenue	2,962,687	2,766,424	2,691,357	2,847,000
Expenditure	2,867,605	2,855,977	2,715,133	2,845,000

[1] Estimated.

The public debt of Tasmania amounted, June 30, 1929, to 22,921,211*l.*, of which 29 per cent. has been spent on railways, 14 per cent. on hydro-electric works, and 24 per cent. on roads and bridges.

State taxation amounted to 5*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* per head, of which income tax provides 2*l.* 15*s.* (including tax on lottery prizes formerly collected by the Commonwealth Government), land tax 9*s.* 4*d.* death duties 7*s.* Land and income taxes and death duties are also collected by the Commonwealth, averaging 19*s.* 5*d.* per head, and customs and excise of 7*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.* in 1928-29 per head.

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

The total area of Tasmania is 16,778,000 acres, including 1,206,500 acres islands and lakes. Unalienated land, chiefly rugged mountain country, much of it mineral-bearing, amounts to about 10,500,000 acres. Of this unalienated land about 2,800,000 acres are leased.

The net value in 1928-29 of agricultural and pastoral products was 5,307,680*l.*, of manufactures, 3,555,294*l.* (output less raw material, fuel, etc.), and of mining products, 1929, 1,518,464*l.*

Manufactures.—The two important manufactures for export are metal extraction and fruit-preserving. The electrolytic-zinc works at Risdon near Hobart are now using large quantities of ore imported from Broken Hill, and also considerable quantities of Tasmanian West Coast ores. The output in 1929 was 46,163 tons of zinc, valued at 1,237,361*l.*, with 182 tons of cadmium and other by-products. Other manufactures that have an output beyond local requirements are wool and confectionery. The carbide works at North-West Bay are able to supply the needs of all Australia.

Commerce, Shipping, &c.

Principal imports, 1928–29: Food, drink and tobacco, 2,331,602*l* ; drapery, clothing and textiles, 1,641,460*l.* ; metals and metal manufactures, 2,042,763*l.*; ores and concentrates, 606,482*l.* Total imports, 9,235,246*l.*, Principal exports, 1928–29 Butter and cheese, 289,781*l.* ; fruit, fresh; 916,335*l.*; fruit, dried, preserved or pulped, 409,318*l.*; hops, 206,080*l.* ; jams and jellies, 337,941*l.*; oats and chaff, 101,419*l.*; peas, 104,734*l.* ; potatoes, 658,954*l.*; wool, 1,119,484*l.* ; hides and skins, 449,792*l.*; zinc bars and blocks, 1,235,643*l.* ; timber, 342,044*l.* Total exports, 9,763,356*l.*

Direct oversea imports and exports are about 19 per cent. and 28 per cent. respectively of total imports and exports.

In 1928–29, Hobart did 50 per cent. of the total trade, Launceston 32 per cent., Burnie and Devonport each about 6 per cent.

The registered shipping in 1929 consisted of 135 sailing vessels of 4,828 tons, and 51 steamers of 4,072 tons. Total, 186 vessels, 8,900 tons.

For shipping, railways, posts and telegraphs, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Savings Banks.

The number of depositors in Savings Banks, including the Commonwealth Savings Bank, 1929, was 168,939, and the amount on deposit 5,705,000*l.*

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA.

Government.

The Northern Territory, after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed in 1863 to South Australia, and in 1901 entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of South Australia. The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1900 made provision for the surrender to the Commonwealth of any territory by any State, and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the Commonwealth, and it formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911.

On the 1st March, 1927, the Northern Territory was divided for administrative purposes into two Territories, North Australia and Central Australia, the dividing line between the two Territories being the twentieth parallel of south latitude. Each Territory is under a Government Resident, with headquarters at Darwin and Alice Springs respectively. This division was effected under the authority of the Northern Australia Act, 1926, which also provides for the appointment of a North Australia Commission, the powers of which extend to matters relating to the development of North Australia, and also to the administration of Crown Lands throughout North Australia and Central Australia. The Act further provides for the appointment of Advisory Councils for North Australia and Central Australia, each Council to consist of the Government Resident and four members (two to be elected by the people of the Territory, and two to be appointed by the Minister of State for Home Affairs). It is the function of each Council to advise the Government Resident in relation to any matter affecting the Territory under his control, including advice as to the making of new Ordinances or the repeal or amendment of existing Ordinances (other than Ordinances relating to the administration of Crown Lands), but not including any matter relating to the powers of the Commission or any matter under the control of the Commission.

North Australia Commission.—J. Horsburgh (Chairman), G. A. Hobler, and W. R. Easton.

Government Resident (North Australia).—R. H. Weddell.

Government Resident (Central Australia).—V. G. Carrington.

Area and Population.

The Northern Territory (North Australia and Central Australia) is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude. Its area is 523,620 square miles (North Australia, 287,220 square miles; Central Australia, 236,400 square miles). The area alienated on December 31, 1928, amounted to 746 square miles absolutely; 272,100 square miles were held under leases and licences; and the remainder, 251,520 square miles, was unoccupied. The coast line is about 1,040 miles in length. The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal being Port Darwin. The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet. On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasturage. The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with a small rainfall, but it can be watered by means of sub-artesian bores. The climate is tropical, but varies considerably over the whole Territory. The proximity of the sea in the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months.

The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows:—

Year	Europeans	Others	Totals
1881	670	2,781	3,451
1901	1,055	3,756	4,811
1911 (Census)	1,418	1,892	3,310
1921 (Census)	2,459	1,408	3,867
1928 (30th June)	2,645	1,069	3,714
1929 (30th June)	2,790	838	3,628

Of the 1921 Census total 1,046 were females. Chinese in the Territory numbered 722.

The estimated number of aborigines (including half-castes) on the 30th June, 1929, was 20,655.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1923-24	59,371	303,133	1926-27	122,062	431,512
1924-25	81,812	339,299	1927-28	142,902	459,756
1925-26	97,298	382,268	1928-29	125,830	454,259

The chief sources of revenue for the year ending June 30, 1929, were Customs and Excise, 10,170*l.*; Railways, 50,259*l.*[1]; North Australia Commission, 18,222*l.*; and Postal revenue, 10,354*l.* The chief items of expenditure (excluding interest, loans, &c.) were Administrative Staff, 91,787*l.*, North Australia Commission, 56,988*l.*, and Railways, 54,697*l.*[1] The public debt, excluding Port Augusta-Central Australia Railway Loans, but including North Australia Railways, on June 30, 1930, was 5,164,905*l.*

[1] The figures in respect of Railways are for North Australia Railways only. The working expenses of the Central Australia Railway included in the Finance Statement for 1928-29 are 198,213*l.*, against which were receipts totalling 185,811*l.*

Production and Industry.

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but most products suitable to the tropical and semi-tropical zones can be grown successfully. At present, however, agriculture is insignificant. In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle, horses, sheep, and other stock. The numbers of stock on December 31, 1928, were:—Cattle, 768,751; horses, 37,452; goats, 16,499; pigs, 407; sheep, 7,635; camels, 603; mules, 496; donkeys, 1,112.

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed. The value of the minerals produced in the year ending June 30, 1929, was as follows:—North Australia: Gold bullion, 552*l.*; Tin ore, 6,958*l.*; Silverlead ore, 79*l.*; Tantalite ore, 207*l.*; total, 7,796*l.* Central Australia: Mica, 10,548*l.*; grand total, 18,344*l.*

Commerce.

The oversea imports and exports are given as follows:—

Year	Imports	Exports	Year	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1923-24	14,432	8,000	1926-27	36,814	29,786
1924-25	20,636	41,944	1927-28	30,387	29,265
1925-26	34,168	35,902	1928-29	32,069	53,720

TERRITORIES OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH: TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA).

Papua is the south-eastern part of the island of New Guinea, with the islands of the d'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups and all islands between 8° and 12° S. latitude, and 141° and 155° E. longitude. Area 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 are on the mainland of New Guinea, and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned. On June 30, 1930, the population was as follows:—European, 1,525; Papuans (estimated), 275,000. (For the part of New Guinea lately possessed by Germany and now administered by Australia, see below).

To prevent that portion of the island of New Guinea not claimed by Holland from passing into the hands of a foreign power, the Government of Queensland annexed it in 1883. This step was not sanctioned by the Imperial Government, but on November 6, 1884, a British Protectorate was proclaimed over the Southern portion of the Eastern half of New Guinea, and in 1887 Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria undertook to defray the cost of administration, and the territory was annexed to the Crown the following year. The Federal Government took over the control in 1901; the political transfer was completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and on September 1, 1906, a proclamation was issued by the Governor-General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea was to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua. There is an executive council composed of 8 official members and 1 non-official member, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and 5 non-official members, 4 being nominated by the Lieutenant-Governor and appointed by the Governor-General of Australia, and the fifth being nominated by the Lieutenant-Governor of Papua as representing the interests of the Christian Missions of the Territory.

Lieut.-Governor and Judge.—Sir J. H. P. Murray, K.C.M.G.
Government Secretary.—Herbert William Champion.

Tribes have in large areas settled down to peaceful habits. Five missionary bodies are at work; many hundreds of natives are being taught by these bodies. 180,795 acres of land have been leased, chiefly by planters, the principal cultures being coconuts (49,072 acres at December 31, 1929), rubber (9,012 acres), sisal hemp (250 acres). On December 31, 1929, there were 59,487 acres of plantations. A preferential tariff is granted by the Commonwealth on certain raw material from Papua, and a bonus for 10 years on other products imported into Australia. Freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained at low rentals for long terms. Indigenous sago is plentiful in the western portion of the Territory, and there are considerable numbers of native-owned coconut trees. A regulation, which is strictly enforced, requires that each native shall plant coconut trees or other economic trees or plants if his land is suitable, or the natives may, in lieu of paying a tax in money, establish communal plantations under the direction of European instructors.

There are four ports of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, Woodlark Island and Daru.

There are 8 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate. There are also 20 assistant resident magistrates, and 9 patrol officers. There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary. For native government some simple regulations have been passed. There were (1930) 1,161 village policemen; armed constabulary, 300 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary).

Throughout the Territory there are numerous schools belonging to the various Christian missions; the attendance of native children is compulsory if English is taught. There is a tax not exceeding 10*s.* per head on indentured native labourers, and not exceeding 20*s.* per head on other natives After expenses of collection are paid the balance is devoted, first, to native education, and, secondly, to other purposes having for their object the direct benefit of the natives. The education is chiefly undertaken by the missions aided by grants from the taxation fund. 6,620*l.* was spent on education in 1929–30. The expenses of the plantation instructors to develop native agriculture are borne by the Education Fund, 1,664*l.* being expended in 1929–30.

A Government Anthropologist is supported from this fund with a view to assisting the Government to understand the native point of view. A Family Bonus is paid to native mothers of four or more children under 16 years of age at the rate of 5*s.* for four and 1*s.* for each child over the four. In 1929–30, 6,153*l.* was spent from the fund on medical work among the natives, besides 1,242*l.* on native hospital buildings.

Revenue is mainly from customs duties. An annual subsidy is given by the Australian Government. The subsidy for 1930–31 has been reduced from 50,000*l.* to 45,000*l.*

Gold, silver and osmiridium are the only minerals exported. There are 9 proclaimed mineral fields, seven of which are gold fields, and 2 copper. Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island. A large area near Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and was being vigorously developed. A railway from the field to the coast was constructed and smelters erected. The whole field was abandoned in 1927 owing to the low price of copper, but the machinery remains in the hope of a rise in the price of copper sufficient to justify a renewal of operations. Indications of petroleum have been found over an area of 1,000 sq. miles. Prospecting Licences have been issued to a number of private companies. In 1929–30 the gold output was valued at 9,059*l.* The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales. The chief imports are food-stuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware; exports 1929–30, copra (11,693 tons, 176,485*l.*); gold (3,634 ozs., 10,632*l.*); osmiridium (28¾ ozs., 500*l.*); rubber (764 tons, 50,640*l.*). Number of horses (1929), 709; cattle, 6,754; mules, 136.

A steamer trades between Sydney and Port Moresby every month, and small coastal vessels run at frequent intervals between the various inter-territorial ports. Ocean-going shipping entered and cleared 1929–30, British, 184,806 tons; foreign, 43,585 tons. There are wireless telegraph stations at Port Moresby and Samarai.

There are branches of the Bank of New South Wales at Port Moresby and Samarai. The currency and its legal tender are the same as in the Commonwealth of Australia.

NEW ZEALAND.

New Zealand was first discovered in 1642 by Tasman, and the coast was explored by Captain Cook in 1769, and in subsequent years. It became a resort for whalers and traders, chiefly from Australia. In 1840 the native chiefs ceded the sovereignty to the British Crown and the islands became a British Colony.

The aborigines, called Maoris, are a branch of the Polynesian race; they are divided into about twenty clans, analogous to those of the Scottish Highlands. Between 1845 and 1848, and again between 1860 and 1870, about half of these clans were in revolt against British rule, but peace was permanently established in 1871.

Government and Constitution.

By Order in Council, the designation of the Colony of New Zealand was changed to the Dominion of New Zealand, on and from September 26, 1907. The present form of government was established by Statute 15 & 16 Vict., and cap. 72, passed in 1852. The Colony was divided into six provinces and later into nine. By an Act of the Colonial Legislature, 39 Vict., No. xxi., passed in 1875, the provinces and the provincial system of government were abolished, and the powers previously exercised by superintendents and provincial officers were exercised by the Governor (Governor-General from June 1917) or by local boards. The legislative power is vested in the Governor-General and a 'General Assembly' consisting of two Chambers—a Legislative Council and a House of Representatives. The Governor-General has the power of assenting to or withholding consent from bills, or he may reserve them for His Majesty's pleasure. He summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Parliament. He can send drafts of bills to either House for consideration, but in case of appropriations of public money must first recommend the House of Representatives to make provision accordingly before any appropriations can become law. He can return bills for amendment to either House.

The Legislative Council consists of forty members, who are paid at the rate of 315*l.* per annum. Members hold their seats for seven years only, unless reappointed.

The House of Representatives consists of eighty members, including four Maoris, elected by the people for three years. They are paid at the rate of 450*l.* per annum. Every man or woman registered as an elector is eligible as a member of the House of Representatives. For European representation every adult person (of either sex), if resident one year in the Dominion and three months in an electoral district, is required to be registered as an elector for such Electoral District. No person may be registered on more than one electoral roll. Every adult Maori resident in any of the four Maori electoral districts can vote, provided he (or she) be not registered on any European roll. Registration is not required in Native districts.

The result of the general election of November 1928 was: Reform Party, 28; United Party (Liberals), 29; Labour Party, 19; Independent, 4.

Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Lord Bledisloe, G.C.M.G. (appointed December 1, 1929). Salary 5,000*l.*, and 2,500*l.* allowances.

The (United Party) Cabinet (May 28, 1930) is as follows:—

Prime Minister, Minister of Finance, External Affairs, Customs, and Stamp Duties.—Hon. G. W. Forbes.

Minister of Lands and Commissioner of State Forests.—Hon. E. A. Ransom.

Minister of Education—Hon. H. Atmore.

Minister of Railways—Hon. W. A. Veitch.

Attorney-General.—Hon. Sir T. K. Sidey, Kt., M.L.C.

Minister of Public Works and Transport.—Hon. W. B. Taverner.

Minister of Internal Affairs and Industries and Commerce.—Hon. P. A. de la Perrelle.

Minister of Defence and Justice.—Hon. J. G. Cobbe.

Postmaster-General, Minister of Telegraphs and Marine.—Hon. J. B Donald.

Minister of Health.—Hon. A. J. Stallworthy.

Minister of Labour and Immigration.—Hon. S. G. Smith.

Minister of Agriculture and Mines.—Hon. A. J. Murdoch.

Member without Portfolio.—Hon. R. Masters, M.L.C.

Each Minister has a salary of 1,170*l.* (with the exception of the Prime Minister, who has 1,800*l.*), with House Allowance of 200*l.* if no Government residence is provided.

Department of the High Commissioner in London:—

High Commissioner.—The Hon. Sir T. M. Wilford, K.C.M.G., K.C. (appointed January 1, 1930), 415 Strand, London, W.C. 2.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local government New Zealand is divided into counties and boroughs. The counties are subdivided into ridings.

Area and Population.

There are two principal islands, the North and South Islands, besides Stewart Island, and small outlying islands, including (since 1901) the Cook and some other islands in the Pacific Ocean. The group is 1,000 miles long, and 180 miles across at the broadest part; coast line 3,000 miles. New Zealand is about 1,200 miles east of Australia Area, excluding annexed islands, 103,722 square miles. North Island, 44,281 square miles, South Island 58,092, Stewart Island 670 square miles, Chatham Islands 372 square miles, outlying islands 307 square miles. Acreage 66,390,262 acres, exclusive of the Cook and other islands (179,200 acres), and up to March, 1930, 21,521,262 acres had been alienated, and 14,921,857 acres reserved and set apart by the State for special purposes. The area of Native lands at March 31, 1930, was 4,627,353 acres. The estimated population June 30, 1930, was 1,490,405, inclusive of Maoris, 67,311, but exclusive of residents of Cook and other annexed Islands, 14,584, of the Tokelau Islands, 999, and of Western Samoa (mandated territory), 44,719. Education.

The University of New Zealand consists of the Otago University at Dunedin, with 101 professors and lecturers; the Canterbury University College at Christchurch, with 54 professors and lecturers; the Auckland University College, with 45 professors and lecturers; and the Victoria University College at Wellington, with 30 professors and lecturers: students on registers of the four constituent colleges (1929), 4,623. The University colleges are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College and the Massey Agricultural College (at Palmerston North) are recognised schools of agriculture.

At the end of 1929 there were 46 incorporated or endowed secondary schools, with 657 (excluding part-time) teachers and 15,498 pupils (excluding 359 in lower departments). There are also 79 District High Schools with 191 teachers and 3,869 scholars in the secondary division. Two Junior High Schools with 131 pupils and 21 Technical High and Technical Day Schools with 6,114 pupils. Of private secondary schools there were 47 registered, with 3,698 pupils. Twelve secondary schools for Maoris had 533 pupils.

For primary schools there is an Education Department (which also exercises certain functions in regard to both university and secondary schools). There are 9 Local Education Boards. At the end of 1929 there were 2,597 public primary schools, 6,985 teachers (including 547 probationers), 221,830 scholars on the rolls; average attendance (1929), 198,030. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free.

There are 5 schools of mines; 4 normal schools; 5 central schools of art; 13 industrial schools; a school for the deaf; an institute for the blind (at Auckland); a special school for mentally backward boys at Otekaike, Otago; and a similar school for girls at Richmond, Nelson. There were also, at the end of 1929, 302 registered primary private schools, with 26,977 pupils.

There were 137 Native village schools, with 307 teachers and 6,979 scholars, including 888 Europeans. Total net expenditure by the State on Native schools in 1929-30 was 87,043*l.* Total expenditure out of public funds in 1929-30 upon education of all kinds 4,058,222*l.*

Justice and Crime.

There are nine supreme court judges, and thirty-two stipendiary magistrates. There are numerous magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

In 1929 there were 46,309 summary convictions, and 1,345 sentences in supreme courts, including 828 cases sent up from lower courts for sentence. At the end of 1929 the gaols and Borstal institutions contained 1,395 prisoners.

Pauperism, Pensions, etc.

The Dominion is divided into districts, with elective boards for the administration of the public hospitals and charitable relief. The Government subsidises bequests and voluntary contributions at the rate of 20*s.* in the pound; and contributions by local authorities, according to a sliding scale, ranging from 14*s.* in the pound to 26*s.* in the pound, and averaging throughout the Dominion 20*s.* in the pound. The apportionments are made according to the value of rateable property within the district. The total expenditure on Charitable Aid during the year ended March 31, 1929, was 245,738*l.*

During 1929 the benevolent and orphan asylums accommodated 12,696 inmates; and 4,551 children were wholly or partly maintained by the State in industrial schools and other institutions in 1929.

An Act, passed in 1898 and amended on several occasions since, provided for old-age pensions. Every person, not an alien or an Asiatic, who fulfils certain conditions is entitled to a pension of 45*l.* 10*s.* a year, reducible by 1*l.* for every 1*l.* by which income exceeds 52*l.* The joint annual income of a married couple in receipt of pensions must not exceed 143*l.* (including pensions). Pensions are also granted to widows, to miners incapacitated as a result of miners' phthisis, to veterans of the Maori war, to dependents of those who died in the influenza epidemic of 1918, and to certain classes of blind persons. In addition are those pensions granted in respect of the recent war.

A system of family allowances at the rate of 2*s.* per week for each child after the second, in cases where income excluding family allowance is under 4*l.* per week, came into force on April 1, 1927.

[2] The total shown for interest covers interest on the Public Debt Redemption Fund and on other public moneys, together with interest on railway capital liability (since 1925–26) and on post and telegraph capital liability (since 1928–29). From the years stated, railway and post and telegraph revenue and expenditure have been removed from the operations of the consolidated Fund, these two undertakings, however, paying interest on their capital liability. Railway revenue in 1929–30 was 8,033,645*l.*, and post and telegraph revenue, 3,641,619*l.*

The number of income-tax payers in 1929–30 was 55,235, and of land-tax payers, 46,276.

The total expenditure out of the Public Works Fund from 1870 to March 31, 1930, was 113,176,614*l.*, including charges and expenses for raising loans.

The average taxation per head of the population in 1929–30 was 13*l.* 3*s.* 7*d.*

The gross public debt at March 31, 1930, was: 267,383,343*l.*; of which indebtedness on account of the war of 1914–19 represented 69,783,526*l.* Most of the rest of the debt represents reproductive expenditure or investments.

Defence.

The military forces of New Zealand comprise the Permanent Force, the Territorial Force, the Reserve, the Cadets and the Nursing Service. All male inhabitants of New Zealand, who are British subjects and have resided therein for 6 months, are liable for training as senior cadets from 14 to 18 years of age. Between 18 and 19 they pass into the general training section, and are posted to the Territorial Force or pass to the Reserve. Senior cadets do 30 drills of 1½ hours, 6 half-day parades, and a prescribed rifle course. The Territorial Force do 6 days training in camp, 6 half-day parades, 12 drills, and a prescribed rifle course. The scheme of compulsory training is at present temporarily in abeyance. The strength of the Permanent Force in March, 1930, was 108 officers and 438 other ranks, and of the Territorial Force (limited by law to 30,000), 1,057 officers and 15,933 other ranks. The senior cadets numbered 33,198.

The New Zealand military forces are under a general officer commanding, who has at his disposal a general headquarters divided into the general staff and administrative services and departments. He is responsible to the Ministry of Defence. New Zealand is organised into 3 military commands, the Northern, Central, and Southern, each command being under an officer commanding.

The Air Force consists of 20 machines. The personnel is 155, including 50 permanent officers and men.

The Naval Defence Act, 1920, provided for the establishment of a New Zealand Naval Force, to be raised and maintained by voluntary enlistment only, enlistment being for a prescribed period not less than two years. In time of war the Naval Force (including vessels acquired for defence purposes) is at the disposal of the British Government. The Naval force consists of training ship Philomel (ex-cruiser of 2,500 tons), the cruisers Dunedin and Diomede, loaned free of charge (other than maintenance) by the Imperial Government, and the sloops Laburnum and Veronica. In addition there are the oil-tank vessel Nucula, the trawler Wakakura and the tug Toia. The establishment of a New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve is also provided for under the Act. Expenditure on naval defence in 1929–30 amounted to 437,573*l.*, not including interest on loan-moneys. In addition 125,000*l.* was paid as the third of eight annual instalments towards the cost of the Singapore Naval Base.

Production and Industry.

I. Agriculture.

Two-thirds of the surface of New Zealand is suitable for agriculture and grazing. About 12,500,000 acres are still under forest. The total area under cultivation (including 16,872,948 acres in sown grasses and 124,565 in fallow) in 1930 was 19,156,074 acres. The area of Crown lands (other than reserves) leased under various tenures at March 31, 1930, was 17,992,052 acres, and 2,221,786 acres were available for future disposal.

The largest freehold estates are held in the South Island. The extent of occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1929 (exclusive of holdings within borough boundaries) was as follows:—

Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres	Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres

Attached to New Zealand are the following islands :

Auckland Islands, 50° 32′ S., 166° 13′ E., 200 miles S. of Stewart Island. Area of largest about 200 square miles. Uninhabited. The New Zealand Government maintains a depôt of provisions and clothing for the use of shipwrecked mariners on the largest island of the group.

Chatham Islands, 43° 50′ S., 177° W., 536 miles E. of New Zealand. Area 372 square miles ; population (April, 1926) 562 (268 Europeans and 294 Maoris and Morioris).

The Cook and other South Pacific Islands were annexed to New Zealand in June, 1901. They lie between 8° and 23° S. lat., 156° and 170° W. long. The names of the islands with their populations (1926) are as follows :—

Hervey Islands	23	Niue (Savage Is.)	3,795
Nassau	—
		Total	13,877

Total area of the Cook and other islands about 280 square miles.

Rarotonga is 20 miles in circumference; Atiu, 20 miles ; Aitutaki, 21 miles ; Niue (or Savage Island), 40 miles. Laws for the Cook Islands have been made since 1890 by a general Legislature, and are administered by an Executive Council, of which the Arikis, or native chiefs, are members. At Rarotonga and Niue there are (New Zealand) Resident Commissioners, whose approval is required for all enactments. The customs tariff of New Zealand is enforced. In 1915 an Act was passed by the New Zealand Parliament consolidating the laws relating to the Islands, and providing for the appointment of a member of the Executive Council of New Zealand as Minister of the Cook Islands. The Minister is charged with the administration of the Islands. FIJI.

Constitution and Government

The Fiji Islands were discovered by Tasman in 1643 and visited by Captain Cook in 1769. The sovereignty was ceded to Great Britain on October 10, 1874.

Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.—Sir Murchison Fletcher, K.C.M.G., C.B.E. (appointed, 1929). Salary 3,000*l.* as Governor of Fiji, and 1,200*l.* as High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.

The Constitution is regulated by Letters Patent of February 9, 1929. The Executive Council consists of the Governor, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney General, the Colonial Treasurer, the Secretary for Indian Affairs, the Secretary for Native Affairs, and two unofficial members nominated by the Governor.

The Legislative Council consists of the Governor and not more than thirteen nominated members, six European elected members, three native members and three Indian elected members.

The natives retain a large share of self-government. Their system of village and district councils has been recognised and improved, and supplemented by a triennial meeting of the high chiefs and representatives from each province, presided over by the Governor. There is a Native Regulation Board, constituted under the 'Native Affairs Ordinance, 1876,' which has power to make regulations with regard to the marriage and divorce of natives, succession to property, the jurisdiction and powers of native courts and magistrates in matters of civil and criminal procedure, and also in regard to other matters having reference to the good government and well-being of the native population. All such regulations have to receive the sanction of the Legislative Council

There is a constabulary force consisting of Fijians and Indians, with European officers, and a Defence Force (Europeans, half-castes, and Fijians). Strength of constabulary force in 1930, 237.

Area and Population.

Fiji comprises a group of about 250 islands (about 80 inhabited) lying between 15° and 22° south latitudes and 177° east and 178° west longitude. The largest is Viti Levu, area 4,053 square miles; next is Vanua Levu, area 2,130 square miles. The island of Rotuma, between 12° and 15° of south latitude, and 175° and 180° east longitude, was added to the colony in 1880 Total area, including Rotuma, 7,083 square miles.

At the 31st December, 1929, the population of the Colony, including Rotuma, was estimated at 180,005; Europeans, 4,726 (2,539 males, 2,187 females); Fijians, 91,711 (47,243 males, 44,468 females); Indians, 73,121 (43,859 males, 29,262 females); Chinese, 1,464 (1,352 males, 112 females); half-castes, 3,281 (1,697 males, 1,584 females); others, 5,632 (3,598 males, 2,034 females).

Among Europeans the birth-rate in 1929 was 19·9 per 1000, and deaths 8·5; among Fijians, birth-rate, 31·0, death-rate, 24·6; among Indians, birth-rate, 34·8, death-rate, 9·1; others, birth-rate, 31·8, death-rate, 21·2; marriages, 10·9 of the total population.

Suva, the capital, is on the south coast of Viti Levu: European population (census of April 24, 1921), 1,443, suburbs, 298, total, 1,741.

PACIFIC ISLANDS.

TONGA.

(FRIENDLY ISLANDS.)

The Tonga or Friendly Islands continued up to 1899 to be a neutral region in accordance with the Declaration of Berlin, April 6, 1886. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, subsequently accepted by the United States, the Tonga Islands were left under the Protectorate of Great Britain. A Protectorate was proclaimed on May 18, 1900, and a British Agent appointed. British and foreign nationals charged with any offence against the laws of Tonga, not including crimes punishable by death or by imprisonment exceeding two years, are subject to the jurisdiction of the Tongan courts. In other respects they are subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of the High Commissioner.

Queen.—Salote, succeeded on the death of her father, George II, on April 12, 1918.

There is a Legislative Assembly which meets annually, composed of seven nobles elected by their peers, seven elected representatives of the people, and the Ministers of the Crown, numbering eight, or twenty-three members including the Speaker. The elections are held triennially.

The kingdom consists of 3 groups of islands, called respectively Tongatabu, Haapai (which are low-lying groups of coral formation), and Vavau (which is high and mountainous), together with the outlying islands of Niuatobutabu, Tafahi, and Niuafoou, and lies between 15° and 23° 30′ south, and 173° and 177° west, its western boundary being the eastern boundary of Fiji. The main group was discovered by Tasman in 1643. The climate is mild and healthy, malaria being unknown. The temperature during seven months of the year, from May to November, rarely exceeds 84° F. in the shade, and seldom, even in the hottest part of summer, exceeds 90° F. Total area, approximately 385 square miles; Capital, Nukualofa; population, estimated at the end of 1929, 26,809 Tongans, 436 Europeans, 202 half-castes, and 213 other Pacific islanders. The natives are Christian, there being about 19,000 adherents of the Wesleyan Free Church of Tonga, 3,000 of the Free Church, and 3,000 Roman Catholics. The native Tongans enjoy free education, free medical attendance and dental treatment. At the end of 1929 there were 73 Government and 38 denominational primary schools, with an average daily attendance throughout the year of 4,300 pupils. At Tonga College there was 9 teachers, 3 Europeans, and 6 Tongans, and the number of pupils averages 200. The revenue amounted in 1929-30 to 87,740*l.*, and the expenditure to 87,493*l.* Native produce consists almost entirely of copra; the export in 1929 amounted to 16,861 tons, valued at 252,911*l.*, most of which was shipped to the U.K., and Continental ports. Total imports, 1929, 198,078*l.*; total exports, 259,090*l.* The imports include drapery, flour, kerosene, benzene, biscuits, fish, hardware, timber, sugar, meats; and the exports copra. The trade is with Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia, Fiji, Europe and the United States of America. Steamer communication with the outside world consists of one vessel of the Union Company's Fleet which maintains a four-weekly service with New Zealand, via Fiji and Samoa, in addition to which steam vessels of the Clan and other lines visit the group for shipments of copra. During 1929, 26 vessels entered and cleared: total tonnage 143,068, of which 112,808 tons were British. There is a wireless station at Nukualofa which keeps up telegraphic communication through Samoa or Fiji, and sub-stations at Vavau, and Haapai which communicates only with Nukualofa. There is a telephone system in Nukualofa.

Since May 1, 1905, British coin is legal tender and there is a Government note issue. The weights and measures are the same as in Great Britain. Accounts are kept in pounds, shillings, and pence.

High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific.—Sir Arthur G. M. Fletcher, K.C.M.G.

Agent and Consul.—J. S. Neill.

The High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, assisted by deputies, has jurisdiction, in accordance with an Order in Council of 1893, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Pacific Islanders' Protection Acts of 1872 and 1875, and to settle disputes between British subjects living in these islands. The jurisdiction of the High Commissioner extends over all the Western Pacific not within the limits of Fiji, Queensland, or New South Wales, or the jurisdiction of any civilised Power, and includes the Southern Solomon Islands, and the various small groups in Melanesia.

In the sections devoted to New South Wales and New Zealand mention is made of various annexed Pacific Islands. The following summary (omitting islands described elsewhere) gives the names and positions of islands which are unattached:—

Ducie Island, 24° 40′ S. lat., 124° 48′ W. long.

Pitcairn Island, 25° 5′ S., 130° 5′ W.; area 2 sq. m.; pop. in 1914, 140 (35 adult males, 39 adult females, 66 children). The affairs of the island are conducted by a Council of 7 members, with a President, who acts also as Chief Magistrate, and a Vice-President, who is also Government Secretary, subject to the control of the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. In religion the islanders (descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty) are 'Seventh Day Adventists.' The products of the island are sweet potatoes, beans, sugar cane, yams, taro, melons, pumpkins, oranges, bananas, pineapples, and arrowroot, which is prepared in limited quantities with antiquated appliances. Excellent coffee also grows. The island is well stocked with goats and poultry.

Phœnix Group between 2° 30′ and 4° 30′ S. lat., and 171° and 174° 30′ W. long. Eight islands: Mary, Enderbury, Phœnix, Birney, Gardner, McKean, Hull, Sydney; area of group, 16 sq. m., pop. 59.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony. The islands in this group were proclaimed as Protectorates in 1892 and annexed (at the request of the native Governments) as Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, on November 10, 1915. The Colony includes several groups of islands. (1) The Ellice Islands, between 5° 30′ and 11° 20′ S. lat., and 176° and 180° E. long. (population June 30, 1927, 3,741). The principal islands are Funafuti, Nukufetau, Vaitupu, Nui (or Netherland), Niutao (or Lynx or Speiden), Nanumaga (or Hudson), Nanumea (or St. Augustine), Nukulaelae (or Mitchell); Nurakita; area of group, 14 sq. m. (2) Fanning Island, 3° 50′ N., 159° W. area 15 sq. m.; Washington Island, 4° 40′ N., 160° 20′ W., area 6 sq. m., population of the two islands, June 30, 1927, 517, including 37 Europeans; and Ocean Island (population June 30, 1927, 2,467, including 113 Europeans and 456 Asiatics). The last-named island is the Colony headquarters. It is situated 0° 52′ S., and 169° 35′ E., is six miles in circumference, and was annexed by Great Britain in 1901. The island is exceedingly rich in high-grade phosphate, which is worked by the British Phosphate Commission, who purchased the rights of the Pacific Phosphate Company in 1921. A wireless station on the island maintains telegraphic communication via Fiji and Australia. (3) Christmas Island, situated roughly 2° N. lat., and 157° W. long., discovered by Cook in 1777, annexed by Great Britain in 1888, and included in the Colony in November, 1919, is the largest atoll in the Pacific, being over 100 miles in circumference. It is leased to the Central Pacific Coconut Plantations, Ltd., for a term of 87 years from January 1, 1914. Population 1927, European, 5, natives, 18. The Gilbert Islands on the equator (population 1927, 23,586). The principal islands are Butaritari, Makin, Tarawa, Abaiang, Marakei, Maiana, Abemama, Kuria, Aranuka, Nonouti, Tabiteuea, Beru, Nukunau, Onotoa, Tamana, and Arorae. Area, 166 sq. m.; population at 1921 census: 264 Europeans, 29,285 Pacific Island natives, and 348 Asiatics; total, 29,897 (including 14,205 females). The Administration maintains two native boys' schools—the King George V. School at Tarawa, Gilbert Islands, with 90 pupils, and a school at Vaitupu, Ellico Islands, with 60 pupils. A school for native boys on Ocean Island has been maintained since 1920 out of Banaban phosphate royalties. Village schools for native boys and girls throughout the Gilbert and Ellico Groups are kept up by the London Missionary Society and the Society of the Sacred Heart Revenue of the Colony for the year ended June 30, 1929, 73,712*l.*, of which the principal items were: Customs, 28,097*l.*; native taxes, 10,308*l.*; licences, &c., 16,060*l.*; fees of court, &c., 3,269*l.*; royalty on phosphates, 5,988*l.*; interest on investments, 2,273*l.*; post office and telegraphs, 1,415*l.*; miscellaneous, 5,739*l.*; Imperial grant, 563*l.* The expenditure for the same period amounted to 60,595*l.* Principal crops: pandanus fruit and coconuts. The trade in 1927–28 amounted to 190,436*l.* for imports, and 348,272*l.* for exports (phosphate, 233,820 tons, 292,275*l.*; copra, 4,122 tons, 55,657*l.* The Colony is administered by the High Commissioner through a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Ocean Island.

Resident Commissioner—A. F. Grimble.

British Solomon Islands, about 8° S. and 160° W., are Guadalcanar, Malaita, Ysabel, San Cristoval, New Georgia, Choiseul, Shortland, Mono (or Treasury), Vella Lavella, Ronongo, Gizo, Rendova, Russell, Florida, Rennell, and numerous small islands (the Lord Howe Group or Ontong Java, the Santa Cruz Islands, Tucopia and Mitre Islands, and the Duff, or Wilson Group, are also included in the Solomon Islands Protectorate). The total area of land and sea included in the B.S.I. Protectorate boundaries is approximately 375,000 square nautical miles. Population (in December 1929), Europeans 447; Aliens 241; native population, about 150,000. They are under British Protection. Education is entirely in the hands of missions. Revenue, for the year ended March 31, 1930, 76,678*l.*; expenditure, 68,867*l.* Coconuts, rubber, sweet potatoes, pine-apples, bananas are grown. The value of imports in 1929–30 was 248,307*l.*; and of exports, 353,441*l.* (mainly copra, 21,300 tons, 304,088*l.*; trocas shell, 450 tons, 26,325*l.*; ivory nuts, 840 tons, 8,232*l.*; timber logs, 1,932,107 square ft., 9,276*l.*). Vessels entered, 1928–29, 78,131 tons (64,690 British); cleared, 70,664 tons (British 57,297 tons). A paper currency was issued in 1917–18. Little gold is in circulation, and only 4,600*l.* Protectorate paper money. The chief medium of exchange is Commonwealth bank notes. There is a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Tulagi, a small island off the south coast of Florida. A nominated Advisory Council assists in the administration. (For part of the Solomon Islands lately owned by Germany and now administered by Australia, see section on late German New Guinea below.)

Resident Commissioner.—F. N. Ashley.

Starbuck Island, 5° 30′ S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 1 sq. m., uninhabited. Malden Island, 4° S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 35 sq. m., contains a considerable deposit of guano. Jarvis Island, on the equator, 159° W., area 1½ sq. m., pop. 30. Palmyra, 6° N., 162° 30′ W., area 1½ sq. m. Baker Islands, on the equator.

These islands are mostly of coral formation; most of them grow coconut trees, and some of them are valuable for their guano.

The New Hebrides Group lies roughly 500 miles west of Fiji and 250 miles N.E. of New Caledonia. Estimated area 5,700 square miles. The group is under joint administration of English and French officials, as provided for by Anglo-French Convention of February 1906, ratified October 1906, and a Protocol signed at London on August 6, 1914, and ratified on March 18, 1922. The interests of British, French, and natives, respectively, are guaranteed; the conditions of land-holding in the Islands fixed; and the regulation of the recruitment of native labour provided for. Within the Islands Great Britain is represented by a High Commissioner, who delegates his powers to a Resident Commissioner stationed in the group.

The larger islands of the group are Espiritu Santo, Malekula, Epi, Ambrym, Efate or Sandwich, Erromanga, Tanna and Aneityúm. There are three active volcanoes, on Tanna, Ambrym and Lopevi, respectively. Earthquake shocks are of common occurrence. The native population of the group is about 50,000. On Malekula, Santo and Pentecost cannibalism is still practised. White population 1929: British 227, French 797. Foreigners, including Asiatics, who have opted for British regime 51, and for French regime 5,799. With the latter are included 30 Javanese, 300 Chinese, and 5,396 Tonkinese coolies under indenture to the French. There are numerous Presbyterian and Catholic mission native schools; one French Government school and two Catholic mission schools for whites. Public revenue: British service, 1929–30 (to March 31), 1,482*l.*; Condominium service, 1929: 29,178*l.*; public expenditure: British service, 1929–30 (to March 31), 11,949*l.*; Condominium service, 1929, 25,777*l.*

Area under cultivation: British, 3,000 acres; French, 40,000 acres. British acreage under cultivation is composed principally of coconuts and a few hundred acres under cotton. French acreage under cultivation includes coconuts, about 20,000 acres; cocoa, 8,000 acres; cotton, 5,500 acres; coffee, 2,000 acres.

Bananas, sugarcane, oranges and all tropical fruits grow well. A small saw-mill has been established on Efate. Kauri pine is found on Aneityúm, but is no longer worked. There are several British and French trading companies operating in the group. Settlers and speculating companies have acquired large areas of land within the islands, the ownership of which is generally disputed, and which in consequence remains undeveloped pending adjudication by the mixed tribunal. Imports, Condominium, 1929: value in French currency, 37,204,343 francs; value in British currency, 300,035*l.* Exports, Condominium: value in French currency, 35,492,768 francs.; value in British currency, 286,232*l.* The trade is mostly with Australia, New Caledonia and France. Principal imports are: Provisions and foodstuffs, clothing, metal-work and furniture; exports: Copra (10,787 tons in 1929, value 147,460*l.*); coffee (100 tons, 6,630*l.*); cocoa (2,047 tons, 89,088*l.*); cotton, (329 tons, 31,700*l.*); maize (4,355*l.*); cotton seed (1,139*l.*). Import of arms, ammunition, wines and spirits is prohibited except under special permit. There is frequent communication between New Caledonia and Australia; a five-weekly mail service being maintained by the Burns, Philip Line and a four-weekly service by Messageries Maritimes, while a two-monthly service is also maintained by the last-named company with France and the New Hebrides viâ Tahiti and Panama. The shipping entered and cleared from the Port of Vila during 1928 was: Entered:—British, 16,787 tons (19 vessels); French, 105,496 tons (41 vessels); other, 4,363 tons (3 vessels). Cleared—British, 16,139 tons (18 vessels); French, 106,076 tons (43 vessels); other, 4,363 tons (3 vessels).

MANDATED TERRITORIES IN THE PACIFIC: NEW GUINEA, WESTERN SAMOA, AND NAURU ISLAND.

THE former German possessions in the Western Pacific included: Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, Bismarck Archipelago, the German Solomon Islands, Nauru, the Caroline Islands, the Marshall Islands, and the Marianne or Ladrone Islands (excepting the Island of Guam). The islands north of the Equator, namely, the Marshall, Caroline, Pelew, and Ladrone (Marianne) Islands, are now administered by Japan as mandatory. Those south of the Equator, namely, the Bismarck Archipelago, those of the Solomon Islands formerly owned by Germany, and (late) German New Guinea (Kaiser Wilhelm's Land), are assigned to Australia, German Samoa to New Zealand, and Nauru, a small islet just south of the Equator, to the British Empire.

THE MANDATED TERRITORY OF NEW GUINEA.

The Territory has an area of 93,000 square miles, extending from the Equator as far as 8° South latitude, and from 141° East longitude as far as 160° East longitude. An Australian force occupied these Possessions on September 12, 1914. The mandate from the League of Nations (see p. xxvii THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1929) is dated December 17, 1920, and on May 9, 1921, the Australian Government established its civil administration in the Territory. The laws of the Commonwealth, subject to local modifications as necessary, may be applied to the mandated territories. The military training of the natives, except for local police purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

The estimated non-indigenous population at June 30, 1930, was 4,155, of which the British numbered 1,992, Chinese 1,238, Dutch 209, German 348, Japanese 45, and United States of America 116. The number of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits was 506, and in mining pursuits 200 (approximately). The estimated native population was 487,266.

Inter-island trade is carried on by small steamships and motor-schooners. There is a three-weekly service from Australia to Rabaul.

The total area under cultivation in the Mandated Territory at June 30, 1929, was 197,950 acres. The greater part of this area was planted with coconuts (about 192,385 acres). Coffee, cocoa and kapok are also grown. Tropical fruits grow very abundantly. The staple articles of food of the natives are yams, taro, sago, and bananas. There is very little land used for pasture. The land is rich in mineral wealth, but no minerals, except gold at Bulolo, are worked on account of the difficulty of transporting mining machinery. Native labour is used to work the plantations, and the natives are recruited either from the adjacent villages or from other parts of the Possessions. There are some 19,535 native labourers so recruited for plantation purposes. The total indentured labour in the territory on June 30, 1929, was 30,325.

Administrator of the Territory of New Guinea.—Brigadier-General E. A. Wisdom, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D.

The seat of Administration is at Rabaul, New Britain.

1. North Eastern New Guinea. This territory, the northern section of south-east New Guinea, lies between 2° 35′ and 8° south latitude, and 141° and 148° east longitude. The area, including Manam, Karkar, Long, Bagabag, Schouten, Kairiru, (D'Urville), and some smaller islands, is 69,700 square miles. The native population in 1929 for areas explored was, counted and estimated, 172,148, but so little is known of the interior that any figures are very conjectural. It was declared a German Protectorate in 1884, and was under the control and development of the New Guinea Company from 1885 to 1899. The principal station on the mainland is at Madang. The coast-line is very little broken, and there are few good harbours. There are high ranges running parallel with the coast plain, which is from 20 to 100 miles wide and broken with steep spurs in some places extending to the actual coast-line. The ranges in the interior have been little explored, and some of their summits are known to exceed 12,000 feet. The principal rivers are the Sepik, which is navigable for over 250 miles, the Ramu or Ottilien, and the Markham. The climate is hot and the rainfall large. There are three missionary societies at work; these missions are also planters and traders.

The chief towns are: Madang and district (non-indigenous population, 272); Morobe and district (non-indigenous population, 139); Aitape and district (non-indigenous population, 103); The Wau (non-indigenous population 200).

2. Bismarck Archipelago.—In November, 1884, a German Protectorate was declared over the New Britain Archipelago and several adjacent groups of islands, and in May, 1885, they were renamed the Bismarck Archipelago. The Archipelago lies between 140° 30′ and 156° east longitude, and the Equator and 8° south latitude. The chief islands are New Britain, area 14,600 square miles; New Ireland, area 2,800 square miles; Lavongai (late New Hanover, 460 square miles; Duke of York Islands, area 22 square miles; the Admiralty Islands (principal island, Manus), area 663 square miles. The other groups included in this Archipelago are Mussau Islands, Gardner Islands, Nuguria, Nissan Island, the Vitu Islands, Umboi Islands, Hermit Islands, Ninigo Group, Kaniet and Sae Islands. In these various groups there are upwards of 100 small islands, having a total area of 1,115 square miles. The native population of the Archipelago in 1929 of areas patrolled was 129,074.

New Britain, the largest island of this group, is a long island of crescent shape lying east and west. It has a mean breadth of 50 miles and a length of 300 miles. The island is practically undeveloped except for 61,098 acres under cultivation chiefly on the Gazelle Peninsula in the north, four plantations on the northern coast, and six plantations on the southern coast, west of Henry Reid Bay. A Government station, named Gasmata (non-indigenous population 16), has been established about midway along the southern coast. Talasea (non-indigenous population 34) is situated on the north coast. The interior of the island is little known. The native population of areas patrolled in 1929 was 76,690. A mountain chain traverses the entire length of the island, and in the centre consists of several irregular ranges. There are several active volcanoes. The highest known peak is the Father, about 7,500 feet high, which is an active volcano. The island has very fine harbours. The only one visited by oversea shipping is Simpson Harbour, in Blanche Bay. The principal settlement is around the shores of this bay. The chief product is copra, but cocoa and coffee are now being extensively planted. There are two missionary societies at work. The chief town is Rabaul (non-indigenous population, 1,350), which is the seat of the Government. The old capital was at Kokopo (non-indigenous population, 369), which is situated 14 miles south-east of Rabaul. At Rabaul there is an anchorage for all ships and a fine jetty has been built. Rabaul is well laid out and has a fine public garden. New Britain and the adjacent islands, including Duke of York Island, have an area of 14,600 square miles.

New Ireland, the second in size and importance of the Bismarck Archipelago, is situated north of New Britain, from which it is separated by St. George's Channel. The chief town is Kavieng (non-indigenous population, 356), at the north-west extremity of the island. The only other town is Namatanai (non-indigenous population, about 148), on the south-east coast. The island has a long range of mountains running through it. It is of older formation than New Britain, and does not show any signs of recent volcanic activity. The principal harbour is Nusa, on the north coast of which Kavieng, the seat of the local administration, is situated. The interior of the island, with the exception of the extreme southern end, is fairly well known. The native population in 1929 was 38,480, including adjacent islands. The soil is fertile and the climate similar to that of New Britain. The chief industry is coconut growing. There are numerous plantations around the coast near Kavieng. New Ireland and adjacent islands, including New Hanover, Tabar, Litui, Tanga, Feni, Mussau and Emirau Groups have an area of 3,800 quare miles.

The Admiralty Islands are the most important of the small groups. The chief island is Manus, sometimes called Great Admiralty Island. The chief town is Lorengau (population, including district, about 40) on the north-east coast. The native population of the group in 1929 was 13,904. Coconuts are the chief article of cultivation, and there are valuable pearl and other shell fisheries.

3. Solomon Islands.—The portion of the Solomon Islands within the area of the territory of New Guinea consists of the Islands of Bougainville Buka, and adjacent islands, including Nuguria, Nissan, Kilinailau, Tanu (Mortlock), and Nukumanu (Tasman) Islands. Bougainville has an area of 3,880 square miles, and a native population (of areas patrolled in 1929) of 28,822, and Buka an area of 190 square miles, and a native population, including adjacent islands, 1929, 7,570. Other smaller islands in this group have a total area of 30 square miles and a native population in 1929 of 2,227. The islands are very mountainous. Of the several volcanic cones, Bagana (in the Crown Prince range) is the only active volcano. The highest mountain is the dormant volcano Mount Balbi (in the Emperor range), 10,170 feet high situated in the centre of the island. The principal harbour is Kieta, situated on the east coast of Bougainville, where there is a Government station. Other good harbours are: Rawa and Tinputz on the north-east coast of Bougainville. There is a good harbour on the west side of Buka, named Carola Hafen. Missionary work amongst the natives is carried on by the Marist Brothers of the Roman Catholic Mission. As the plantations are new there is comparatively little export trade. The natives grow bananas, coconuts, taro, and sweet potatoes. The non-indigenous population is 148.

The following figures relate to the Territory of New Guinea:—

TERRITORY OF WESTERN SAMOA.

The former German Samoan Islands, now the Territory of Western Samoa, include Savaii and Upolu, the largest of the Samoan or Navigators' Islands. Samoa is a group of islands in the Western Pacific, lying in 13½ deg. to 14½ deg. S. lat., and 168 deg. to 173 deg. W. long. The islands are some 130 miles N. of Tonga and between 400 and 500 miles N.E. of Fiji. The group consists of nine islands, in addition to rocks and islets. They are all, with the exception of Rose Island, of volcanic formation, and are, for the most part, surrounded with coral reefs. The four largest islands are Savaii, Upolu, Tutuila and Tau, in the Manu'a Group. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, ratified by the United States in January, 1900, Great Britain renounced all rights over the islands in favour of Germany as regards Savaii, Upolu, Apolima and Manono, and in favour of the United States as regards Tutuila and other islands.

On August 29, 1914, the British occupied German Samoa. By the Treaty of Peace, 1919, Germany surrendered her possessions abroad, and Samoa is assigned under a mandate dated December 17, 1920, from the League of Nations to His Majesty the King in right of his Dominion of New Zealand, which has been empowered to govern Western Samoa. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

The civil administration was inaugurated on May 1, 1920. There is a Legislative Council, consisting of six official members, two elected European unofficial members, and two nominated native members representing the Samoan race. The Administrator is entitled to preside over every meeting of the Council. No person is qualified for appointment to the Legislative Council unless he is either a natural-born British subject or was born in Samoa. There is also a Native Council which advises the Administrator in native affairs.

Savaii has an area of about 700 square miles; Upolu has an area of approximately 430 square miles. Both islands are mountainous, fertile, and well watered. Several adjacent islets were included in the German dependency. The port of Apia is in Upolu. The inhabitants of the islands are Polynesians, professing Christianity (Protestants, Catholics, and Mormons). Population of Western Samoa, as recorded at December 31, 1929, was:—Europeans and half-castes, 2,749; Samoan natives, 40,722; Chinese labourers under contract, 955; other islanders, 145; total, 44,571. There are four Government schools, and also schools conducted by various Missions—the number of scholars recorded being over 11,000. There are 60 miles of good roads. The chief products are copra, cacao, rubber and bananas. The revenue collected in Western Samoa for the year ended March 31, 1930, was 151,416*l.*; the expenditure was 131,280*l.* Imports for 1929, 288,849*l.* (from United Kingdom, 57,650*l.*, New Zealand, 78,794*l.*, Australia, 62,186*l.*, Canada, 13,143*l.*, Fiji, 14,217*l*, U.S.A., 51,285*l.*); exports, 293,938*l.* (to United Kingdom, 1,616*l.*, New Zealand, 28,645*l*, U.S.A., 76,963*l.*, Germany, 8,876*l.*, European ports (exact destination unknown), 172,591*l.*). The exports are mainly copra (12,941 tons, 205,330*l.*), cacao beans (677 tons, 46,286*l.*), and bananas (53,652 cases, 24,640*l.*). In 1928, 83 vessels (103,051 tons, of which 76 vessels of 83,585 tons were British) entered at and cleared from the port of Apia.

There is regular steam communication from New Zealand and Fiji, and the products of the territory are transported to overseas markets by steam and oil vessels which call at Apia every few weeks. A high power wireless station is erected at Apia.

The German currency has been replaced by sterling in the form of Samoan Treasury notes issued under the authority of the New Zealand Government. A branch of the Bank of New Zealand was opened at Apia in April, 1915.

The Minister of External Affairs for New Zealand is in charge of Samoa.

Administrator.—Brigadier-Gen. H. E. Hart (appointed February, 1931).

NAURU ISLAND.

The island lies 26 miles south of the Equator, in longitude 166 degrees east. Area, 5,396 acres. It is an oval shaped atoll of approximately 12 miles in circumference, surrounded by a reef which is exposed at low tide. There is no anchorage adjacent to the island. On the seaward side the reef dips abruptly into the deep waters of the Pacific. On the landward side of the reef there is a sandy beach interspersed with coral pinnacles. From the sandy beach the ground rises gradually, forming a fertile section ranging in width from 200 to 800 yards and completely encircling the island. On the inner side of the fertile section there is a coral cliff which rises to a height of from 40 to 60 feet. Above the cliff there is an extensive plateau bearing phosphate of a high grade, the mining rights of which are vested in the British Phosphate Commission subject to the rights of the native landowners. It is chiefly on the fertile section of land between the sandy beach and the plateau that the natives have established themselves, and from which they obtain the necessary food for themselves and families. With the exception of a small fringe round a shallow lagoon, about one mile inland, the plateau which contains the phosphate deposits, has few food-bearing trees, is not utilized for the purposes of native villages

The island was annexed by Germany in October, 1888, and surrendered to the Australian forces in 1914. It is administered under a mandate, dated December 17, 1920, conferred on the British Empire and approved by the League of Nations. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established. Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand agreed in July, 1919, that Australia should appoint the first Administrator for a term of five years, and thereafter the administrator was to be appointed as the three Governments should decide. The administrator has all the powers of government, administrative, legislative and judicial. The expenses of administration are met out of local revenue.

Population, April 1, 1930: 147 Europeans, 1,411 Nauruans, 16 other Pacific islanders, and 1,110 Chinese; total, 2,684.

Education.—Attendance at school both for European and Native children is compulsory until children reach the age of 16 years; then, until they reach the age of 17 years, the native children are required to attend at specified periods for technical training in the case of boys and home craft training in the case of girls.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of the island have been as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1924	18,199	13,580	1927	17,041	17,242
1925	15,174	15,256	1928	19,903	18,267
1926	16,424	13,963	1929	19,936	17,859

Excess of assets over liabilities as at December 31, 1929, 17,871*l.*

Import duties are imposed on beer, spirits, wines, and tobacco, and a 15% ad valorem duty on practically all other goods except food supplies which are admitted free. The interests in the phosphatic deposits were purchased in 1919 from a German company by the Government of the United Kingdom, the Commonwealth of Australia and New Zealand, at a cost of 3,500,000*l.*, and a Commission was appointed to ensure that the deposits were worked on business lines. The British Phosphate Commission receives exemption from Customs duties for all materials and plant used for the exploitation of phosphates, as well as for provisions required for its employees. An amount at the rate of 6*d.* per ton, in effect an export duty, is charged on phosphate exported. A Capitation Tax of 2*l.* for Europeans, 1*l.* for Chinese, 15*s.* for natives is collected from all physically fit adult males under the age of 60 years. A Royalty of 7½*d.* per ton is paid by the British Phosphate Commission for every ton of phosphate shipped, of which 4*d.* per ton is paid to the native landowner, 1½*d.* per ton is paid to the Administrator to be used solely for the benefit of the Nauruan people, and 2*d.* per ton is held by the Administrator in trust for the benefit of the landowner or his assigns, to whom the interest will be paid after the principal has been invested for a period of 20 years. The British Phosphate Commission also contributes 1,000*l.* per annum towards the cost of the Nauruan Police.

Commerce.—The export trade of the island consists, with the exception of a small quantity of copra, almost entirely of phosphate, shipped to Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and other countries. Phosphate exported (tons); 1926, 274,935; 1927, 318,185; 1928, 318,845: 1929, 326,125; copra exported (tons): 1926, 117; 1927, 263; 1928, 181; 1929, nil.

The imports consist almost entirely of food supplies, and machinery for the British Phosphate Commission, for use in connection with their works. Value of imports: 1926, 104,117*l.*; 1927, 82,649*l.*; 1928, 240,229*l.*;[1] 1929, 101,691*l.*

Shipping.—Practically the whole of the shipping coming to the island consists of steamers under charter to the British Phosphate Commission. Numbers of vessels entered and cleared: in 1926, 64 of 294,448 gross tons; 1927, 75 of 321,126 gross tons; 1928, 73 of 322,551 gross tons; 1929, 64 of 288,393 gross tons.

Communications.—The outstanding feature of Nauru, apart from the phosphate operations, is the Wireless Station, erected by the German Government to link up the island with their other Pacific possessions and Tsingtau. It was opened in December 1913, and though partially dismantled shortly after the outbreak of war, was soon restored, and has been in use ever since, although rapidly becoming more or less obsolete. Constant renewals of parts have been made in recent years.

Administrator.—W. A. Newman (appointed June, 11, 1927).

PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES.

(UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted was adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States, and on September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based on the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, to which ten amendments were added Dec. 15, 1791; an eleventh amendment, Jan. 8, 1798; a twelfth amendment, Sept 25, 1804; a thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865 (slavery abolished); a fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868; a fifteenth amendment, March 30, 1870 (equal rights for white and coloured citizens); a sixteenth amendment, February 25, 1913 (income tax authorised); a seventeenth amendment, May 31, 1913; an eighteenth amendment, January 29, 1919 (liquor prohibition amendment); and a nineteenth amendment, August 26, 1920 (woman suffrage).

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted to three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested in a President, who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with a Vice-President chosen for the same term, in the mode prescribed as follows:—'Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.' The practice is that in every State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, on the system known in France as scrutin de liste. The Constitution enacts that 'the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States'; and further, that 'no person except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.'

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November; the electors meet and, in accordance with an amendment to the Statutes adopted by the 70th Congress, give their votes at their respective State capitals on the first Wednesday in January next following their appointment; and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened and counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice-President is ex-officio President of the Senate; and in the case of the death or resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States.—Herbert Clark Hoover, of California, born in Iowa, 1874; graduated mining engineer, Leland Stanford Jr. University, 1895; engaged in mine developments in America, Australia, and China; Chairman (in London) of the American War Relief Committee, 1914–1915; Administrator of Food Relief for Belgium, 1915–1917; American Food Administrator, 1917–1919; Secretary of Commerce, 1921–1928; Commander of the French Legion of Honour. Present term of office began on March 4, 1929.

Since the adoption of the Constitution the offices of President and Vice-President have been occupied as follows :—

By a law which came into force Jan. 19, 1886, in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State, and after him, in the order of the establishment of their departments, other members of the Cabinet, shall act as President until the disability of the President is removed or a President shall be elected. On the death of a Vice-President the duties of the office shall fall to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who receives the salary of the Vice-President.

The administrative business of the nation is conducted by ten chief officers, or heads of departments, who form what is called the 'Cabinet.' They are chosen by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate. Each of them presides over a separate department, and acts under the immediate authority of the President. They are, in the order prescribed by law for their succession to the Presidency, in case both the President and the Vice-President die or become unable to take office :—

1. Secretary of State.—Henry L. Stimson, of New York, born in New York, 1867 ; graduated Yale University, 1888, and Harvard Law School, 1890 ; U.S. District Attorney, New York City, 1906–1909 ; Secretary of War, 1911–1913 ; Special Commissioner to Nicaragua, 1927 ; Governor-General of Philippine Islands, 1927–1929. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

2. Secretary of the Treasury.—Andrew William Mellon, of Pennsylvania, born in Pennsylvania, 1852 ; educated at the University of Pittsburg ; prominent in the development of coal, coke, and iron industries, and in banking. Appointed by President Harding, March 4, 1921 ; re-appointed, March 4, 1925. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

3. Secretary of War.—Patrick J. Hurley, of Oklahoma, born 1882. Lieut.-Colonel in American Expeditionary Force in France. Delegate to the Republican National Convention, 1924. Present appointment, December 6, 1929.

4. Attorney-General.—William De Witt Mitchell, of Minnesota, born in Minnesota, 1874; graduated University of Minnesota, 1895. Lawyer. Judge Advocate 2nd Army Corps, 1898–1899; Col. 6th Minnesota Regiment, 1918. Solicitor-General of the United States, 1925–1927. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

5. Postmaster-General.—Walter F. Brown, of Ohio, born in Ohio, 1869; graduated Harvard University, 1892. Lawyer; Chairman Republican Committee of Ohio. Assistant Secretary of Commerce, 1927–1929. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

6. Secretary of the Navy.—Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts; born in Massachusetts, 1866; graduated Harvard University, 1888; lawyer and amateur yachtsman. Treasurer of Harvard University, 1899–1929. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

7. Secretary of the Interior.—Ray Lyman Wilbur, of California, born in Iowa, 1875; graduated Leland Stanford University, 1896, and Cooper College of Medicine, 1899. Professor, Leland Stanford University and President since 1916. Chief of Conservation Division, U.S. Food Administration, 1917–1918. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

8. Secretary of Agriculture—Arthur M. Hyde, of Missouri, born in Missouri, 1877; graduated University of Michigan, 1899. Mayor of Princeton, Mo.; Governor of Missouri, 1921–1925. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

9. Secretary of Commerce.—Robert P. Lamont, of Illinois, born in Michigan, 1867; graduated University of Michigan, 1891. Engineer; iron and steel manufacturer. Chief of division, ordnance department, U.S.A., 1917–1918. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

10. Secretary of Labour.—William Nuckles Doak, of Virginia, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Present appointment, November 28, 1930.

Each of the above ministers has an annual salary of 15,000 dollars, and holds office during the pleasure of the President.

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by popular vote for six years. Senators must be not less than thirty years of age; must have been citizens of the United States for nine years; and be residents in the States for which they are chosen. Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two-thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification. The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President; and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment. The judgment in the latter case extends only to removal from office and disqualification. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who, according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote for members of the State legislature. By amendments of the Constitution, disqualification on the ground of race, colour, or sex, is forbidden. Accordingly the electorate consists practically of all citizens of both sexes over 21 years of age. But the franchise is not universal. There are requirements of residence varying in the several States as to length from three months to two years; differing requirements as to registration; in some States the payment of taxes is necessary to qualify for the suffrage; in others the ability to read—in Massachusetts the ability to read English. In some Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read. Some of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from one another—too complicated for explanation here, with the frankly avowed purpose of excluding the negroes from the franchise and yet avoiding the constitutional consequences of discriminating 'on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude.' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters. Women by the 19th amendment to the Federal Constitution, passed in 1920, have the vote and eligibility for both the Federal and the State Legislatures on the same terms as men.

The number of Representatives to which each State is entitled is determined by the decennial census. By the Apportionment Act following the census of 1910 the number of representatives was 433 (one for every 210,415 inhabitants), but in 1912, with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico, it became 435, distributed as follows :—

Alabama	10	Maryland	6	Oregon	3
Arizona	1	Massachusetts	16	Pennsylvania	36
Arkansas	7	Michigan	13	Rhode Island	3
California	11	Minnesota	10	South Carolina	7
Colorado	4	Mississippi	8	South Dakota	3
Connecticut	5	Missouri	16	Tennessee	10
Delaware	1	Montana	2	Texas	18
Florida	4	Nebraska	6	Utah	2
Georgia	12	Nevada	1	Vermont	2
Idaho	2	New Hampshire	2	Virginia	10
Illinois	27	New Jersey	12	Washington	5
Indiana	13	New Mexico	1	West Virginia	6
Iowa	11	New York	43	Wisconsin	11
Kansas	8	North Carolina	10	Wyoming	1
Kentucky	11	North Dakota	3
Louisiana	8	Ohio	22
Maine	4	Oklahoma	8	Total	435

According to the census of 1920, the number of members of Congress should be 460, but no new apportionment has been made by Congress since 1912. The census of 1930, while leaving the total membership at 435, would alter the present representation of 36 out of the 48 States; it must, however, be ratified by Congress before becoming effective.

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty-five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen. In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits a 'delegate' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote. The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives.

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the 'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members'; and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution, by the 5th article of the same. The article orders that the Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 10,000 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses. The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum.

No senator or representative can, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States can be a member of either House during his continuance in office. No religious test is required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, or in any State.

The period usually termed 'a Congress' in legislative language continues for two years; as, for example, from noon, March 4, 1931, until noon, March 4, 1933, at which latter time the term of the representatives to the 72nd Congress will expire, and the term of the new House of Representatives will begin. The term of one-third of the Senators expires at the same time.

The 72nd Congress (1931–33), elected November, 1930, is constituted as follows: Senate, 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats, 1 Farmer Labour; House of Representatives, 217 Republicans, 216 Democrats, 1 Farmer Labour, 1 vacant.

The National Government has authority in matters of general taxation, treaties and other dealings with foreign powers, army, navy, and (to a certain extent) militia, commerce, foreign and inter-State, postal service, coinage, weights and measures, and the trial and punishment of crime against the United States.

Slavery was abolished throughout the whole of the United States by the thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, passed December 18, 1865. The vast change in the political and social organisation of the Republic made by this new fundamental law was completed by the fourteenth and fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, passed in 1868 and 1870, which gave to the former slaves all the rights and privileges of citizenship.

State and Local Government.

The Union comprises 13 original States, 7 States which were admitted without having been previously organised as Territories, and 28 States which had been Territories—48 States in all. Each State has its own constitution, which must be republican in form, and each constitution derives its authority, not from Congress, but from the people of the State. Admission of States into the Union is granted by special Acts of Congress, either (1) in the form of 'enabling Acts,' providing for the drafting and ratification of a State constitution by the people, in which case the Territory becomes a State as soon as the conditions are fulfilled, or (2) accepting a constitution already framed, and at once granting admission.

Each State is provided with a Legislature of two Houses, a Governor, and other executive officials, and a judicial system. Both Houses of the Legislature are elective, but the Senators (having larger electoral districts) are less numerous than the members of the House of Representatives, while in some States their terms are longer and, in a few, the Senate is only partially renewed at each election. Members of both Houses are paid at the same rate, which varies from 150 to 1,500 dollars per session, or from 1 to 8 dollars per day during session. The duties of the two Houses are similar, but in many States money bills must be introduced first in the House of Representatives. The Senate has to sit as a court for the trial of officials impeached by the other House, and, besides, has often the power to confirm or reject appointments made by the Governor. In most of the States the sessions are biennial, the Governor having power to summon an extraordinary session, but not to dissolve or adjourn. State Legislatures are competent to deal with all matters not reserved for the Federal Government by the Federal constitution, or falling within restrictions imposed by the State constitutions. Among their powers are the determination of the qualifications for the right of suffrage, and the control of all elections to public office, including elections of members of Congress and electors of President and Vice-President; the criminal law, both in its enactment and in its execution, with unimportant exceptions, and the administration of prisons; the civil law, including all matters pertaining to the possession and transfer of, and succession to, property; marriage and divorce, and all other civil relations; the chartering and control of all manufacturing, trading, transportation, and other corporations, subject only to the right of Congress to regulate commerce passing from one State to another; the regulation of labour; education; charities; licensing; fisheries within State waters, and game laws. The revenues of the States are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some cases both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only. The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained originally in the national constitution, left this source of revenue to the States exclusively until 1913, when an amendment was adopted authorising the imposition of an income tax by Congress.

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people over the whole State. His term of office varies in the several States from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 3,000 to 18,000 dollars. His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State. His power of appointment to State offices is usually unimportant. He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature. In some States he presents estimates. In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two Houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three-fifths or two-thirds majority.

The chief officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.) are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office.

In the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress. The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the President to whom he makes an annual report. The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges. Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self-governing. Its government is organised on a system almost identical with that of the territories. The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and elected Upper and Lower Legislative Chambers.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791. It is co-extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 62 square miles. The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal concerns. By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President.

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary, and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (selectmen, clerk, school-committee, &c.). Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government. Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes. In the South the counties are themselves the units, though subdivided for educational or other special purposes. Their officials have in general additional functions, as the care of the poor and the superintendence of schools. In the Middle and North-Western States the two systems of local government are mixed. In the West all the public land is already divided into townships six miles square.

[1] Enumeration in 1870 incomplete. Figures in italics represent estimated corrected population.

Total population in 1920 comprised 53,900,431 males, and 51,810,189 females; 54,304,603, or 51·4 per cent., were urban, and 51,406,017, or 48·6 per cent., rural. In 1930, 68,955,521, or 56·2 per cent., were urban.

In the following table of population statistics for 1930 and 1920, the dates indicate the year in which the constitution was ratified by each of the original thirteen States, the year of the admission of each of the other States into the Union, and the years of organisation of Territories:—

For occupational census, 1920, and for country of birth of the foreign-born white population in 1920 census, see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1928, p. 441.

The total area of Indian reservations in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, was on June 30, 1929, 50,023 square miles (in 1900, 121,665 square miles), with an Indian population of 345,575 (in 1900, 270,544).

II. Movement of Population.

The registration area for births was established in 1915, and the birth rates are computed from returns for certain areas for which the registration of births is accepted by the Bureau of the Census as approximately complete. In 1929 these areas included Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, District of Columbia. Virgin Islands. The estimated population of this area (exclusive of the Virgin Islands), was 115,097,972, or 94·7 per cent. of the total estimated population of the Continental United States, and the number of births (exclusive of still-births) returned was 2,169,920, or 18·9 per 1,000 population.

Death rates are computed from returns for States and cities which were admitted to the registration area for deaths on the basis of approximately complete registration. In 1929 these areas included Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, District of Columbia, Territory of Hawaii, Virgin Islands, and 29 cities in non-registration States. The estimated population for the registration area (exclusive of Hawaii and the Virgin Islands) was 116,317,515 or 95·7 per cent. of the total estimated population of Continental United States; and the number of deaths returned from this area was 1,386,363, corresponding to a death rate of 11·9 per 1,000 population

The number of marriages in 1929 was 1,232,559 against 1,182,497 in 1928. There were 201,475 divorces, against 195,939 in 1928.

Total number of immigrants admitted in year ending June 30, 1929, was 279,678 against 307,255 in 1928.

The total number of alien immigrants from 1820 to 1929 (June 30) arriving for permanent residence was 37,520,312. In the following statement, immigrants from Canada and Mexico are included in the total :—

Year ending June 30	British Isles	Germany	Sweden, Norway, and Denmark	Austria and Hungary	Italy	Russia and Finland	France	Total Immigrants

[1] Including Irish Free State.

Of the total number in 1929, 142,132 were males, and 137,546 were females.

Total alien arrivals in 1929 (June 30) was 479,327; total alien departures, 252,498, leaving surplus of 226,829.

The total number of immigrants from China between 1820 and 1929 was 375,656; the total number from Japan, from 1861, the earliest year of record, was 274,806. In 1927, the number of Chinese admitted, from all countries, was 1,051; in 1928, 931; and in 1929, 1,071. In 1927 there were 660 Japanese admitted; in 1928, 522; and in 1929, 716. Of recent years, departures have far exceeded arrivals.

Education

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law, comprising elementary schools, junior high schools and high schools, with courses covering from 11 to 13 years. The work of these is supplemented by private and parochial schools. In 1880 the percentage of illiterates in the population above ten years of age was 17 per cent., in 1890 13·3 per cent., in 1900 10·7 per cent., in 1910 7·7 per cent., in 1920 6 per cent. The following statistics are for 1920.

—	Total Population 1920	Per cent. of total population	Population 10 years of age and over

Since 1803, the United States Government, upon the organization of all new States has set aside from the public domain for the benefit of the public schools therein from one to four 'sections' (square miles) of land in each township of six miles square. The proceeds of the sale of this land make the principal part of the permanent school funds of such States. The income of permanent school funds and unsold school lands constitutes about 1·3 per cent. of the revenue receipts of the schools of the country. Taxation and appropriations yield about 94·2 per cent. of total revenue receipts, and other sources yield about 4·5 per cent. In 1926 the amount expended on public schools of elementary and secondary grades was 2,184,336,638 dollars. In 1928 the 1,076 universities, colleges, and professional schools had an income of 496,529,309 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations, and from all other sources.

In 1930 there were in the United States 2,299 daily newspapers, 65 tri-weeklies, 12,825 weeklies, 487 semi-weeklies, 3,804 monthlies, 285 semi-monthlies, and 959 other periodicals; total, 20,724. The total number of periodicals was in 1920, 21,012; in 1900, 20,806; and in 1870, 5,871.

Justice and Crime.

The judicial system, like the executive and legislative systems, is dual. The Federal or National Government maintains courts for the trial of crimes against the United States and of civil suits which are brought by the Government or its officers, or which arise under the Constitution, treaties and laws of the United States. These laws relate to such subjects, among others, as Admiralty, Patents, Taxation, Banking and Bankruptcy. The Federal Courts also have jurisdiction of cases between citizens of the different States and between citizens of a State and foreign States, citizens or subjects. In this class of cases, as well as in cases arising under the Constitution, treaties and laws of the United States, the amount in controversy must exceed 3,000 dollars, besides interest and costs. The State Courts have jurisdiction over all civil and criminal cases arising under State laws; the decisions of the Courts of last resort of the States as to the validity of treaties or of laws of the United States, or on various questions arising under the Constitution, are subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States. The State Courts also have jurisdiction of proceedings in probate and divorce.

In the separate States the lowest courts are usually those of Justices of the Peace, but in many towns and cities of fairly substantial population there are inferior courts called by various names and presided over by Magistrates with power to commit for trial in criminal matters and to hear and determine misdemeanours for violation of the municipal ordinances. The inferior courts frequently have jurisdiction to try civil cases involving usually not more than 300 dollars, and also to hear, determine and sentence for certain petty offences which are not heinous.

The highest court in each State is usually called the Supreme or Appellate Court with a Chief Justice and Associate Justices and, in some States, commissioners who hear and determine cases under assignment of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices. The Chief Justice and Associate Justices are usually elected by the people, but sometimes are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate or other advisory body; they usually hold office for a term of years, but in some instances for life or during good behaviour. Their salaries range from 5,000 to 22,500 dollars.

The Judges of the Courts of the United States, which include the District Courts, the Court of Claims, the United States Customs Court, the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals, the Circuit Courts of Appeals, and the Supreme Court of the United States, hold office during good behaviour. They may, however, retire with full pay at the age of 70 years, if they so desire, and if they have served a period of ten years.

The United States District Courts are the lowest of the Federal Courts, being the courts of original jurisdiction. There are 88 of these, each State and territory forming one or more districts. These Courts appoint Commissioners, who have the power of Examining Magistrates, but may not finally adjudge and determine, except in the Territory of Alaska, where they have jurisdiction equivalent to that of the Justices of the Peace and Probate Courts of the counties of the States. The United States District Courts try all criminal cases arising under the laws of the United States, as indicated above, including capital offences.

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice and 8 Associate Justices, appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The United States is divided into 10 circuits, to each of which the Chief Justice or an Associate Justice is assigned. In each circuit there is a Circuit Court of Appeals. Cases from inferior courts are taken to the Circuit Courts of Appeals by appeal or to the Supreme Court either on appeal or writ of certiorari. That Court has also original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign Ministers and those between the different States. The salary of the Chief Justice is 20,500 dollars, and that of each of the Associate Justices, 20,000 dollars.

The Court of Claims has jurisdiction of suits based on claims against the Government founded on the Constitution and laws of the United States or arising out of contracts entered into with the Government and not sounding in tort. The United States Customs Court (formerly the Board of General Appraisers) has jurisdiction in customs cases. The Court of Customs and Patent Appeals passes upon appeals from decisions of the United States Customs Court involving questions as to the classification of merchandise under tariff Acts and the rates of duty to which various articles are liable, as well as appeals from decisions of the Patent Office.

The District of Columbia, in which the seat of the National Government is located, has a Juvenile Court, a Municipal Court, a Police Court, a Supreme Court with a general jurisdiction which includes that of a United States District Court, and a Court of Appeals.

Most of the more important territorial and insular possessions of the United States, except the Philippines, have two systems of Courts, one corresponding to the Courts of the States to adjudicate cases arising under laws enacted by the territorial or insular legislatures, and the other, the United States Courts, to pass on cases involving Federal Law. The Philippine Islands have no Federal District Court.

Finance.

The following table gives what the Treasury terms 'Ordinary receipts and expenditures.' 'Ordinary receipts' include receipts from customs, internal revenue, direct tax, public lands, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include receipts from loans, premiums, or Treasury notes, or revenues of Post-Office Department. 'Ordinary expenses' include disbursements for War, Navy, Indians, pensions, payments for interest, and 'Miscellanous,' but do not include payments for premiums, principal of public debt, or disbursements for postal service paid from revenues thereof.

On June 10, 1921, the President approved an Act to provide a National Budget System and an independent Audit of Government Accounts. This provided for an annual budget system for the first time in the history of the United States.

The gross debt on June 30, 1930, was made up as follows :—Debt bearing no interest, 231,700,579 dollars ; matured debt on which interest has ceased, 31,715,370 dollars ; and interest-bearing debt (between 2 and 4¼ per cent.), 15,921,892,350 dollars. The net debt, including matured interest obligations, etc.—that is, what remains after deducting the cash in the Treasury from the gross debt plus matured interest obligations, etc., was 15,985,382,829 dollars.

State Finance.

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property, real and personal ; and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district.

For details see the separate States.

Defence.

I. Army.

The Army of the United States, as authorised under the Act of Congress of June 4, 1920, consists of the Regular Army, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, and the Organised Reserves, including the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Original or first enlistments in the Regular Army are for one or three years at the option of the soldier, but all re-enlistments are for three-year periods. Enlisted men are classified in seven grades. The pay of the lowest grade, or private, is 21 dollars per month (about 4 shillings a day at normal exchange rates), and that of the highest grade, or master sergeant, is 126 dollars per month. In addition enlisted men receive an increase of 5 per cent. of their base pay for each 4 years of service in the army, the total increase not to exceed 25 per cent. Certain enlisted men also receive additional pay as specialists, the maximum addition under this head being 30 dollars per month.

The strength of the Regular Army, as authorised by Congress for the year 1930, was 12,322 officers and 118,750 enlisted men exclusive of Philippine Scouts for whom the appropriations allow of 6,445. The authorised number of warrant officers is 1,089.

The actual strength at the end of June, 1930, was 137,645 all ranks.

The war organisation and establishments of the Regular Army on mobilisation are as follows:—

Army Corps . .	87,196	Infantry Brigade .	6,116
Infantry Division .	21,133	Artillery Brigade .	5,340
Cavalry Division .	9,762

For plans of mobilisation, war and demobilisation the United States is divided into 3 Army areas, which for administration and training are subdivided into 9 Corps areas.

At the end of June, 1930, the United States Army troops stationed abroad were as follows:—

Philippines . . .	11,232	Alaska . . .	315
Hawaii . . .	15,155	Nicaragua . . .	280 [1]
Panama . . .	9,302	Miscellaneous .	1,544 [2]

[1] Includes batteries, troops, sections, and similar separate units, and hospitals.
[2] Includes units which are partially inactive.

The Officers' Reserve Corps consists of officers of all grades, including general officers, organised into sections corresponding to the various branches of the Regular Army. In the higher grades it is at present composed principally of men who served as officers during the World War, and on June 30, 1930, had a strength of 113,523. These officers may be called for training not exceeding 15 days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period, provided that the appropriations for the purpose are not exceeded.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps, maintained for the purpose of keeping up the strength of the Officers' Reserve Corps, is organised into units at civil educational establishments. It is divided into a Senior Division, formed mainly at the universities, and a Junior Division, formed mainly at the secondary schools. On June 30, 1930, 114,364 students were enrolled in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, of whom 73,030 were enrolled in senior units and 41,334 in junior units. Students of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps before being commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps must complete the four years' military training prescribed, which includes one summer training camp of a period of six weeks each.

The Enlisted Reserve Corps consists of men voluntarily enlisted therein who have qualifications making them eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army. On June 30, 1930, the Enlisted Reserve Corps had a strength of 4,721. Provided the appropriations for the purpose are not exceeded, enlisted reservists may be called up for training not exceeding fifteen days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period.

The National Guard, or organised militia, is maintained by the several States and Territories (including the District of Columbia, the Hawaian Islands and Porto Rico) with the aid of grants from the Federal Government. It is organised into the same arms of the service as the Regular Army, and is supplied by the Federal Government with uniforms, arms, and equipment of the same type as issued to the Regular Army. Service in the National Guard is purely voluntary. When Congress shall have authorised the use of the armed land forces of the United States for any purpose requiring the use of troops in excess of those of the Regular Army, the President may draft into the military service of the United States any or all members of the National Guard, to serve for the period of the war or emergency. In certain emergencies the President may also call forth the National Guard, for service within the continental limits of the United States, without reference to Congress. The strength of the National Guard as authorised by law in enlisted men is 800 men for each Senator and Representative in Congress with such strength as the President may decide for the District of Columbia, the Territories of Porto Rico and Hawaii, Alaska and the Canal Zone. The maximum strength of the National Guard for the present as fixed by the Secretary of War is 190,000 officers, warrant officers, and enlisted men. The actual strength on June 30, 1930, was 12,732 officers, 198 warrant officers, and 169,785 enlisted men. Enlistment is for three years, with re-enlistments for one year or three years. Minimum training required includes 48 drill periods yearly, each of not less than one and one-half hours' duration, in addition to fifteen days' training in encampments or manœuvres. Pay is provided for the 15 days' training in encampments at the same rate as for the Regular Army, while each drill period is considered approximately equal to a day's service for pay purposes.

Citizens' military training camps are operated during the summer months, at which thousands of young men acquire military training each year, without cost to themselves. Four courses are provided, the highest of which has as its object the training of non-commissioned officers and specialists of the Regular Army, National Guard, and Organised Reserves with a view to qualifying them for service as officers in the Officers' Reserve Corps. Civilians attending the highest course must have had prior military training equal to that obtainable in the three lower courses.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of both the Army and the Navy. The Secretary of War controls the Army with the aid of two Assistant Secretaries and a Chief of Staff. The former have supervision of the procurement of all military supplies, and are charged with the mobilisation of industrial establishments for wartime needs, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the Army.

Although the infantry during the war were chiefly armed with a modified Enfield rifle, the Springfield rifle, of American design, remains the standard small arm. The approved calibres of mobile artillery are as follows:—

for the light	. .	75 mm. gun and 105 mm. howitzer for the medium	. .	4·7 inch gun and 155 mm. howitzer for the heavy	. .	155 mm. gun and 8 inch howitzer.

The 155 mm. howitzer is now issued in lieu of the 105 mm. howitzer for the light mobile artillery, pending the development and production of a satisfactory 105 mm. howitzer. The most powerful mobile gun is a 14-inch gun on railway carriage. The most powerful gun is a 16-inch gun on barbette carriage.

In the Budget for 1930–31, 339,906,459 dollars were voted for the army including 36,910,058 dollars for the air corps.

II. Navy.

As provided under the terms of the Washington Treaty of August 17, 1923, and the London Treaty of October 29, 1930, the United States will have 15 capital ships. The replacement tonnage allowed for capital ships is the same as for the British Navy, viz. 525,000 tons. As authorised by Congress, the Navy Department has completed important alterations to the seven oldest battleships, and has requested funds from Congress for modernising three more. These alterations consist of, first, the installation of additional protection against submarine attack; second, the installation of anti-aircraft deck protection; third, the substitution of tripod masts for the cage type; and various other improvements of less importance. Increased angle of elevation has been given to the last four battleships modernised, and is proposed for the five next in age. No increase in elevation has been made in the case of the three oldest battleships of the 15 retained on the effective list. Eight 10,000-ton cruisers have been completed, and seven more are in process of construction. An aircraft carrier of 13,800 tons is in progress, the cost of which will approach 20,000,000 dollars.

The Air Service is an integral part of the Fleet. For the fiscal year 1930–31 a sum of 32,033,211 dollars is devoted to it. This sum is exclusive of personnel and certain establishment charges. In addition, authority was given to enter into certain contracts which will involve the expenditure of 10,000,000 dollars in future years.

The gross naval expenditures have recently been as follows: 1928–29, 364,233,362 dollars; 1929–30, 366,060,389 dollars. For the fiscal year 1930–31, the naval appropriation, including deficiency bills, is 382,505,193 dollars, which provides for continuing the construction of seven cruisers (Nos. 32–38), one aircraft carrier, and three submarines. For the fiscal year 1931–32, the naval estimate presented to Congress is for 349,628,298 dollars. Three additional cruisers are authorized by Congress, but no funds appropriated; their building is restricted as to date of commencement by Art. 18 of the London Treaty.

The total number of enlisted men, according to the current appropriation, was 84,500. Naval officers number 8,985. The Marine Corps, which is largely employed as an expeditionary force, consists of 1,208 officers and 18,172 men.

The American Navy is administered by the Secretary of the Navy, as the head of the executive department, known as the Department of the Navy. The Secretary has an Advisory Council, the most important Naval member of which is the Chief of Operations, who is charged by law with the operations of the Fleet and with the preparations and readiness of plans for its use in war. The other members of the Council are the 2 Assistant Secretaries (one for Aviation) of the Navy; the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, handling principally the officer and enlisted personnel of the Navy and the Chiefs of the following bureaux: Construction and Repair; Engineering; Aeronautics (constituted 1921–22); Supplies and Accounts; Yards and Docks; Ordnance; and Medicine and Surgery; also the Commandant of the Marine Corps and the Judge Advocate-General. The Chief of Operations is also President of the Naval General Board, which is an advisory body of senior officers, and is consulted on important questions of policy, including the number, types and characteristics of ships that should constitute the Fleet.

The Government navy yards are at Portsmouth, N.H.; Boston, Mass.; Brooklyn, N.Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D.C.; Norfolk, Va.; Charleston, S.C.; Mare Island, Cal.; Puget Sound, Wash.; and Pearl Harbour, Hawaii, all of which yards are equipped for certain types of new construction as well as for handling repairs to units of the fleet. In addition there are naval stations at Newport, R.I.; New London, Conn.; Key West, Fla.; Pensacola, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; San Diego, Cal.; Guantanamo, Cuba; Tutuila, Samoa; Cavite, P.I.; Guam; St. Thomas, W.I.; Balboa, C.Z. The naval training stations are at Hampton Roads, Va.; San Diego, Cal.; Newport, R.I.; and Great Lakes, Ill. A 20-year development programme for navy yards and naval bases has been approved by the Secretary, but no considerable appropriations have been granted to further the programme.

The Atlantic and Pacific Fleets have been united in a single command as the 'United States Fleet.'

The following is a classified statement of the strength of the United States Navy on October 31, 1929 and 1930, based on data furnished by the U.S. Navy Department:—

Other vessels of the United States navy may be summarised. There are 4 mine-layers; 6 modern and 2 old river gunboats; about 26 small 'eagle' patrol vessels, and 26 submarine-chaser patrol vessels; 8 old gunboats and yachts rated as patrol vessels; 8 tenders for destroyers, 2 for aircraft, and 7 for submarines; 3 repair ships; 4 colliers and 19 oilers; and a large number of miscellaneous auxiliaries, mine-sweepers and tugs.

The first-line submarine flotilla includes 49 of the S class, 800–993 tons (5 of which have been ear-marked for early disposal), 6 fleet submarines built, 1 building and 2 authorised and appropriated for, but not yet begun—a total of 55 completed units.

Production and Industry.

I. Agriculture.

Public lands, unappropriated and unreserved, as reported by the United States General Land Office, on July 1, 1929, totalled 189,854,407 acres. They were situated in the following States:

States	Acres	States	Acres	States	Acres
Arizona	16,911,367	Minnesota	197,996	Oregon	18,227,141
Arkansas	205,933	Montana	6,900,144	South Dakota	402,670

In 1925 there were 6,371,640 farms, of which 3,868,332 were operated by owners, 40,700 by managers, and 2,462,608 by tenants.

The farm population on January 1, 1929, was estimated at 27,511,000, a decrease of 188,000 over January 1, 1928, while the latter was a decrease of 154,000 over that of 1927.

The estimated gross value at farm of all crops was, in 1928, 9,806,442,000 dollars; in 1929, 8,675,420,000 dollars; and in 1930, 6,274,824,000 dollars. Of animals and products, gross value in 1927 was 5,979,781,000 dollars; in 1928, 6,205,420,000 dollars; in 1929, 6,426,014,000 dollars.

The areas and produce of the principal cereal crops for three years are shown in the subjoined tables.

Production of hay, both tame and wild, in 1930, was 94,767,000 tons from 72,609,000 acres; value, 1,135,294,000 dollars. Tame hay grown in 1930 from 58,473,000 acres weighed 82,656,000 tons, and was valued at 1,048,205,000 dollars; wild hay grown in 1930 from 14,136,000 acres weighed 12,111,000 tons, and was valued at 87,089,000 dollars.

The output of cane sugar in 1927–28 amounted to 141,587,137 pounds; for 1928–29, 264,106,804 pounds; and for 1929–30, 400,000,000 pounds. All these figures are for Louisiana only. The beet sugar production in 1927–28 amounted to 2,186,000,000 pounds; 1928–29, 2,122,000,000 pounds; and in 1929–30, 2,036,000,000 pounds

Cotton acreage and production (excluding 'linters'), for the last six years were:—

Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)	Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)
1925	46,053,000	16,103,679	1928	45,326,000	14 477,874

1927	40,138,000	12,956,043	1930	45,218,000	14,243,000

The cotton production in 1930 was grown in the following States (in bales, 500 lbs. gross): Texas, 4,100,000; Mississippi, 1,500,000; Alabama, 1,495,000; Georgia, 1,625,000; Oklahoma, 900,000; Arkansas, 910,000; North Carolina, 795,000; South Carolina, 1,040,000; Louisiana, 710,000; Tennessee, 400,000; Missouri, 100,000; Arizona, 160,000; California, 250 000; Virginia, 42,000; Florida, 50,000; all other, 106,000.

In 1930 there were under tobacco 2,110,000 acres (2,040,300 acres in 1929), which yielded 1,510,308,000 lbs. of tobacco (1,524,677,000 lbs. in 1929). The chief tobacco-growing States (1930) were North Carolina, 779,000 acres, yielding 535,195,000 lbs.; Kentucky, 507,500 acres, yielding 311,609,000 lbs.; Virginia, 174,000 acres, yielding 88,200,000 lbs.; South Carolina, 129,000 acres, yielding 94,170,000 lbs.; Tennessee, 151,800 acres, yielding 120,903,000 lbs.; Georgia, 127,000 acres, yielding 104,994,000 lbs.; Pennsylvania, 39,500 acres, yielding 38,118,000 lbs.; Wisconsin, 43,000 acres, yielding 52,900,000 lbs.; Connecticut, 23,400 acres, yielding 32,105,000 lbs.; Maryland, 34,000 acres, yielding 18,190,000 lbs.; Ohio, 48,800 acres, yielding 46,376,000 lbs.; Massachusetts, 8,100 acres, yielding 11,397,000 lbs.; Florida, 12,300 acres, yielding 11,008,000 lbs.; Indiana, 16,400 acres, yielding 11,382,000 lbs.; West Virginia, 7,200 acres, yielding 4,896,000 lbs.; Missouri, 5,200 acres, yielding 4,680,000 lbs.; New York, 800 acres, yielding 760,000 lbs.; Louisiana, 1,000 acres, yielding 460,000 lbs.

The following table exhibits the number of farm animals in 1910 (April 15), 1920 (January 1), 1927 and 1930 (January 1).

Total value of all farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1929, was 6,003,598,000 dollars; on January 1, 1930, 5,864,969,000 dollars.

In 1929, 1,597,027,000 lbs. of butter, 483,933,000 lbs. of cheese, and 2,206,648,000 lbs. of condensed and evaporated milk were produced.

In 1927 the estimated production of wool was 332,014,000 pounds; in 1928, 355,615,000 pounds; and in 1929, 363,447,000 pounds.

The census reports for 1927 show that the value of canned vegetables was 234,259,659 dollars; of canned fruits, 101,730,609 dollars; of dried fruits, 64,167,036 dollars. The total value of canned fruit and vegetable products, in 1927, was 553,925,051 dollars.

II. Forests and Forestry.

The United States forests cover 469,500,000 acres, or about one-fifth of the whole country. The classification is as follows:—Virgin timber, 138,100,000 acres; second growth of saw timber size, 113,800,000 acres; second growth of cordwood size or smaller, 136,400,000 acres; non-producing and idle land, 81,200,000 acres. Ownership of forest land is distributed as follows: Federal Government, 89,100,000 acres; States, 10,500,000 acres; local bodies, 700,000 acres; large private owners, 182,200,000 acres; small owners, 187,000,000 acres.

The net area of the 149 national forests administered by the U.S. Forest Service was on July 1, 1930, 160,090,817 acres.

The receipts from the National Forests for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, was 6,299,801 dollars.

It is estimated that 1,080,000,000 cubic feet of timber is destroyed annually by fire in the forests of the United States, while 1,300,000,000 cubic feet is destroyed by insects, disease, and windfall.

III. Mining.

The following are the statistics of the metallic products of the United States in 1928 and 1929 (long tons, 2,240 lbs.; short tons, 2,000 lbs.). The values are: For iron, at point of production; for nickel and platinum, the values at New York City; for copper, lead and zinc, the values are those of sales; for quicksilver, the value at New York.

[1] Of 42 gallons. [2] Of 376 lbs. net. [3] Not included in total value.

The approximate total value of the mineral products in 1927 was 5,530,000,000 dollars; in 1928, 5,384,900,000 dollars; and in 1929, 5,830,000,000 dollars.

Oil production in 1929 included 1,007,323,000 barrels of crude petroleum (901,474,000 barrels in 1928), 52,271,000 barrels of natural gasolene (42,826,000 barrels in 1928), and 3,055,000 barrels of benzol (2,809,000 barrels in 1928). Total value at wells of crude petroleum was 1,280,417,000 dollars; average price, 1·27 dollars. Number of new oil wells, 1929, was 15,572 (12,526 in 1928); number of old wells abandoned, 15,172; number of producing wells, December 31, 1929, 328,200, a gain of 400 over 1928.

Refinery consumption in 1929 totalled 987,708,000 barrels, of which 912,191,000 barrels were domestic crude, and 75,517,000 barrels were foreign crude petroleum. Production of motor fuel in 1929 was 18,454,506,000 gallons or 439,393,000 barrels. Output of natural gas, 1929, was 1,917,693 M cubic feet; domestic consumption, 1,917,451 M cubic feet, of which 81 per cent. was for industrial purposes.

The precious metals in 1929 were mined mainly in California, Alaska, South Dakota, Utah and Colorado for gold, and Utah, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada, and Colorado for silver. The production of gold and silver in the United States from 1792 to 1929 was as follows:—

Year	Gold		Silver
	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value
	Ozs. troy	Dollars	Ozs troy	Dollars
1792-1847 . . .	1,186,977	24,537,000	309,500	404,500

Precious stones are found in considerable varieties in the United States, including sapphires (in Montana), turquoise, tourmaline, garnets, beryl, agates, amethyst, ruby, topaz, &c.

IV. Manufactures.

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1904 to 1929. The censuses of 1921 and later years cover establishments with products valued at 5,000 dollars or more, whereas at prior censuses the corresponding limit was 500 dollars. The change affects very slightly the totals as establishments of this class in 1921 (53,999) while representing 21·6 per cent. of the total number of establishments, only reported six-tenths of one per cent. of the total number of wage earners and three-tenths of one per cent. of the total value of products.

[1] Including supplies (except for 1929, in which cost of mill or shop supplies is excluded), containers for products, fuel, and power.

[2] Less cost of materials, containers for products, fuel, and purchased electric power.

[3] Data for establishments engaged in automobile repairing for 1914 to 1919, and for poultry killing and dressing for 1914 to 1925 have been omitted, as no data have been collected for these industries at subsequent dates.

[4] Figures for 1925 exclude establishments for coffee roasting and spice grinding included other years.

[5] Not yet available.

For comparison of broad types of manufacturing, the industries covered by the census of manufactures have been divided into 16 general groups. The following table presents statistics for these groups :—

[1] Including supplies, containers for products, fuel, and power.

[2] Includes data for the coffee and spice roasting and grinding industry for 1927, but not for 1925 ; excludes data for the poultry killing and dressing industry.

NOTE.—Due to changes in the classification of a number of industries, figures for a majority of the groups for 1925 differ from those previously published.

The following table shows the relative importance of industries with products valued at 1,000,000,000 dollars or over in 1929 :—

Industry	Number of establishments	Wage earners, average number	Wages	Cost of materials, supplies, fuel, and power	Value of products

[1] Embraces the manufacture of products of boiler shops, foundries, and machine shops exclusive of products of establishments specialising in specific classes of products such as locomotives, stoves and furnaces, cast-iron pipe, engines and power pumps, machine tools and textile machinery, which are placed in other classifications.

[2] Does not include millinery, gloves, footwear, knit underwear, and corsets.

[3] Embraces logging camps, cooperage-stock mills, veneer mills, merchant saw-mills, and planing mills operated in conjunction with saw-mills.

In certain textile industries the average number of active spindles and looms in the years 1924 to 1929, was as follows : [1]

Year	Spindles in operation			Wool looms in operation
	Cotton	Woollen	Worsted	Wide	Narrow	Carpet and Rugs
1924	31,136,000	1,832,715	1,807,810	42,310	13,258	7,037

[1] Based on monthly returns from about 97 per cent. of the manufacturers.

The value of the output of certain textile industries in 1925 and 1927 was :—

Nature of products	1925	1927
	Dollars	Dollars
Carpets and rugs, wool, except rag	187,779,000	166,888,000 [1]
Cotton manufactures	1,819,886,000	1,659,519,000

Silk goods	808,979,000	750,124,000
Woollen and worsted goods	957,790,000	817,978,000

[1] 1929: carpets and rugs, 186,840,756 dollars.

Output of motor vehicles in 1929 comprised 4,795,000 passenger vehicles valued at 2,981,142,000 dollars, and 827,000 motor trucks valued at 595,504,000 dollars. Total output, exclusive of motor cycles and trailers, was valued at 3,576,646,000 dollars. Automotive products exported in 1930 were valued at 298,814,508 dollars; in 1929, 563,854,995 dollars.

The development of the iron and steel industries since 1922 is shown by the following figures, supplied by the American Iron and Steel Institute:—

The production of tin plates and terne plates was in 1920, 1,445,545 gross tons; in 1926, 1,782,306 gross tons; in 1927, 1,688,449 gross tons; in 1928, 1,839,205 gross tons; and in 1929, 1,968,280 gross tons.

According to the Bureau of the Census, in 1927 there were 292 blast furnaces in active plants with a daily capacity of 142,016 tons; and in 1925, 310 (in active establishments), with a daily capacity of 136,086 tons. In 1925 the output of pig-iron was 36,495,562 gross tons, value 744,733,899 dollars; and in 1927, 36,230,420 tons, value 688,641,808 dollars. Active Bessemer, or modified Bessemer steel plants in 1927 had 95 converters; and in 1925, 102; with total daily capacity (24 hours) of 48,667 gross tons of ingots or direct steel castings, in 1927; and 55,289 tons in 1925. Active open-hearth steel plants in 1927 had 1,150 basic and acid furnaces; and in 1925, 1,141; daily capacity (24 hours) of steel, in 1927, 159,908 gross tons; and in 1925, 151,894 tons. The crucible steel furnaces in active steel plants in 1927 were 55 of 296 gross tons daily capacity (24 hours); and in 1925, 70 of 390 tons; and the electric steel furnaces numbered 219 of 5,357 tons in 1927, and 178 of 4,461 tons in 1925.

The total value of products of the steel works and rolling mills in 1929 was 3,350,574,340 dollars, compared with 2,776,389,255 dollars in 1927, and in 1925, 2,946,068,000 dollars. The values of the principal products, excluding the values of amounts consumed in the same works, were for 1925 and 1927 as follows:—

Products	1925	1927
	Dollars	Dollars
Direct steel castings	144,415,000	145,085,000

In the United States the values are fixed not according to average prices, but according to invoices or shipping papers, which the importers and exporters have to produce. For imports the invoices are signed by an American Consul; for exports the shipping papers are signed by the exporter or agents at the port of shipment. The quantities and values are determined by declarations.

The 'most favoured nation' treatment in commerce between Great Britain and the United States was agreed to for 4 years by the treaty of 1815, was extended for 10 years by the treaty of 1818, and indefinitely (subject to 12 months' notice) by that of 1827.

Internal Communications.

On January 1, 1930, the road mileage, including State Highway Systems, was 3,024,233, of which 662,435 miles were surfaced roads, and 2,361,798 earth roads, non-surfaced.

Railway history in the United States commenced in the year 1828. According to Poor's Railway Manual, the extent of railways in operation in 1830 was 23 miles; it rose to 52,922 miles in 1870; to 167,191 miles in 1890. According to the Interstate Commerce Commission's corresponding mileage, it was (year ended on June 30) in 1900, 198,964; in 1910, 249,992; in 1920, 263,821; in 1925, 261,871; and in 1929, 262,546. The ordinary gauge is 4 ft. 8½ in.

Loading of revenue freight cars in 1929 totalled 52,789,789 cars, an increase of 1,199,902 over 1928.

The following table, based on the figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows some railway statistics for 5 years:—

For the year ending June 30, 1930, mails were transported by rail on a length of 220,416 miles. The total number of employees in the railway mail service was 21,185. During the year there were 17,609,467,352 distributions and redistributions of pieces of mail, exclusive of registered mail, by railway postal clerks. Air mail on 26 routes (14,907 miles) totalled 7,719,698 lbs.

On June 30, 1930, the postal savings deposits amounted to 175,271,686 dollars, an increase of 21,627,157 dollars as compared with the previous year.

Currency and Credit.

The monetary system has been monometallic since 1873, gold being the standard. There are a number of different types of currency in circulation, the issuance of which are governed by various laws. Gold coin, gold certificates, silver dollars, Treasury notes of 1890, and United States notes are legal tender to any amount. Subsidiary silver coins are legal tender to an amount of Ten Dollars in one payment.

Gold certificates and silver certificates are always backed dollar for dollar by gold or silver, respectively, held in the Treasury. They are receivable for all public dues and may be held by banks as lawful reserve. Treasury notes of 1890 are redeemable in either gold coin or silver dollars. They are being cancelled when received by the Treasury of the United States and are being replaced by silver certificates. United States notes are legal tender for all debts, public and private, except duties on imports and interest on public debt. Federal Reserve Notes, though not legal tender, are receivable by the government for all public dues and are receivable on all accounts by all Federal Reserve Banks, National Banks, and other member banks of the Federal Reserve System. They are redeemable in gold coin at the Treasury, and in gold or lawful money at any Federal Reserve Bank. National bank notes and Federal Reserve Bank notes are also not legal tender but are receivable for all public dues except duties on imports, and may be used by the Government in all payments except interest on a public debt. They are redeemable in lawful money at the Treasury and at the various banks of issue.

The following statement shows the stock of United States money, including paper currency in circulation in foreign countries and the amount held by the Cuban agency of the Federal reserve banks, on September 30, 1930:—

For notes to this table see top of next page.

[1] Does not include gold bullion or foreign coin other than that held by the Treasury, Federal reserve banks, and Federal reserve agents. Gold held by Federal reserve banks under earmark for foreign account is excluded, and gold held abroad for Federal reserve banks is included

[2] Includes 1,658,667,000 dollars held for Federal reserve banks and agents.

[3] Not included in the total since the money held in trust against gold and silver certificates and Treasury notes of 1890 is included under gold coin and bullion and standard silver dollars, respectively.

[4] The amount of money held in trust against gold and silver certificates and Treasury notes of 1890, which is equal to the total amount of these certificates and notes outstanding (2,121,279,000 dollars), must be deducted from this total before combining it with money outside of the Treasury to arrive at the stock of money in the United States.

The coinage of the United States mints in six calendar years was as follows, in thousands of dollars:—

Banking.

The banking system of the United States includes: (1) National banks supervised by the Federal Government, under the National Bank Act of 1863 and subsequent amendments; (2) State-chartered banking institutions, State banks, trust companies and savings banks organised under the banking laws of the various States, and private banks; (3) Federal Reserve banks operating under the general supervision of the Federal Reserve Board as provided in the Federal Reserve Act of December 23, 1913; and (4) banks for extending agricultural credits operating under supervision of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

National banks are required to have a minimum capital of 25,000 dollars. Under certain limitations they are permitted to establish branches within the cities in which they are located. They are authorised to issue circulating notes not in excess of paid-in capital, secured by United States bonds of certain issues deposited with the Treasurer of the United States. The effective limit upon the note circulation of National banks is the amount of bonds eligible as security. On June 30, 1920, 674,626,000 dollars of such bonds were outstanding and 666,825,000 dollars of these were on deposit with the Treasurer to secure circulation. National banks (including those in Alaska and Hawaii) on June 29, 1930, numbered 7,252, and reported resources and liabilities as follows:—

Resources	Thousands of dollars	Liabilities	Thousands of dollars
Loans and discounts (including rediscounts and overdrafts)	14,897,204	Capital stock paid in	1,743,974

[1] Including items with Federal reserve banks in process of collection, exchanges for clearing, and other checks on local banks.
[2] Excludes reserves for dividends, contingencies, etc., and for interest and other expenses accrued and unpaid.
[3] Includes certified and cashiers' checks, and cash letters of credit and travellers' checks outstanding.

For State-chartered banking institutions, minimum capital and other requirements imposed by state banking codes vary from state to state. These institutions (including mutual and stock savings banks and all private banks under state supervision) numbered 16,605 on June 30, 1930, and reported loans of 25,743,930,000 dollars, investments of 10,615,044,000 dollars, deposits of 34,398,145,000 dollars, and rediscounts and bills payable of 422,953,000 dollars.

Of the 27,470 bank offices open on June 30, 1930, 21,028 were independent single-office banks, 817 were head offices of banks operating with one or more branches, 3,618 were branch offices, and 2,007 were single-office banks belonging to 'groups' or 'chains.'

There is no central bank in the United States. The Federal reserve system, established by Act of December 23, 1913, comprises the Federal Reserve Board of eight members sitting in Washington, and 12 Federal Reserve banks located one in each of the Federal Reserve districts into which the country is divided. Of the Board members, six are appointed for ten-year terms by the President, who designates one to serve as Governor and one as Vice-Governor of the Board. The Secretary of the Treasury and Controller of the Currency are members ex-officio and the Secretary of the Treasury serves ex-officio as Chairman of the Board. This Board prescribes administrative regulations and exercises general supervisory powers. In each Federal Reserve district the capital of the reserve bank is subscribed by member banks of the district in proportion to their capital and surplus. Member banks include all National banks, except in Hawaii and Alaska, since these banks are required by law to join the system, and such eligible state banks and trust companies as elect to accept the conditions of membership. On June 30, 1930, the number of state members was 1,068. Total resources of member banks—national and state—amounted on this date to 47,906,740,000 dollars, being equal approximately to two-thirds of the resources of all banks in the country. Member banks are required to deposit their reserves in the reserve banks and only deposit credits in the reserve banks count as legal reserve for the member banks. The reserve banks are authorised to issue Federal Reserve notes secured by gold or eligible paper, with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per cent.; to discount eligible paper for member banks; to fix the rate of discount on advances to member banks subject to review and determination of the Federal Reserve Board; to engage in certain open market operations, principally to buy and sell U.S. securities and bankers' acceptances; to function as collection agencies and clearing houses for member banks; and to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government. These banks make no loans to individuals and carry no deposits, except for other banks and for governments. On September 30, 1930, the capital funds and total resources of these banks were as follows:

District	Federal Reserve Bank	Capital paid in and Surplus (in thousands of dollars)	Total Resources (in thou. dollars)	District	Federal Reserve Bank	Capital paid in and Surplus (in thousands of dollars)	Total Resources (in thous. dollars)
1	Boston	33,632	377,564	8	St. Louis	16,122	180,842

[1] Uncollected items (exclusive of Federal reserve notes of other Federal reserve banks) in excess of deferred availability items.

Banks operating under the supervision of the Federal Farm Loan Board include the Federal Land Banks (12 in number) and the Joint-Stock Land Banks (49 in number) which extend to farmers mortgage loans for terms of 5 to 40 years; and the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks (12 in number) which extend agricultural credits for periods of from 6 months to 3 years. Loans outstanding of the Federal and Joint-Stock Land Banks amounted on September 30, 1930, to 1,753,017,000 dollars, and of the Federal Intermediate Credit banks, on September 30, 1930, to 123,336,000 dollars.

Savings banks and trust companies reported for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, total savings deposits of 28,484,836,000 dollars belonging to 52,769,175 depositors, an increase of 267,180,000 dollars and 5,048 depositors over previous year. Actual total number of depositors is somewhat larger as in four states saving depositors are not separately reported.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The dollar of 100 cents is of the par value of 49·32*d.*, or 4·8665 dollars to the pound sterling.

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25·8 grains (or 1·6718 gramme) ·900 fine. The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and in 1890 established a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury notes in gold at sight. This fund has been increased to 156,039,000 dollars.

Gold coins are 20, 10, 5 and 2½-dollar pieces called double eagles, eagles, half-eagles, and quarter-eagles. The eagle weighs 258 grains or 16·71818 grammes ·900 fine, and therefore contains 232·2 grains or 15·0464 grammes of fine gold.

The silver dollar weighs 412·5 grains or 26·730 grammes ·900 fine, and therefore contains 371·25 grains or 24·057 grammes of fine silver. Subsidiary silver coins contain 347·22 grains of fine silver per dollar. These are the half-dollar, quarter-dollar and dime (one-tenth). There is a 5-cent piece of nickel and a one cent piece of bronze.

Seven kinds of Notes are in circulation in the United States. (1) United States Notes, in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000 and 10,000 dollars (so-called "Greenbacks") which are covered by a gold reserve of 156 million dollors in the Treasury. (2) Gold Certificates, in denominations of 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000, and 10,000 dollars. (3) Silver Certificates in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500 and 1,000 dollars. (4) Treasury Notes of 1890. (5) Federal Reserve notes in denominations of 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 and 10,000 dollars. (6) National Bank Notes in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500 and 1,000 dollars. (7) Federal Reserve Bank Notes. Of the note issues only United States Notes, Treasury Notes of 1890, and gold certificates are legal tender. The Treasury notes of 1890 and the Federal reserve bank notes, of which less than 5,000,000 dollars were outstanding on September 30, 1929, are being withdrawn from circulation.

British weights and measures are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel are used instead of the new or imperial standards. They are:—

Wine Gallon = 0·83267 gallon.
Bushel . = 0·9689 imperial bushel.

Instead of the British cwt. a Cental, of 100 pounds, is used; the short ton contains 2,000 lbs.; the long ton, 2,240 lbs.

ALABAMA.

Constitution and Government.—The State of Alabama was admitted into the Union on December 14, 1819. The legislature consists of a Senate of 35 members and a House of Representatives of 106 members; all the legislators being elected for four years. The National Guard consists (June 30, 1930) of 65 officers, 1 warrant officer and 1,072 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arizona, despite its dry climate, is well suited for agriculture along the watercourses and where irrigation can be used; the soil is productive. The wide pasture-lands in this State are favourable for the rearing of cattle and sheep. Several large reservoirs for the storage of water have been constructed by the United States and State Government, notably the Roosevelt dam, which supplies water to the Salt River Valley District, of which Phoenix is the principal city. The Government has completed the Yuma project, by which the waters of the lower Colorado River are brought to the Arizona side under the river by means of an inverted syphon. Other similar irrigation and hydroelectric projects are the Horse Mesa Dam, the Stewart Mountain Dam, the San Carlos Dam, to empound the waters of the Gila river and the Mormon Flats Dam, on the Salt River, about 30 miles below the Roosevelt Dam, for furnishing electrical power to many of the largest copper mines in the State and many of the smaller cities and towns.

In 1925 Arizona contained 10,802 farms, with 10,101,361 acres of pasture land and 578,246 acres of crop land, out of a total farm area of 11,065,291 acres. The total value of all farm property was (in 1925) 194,048,096 dollars, and the most important crops (1930) were as follows:—Cotton, 160,000 bales; wheat, 1,288,000 bushels; corn, 1,353,000 bushels; citrus fruits (oranges, lemons, tangerines, and grape fruit), 420,000 boxes. Lettuce and cantaloupes are important crops. On January 1, 1930, there were 84,000 horses, 12,000 mules, 35,000 milch cows, 923,000 all cattle, 1,189,000 sheep, and 19,000 swine. The wool clip in 1929 amounted to 6,120,000 pounds of wool. The National forests in the State have an area (June 30, 1929) of 11,466,626 acres; the Grand Canyon has been made a National Park.

The mining industries of the State are important, producing copper, gold, silver, asbestos, lead, and zinc. The production of gold in 1929 was 211,108 ounces (1928, 189,519 ounces); silver, 7,840,321 ounces (1928, 6,564,933 ounces); zinc (1928), 639 short tons; copper, 829,206,475 lbs. (1928, 735,632,406 lbs.); and lead (1928), 7,190 short tons. The total value of all minerals mined in 1928 was 115,999,643 dollars. The leading industry, the smelting and refining of copper, had 8 establishments in 1928 employing 3,000 men and with an output valued at 105,447,860 dollars.

In 1928 there were 2,495 miles of steam railroad and 37 miles of electric railroad. The State has 3,081 miles of road, of which 545 were paved, and 2,536 miles surfaced in 1929.

On December 31, 1929, Arizona had 14 national banks with resources of 36,900,000 dollars, demand deposits of 19,198,000 dollars, savings or time deposits of 11,236,000 dollars; 46 national and State banks and trust companies belonging to the Federal Reserve System had loans of 49,900,000 dollars, investments of 31,300,000 dollars, and deposits of 91,900,000 dollars.

CALIFORNIA.

Constitution and Government.—California, though unexplored and practically unknown to Europeans, was from its discovery down to 1846 politically associated with Mexico. On July 5, 1846, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, and a proclamation was issued declaring California to be a portion of the United States, and on February 2, 1849, by the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, the territory was formally ceded by Mexico to the United States, and was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

The Senate is composed of 40 members elected for four years—half being elected each two years—and the Assembly, of 80 members, elected for two years. Regular sessions are held biennially. The State capital is Sacramento.

California is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 11 Representatives.

Governor.—James Rolph, Jr., 1931-35 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—F. C. Jordan.

California is divided into fifty-eight counties, one of which—San Francisco—has a combined county and city government. The legislative authority is vested in a board of 18 supervisors elected from the city and county at large. Each of the other counties is governed by a board of 5 supervisors elected from districts.

Area and Population.—Area, 158,297 square miles (2,645 square miles being water). Public lands, unappropriated on June 30, 1929, totalled 20,209,421 acres.

Census population, April 1, 1930, 5,677,251.

Of the total population in 1920, 1,813,591 were males, and 1,613,270 were females (68·0 per cent. were urban, and 1·1 per cent. Negro).

Three-fourths of the population of California are of American birth. Of the 681,662 persons of white foreign birth in 1920, representing 19·9 per cent. of the total population of the State, 67,180 (9·9 per cent.) were German, 45,308 (6·6 per cent.) Irish, 58,572 (8·6 per cent.) English, 16,597 Scotch, 59,562 Canadian, 20,387 French, 88,502 (13·0 per cent.) Italian, 31,925 Swedish, 86,610 (12·7 per cent.) Mexicans, and 10,313 Greeks.

There are about 27 Indian reservations in the State, with a total area (1929) of 774 square miles and population of 19,060 Indians.

The census population of the larger cities on April 1, 1930, was: Los Angeles, 1,238,048; San Francisco, 634,394; Oakland, 284,063; Long Beach, 142,032; San Diego, 147,995; Sacramento, 93,750; Fresno, 52,513; Pasadena, 76,086; Glendale, 62,736; San José, 57,651; and Berkeley, 82,109. Marriages in 1928 were 46,945; divorces, 14,431; annulments, 1 441.

Religion and Instruction.—The Roman Catholic Church, with 720,803 adherents in 1926, is much stronger than any other single church; next are the Jewish congregations with 122,724 members, Methodists (116,974), Presbyterians and Baptists. Total membership, all denominations, 1,522,211.

Education is compulsory for children from 8–16 years of age for eight months in the year. In 1929–30, 1,077 kindergartens had 1,925 teachers and 82,786 pupils; the 4,050 elementary schools had an enrolment of 695,143 pupils (356,513 boys and 338,630 girls), with 23,780 teachers; the 518 public high schools (including 153 junior high schools) had an enrolment of 612,343 pupils (of whom 113,934 were in junior high schools), and 19,592 teachers. The 7 teachers' colleges had 12,785 students and 543 teachers. The total expenditure during the year 1929–30 for the above branches of education was 152,350,282 dollars.

There are in California three great universities—the University of California (State), Leland Stanford Junior University, and the University of Southern California. The University of California has colleges for resident instruction and research at Berkeley; at San Francisco; at Los Angeles; at Mount Hamilton (the Lick Astronomical Department); at Riverside and Davis; and at La Jolla (the Scripps Institution of Oceanography). In 1929–30, during the regular college year, there were at Berkeley, 1,045 officers of instruction and 11,380 students; at Los Angeles, 286 officers of instruction and 6,175 students; at other centres, 706 officers of instruction and research and 1,209 students: a grand total (with deduction for duplicates) of 2,039 officers and 18,689 resident students. The total annual income of the University is about 14,000,000 dollars. Leland Stanford Junior University near Palo Alto was chartered in 1885, and opened its doors to students in 1891. It has an endowment now amounting to about 42,000,000 dollars in interest-bearing funds, of which 22,000,000 dollars, besides large landed estates, was given by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stanford in memory of their son. In 1929-30 it had 654 professors and teachers and 4,641 students. The University of Southern California at Los Angeles (Meth. Episcopal) had 550 instructors and 17,137 students (1929-30). It has an endowment of one million dollars. California (State) Polytechnic School is located at San Luis Obispo.

California has a comprehensive library system, at the head of which stands the State Library at Sacramento. On July 1, 1929, the 46 county general libraries had 4,094 branches and some 4,593,552 volumes, and the 55 county law libraries had some 309,845 volumes. There were 35 city libraries having more than 20,000 volumes each and with total resources of 4,314,657 volumes.

Charity.—On June 30, 1930, there were in the state: 65 institutions for dependent children, with approximately 13,000 orphans and half orphans in addition receiving state aid outside of institutions; 96 licensed homes for the aged with a capacity of 3,800 persons; 55 county hospitals (47 of which are combined institutions housing both sick and aged patients); 6 state hospitals for the insane with 14,906 inmates; 2 state homes for the feeble minded with 2,715 inmates; 1 state narcotic hospital with 86 inmates; 26 county detention homes for juvenile delinquents; 3 state correctional schools with 1,114 inmates; 60 county jails with 3,560 inmates; and 2 state prisons with 6,425 men and 126 women inmates.

Finance and Defence.—For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, the receipts and disbursements of all State funds was as follows:—

	Dollars
Cash on hand, July 1, 1929	73,068,756
Receipts, 1929-30	155,611,327
Total	288,680,083
Disbursements, 1929-30	157,039,508
Cash in hand, June 30, 1930	71,640,575

The assessed value of taxable property on June 30, 1930, was 10,203,866,630 dollars, and the net bonded state debt amounted to 122,008,500 dollars.

The National Guard, on June 30, 1930, consisted of 503 officers, 7 warrant officers, and 6,057 enlisted men.

Agriculture and Forestry.—Extending seven hundred miles from north to south, and intersected by several ranges of mountains, California has almost every variety of climate, from the very wet to the very dry, and from the temperate to the semi-tropical. Irrigation is extensively practised. At the date of the 1925 census there were 136,409 farms, comprising 27,516,955 acres, of which 8,401,342 acres were crop land and 16,871,635 acres were pasture lands. The value of farms, lands and buildings in 1925 was 3,152,488,322 dollars.

The cereal crops in 1930 were: maize, 2,700,000 bushels; wheat, 13,020,000 bushels; oats, 5,495,000 bushels; barley, 35,420,000 bushels; rice, 7,271,000 bushels; beans, 7,049,000 bushels. The fruit crops in 1930 included wine grapes, 451,000 tons; table grapes, 418,000 tons; raisin grapes, 1,222,000 tons; oranges, 32,800,000 boxes; grape fruit, 1,118,000 boxes; lemons, 7,020,000 boxes; apples, 11,644,000 bushels; pears, 5,202,000 bushels; figs, 15,000 tons; peaches, 14,282,000 bushels; apricots, 203,000 tons; plums, 79,000 tons; prunes, 225,000 tons; cherries, 18,000 tons; olives, 20,000 tons; almonds, 13,500 tons; and walnuts, 31,000 tons

The hay crop is the most valuable of all crops grown in the State. In 1930 it yielded 5,913,000 tons. Hops amounted to 5,445,000 pounds, and cotton 250,000 bales. The values of the main vegetable crops (1930) were: lettuce, 23,024,000 dollars; cantaloupes, 10,033,000 dollars; asparagus, 9,609,000 dollars; tomatoes, 8,840,000 dollars. Of the main field and fruit crops, 13,727,609 tons were harvested in 1930; and the total value to the farmer of the main field and fruit crops was 432,575,000 dollars.

On January 1, 1930, the farm animals were: 248,000 horses, 45,000 mules, 626,000 milch cows, 1,818,000 all cattle, 3,923,000 sheep, and 603,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1929 was 25,636,000 lbs.; in 1928, 23,800,000 lbs.

There are (1930) in the State 19 national forests covering a total net area of 18,971,409 acres; 4 national parks with a total net area of 928,021 acres; 29 State parks and 9 State monuments with a total area of 21,747 acres; and private timber land with a total area of 5,800,000 acres. The total annual value of lumber produced is now approximately 50,000,000 dollars for pine, and 35,000,000 dollars for redwood.

Mining, Manufactures, etc.—Gold was first discovered in 1848. In 1929 the gold output was 409,020 ounces, valued at 8,455,200 dollars, silver output (1,194,651 fine ounces) valued at 636,749 dollars. Other mineral products (1929) were copper, 33,255,000 pounds, valued at 5,952,000 dollars; 1,274,000 pounds of lead (81,000 dollars); and quicksilver, 9,000 flasks (of 75 pounds net), valued at 1,095,000 dollars. California is one of three most important petroleum-producing States of the Union (Oklahoma and Texas being the other two); in 1929 the output reached 292,534,000 barrels. Natural gas utilised (1929) amounted to 370,000,000 M. cubic feet, valued at 33,000,000 dollars. Natural gasoline or petrol output (1929) was 804,200,000 gallons. Portland cement (1928) was 12,300,000 barrels, valued at 22,000,000 dollars. From California comes the whole of the borate materials produced in the United States. The output in 1928 was 109,722 short tons, valued at 3,378,552 dollars. The State produces a wide variety of mineral products. The value of all the minerals produced in 1928 was 434,261,175 dollars; in 1929, 398,018,000 dollars.

In California in 1927 there were 10,066 manufacturing establishments, employing 262,816 wage-earners earning 378,321,461 dollars, using materials costing 1,504,655,053 dollars, and giving an output worth 2,593,247,224 dollars. Petroleum refining, the chief industry, reached a production in 1927 valued at 356,910,953 dollars; motion picture industry, 101,044,521 dollars; meat packing, 124,546,033 dollars; canning and preserving fruit, 181,661,591 dollars.

The coast and river fisheries are important, giving employment to from 12,000 to 15,000 persons. Salmon, tuna and sardines are the most important varieties of fish taken, but as many as one hundred and thirty different varieties of fish are found in the markets of the State.

Commerce and Communications.—The chief commercial ports of California are San Francisco and Los Angeles. In 1929, total exports through San Francisco were valued at 206,206,840 dollars; imports, 212,672,215 dollars. Exports through Los Angeles were valued at 166,329,000 dollars; imports, 63,685,000 dollars.

Total mileage of steam railroads (1929) was 13,471 miles; electric railways, 3,093 miles. During the year 1929 there were 501 automobile stage and truck lines operating on the highways of California. During 1929 the foregoing carriers transported (1) freight: steam roads, 52,525,073 tons; automobile stage and truck lines, 2,076,441 tons: and (2) passengers: steam roads, 40,642,738; electric roads, 666,268,551; automobile stage and truck lines, 29,619,020. The State has 6,337 miles of highway, of which 4,785 miles were constructed by the State.

On June 29, 1930, there were 33 State savings banks and 167 savings departments of State departmental banks having 1,539,755 depositors with 910,361,860 dollars to their credit.

On the same date, there were 18 State commercial banks and 166 commercial departments of State departmental banks having 563,619 depositors with 369,498,605 dollars to their credit. The combined assets of all California building and loan associations on June 30, 1930, was 513,110,594 dollars.

There are British Consular representatives at San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

COLORADO.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on Aug. 1, 1876. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 35 members elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years, and of a House of Representatives of 65 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Eligible to either House are all citizens of the United States male and female 25 years of age and 12 months resident in the district for which they seek election. Qualified as electors are all persons male and female (except criminals and insane) 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States, and have resided in the State for 12 months immediately preceding the election. The State is divided into 63 counties. The Capital is Denver.

Governor.—Wm. H. Adams, 1931–1933 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles M. Armstrong, 1931–1933.

The State sends to Congress two Senators and 4 Representatives.

Area and Population.—Area, 103,948 square miles (290 square miles being water). Public lands unappropriated on June 30, 1929, totalled 8,218,875 acres. Indian reservations in 1929 covered an area of 619 sq. miles, with a population of 836.

Census population April 1, 1930, 1,035,791.

Population in four census years was as follows :—

Years	White [1]	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1860	34,231	46	34,277	0·3
1900	531,130	8,570	539,700	5·2
1910	787,571	11,453	799,024	7·7
1920	928,311	11,318	939,629	9·1

[1] Including Asiatics and Indians. In 1920, 291 Chinese and 1,383 Indians.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	484,245	5 834	1,918	734	492,731
Female	439,858	5,484	907	649	446,898
Total . . .	924,103	11,318	2,825	1,383	939,629

In 1920, the foreign-born white population numbered 116,954 (12·4 per cent. of the total State population) of whom 9,584 were English, 3,357 Scottish, 6,191 Irish, 11,992 (10·3 per cent.) German, 16,669 (14·3 per cent.) Russian, 12,579 (10·8 per cent.) Italian, 10,112 Swedish, 7,621 Canadian, and 10,894 Mexican. Of the total population in 1920, 48·2 per cent. were urban and 1·2 per cent. Negro. Denver, the capital, had a population in 1930 of 284,063 ; Pueblo, 50,096 ; Colorado Springs, 33,237 ; Trinidad, 11,732 ; Boulder, 11,223. Marriages in 1928, 12,065 ; divorces 2,362, annulments 61 ; in 1929, marriages 13,047, divorces 2,392.

Religion and Instruction.—Roman Catholics, with 125,757 members in 1926, outnumber other denominations, with Methodists (46,974) and Presbyterians (27,090) ranking next. Total membership, all denominations, 352,863.

In 1929 the 691 public elementary, the 315 senior high schools, the 162 junior high schools, and the 2,107 rural schools had 9,555 teachers with 256,134 enrolled pupils. Public school teachers are trained at the State Teachers' College, which in 1928-29 had 110 teachers and 4,172 students. Another State normal school, the Western State College of Colorado, has been established at Gunnison, having (in 1929-30) 48 teachers and 754 students. Public school expenditure, year ending June 30, 1929, 25,157,459 dollars. Statistics for the various colleges for 1929-30 are as follows : Colorado College, founded in 1874 at Colorado Springs, had 91 professors and 957 students. The University of Colorado, opened in 1877 at Boulder, had 377 professors and 6,892 students (including summer school). The University of Denver, founded by Territorial Charter in 1864, had 191 professors and teachers and 3,724 students (including summer school). There are also an Agricultural College, at Fort Collins, with 133 professors and 2,063 students (including summer school) ; and a School of Mines with 46 professors and 627 students. The Chamberlin Observatory in University Park, Denver, stands at an altitude of 5,280 feet above sea-level.

CONNECTICUT.

Government.—Connecticut has been an organised commonwealth since 1637. In 1639 a written constitution was adopted which, it is claimed, was the first in the history of the world formed by a social compact. This Constitution was confirmed by a charter from Charles II. in 1662, and replaced in 1818 by a State Constitution, framed that year by a constitutional convention. Connecticut was one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. All citizens (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age, resident in the State for a year and in the town for six months preceding the election, have the right of suffrage provided that they can read the Constitution in English. The Senate consists of 35 members, the House of Representatives of 258 members. Members of each House are elected for the term of two years; salary, 300 dollars and mileage. Legislative sessions are biennial. The State Capital is Hartford.

Governor.—Wilbur L. Cross, 1931–33 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—William M. Higgins, M.D.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by two Senators and five Representatives. For local administration the State is divided into eight counties which are sub-divided into towns within which are cities and boroughs.

Area and Population.—Area, 4,965 square miles (145 square miles being water). Census population on April 1, 1930, 1,606,903; population in four census years was as follows —

Years	White[1]	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1840	301,856	8,122	309,978	64·3
1900	893,194	15,226	908,420	188·5
1910	1,099,582	15,174	1,114,756	231·3
1920	1,359,585	21,046	1,380,631	286·4

[1] Including Asiatics and Indians.

The population by sex and colour in 1920 was:—

—	White	Negro	All Others	Total
Male	683,837	10,778	720	695,335
Female	674,895	10,268	133	685,296
Total	1,358,732	21,046	853	1,380,631

In 1920, the foreign-born white population representing 27·3 per cent. of the total State population, numbered 376,513 of whom 22,708 were English; 7,487 Scottish; 45,464 (12·1 per cent.) Irish; 22,614 (6·0 per cent.) German; 38,719 (10·3 per cent.) from Russia; 46,623 Polish; 17,697 Swedish; 80,322 (21·3 per cent.) Italian. Of the total population (in 1920) 67·8 per cent. were urban and 1·5 per cent. Negro. Marriages in 1928 were 11,650; divorces, 1,276; annulments, 21.

The chief towns are Hartford (capital), with population (census April 1, 1930), 164,072; New Haven, 162,655; Bridgeport, 146,716; Waterbury, 99,902; New Britain, 68,128; Stamford, 56,532; Meriden, 38,452.

Religion, Instruction, and Charity.—Of the 65 religious denominations in the States, the most important in order of strength are the Roman Catholic (557,747 members in 1926), Jewish Congregations (90,165), Protestant Episcopal (89,434), and Congregationalist. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Government.—The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of an area of approximately sixty-nine and one-quarter square miles, which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital. It was established under Acts of Congress in 1790 and 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the Constitution of the United States providing for the seat of the Government. Federal authority over it became vested in 1800.

The present form of local government, which dates from July 1, 1878, is a municipal corporation administered by a board of three Commissioners. Two of these are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate, for a term of three years each. The other Commissioner is detailed by the President from the Engineer Corps of the Army. Congress alone has authority to enact legislation and appropriate money for the municipal expenses.

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners.—Daniel E. Garges.

Area and Population.—The area of the District of Columbia is 69·245 square miles, approximately 62 of which are land.

The population at the Federal Census of 1930 was 486,869, including 365,000 white, 745 Chinese, Indians and Japanese, the remainder Negroes; population in 1920, 437,571, including 327,605 whites and 109,966 Negroes.

In 1920, approximately 25 per cent. of the total population was Negro or of Negro descent. Of the foreign-born white population, representing 6·5 per cent. of the total population, 10·5 per cent. were English, 15·1 per cent. Irish, 11·8 per cent. German, 18·1 per cent. Russian, 13·2 per cent. Italian, and 5·9 per cent. Canadian.

Marriages in 1928 totalled 5,298; divorces, 101; annulments, 21.

A portion of the District of Columbia embracing 6,654 acres is known in law as the City of Washington, 'The Federal Capital.' But that name is a geographical distinction only, as the territory it includes is not a municipal government separate from the rest of the District of Columbia, but is subject to the same national and municipal control in every respect.

Religion and Instruction.—The most numerous religious bodies are: Roman Catholic with 67,348 adherents (1926), Negro Baptists (41,262), Protestant-Episcopal (28,347), Methodist, Presbyterian, and Lutheran. Total membership, all denominations, 238,871.

The 170 public school buildings of the District in 1930 housed 1,873 white teachers and 54,142 white pupils, and 897 coloured teachers and 27,439 coloured pupils. In addition, night schools accommodated 5,838 white and 3,505 coloured students. There were, included in the above, junior high schools with 422 teachers and 10,268 pupils; senior high schools with 524 teachers and 12,797 students; 2 normal schools with 33 teachers and 616 pupils. There were also 3,100 students in private and parochial schools in 1930. Total expenditure on public education (1930), 9,989,400 dollars.

Superior education is given in Georgetown University, an institution under the management of the Jesuit Order, founded in 1795; it has 368 professors and 2,564 students; the George Washington University, non-sectarian, founded in 1821, has 388 professors and instructors, and 7,377 students; the Howard University, principally engaged in the higher education of coloured students, was founded in 1867, and has 205 professors and 2,871 students; the Catholic University of America, a post-graduate institution, was founded in 1884, and has 110 professors and 2,870 students; the American University has 32 professors and 319 students.

Finance and Defence.—The revenues of the District are derived from a general real and personal property tax, taxes on corporations and companies, licences for conducting various businesses, and from appropriations out of the Treasury of the United States.

In 1929-30 the finance of the District of Columbia was as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1929 . . .	17,545,439
Receipts, 1929-30	39,333,467
Total	56 878,906
Disbursements, 1929-30 . . .	40,658,212
Balance, July 1, 1930 . . .	16,220,694

The District of Columbia has no bonded debt not covered by its accumulated sinking fund.

In 1929 the assessed valuation of the real property within the municipality amounted to 1,182,463,345 dollars; of tangible personal property such as furniture, horses, wagons, ships, banks and public utility corporations, 107,206,520 dollars, and intangible personal property such as stocks, bonds, gross earnings of corporations, and tax on private bankers—545,188,143 dollars; total 1,834,858,008 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1930, consisted of 63 officers, 1 warrant officer and 921 enlisted men.

Productions and Industry.—The District has considerable industries, the products of which are mainly for local consumption. The United States census of manufactures in 1927 showed that the raw material used cost 36,098,635 dollars, and the output was valued at 90,389,537 dollars.

Within the District are 185 miles of electric street railway track and 36 miles of steam railway.

On June 30, 1930, there were in the District 40 national banks, trust companies and savings banks. Their aggregate resources and liabilities balanced at 324,684,000 dollars. Their paid-in capital stock stood at 29,928,000 dollars; surplus funds at 20,479,000 dollars; individual deposits at 242,414,000 dollars; United States deposits at 2,163,000 dollars; and loans and discounts at 176,652,000 dollars.

ILLINOIS.

Government.—Illinois was first discovered by Joliet and Marquette, two French explorers, in 1673. In 1763, the country was ceded by the French to the British. In 1783, Great Britain recognised the title of the United States to Illinois, which was admitted into the Union on December 3, 1818. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 51 members elected for four years (about half of whom retire every two years), and a House of Representatives of 153 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Qualified electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State one year, in the county 90 days, and in the district 30 days next before the election.

The State is divided into Senatorial districts, in each of which one Senator and three Representatives are chosen. For the election of Representatives each elector has three votes, of which he may cast one for each of three candidates, or one and a half for each of two, or all three for one candidate.

Governor.—Louis L. Emmerson, 1929–33 (12,000 dollars).

Constitution and Government.—In 1615 the Plymouth Company undertook exploring expeditions to New England, and in 1620 obtained a Royal Charter granting sovereign powers over the region lying to the north of Virginia. The first permanent settlement within the borders of the present state was made at Plymouth in December, 1620, by the Pilgrims from Holland, who were separatists from the English Church. This was the nucleus of the Plymouth Colony. In 1628 another company of Puritans settled at Salem, and from that beginning the Massachusetts Bay Colony was formed. In 1630 Boston was settled. In 1629 the whole region called New England was formed into a province. By a special Charter the Government was divided between the colony of Plymouth and that of Massachusetts Bay, but in 1692 they were re-united, and thenceforward acted together both in peace and war. In the struggle which ended in the separation of the American colonies from the mother country, Massachusetts took the foremost part, and became one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

There is a legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, styled collectively the General Court of Massachusetts. The Senate consists of 40 members elected biennially by popular vote. The House of Representatives consists of 240 members, elected in 159 districts, each of which returns one, two, or three representatives according to the number of legal voters. There is an annual session of the Legislature.

All citizens of the United States, 21 years of age and over, who can read and write the English language may vote in all State, city or town elections, provided they are not paupers or under guardianship, and provided they have lived one year in the State and six months in the city or town.

The State sends 2 Senators and 16 Representatives to the Federal Congress.

Governor.—Joseph P. Ely, 1931–33 (salary, 10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Frederic W. Cook.

There are 14 counties in the State, varying largely in population, and there are 39 cities and 316 towns. The State Capital is Boston.

Area and Population.—Area, 8,266 square miles (227 square miles being water). The census population, April 1, 1930, was 4,249,614.

The population at the date of each of the censuses was as follows:—

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Government.—New Hampshire was one of the thirteen original States of the Union. The sense of the people as to the calling of a convention for the revision of the Constitution must be taken every seven years. If a convention is held, the amendments to the Constitution which it proposes must be laid before the people, and approved by two-thirds of the qualified voters present and voting on the subject. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 24 members, elected for two years, and a House of Representatives, of from 419 to 422 members, the number depending on the population. Electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident six months in the place to be represented, able to read and write, duly registered and not under sentence for crime or paupers.

Governor.—John G. Winant, 1931-33 (5,000 dollars).
Secretary of State.—Enoch D. Fuller.

New Hampshire is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 2 Representatives. The State is divided into 10 counties. The State Capital is Concord.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 9,041 square miles, of which 10 square miles are water. Census population on April 1, 1930, 465,293, an increase of 22,210 or 5 per cent. from that of 1920.

The population at the date of the Federal censuses was as follows:—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile.
1890	375,840	690	376,530	41·7
1900	410,791	797	411,588	45·6
1910	429,906	666	430,572	47·7
1920	442,331	752	443,083	49·1

In 1920, the population by sex and race was:—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . .	221,667	333	99	13	222,112
Female .	220,664	288	4	15	220,971
Total .	442,331	621	103	28	443,083

Of the total population in 1920, 91,233 (representing 20·6 per cent. of the total population) were foreign-born white, of whom 1,886 were Swedes, 3,467 Russians, 1,714 Germans, 4,367 English, 7,908 Irish, 52,274 (57·3 per cent.) Canadian, 3,997 Polish, 5,280 Greeks, 2,074 Italians. Of the population in 1920, 63·1 per cent. were urban and 0·1 per cent. Negro.

The largest city of the State is Manchester, with a population of 76,834 in 1930. Other cities are Nashua, 31,463; Concord (capital), 25,228; Berlin, 20,018; Portsmouth, 14,495; Keene, 13,794; Dover, 13,573; Laconia, 12,471; Rochester, 10,209.

The leading church is the Roman Catholic, which, with 146,646 adherents in 1926, had 65 per cent. of the Church membership; other bodies are Congregational with 20,346 members, Methodist (14,018), and Protestant Episcopal. The Roman Catholics maintain parochial schools in all the cities and some of the large towns.

In 1928 there were 4,796 marriages performed; 706 divorces and 9 annulments were granted, compared with 4,847 marriages, 646 divorces and 7 annulments in 1927.

The State law requires that at least 36 weeks of schooling must be provided in every town annually. School attendance is compulsory for children from 8 to 14 years of age during the whole school term; and if they have not completed the elementary grades the school age extends to 16. In 1928, the 2,057 public elementary schools of the State had 2,221 teachers and 75,399 enrolled pupils; 89 public high schools had 697 teachers and 12,989 pupils. The 2 normal schools had 60 teachers and 918 students in 1928. For higher education there are Dartmouth College, at Hanover, founded in 1769, and the University of New Hampshire, at Durham, founded in 1866. They are non-sectarian. Dartmouth had (1930) 220 instructors and 2,274 students; the State University, 147 instructors and 1,924 students. Expenditure on education (1928), 7,561,357 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, were:—

	Dollars
Cash balance, July 1, 1928	578,618
Receipts, 1928–29	16,361,539
Total	16,940,157
Disbursements, 1928–29	15,797,615
Balance, July 1, 1929	1,142,542

The funded indebtedness on July 1, 1929, amounted to 2,775,000 dollars. The assessed value in 1929 of taxable property was 763,059,670 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1930, consisted of 73 officers, 2 warrant officers and 975 men.

Production and Industry.—The majority of the population is employed in agriculture, but manufacturing interests are not far behind. The total land area of the State is 5,971,840 acres, of which 1,441,000 acres are cultivated, 720,000 acres uncultivated, and 3,681,081 acres under forest. The area of national forest lands on January 1, 1929, was 450,890 acres. In 1925, there were 21,065 farms with a total acreage of 2,262,064 acres, or 107·4 acres to each farm, and of this 542,846 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 107,084,055 dollars. The chief crops are (1930), hay (536,000 tons), corn (585,000 bushels), potatoes (2,365,000 bushels), oats (352,000 bushels); the chief fruit crop is apples. On January 1, 1930, the farm animals in the State were 23,000 horses, 77,000 milch cows, 120,000 other cattle, 20 000 sheep, and 19,000 swine.

Minerals are little worked, but granite, feldspar and mica are quarried, and mineral waters and scythe stones are also produced.

The manufacturing interests, aside from forest products, are largely confined to the Southern part of the State. In 1927, the number of manufacturing establishments was 1,028; the wage-earners numbered 65,482; the wages paid amounted to 72,803,397 dollars; the raw materials used were valued at 182,106,373 dollars, and the output at 327,528,366 dollars. On July 31, 1929, there were 1,121,594 active spindles, and the amount of cotton consumed was 206,936 bales. Cotton goods account for 18 per cent. of total manufactures; boots and shoes for 16 per cent.; paper and pulp for 13 per cent. An important occupation in the State is the summer entertainment of guests in the mountain and lake regions.

In 1929, the length of steam railway in the State was 1,686 miles, and of electric railway, 151 miles. The State maintains 2,365 miles of highways, of which 2,164 miles are surfaced.

New Hampshire on December 31, 1929, had 56 national banks with resources of 87,800,000 dollars, demand deposits of 38,243,000 dollars and time deposits of 21,458,000 dollars; 42 mutual savings banks had savings deposits of 194,638,000 dollars; 123 National and State banks and trust companies in the Federal Reserve system had loans and investments of 311,400,000 dollars and deposits of 282,100,000 dollars.

NEW MEXICO.

Constitution and Government.—New Mexico from the time of its discovery by Europeans was politically associated with Mexico. On May 11, 1846, the Mexican war began; when peace was made February 2, 1848, New Mexico was recognised as belonging to the United States. On September 9, 1850, the Organic Act of the Territory was passed by the United States Congress. Part of the Territory was assigned to Texas. Later Utah was formed into a separate Territory; in 1861 part of New Mexico was transferred to Colorado, and in 1863 Arizona was disjoined, leaving to New Mexico its present area. In January, 1912, New Mexico was admitted to Statehood. It sends to the National Congress two Senators and one Representative.

The State legislature consists of 24 members of the Senate and 49 members of the House of Representatives.

Governor.—Arthur Seligman, 1931-33 (5,000 dollars).
Secretary of State.—Mrs. E. A. Perrault.

For local government the State is divided into 31 counties. The administrative capital of the State is Santa Fé; population (as shown by the census of 1930), 11,176.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 122,634 square miles (131 square miles being water area). Public lands, unappropriated on June 30, 1929, totalled 16,282,582 acres. Census population on April 1, 1930, 423,317, an increase of 62,967, or 17·5 per cent. from that of 1920.

In five census years the population was:—

Years.	White.[1]	Negro	Total.	Per Sq Mile.
1880	118,550	1,015	119,565	1·0
1890	158,326	1,956	160,282	1·3

Receipts for year 1929–30	16,979,132
Total	20,638,372
Disbursements for year 1929–30	15,609,811
Balance, July 1, 1930	5,028,561

The total bonded indebtedness of the State on July 1, 1930, was 3,759,500 dollars. The assessed value of real and personal property in 1930 was 340,000,000 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1930, consisted of 73 officers, 1 warrant officer and 901 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—New Mexico produces cereals, vegetables, fruit, and cotton. The principal crops in 1930 were: maize, 3,010,000 bushels; wheat, 1,921,000 bushels; potatoes, 210,000 bushels; cotton, 100,000 bales. Dry farming has proved a valuable adjunct. Irrigation, which is indispensable over wide tracks of fertile country, has now reached 550,000 acres and the completion of existing projects will bring the total up to 945,000 acres. In 1925, there were 31,687 farms with an area of 27,850,325 acres, of which 1,784,851 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 236,300,563 dollars. Total acreage of leading crops in 1930, 1,329,000 acres; total value of leading crops, 19,539,000 dollars. The farm animals on January 1, 1930, comprised 150,000 horses, 67,000 milch cows, 1,045,000 other cattle, 2,527,000 sheep, and 73,000 swine. In 1929, the wool-clip amounted to 14,600,000 pounds of wool. The national forest area (June 30, 1929) covered 8,491,831 acres, and there are about 4,000,000 acres of heavily forested country in private ownership.

The State has valuable mineral resources, of which, in 1929, gold (33,026 ounces), silver (1,060,494 ounces), copper (100,165,206 pounds), coal (2,640,000 short tons), lead, and zinc were the most important. The quarries yield granite, sandstone, limestone, and marble. Turquoise is profitably worked in four localities within the State; the sands contain traces of platinum. The value of the total mineral output in 1928 was 30,426,840 dollars. Petroleum output, 1929, was 1,689,000 barrels; in 1928, 943,000 barrels.

The manufactured output of New Mexico (200 manufacturing establishments) in 1927 amounted to the value of 20,182,672 dollars. The number of wage-earners was 4,653, earning in a year 5,421,441 dollars, and the cost of materials used was 10,055,852 dollars.

New Mexico had on December 31, 1929, 27 national banks with resources of 39,700,000 dollars, demand deposits of 24,767,000 dollars and time deposits of 8,104,000 dollars; 56 National and State banks and trust companies in the Federal Reserve system had loans and investments of 40,500,000 dollars and deposits of 46,000,000 dollars.

In 1928, there were 2,964 miles of steam railway and 11 miles of electric railway track. The State maintains 9,354 miles of highway of which 2,010 miles are surfaced.

NEW YORK STATE.

Constitution and Government.—From 1609 to 1664, the region now called New York was under the sway of the Dutch; then it came under the rule of the English, who governed the country till the outbreak of the War of Independence. Between July 9, 1776, and April 20, 1777, a Convention framed a Constitution under which New York was transformed into an independent State, afterwards, in 1788, entering the Union as one of the 13 original States.

The Senate consists of 51 members elected every two years, and the Assembly of 150 members elected annually. The State capital is Albany.

The right of suffrage resides in every citizen 21 years of age, who has been a citizen for 90 days, and has resided for a year in the State, six months in the county, and 30 days in the election district preceding election.

The question whether there shall be a Convention to revise the Constitution has to be submitted to the people every 20 years, beginning with 1916, 'and also at such times as the Legislature may by law provide.'

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 43 Representatives.

Governor.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1921-33 (25,000 dollars).
Secretary of State.—Edward F. Flynn.

For local government the State is divided into 62 counties.

Cities are in 3 classes, the first class having each over 175,000 inhabitants and the third under 50,000. Each is incorporated by charter, under special legislation. The government of New York City is vested in a board of Aldermen, elected for 2 years. Its members are the President, elected by the city; the presidents of the 5 city boroughs (Bronx, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond); 67 aldermen, one elected in each of the 67 districts; constituting a board of 73 members. The chief executive officer is the Mayor, elected for 4 years; he appoints all the heads of departments, except the Comptroller, who is elected by the city.

Area, Population.—Area, 49,204 square miles (1,550 square miles being water). Census population April 1, 1930, 12,588,066, an increase of 2,202,839 or 21·2 per cent. from that of 1920. Population in census years:—

Total farm area, 18,593,670 acres; total value all farm property, 1,050,015,835 dollars. In 1929, the State farm census showed 287,426 active farm owners cultivating 3,349,580 acres and farm tenants cultivating 3,577,588 acres. Wheat and corn are grown extensively, the production of the former in 1930 being 4,288,000 bushels, and of the latter, approximately 51,865,000 bushels. The chief money crop, however, is cotton, of which the area in cultivation (1930) was 1,631,000 acres, with a production of 795,000 bales (of 500 pounds gross weight). Another important product is tobacco; production in 1930, 535,195,000 pounds. Other products are peanuts, potatoes, oats, rye, truck, fruit, etc. On January 1, 1930, the farm animals were 93,000 horses, 279,000 mules, 312,000 milk cattle, with a total of 537,000 for all cattle, 103,000 sheep, and 803,000 swine. The area of national forest lands (June 30, 1930) was 407,027 acres.

Minerals in great variety, but not in large quantities, are found in the State, the chief being clay products, mica, soapstone barytes, feldspar, and coal. The quarries yield granite, limestone, and sandstone. Monazite and zircon, used in the manufacture of incandescent light mantles, are also found. Mineral products, 1928, were valued at 11,480,406 dollars.

North Carolina in 1927 had 3,004 industrial establishments, employing 205,604 wage earners, who received 157,812,720 dollars, and turning out products valued at 1,152,482,164 dollars. The leading industries, measured by the value of their products in 1927 were: textile, 425,233,595; tobacco, 413,274,114; and lumber, 54,062,615 dollars. Active cotton spindles on July 31, 1928, numbered 6,192,000, consuming 1,584,000 bales.

The chief seaport is Wilmington, the exports from which, in the year ending June 30, 1930, amounted to 6,181,599 dollars, nearly all of cotton shipped mostly to Bremen, Liverpool, and Ghent. The imports amounted to 6,663,181 dollars.

The State in 1930 contained 4,995 miles of steam railway, and 176 miles of electric railway track. The State maintains 7,137 miles of highways of which 6,890 miles are surfaced.

North Carolina on June 30, 1930, had 59 national banks with resources 114,426,000 dollars, demand deposits of 33,623,000 dollars, and time deposits of 42,490,000 dollars. On the same date, there were 409 State banks, including branches, having total resources of 312,060,629 dollars, demand deposits of 151,598,679 dollars, and time deposits of 100,161,449 dollars. In addition, there were trust assets of 101,111,251 dollars and assets of 54 industrial banks of 20,389,571 dollars.

National forest lands total 61,480 acres.

Oklahoma has become an important mineral State in the last few years. With 16,594 miles of oil pipe lines, it leads all the states in pipe line mileage with Texas second and Pennsylvania third; with local oil storage capacity of 121,540,000 barrels it is exceeded only by Texas, 170,000 000 barrels, and California, 200,000,000 barrels. In 1929, 255,004,000 barrels of crude petroleum were produced and 676,500,000 gallons of natural gasoline. Natural gas is also obtained in large quantities (320,861,000 M. cubic feet in 1928). Coal (3,484,000 short tons in 1929), lead (43,687 short tons in 1928), and zinc (180,252 tons) are also worked. Total mineral output in 1928, 486,634,347 dollars

There are few manufacturing industries, Petroleum refining is the chief industry; value of output, 1927, was 153,278,576 dollars; flour and grist-milling, cotton ginning, the manufacture of cotton-seed oil and oil cake are less important. In 1927, the State had a total of 1,373 industrial establishments, employing 27,932 wage-earners who earned 35,785,266 dollars, the cost of material being 269,418,221 dollars, and the value of the output 371,718,409 dollars.

In 1930, Oklahoma had 6,743 miles of steam railway besides 246 miles of electric railway. The State maintains 6,142 miles of highway, of which 1,995 miles are surfaced.

On December 31, 1929, Oklahoma had 292 national banks with resources of 446,500,000 dollars, demand deposits of 219,463,000 dollars and time deposits of 93,029,000 dollars; 617 National and State banks and trust companies in the Federal Reserve system had loans and investments of 400,500,000 dollars and deposits of 417,100,000 dollars.

OREGON.

Government.—Oregon was admitted into the Union on February 14, 1859. The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 30 members, chosen for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of 60 Representatives, elected for two years.

The Constitution was amended in 1902, to reserve to the voters the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independently of the Legislative Assembly, and also to give them the power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any Act of the Legislative Assembly. This is known as the initiative and referendum. The Legislature in 1927 adopted an official State song entitled "My Oregon."

At the General Election held November, 1912, suffrage was extended to women and 'every citizen of the United States of the age of 21 years and upwards who shall have resided in the State during the 6 months immediately preceding such election shall be entitled to vote.'

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and three Representatives.

Governor.—Julius L. Meier, 1931-1935. (7,500 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Hal E. Hoss.

The State Capital is Salem. There are 36 counties in the State.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 96,699 square miles, 1,092 square miles being water. Public lands, unappropriated on June 30, 1929, totalled 13,227,141 acres. Census population, July 1, 1930, 953,786, an increase of 170,397, or 21·8 per cent. since 1920.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was :—

Year	White [1]	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1880	174,281	487	174,768	1 8
1900	412,431	1,105	413,536	4 3
1910	671,273	1,492	672,765	7 0
1920	781,245	2,144	783,389	8·2

The foreign-born whites in 1920 numbered 102,151 (13·0 per cent. of total population), of whom 13,740 (13·5 per cent.) were German, 13,744 (13·5 per cent.) Canadian, 7,953 (7·8 per cent.) English, 10,532 (10·3 per cent.) Swedish, 4,203 Irish, 4,324 Italian, 1,928 Greeks, and 6,955 Norwegian. Of the total population in 1920, 49·9 per cent were urban, and 0·3 per cent. Negro.

The Indian reservations in 1929 comprised 1,756 square miles with a population of 4,521 Indians.

The largest towns, according to the 1930 census, are Portland, with a population of 301,815; Salem, 26,266; Eugene, 18,901; Klamath Falls, 16,093; Medford, 11,007; Astoria, 10,349.

In 1929 8,243 marriages were performed and 3,181 divorces and 16 annulments granted as against 7,625 marriages, 3,053 divorces and 20 annulments in 1927.

The chief religious bodies in the State are (in order of strength) Catholic (55,574 members in 1926), Methodist (32,135), Presbyterian (21,545), Disciples of Christ, Baptist, and Jewish. Total membership, all denominations, 232,731.

School attendance is compulsory for all children from 8 to 16 years of age, unless the pupil completes the elementary grades in the meantime. All children between the ages of 16 and 18 years must be in school or legally employed. If legally employed, they must attend the part-time schools unless they have already acquired the ordinary branches of learning taught in the public schools or are attending an evening school. For school year ending June 30, 1929 the 2,353 public elementary schools had 5,833 teachers and 144,851 enrolled pupils; 288 four-year high schools had 2,107 teachers and 42,338 pupils; and the three Normal Schools at Monmouth, Ashland, and La Grande had (1929–30) 123 teachers and 2,478 Students. Total expenditure on education (1927–28), 24,916,151 dollars. The Oregon State Agricultural College at Corvallis, has an agricultural experiment station, with eight branch stations, an engineering experimental station, an extension service in agriculture and home economics, and 10 schools of instruction. In 1930 the staff numbered 562, with 316 engaged in instruction, and the student enrolment, 5,636, of whom 3,778 were in regular full-year degree courses. The University of Oregon, organized at Eugene in 1876, had in 1929–30, 317 professors and 11,520 students (including 8,008 extension and summer school students). There are also Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic, Congregational, and Baptist Colleges.

Finance and Defence.—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund of the State, for the year ending December 31, 1929:—

	Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1929	290,369
Receipts, 1929	22,274,024
Total	22,564,393
Disbursements, 1929	22,198,075
Balance, January 1, 1930	366,318

On January 1, 1930, the amount of the State bonded indebtedness was 61,014,510 dollars. In 1929 the assessed value of real and personal property was 1,124,988,693 dollars.

On June 30, 1930, the National Guard of the State of Oregon consisted of 217 officers, 3 warrant officers and 2,856 men.

Production and Industry.—Oregon is divided by the Cascade Range into two distinct zones as to climate. West of the Cascade Range there is a good rainfall and almost every variety of crop common to the temperate zone is grown. East of the Range lack of rainfall has been to some extent compensated for by irrigation by private companies as well as by State and Federal enterprise. Stock raising is the principal industry of eastern Oregon. With a stand of 400 billion feet Oregon has now one-fifth of the standing timber of the United States; about four billion feet are cut annually, the value being approximately 125,000,000 dollars and the number of men employed in the industry 50,000. In 1929, the forest area was 24,000,000 acres. National forest lands on June 30, 1929, amounted to 13,297,938 acres.

In 1925 there were 55,908 farms with an acreage of 14,170,043; total value, land and buildings, was 617,174,215 dollars. In 1930 only 2,807,000 acres out of total area of 61,118,480 acres were devoted to general farm crops; 13,227,141 acres of Government land are still open to entry. The leading crops are wheat (23,391,000 bushels in 1930); oats (11,489,000 bushels); hay (2,561,000 tons), and potatoes (6,300,000 bushels). Rye, barley, flax-seed, and hops are important crops. Field crop valuation for 1930, 68,554,000 dollars. Fruits are grown, especially plums, apples, pears, peaches, strawberries, cherries, and loganberries. Dairying is an important industry, and there is an active live-stock industry. Horses on July 1, 1930, numbered 174,000; milch cows, 218,000; other cattle, 455,000; sheep, 2,558,000; swine, 270,000. Range land for grazing cattle and sheep, 45,000,000 acres Total value of live stock, including poultry, on January 1, 1930, was 70,000,000 dollars. In 1929 the wool-clip yielded 20,464,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant. During 1929 the fish caught in the Columbia river—of which two-thirds was canned on the Oregon side—totalled 422,117 cases. The total canned salmon pack on the Oregon coast, 1929, was 15,060 cases.

Oregon's mineral resources are extraordinarily varied in character, including gold, silver, mercury and platinum as well as useful earths, but output is not large. Output of mercury leads in value (3,710 flasks in 1929, valued at 450,000 dollars). Output of gold in 1929 was 18,400 ounces, valued at 380,300 dollars; silver, 37,700 ounces; and copper, 740,000 pounds. Value of mineral products, 1929, was 7,160,000 dollars.

In 1927 Oregon had 1,779 industrial establishments employing 57,179 industrial wage-earners who received in wages 75,716,972 dollars; the cost of the raw material was 187,771,163 dollars, and the value of the product 342,852,371 dollars.

Oregon has good water facilities in the Pacific Ocean, and the Columbia, Willamette, and Snake rivers. The Dalles and Celilo Canal, completed in 1915, opens the Columbia and Snake rivers to navigation to a length of 570 miles from the ocean. Large ocean-going vessels can navigate the Columbia and Willamette rivers to Portland, 100 miles inland, through a channel 30 feet in depth. The State had (1929) a total steam railway mileage of 5,001 besides 500 miles of electric railway track. The State maintains 4,368 miles of highways, of which 3,490 are surfaced.

On June 30, 1930, there were 229 banks in the State, with total deposits of 290,541,621 dollars; of this amount 126,951,147 dollars were in savings and time deposits.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Government.—Pennsylvania is one of the thirteen original States in the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. Every citizen 21 years of age, resident in the State for one year, and in the election district for two months preceding the election, is entitled to vote, provided that he has paid a State or County tax within two years and at least one month before the election. The Senate consists of 50 members chosen for four years, 25 Senators being elected at each General Assembly election bi-annually. The House of Representatives consists of 208 members chosen for two years.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 36 Representatives.

Governor.—Gifford Pinchot, 1931–1935 (18,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Robert R. Lewis.

For local administration the State is organised in counties, cities, boroughs, townships, and school districts. There are 67 counties. The State Capital is Harrisburg.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 45,126 square miles, of which 294 square miles are water area (excluding 891 square miles of Lake Erie).

The chief religious bodies in the State are the Roman Catholic with 2,124,382 members in 1926, United Lutheran (551,202), Methodist, (452,145), Presbyterian, Dutch Reformed and Baptist. In 1926 a total of 135 denominations reported 13,843 churches and 5,213,023 members.

School attendance is compulsory for children 8 to 16 years of age for the full school term, but in fourth class districts (5,000 population or less) local school authorities may reduce the term of attendance to 70 per cent. for children over 14 years of age. In the year 1928–29, the 13,000 public elementary schools had 43,903 teachers and 1,588,262 enrolled pupils. The 1,187 high schools had 16,680 teachers and 308,866 pupils. Public kindergartens numbered 444. Enrolment in all day, part-time and evening vocational classes offered by the public schools of the Commonwealth averages 75,000. Enrolment in evening schools (1928–29) totalled 112,943 with a teaching personnel of 2,585. In the 16 State normal schools there were (1928–29) 630 teachers and 10,700 students. Teachers attending summer sessions at normal schools numbered 10,997. Total expenditure on public school education (1927–28) was 242,837,037 dollars, including normal schools, colleges and universities.

The more important academic institutions (1929) within the State are as follows :—

Begun	Institutions	Professors	Students
1740	University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia (non-sect.)	1,503	12,564

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending May 31, 1930, the statement on finance, including general and special funds, is as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance in Treasury, June 1, 1929	75,504,103
Receipts, all funds, June 1, 1929, to May 31, 1930	197,812,203
Total	273,316,306
Expenditures, all funds, June 1, 1929, to May 31, 1930	200,465,938
Balance in Treasury, June 1, 1930	72,850,368

On May 31, 1930, the outstanding bonds of the State amounted to 9,221,000 dollars. The assessed value of taxable real property in 1928 amounted to 9,197,969,051 dollars, and of personal property to 2,942,467,809 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1930, consisted of 836 officers, 13 warrant officers and 10,671 men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1925 there were 200,443 farms; the farm area was 16,296,468 acres, of which 8,431,049 were crop land and 4,573,383 pasture land, the remainder being woodland. The total value of farm property in 1925 was 1,170,171,554 dollars. In 1930, production of winter wheat was 28,640,000 bushels; rye, 2,108,000 bushels; oats, 40,312,000 bushels; corn, 29,084,000 bushels; buckwheat, 2,488,000 bushels; potatoes, 23,166,000 bushels; tobacco, 38,118,000 pounds; tame hay, 3,770,000 tons; total crop of apples for 1930, 9,774,000 bushels; commercial apples, 1,150,000 barrels; peaches, 936,000 bushels, and pears, 620,000 bushels. On January 1, 1930, farm animals in Pennsylvania were: 346,000 horses, 51,000 mules, 889,000 dairy cows two year old and over, 551,000 other cattle, 467,000 sheep, 615,000 swine, 20,818,000 chickens, and 124,390 hives of bees. Wool clip, 1929, was 3,017,000 pounds. National forest lands total 350,000 acres; State forests, 1,558,167 acres.

Pennsylvania so far exceeds all the rest of the States in the value of its mineral products as to stand almost alone. This is due principally to the State's leadership in the production of coal. Mineral products in 1928 reached a value of 881,490,033 dollars, of which 75,348,069 tons of anthracite coal represented 393,637,690 dollars and 131,202,163 short tons of bituminous, 249,895,000 dollars, the two accounting for 73 per cent. of the total. In 1929 anthracite coal output reached 76,640,000 tons and bituminous, 142,400,000 tons. Other minerals are petroleum (9,956,000 barrels in 1928 and 11,805,000 barrels in 1929), natural gas (99,466,000 M. cubic feet in 1928), natural gasoline or petrol (19,100,000 gallons in 1929), iron ore (magnetite and hematite, 1,151,130 long tons in 1929), and pig-iron, 14,058,194 long tons (1929) Pennsylvania has important quarries, cement works, and brick and tile works. RHODE ISLAND.

Constitution and Government.—The earliest settlers in the region which now forms the State of Rhode Island were colonists from Massachusetts who had been driven forth on account of their non-acceptance of the prevailing religious beliefs. The first of the settlements was made in 1636, and their numbers and importance quickly increased, settlers of every creed being welcomed. In 1647, a patent was granted for the government of the settlements, and on July 8, 1663, a charter was executed recognising the settlers as forming a body corporate and politic by the name of the English Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. On May 29, 1790, the State accepted the Federal Constitution and entered the Union as one of the 13 original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate has 42 members, besides the Lieutenant-Governor who is ex officio President of the Senate. The House of Representatives consists of 100 members. Every citizen, 21 years of age, who has resided in the State for 2 years, and is duly registered, is qualified to vote.

Governor.—Norman S. Case, 1931-33 (8,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Ernest L. Sprague.

The National Guard on June 30, 1930, consisted of 189 officers, 3 warrant officers and 2,286 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—In 1925, there were 252,669 farms in the State with an acreage of 17,901,139, of which 7,588,506 acres were cropland. Total value of all farm property in 1925 was 883,646,221 dollars. The most important crop is maize, amounting in 1930 to 41,102,000 bushels. The wheat yield was 3,542,000 bushels. Oats, hay, potatoes and sweet potatoes, pease, sorghum, and other products are grown, the physical conditions permitting a great diversity of crops. Peanuts are grown in the Tennessee valley. The cotton crop for 1930 covered 1,227,000 acres and yielded 400,000 bales. The tobacco crop (1930) from 151,800 acres was 120,903,000 pounds valued at 19,465,000 dollars. Fruit-trees and small fruits (notably strawberries) are cultivated. There are important forest products from about 27,300 square miles of woodland. The area of national forest lands (June 30, 1929) was 372,958 acres. Stock-raising in the State is falling off. On January 1, 1930, the domestic animals consisted of 192,000 horses, 320,000 mules, 456,000 milch cows, 997,000 other cattle, 366,000 sheep, and 741,000 swine.

The most important mineral product of Tennessee is coal. The coal-fields have an area of about 4,400 square miles, and in 1929 produced 5,750,000 short tons. Other mineral products (1929) are iron-ore (101,796 long tons), copper (16,374,261 pounds in 1928), zinc, gold, silver (96,146 ounces), clay products (4,030,251 dollars in 1928), sandstone, marble, and limestone. Pig iron production, 1929, was 104,985 tons, valued at 1,938,238 dollars. Total value of mineral products in 1928, exclusive of pig-iron, was 38,789,242 dollars.

The manufacturing industries include iron and steel working, but are mainly concerned with agricultural products. Flour-milling, lumbering, the manufacture of cotton-seed oil and cake, the preparation of leather and of tobacco are progressing. There are also textile manufactures. On July 31, 1929, the State had 617,000 active cotton spindles, consuming 176,000 bales.

Census of manufactures, 1927, showed 2,098 manufacturing establishments, employing 114,968 wage-earners, who received wages of 101,197,846 dollars; cost of materials used, 351,436,325 dollars; value of output, 614,040,524 dollars.

The Mississippi and Tennessee rivers are natural waterways, and the State contains (1928) 4,008 miles of steam railway, besides 507 miles of electric railway. The State maintains 5,870 miles of highways, of which 4,534 miles are surfaced.

On December 31, 1929, Tennessee had 99 national banks with resources of 342,100,000 dollars, demand deposits of 112,614,000 dollars and time deposits of 108,865,000 dollars; 484 national and State banks and trust companies in the Federal Reserve system had loans and investments of 429,900,000 dollars and deposits of 403,600,000 dollars.

Receipts, 1928-29	109,012,353
Total	128,361,055
Disbursements, 1928-29	109,535,250
Balance, Aug. 31, 1929	18,825,805

The bonded debt, August 31, 1929, amounted to 4,002,200 dollars. In 1929 the total assessed value of all property was 4,210,105,462 dollars.

The National Guard on July 31, 1930, consisted of 586 officers, 10 warrant officers and 7,561 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Texas is one of the most important agricultural States of the Union. In 1925, it had 465,646 farms. Total value of all farm property in 1925 was 3,471,867,466 dollars. There are 2,950,488 acres of irrigable lands in Texas, of which around 850,000 acres are irrigated. The chief crops in 1930 were (in bushels) maize, 91,408,000; wheat, 28,270,000; oats, 46,640,000; rice, 8,463,000; potatoes, 3,674,000; sweet potatoes, 7,630,000. Cotton in 1930 covered 16,975,000 acres and yielded 4,100,000 bales. Other products are peanuts, pecans, grain sorghum (46,816,000 bushels, value 23,850,000 dollars), vegetables, and fruits (especially peaches, oranges, and grape-fruit). The State has a very great livestock industry; on January 1, 1930, it contained 682,000 horses, 1,011,000 mules, 974,000 milch cows, 5,677,000 other cattle, 5,550,000 sheep, and 1,028,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1929 amounted to 39,882,000 pounds; mohair produced in 1928, 12,330,000 pounds.

The chief mineral products are petroleum, sulphur, natural gas, cement, and quicksilver. In 1929, 298,441,000 barrels of petroleum were produced (in 1928, 257,320,000 barrels); natural gasoline or petrol, 422,300,000 gallons, valued at 25,930,000 dollars. Some quicksilver is produced; output in 1928 was 1,340,622 fine ounces. In 1928, Texas produced 301,990,000. M. cubic feet of natural gas; coal (1,000,000 short tons); cement (7,374,428 barrels); salt, sulphur, gypsum, granite, sandstone, and limestone are also produced. Western Texas has extensive undeveloped potash fields. Total value of mineral products in 1928, 378,616,955 dollars.

In 1927, there were in the State 4,065 manufacturing establishments with 116,763 wage-earners. The amount paid in wages was 130,408,661 dollars. The cost of material used was 842,927,286 dollars, and the value of the output was 1,206,579,962 dollars.

A large trade passes through the port of Galveston, which is by far the most important outlet for the cotton grown in the United States, and as a commercial port is now second only to New York. Imports in the calendar year 1929, 30,634,737 dollars; exports, 573,566,559 dollars. A permanent causeway over 2 miles in length now connects Galveston with the mainland. The steam railways in the State (January 1, 1929) have a total mileage of 16,727 miles (main lines). There are 1,518 miles of electric inter-urban railway in active operation in Texas. The State maintains 18,728 miles of highways, of which 10,749 miles are surfaced.

There are 1,047 miles of navigable water in the rivers of Texas. The long coast-line with its good harbour facilitates traffic by sea. The Houston Ship Channel (50 miles long), connecting Houston with the Gulf of Mexico, makes that city the largest inland cotton market of the world.

Texas had on December 31, 1929, 609 national banks with resources of 1,124,400,000 dollars, demand deposits of 543,969,000 dollars and time deposits of 190,410,000 dollars; 1,308 national and State banks and trust companies in the Federal Reserve system had loans and investments of 1,036,400,000 dollars, and deposits of 1,030,200,000 dollars.

UTAH.

Constitution and Government.—Utah, which had been acquired by the United States during the Mexican war, was, in 1847, settled by Mormons, and on Sept. 9, 1850, organised as a Territory. It was admitted as a State into the Union on Jan. 4, 1896.

The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives; but the Constitution provides for the initiative and referendum.

The Senate (in part renewed every two years) consists of 20 members, elected for four years; the House of Representatives has 55 members elected for two years. Qualified as electors are all citizens, male or female, who, not being idiots, insane or criminals, have resided one year in the State, four months in the county, and 60 days in the precinct preceding the election.

Governor.—Geo. H. Dern, 1931–33 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Milton H. Welling.

There are 29 counties in the State. The Capital is Salt Lake City.

Area and Population.—Area, 84,990 square miles, of which 2,806 square miles are water. The area of the Indian reservations in 1929 was 531 square miles, and the population, 1,553 Indians.

Census population on April 1, 1930, 507,847, an increase of 58,451, or 13 per cent. since 1920.

The population at the date of four preceding Federal censuses was :—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile	Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	205,925	4,854	210,779	2·6	1910	366,583	6,768	373,351	4·5
1900	272,465	4,284	276,749	3·4	1920	441,901	7,495	449,396	5·5

Marriages in 1928 were 5,844 ; divorces, 1,022 ; annulments, 31.

In 1920, the population by sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	227,232	834	2,543	1 442	232,051
Female . . .	214,669	612	795	1,269	217,345
Total . . .	441,901	1,446	3,338	2,711	449,396

Of the total in 1920, 56,455 (12·6 per cent.) were foreign-born whites, of whom 14,839 (26·0 per cent.) were English, 3,589 (6·4 per cent.) German, 3,029 (5·4 per cent.) Greek, 6,073 (10·8 per cent.) Swedes, 1,207 (2·1 per cent.) Irish, 6970 (12·3 per cent.) Danes, and 3,225 (5·7 per cent.) Italian. Of the total population in 1920, 48·0 per cent. were urban and 0·3 per cent. Negro.

The largest city is Salt Lake City with a population of 140,267 according to the census of 1930. Ogden had 40,272 ; Provo, 14,766 ; and Logan, 9,979.

Latter-Day Saints (Mormons) form about 91 per cent. of the Church membership of the State with 337,200 members in 1926 out of a total, for all denominations, of 369,591. There are Catholics (14,595), Protestant Episcopalians (3,837), Presbyterians, Methodists, and others in small numbers.

Instruction.—School attendance is compulsory for children from 8 to 16 years of age.

VIRGINIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first English Charter for settlements in America was that granted by James I. in 1606 for the planting of colonies in Virginia. The State was one of the thirteen original States in the Union. On the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, Virginia, after long hesitation, decided to join the seceding States, a course objected to by some in the western portion of the State, who set up a separate government which in 1863 was admitted into the Union as West Virginia.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 40 members elected for 4 years and a House of Delegates of 100 members, elected for 2 years.

Qualified as electors are (with few exceptions) all citizens 21 years of age, fulfilling certain residential qualifications, who have paid their State poll-taxes and registered.

The State sends to the Federal Congress 2 Senators and 10 Representatives.

Governor.—John G. Pollard, 1930–34 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Commonwealth.—M. A. Hutchinson.

The State Capital is Richmond.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 42,627 square miles, including 2,365 square miles water area. Census population on April 1, 1930, 2,421,851, an increase of 112,664, or 4·9 per cent. since 1920. Population for four Federal census years :—

1890	59,324	3,231	62,555	0·6	1910	140,318	5,647	145,965	1·5
1900	89,051	3,480	92,531	0·9	1920	190,146	4,256	194,402	2·0

State census population, 1925, 206,381. Of these, 202,303 were whites (112,292 males and 90,011 females); 969 negroes (588 males and 381 females); 1,160 Asiatics and 1,949 Indians.

In 1920, the population according to sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male	107,501	863	1,280	715	110,359
Female. . . .	82,645	512	258	628	84,043
Total . . .	190,146	1,375	1,538	1,343	194,402

In 1920, the foreign-born white population numbered 25,255 (or 13·0 per cent. of the total), of whom 2,292 were Germans, 2,505 English (9·9 per cent.), 1,438 Canadians, 1,236 Greek, 956 Irish, 1,948 Italians, 1,439 Scotch, and 2,042 Swedish. Of the total population in 1920, 29·5 per cent. were urban, and 0·7 per cent. Negro.

Marriages in 1928 were 1,808; divorces, 748; annulments, 8.

The Indian reservation within the State has (1929) an area of 3,120 square miles, and a population of 1,979.

The largest towns are Cheyenne (capital), with census population in 1930 of 17,361; Casper, with 16,619; Laramie with 8,609; Sheridan, with 8,536; Rock Springs, with 8,440.

The religious bodies with the most numerous membership are the Roman Catholic, with 18,772 members in 1926, Mormon (11,610), Methodist, (6,923), and Presbyterian. Total, all denominations, 62,975.

In 1930, the 1,497 public schools had 2,114 teachers, and 43,341 enrolled pupils; there were 141 accredited high schools with 637 teachers and 11,164 pupils. The University of Wyoming, founded at Laramie in 1887, had in 1930, 130 professors and instructors and 1,125 students. There is also a State Agricultural College at Laramie. Expenditure on elementary and secondary schools in the school year 1929-30 was 7,715,445 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—The cash receipts and disbursements of the State (exclusive of trust funds) for the year ending September 30, 1929, are given as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1928	4,435,175
Receipts for 1928-29	10,834,276
Total	15,269,451
Disbursements 1928-29	11,319,277
Balance, Sept. 30, 1929 . . .	3,950,174

On September 30, 1929, the bonded debt amounted to 1,790,000 dollars, and the assessed value of property in the State in 1929 to 447,954,091 dollars.

The National Guard on July 31, 1930, consisted of 49 officers, 1 warrant officer and 590 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Wyoming is semi-arid and agriculture is carried on by irrigation and by "dry farming." In 1925, there were 15,512 farms, with a total area of 18,663,308 acres, of which 1,877,879 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 240,396,413 dollars. Such crops as are grown consist of vegetables, cereals, and fruits. The value of the crops for 1930 was 28,571,000 dollars. The wool-clip (1929) yielded 26,000,000 pounds of wool. The domestic animals on January 1st, 1930, were 171,000 horses, 72,000 milch cows and 749,000 other cattle, 3,306,000 sheep, and 134,000 swine.

In 1929, 8,460,755 acres in the State, being 13 per cent. of its area, were national forest land. The State has numerous fish hatcheries which stock the streams with trout, and also possesses the largest elk herds in the world.

Wyoming is largely a coal-producing State. In 1929 the output of coal was 6,600,000 short tons; of petroleum, 19,190,000 barrels; of natural gasoline, 44,700,000 gallons; iron ore production, 639,477 long tons. Output of natural gas in 1928 was 47,490,600 M. cubic feet. The quarries yield limestone and sandstone, besides phosphate rock. Total value of mineral products in 1928 was 52,950,875 dollars.

Manufactures are mostly confined to production for local consumption.

In 1927 (according to Federal census results), the State had 224 industrial establishments; the wage-earners numbered 6,333, wages paid amounted to 10,526,253 dollars, the materials used cost 76,073,349 dollars, and the output amounted to 107,984,752 dollars.

In 1930, the steam railways in the State had a length of 1,991 miles.

The State highway system comprises 3,115 miles, of which 1,306 miles are surfaced. The system of motor stage route transportation is still common.

On June 30, 1930, Wyoming had 25 national banks with resources of 40,937,503 dollars, deposits of 34,248,972 dollars; 59 State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 12,032,202 dollars, and demand deposits of 13,316,639 dollars.

OUTLYING TERRITORIES.

ALASKA.

Government.—Alaska was purchased by the United States from Russia under the treaty of March 30, 1867, for 7,200,000 dollars. The Governor is appointed by the President of the United States for 4 years.

By Act of Congress approved August 24, 1912, Alaska became a Territory, with a legislative assembly consisting of 8 senators and 16 representatives. Congress reserved to itself the right to legislate on certain subjects, so that the Territory is now governed conjointly by Congress at Washington and by its local legislative assembly. The first session of the legislature convened at Juneau, the capital, on March 3, 1913, and continued in session 60 days. Regular sessions are held biennially Special sessions may be called by the Governor. The latter is appointed for four years by the President.

Governor—Geo. A. Parks, 1929-33 (7,000 dollars).
Secretary of Alaska—Karl Theile.

Area and Population.—The area of the territory is 590,884 square miles. The census population from 1900 to 1930 is shown as follows:—

Year	Population	Per Sq. Mile	Year	Population	Per Sq. Mile
1900	63,592	0·1	1920	55,036	0·1
1910	64,356	0·1	1930	58,758	0·1

Of the population in 1920, 34,539 were males and 20,497 females; 27,883 were whites and 26,558 were Indians, 56 Chinese, 312 Japanese, and 128 Negroes. About 20,000 people, employed in mines, canneries, and railway construction, spend a few months a year in Alaska, but these are not included in the enumeration.

The largest town is Juneau, the seat of Government, which had (census of 1930) a population of 4,037; the second largest is Ketchikan with a population of 3,786; other towns are Anchorage, 2,276; Fairbanks, 2,099; Petersburg, 1,249' Nome, 1,213 ; Sitka, 1,053 ; Cordova, 979 ; Wrangell, 916 ; Seward, 832 ; and Douglas, 593. There are altogether 18 incorporated towns.

Education, Justice.—In Alaska many religious missions are at work, representing very diverse denominations : Russian Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and others.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, there were 89 territorial white schools in Alaska with 5,066 enrolled pupils and 253 teachers During the school year 1929–30 there were 15 four-year high schools maintained. Total cost of instruction, 594,662 dollars. The Bureau of Education of the Federal government handles the education, hospitalisation and general care of the native population. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, there were 93 native schools in operation and 7 hospitals.

For the administration of justice the territory is constituted as a judicial district with 4 subdivisions and 4 courts.

Finance.—In the territory of Alaska there is no provision for taxation of real or personal property, except in municipalities where real estate and personal property may be taxed 2 per cent. for municipal purposes only. The revenues are derived from licences to conduct businesses.

For the year ended December 31, 1929, the revenue and expenditure were as follows :—

	Dollars.
Balance January 1, 1929 . . .	657,979
Receipts, 1929	1,287,285
Total	1,945,264
Disbursements, 1929	1,224,412
Balance December 31, 1929 . . .	720,852

The Territory has no funded debt.

Production and Industry.—In some parts of the territory the climate during the brief summer is not unsuitable for agricultural operations. There are agricultural experimental stations which are giving valuable demonstrations. In 1920, there were 364 farms with a total area of 90,652 acres, of which 5,736 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,808,641 dollars. About 1,280 reindeer have been introduced from Siberia, and the industry is thriving. There were (in 1930) approximately 600,000 reindeer in the country distributed in 78 herds and valued at 8,750,000 dollars. During 1929–30, 1,384,075 pounds of reindeer, valued at 141,195 dollars, were shipped from Alaska. In Northern and Western Alaska are 200,000 square miles of treeless region worthless for agriculture but capable of furnishing pasturage for 4,000,000 reindeer. About 275 blue fox ranches, stocked with 36,000 blue foxes, represent an investment of 6,850,000 dollars. Value of land fur-bearing animals shipped from Alaska in 1928 was 4,513,864 dollars.

The southern coastal section of Alaska contains large and readily accessible timber resources which maintain a considerable sawmill industry and are capable of supporting an immense pulp and paper development. This timber is largely included in two National Forests aggregating 21,345,925 acres and officially estimated to contain 84,760 million board feet of timber, 74 per cent. western hemlock and 20 per cent. Sitka spruce.

The chief industries of Alaska are salmon fishing and mining. In 1930, all the fisheries of Alaska employed 29,283 persons; the value of the products was 50,795,819 dollars.

The most important part of the salmon industry was salmon canning, in which in 1929 there were employed 24,271 persons; products were 5,370,159 cases, valued at 40,469,385 dollars. The number of salmon canneries operated in 1929 was 156.

The Government-owned fur-seal herd of the Pribilof Islands, administered by the Department of Commerce, comprises about 85 per cent. of the fur seals of the world. This herd in 1929 contained 971,527 animals; number of skins taken, 40,068.

Gold is worked in South-East Alaska, where a low-grade ore is found; in the interior on the Yukon river; and at Nome and other places on the west coast. The output of gold in 1929 was valued at 7,761,000 dollars; of silver, valued at 252,000 dollars; and of copper, valued at 7,130,000 dollars. Tin ore deposits near Cape Prince of Wales are of a high grade; lead, coal, petroleum, marble, gypsum, quicksilver and lode platinum metals are found. Total value of mineral output in 1916, 48,000,000 dollars; in 1926, 17,606,890 dollars; in 1927, 14,402,440 dollars; in 1928, 14,061,000 dollars; in 1929, 16,066,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The value of the domestic merchandise shipped from the United States to Alaska in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, amounted to 32,084,734 dollars, and from Alaska to the United States, 68,999,456 dollars. Merchandise from foreign ports amounted to 955,273 dollars and exports to foreign ports, 607,952 dollars, including gold and silver. In the calendar year 1929, 3,608 vessels of 1,038,739 tons entered the ports of Alaska in domestic and foreign trade, and 3,404 vessels of 954,923 tons cleared. The chief ports of shipment of the United States to Alaska are on Puget Sound.

There is a railway of 112 miles from Skagway to the town of White Horse (in the Canadian Yukon region); thence transport is by coach or airplane, or, in summer, by steamer. The Copper River and North Western Railway has completed a line (standard gauge) from Cordova to Kennecott, a distance of 197 miles. The Alaska railroad runs from Seward to Fairbanks, a distance of 467 miles (509 miles with branches). Alaska has 1,589 miles of wagon roads, 1,404 miles of sled roads, and 7,860 miles of trails. The Alaskan towns are connected with the United States and with Canada by telegraph. There are about 180 post-offices, and good mail services in the territory.

The territory had, on June 30, 1930, four National Banks and 13 territorial banks with a total capital of 915,000 dollars; surplus and net undivided profits, 935,300 dollars; deposits, 12,754,500 dollars.

There is a British Consul at Skagway.

HAWAII.

The Hawaiian Islands lie in the North Pacific Ocean, between 18° 54′ and 22° 15′ north latitude, and 154° 50′ and 160° 30′ west longitude. They are about 2,020 miles south-west of San Francisco, and are in the line of steamer travel between Victoria, B.C., and Australia and New Zealand.

Government.—The Hawaiian Islands (formerly known as the Sandwich Islands), celebrated in August, 1928, the 150th anniversary of their discovery by Captain James Cook, the English navigator. The islands formed during the greater part of the nineteenth century an independent kingdom, but in 1893 the reigning Queen, Liliuokalani (died November 11, 1917), was deposed and a provisional government formed; in 1894, a Republic was proclaimed, and in accordance with the request of the people of Hawaii expressed through the Legislature of the Republic, and a resolution of the United States Congress of July 6, 1898 (signed July 7 by President McKinley), the Islands were on August 12, 1898, formally annexed to the United States. On June 14, 1900, they were constituted as the Territory of Hawaii. The Organic Act has since been amended several times. There is a Legislature of two Houses, a Senate of 15 members elected for four years, and a House of Representatives of 30 members elected for two years. Sessions, limited to 60 days, are held biennially. In 1928 the registered voters numbered 46,058, including 18,952 Hawaiian and part Hawaiian, 8,964 American, and 687 British. The Governor and Secretary are appointed for four years by the President of the United States.

Governor.—Lawrence M. Judd, 1929–1933 (10,000 dollars).
Secretary of the Territory.—Raymond C. Brown.

The Territory is represented in Congress by a delegate elected biennially.

Area and Population.—The total area of the islands is 6,454 square miles. The principal islands of the group are Hawaii, 4,015; Maui, 728; Oahu, 598; Kauai, 547; Molokai, 261; Lanai, 139; Niihau, 97; Kahoolawe, 69. According to the census of 1930, the total population of the islands numbered 368,336, an increase of 112,424, or 43·8 per cent. since 1920. The Capital, Honolulu, on the Island of Oahu, has a population of 137,582 according to 1930 census, and Hilo, 19,468.

The estimated number of Hawaiians on June 30, 1929, was 20,479, and 27,285 part-Hawaiians. There are estimated to be 25,211 Chinese, 137,407 Japanese, 29,717 Portuguese, 63,869 Filipinos, 6,923 Porto Ricans, 1,851 Spanish, 38,006 Americans, British, Germans, and Russians, 6,393 Koreans, 508 others. Large numbers from the various racial groups were born in the islands, and are American citizens.

Religion and Education.—The Hawaiians are Christians. There is an American Protestant Episcopal bishop at Honolulu; also a Roman Catholic bishop, and ministers of various denominations.

Elementary education has always been free. The language in the schools is English. On June 30, 1930, there were 181 public schools with 2,563 teachers and 73,180 enrolled pupils; also 69 private schools with 581 teachers and 11,835 enrolled pupils. The pupils in public schools in 1930 were classed by ancestry as follows: Hawaiian, 3,321; part-Hawaiian, 7,679; Portuguese, 6,091; other Caucasians, 2,993; Porto Rican, 1,163; Spanish, 258; Filipinos, 3,344; Asiatic, 47,540; others, 791. In Hawaii there are, besides, a normal and training school, a reformatory industrial school for boys and one for girls, a territorial trade school, a school for the deaf and blind, a school for feeble-minded; also a territorial university (University of Hawaii, Honolulu), founded in 1907, with 77 instructors and 2,262 (including part-time summer session and extension student) students in 1930.

Justice.—Hawaii has a supreme court, circuit courts, a court of domestic relations, district courts, and a land registration court. The circuit judges sit also as juvenile courts. The judges of the supreme and circuit courts are appointed by the United States President; the district magistrates by the Chief Justice of Hawaii. There is also a United States District Court, the judges of which, and the U.S. Marshal, are appointed by the President.

Finance and Defence.—Revenue is derived mainly from taxation of real and personal property, income and inheritance taxes, licences, land sales and leases, waterworks and road, school and poll taxes. For the year ending June 30, 1929, the receipts and disbursements were to the following amounts:—

	Dollars
Balance June 30, 1928	6,898,086
Receipts, 1928-29	18,917,092
Total	25,815,178
Expenditure, 1928-29.	20,763,506
Balance, June 30, 1929	5,051,672

On June 30, 1929, the bonded debt amounted to 29,760,000 dollars. In 1930 the assessed value of property was 417,099,391 dollars.

On June 30, 1930, the Hawaiian National Guard contained 1,547 men, and 100 officers. The Federal Government, with a view to the protection of the Pacific coast and the control of the Panama Canal, has constructed extensive naval works at Pearl Harbour, about 7 miles from Honolulu, and military works at Honolulu and other places on the island of Oahu.

Production and Commerce.—In 1920, there were 5,284 farms with an acreage of 2,702,245, of which 435,242 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 151,129,085 dollars. Sugar and pineapples are the staple industries, while coffee, hides, bananas, and wool are also exported. For the year 1929, the sugar production amounted to 914,637 short tons, compared with 904,040 in 1928. The pineapple crop in 1930 totalled 12,000,000 cases. The forest reserves in the Territory now number 62, aggregating 979,299 acres.

For the year ending December 31, 1929, the imports amounted to 92,414,934 dollars, and the exports to 108,439,103 dollars. The shipments of merchandise from the United States to Hawaii for the year ending Dec. 31, 1929, amounted to 82,661,424 dollars, and those from Hawaii to the United States to 106,312,833 dollars, of which 61,914,504 dollars were for sugar, 38,694,150 dollars for fruits (mostly pineapples), 1,323,352 dollars for coffee.

The imports from the United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) in 1930 totalled £13,627, and the exports to the United Kingdom, £106,642.

Shipping and Communications.—Several lines of steamers connect the islands with the mainland of the United States, Canada, Australia, the Philippines, China, and Japan. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, 1,321 vessels of 10,142,247 tons entered ports of the islands. An inter-island steam navigation company with 14 steamers provides communication between the different islands. There are about 1,038 miles of railway in the islands, including 667 miles of plantation railways. There are telephones on the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, and Molokai. Honolulu is lighted by electricity and has lines of electric tramways. Wireless telegraphy is in operation between the islands for commercial purposes and for communication with vessels at sea and with the Pacific coast, and also with Japan. Hawaii is connected by cable with both shores of the Pacific. Commercial air services between the islands carried 6,257 passengers in the year ending June 30, 1930.

Twenty-nine banks were in operation on June 30, 1930. One is solely a savings bank, one solely commercial, and the remainder both commercial and savings banks. Total deposits in all banks, 1930, 80,174,749 dollars. On June 30, 1930, there were 162,611 savings bank accounts with total deposits of 33,942,357 dollars, representing 208 dollars to each depositor.

The Chinese, who constitute 7 05 per cent of the population, own 12 07 per cent. of the total savings deposits.

PORTO RICO.

Government.—Porto Rico, by the treaty of December 10, 1898 (ratified April 11, 1899), was ceded by Spain to the United States. Its constitution is determined by the 'Organic Act' of Congress (1917), known as the 'Jones Act.' Porto Rico has representative government, the franchise being restricted to citizens twenty-one years of age or over, residence (one year) and such additional qualifications as may be prescribed by the Legislature of Porto Rico, but no property qualification may be imposed. The executive power resides in a Governor appointed by the President of the United States. The legislative functions are vested in a Senate, composed of 19 members (2 from each of the 7 senatorial districts and 5 senators at large), and the House of Representatives, composed of 39 members (1 from each of the 35 representative districts and 4 elected at large). Porto Rico is represented in Congress by a Resident Commissioner to the United States elected by the people for a term of four years.

There are six heads of departments, who form a Council to the Governor, known as the Executive Council. The judiciary comprises an Attorney General and staff and a United States court appointed by the President; a Supreme Court of 5 members also appointed by the President; 8 District Courts with 11 Judges appointed by the Governor; and 36 municipal courts, the judges and officials of which, as well as the 57 justices of the peace, are appointed by the Governor.

Governor.—Theodore Roosevelt (10,000 dollars).

Executive Secretary.—E. J. Saldaña.

Area, Population and Education.—The Island has an area of 3,435 square miles, and a population, according to the census of April 1, 1930, of 1,543,913, or 449·5 per sq. mile

The population in 1920 was 1,299,809 or 378 4 per sq mile, distributed according to colour, as follows:—White, 948,709; black, 49,246; mulatto, 301,816; Chinese, 32; Japanese, 4; all other (Philippino and Hindu), 2. During the decade ending 1920 the white population increased by 29·5 per cent., while the black population decreased by 2 per cent., and the mulatto by 10 per cent. Of the working population, 63 per cent. were engaged in agriculture, fisheries, and mining; 21 per cent. in domestic and personal service; 8 per cent. in manufacturing industries; 8 per cent. in trade and transportation.

Chief towns, San Juan, 114,715 inhabitants (1930); Ponce, 53,430, Mayaguez, 37,060.

In 1899, the school system was reorganised and education was made compulsory. In 1930, there were 4,690 class-rooms in 2,250 school-buildings, with 221,248 pupils enrolled; and a well-distributed system of night schools and kindergartens There are also a number of private schools. The University of Porto Rico, established in Rio Piedras, 7 miles from San Juan, is open to both men and women. In 1929, the percentage of illiteracy was 35.

Finance.—Receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30, 1930:—

	Dollars.
Balance, July 1, 1929	816,555
Receipts, 1929-30	13,283,791
Total	14,100.346
Disbursements, 1929-30	13 698.468
Balance, July 1, 1930	401,878

The assessed value of property on June 30, 1930, was 345.795,012 dollars. The total outstanding bonded indebtedness is 25,353,000 dollars.

The police force consists of 788 men, and the National Guard (on June 30, 1930) of 86 officers and 1,431 enlisted men.

Production, Industry and Commerce.—The cultivated land in 1920 was divided into 41,078 holdings, having a total area of 2,022,404 acres, of which 1,303,547 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 179,392,511 dollars. The chief products of the island are sugar, tobacco, coffee, pineapples, grape fruit, oranges, and other tropical fruits, sea island cotton, textile fibres, bat guano, phosphate, and vegetables, and the principal industries are manufactures of cigars, cigarettes, hats, embroideries, drawn-work, &c. Sugar crops for three years: 1928, 748,677 tons; 1929, 586,760 tons; and 1930, 866,110 tons. Sugar exported in 1930 amounted to 721,277 tons, valued at 53,670,038 dollars. In 1930, 145,566,000 cigars were exported and 26,037,750 pounds of leaf and scrap tobacco, valued at 11,916,505 dollars. Exports of coffee, 433,901 pounds, were valued at 151,550 dollars, in 1930. Orange exports in 1930 amounted to 628,541 dollars; fresh pineapples to 1,743,862 dollars; grape fruit, a comparatively new product, amounted to 3,621,700 dollars.

There is no established mining enterprise, but gold, silver, iron, copper, bismuth, tin, mercury, platinum and nickel are found in the island. There are very productive salt works.

In the calendar year 1929, the imports into Porto Rico amounted to 87,997,875 dollars (United States merchandise amounting to 76,269,279 dollars). The exports in the same year were valued at 83,234,375 dollars (78,116,574 dollars to the United States). Imports from the United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) for calendar year 1930, £102,896; exports to United Kingdom, £125,490.

Shipping and Communications.—In 1929-30, 2,336 American and foreign vessels entered and cleared Porto Rico from the United States and foreign countries.

There are over 1,160 miles of road in the Island, and about 356 miles of railway. The railway system connects towns on the west coast and now almost encircles the Island, and penetrates the interior. There are 2,580 miles of postal (government) telephone and telegraph wire. There are 98 post offices, 85 telegraph stations and four wireless stations.

The Porto Rican island of Vieques, 13 miles to the east, is about 21 miles long and 6 miles broad, and has 10,582 inhabitants, who grow sugar and rear cattle. The island is fertile and healthy. The island of Culebra, between Porto Rico and St. Thomas, has a good harbour.

VIRGIN ISLANDS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Government.—The Virgin Islands of the United States, formerly known as the Danish West Indies, were purchased by the United States from Denmark, for 25,000,000 dollars, in a treaty ratified by both nations and proclaimed January 25, 1917. Under an Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1917, known as the Organic Act, all military, civil, and judicial powers were vested in a Governor, appointed by the President of the United States, with the advice of the Senate; the Danish code of laws, dated April 6, 1906 (along with Tax and Customs laws) was continued in effect except where incompatible with the new sovereignty. Danish citizens residing in the islands were permitted to declare their Danish citizenship before a court of record; failing to do that, they were held to have accepted citizenship in the United States.

The islands comprise two municipalities, viz.: the Municipality of St. Thomas and St. John, and the Municipality of St. Croix. The legislative functions are vested in the Colonial Council of each Municipality, that of St. Croix being composed of 13 members elected by popular elections and of 5 members appointed by the Governor; and that of St. Thomas and St. John consisting of 11 elected members and 4 appointed by the Governor. The members serve for 4 years. The franchise is vested in every man of unblemished character who has resided in the islands for 5 years, who has attained the age of 25 years, and has an income of at least 1,500 francs a year. The Government is strictly civil, under the U S. Department of the Interior. On February 25, 1927, full American citizenship was granted to the natives. About 95 per cent. of the population is Negro.

There are eight heads of Department, who form the Governor's cabinet. There is one Judge of the District Court for the Virgin Islands, and four Police Courts, presided over by magistrates.

Governor.—Capt. Waldo Evans, U.S.N. (Ret.).

Government Secretary.—Capt. H. G. Neill (S.C.), U.S. Navy.

Area, Population and Education.—The Virgin Islands group, lying about 60 miles due east of Porto Rico, between the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea, comprises in the main the Islands of St. Thomas (28 square miles), St. Croix (84 square miles), and St. John (20 square miles). The total area is 132 square miles.

The population, according to the census of April 1, 1930, is 22,012, compared with 26,051 in 1917. Lack of employment has caused persistent emigration to the United States and other islands of the West Indies. The populations of each of the islands are 9,834, 11,413, and 765. The islands contain 3 towns, St. Thomas (formerly Charlotte Amalie), on the island of St. Thomas, with a population of 7,036; and Christiansted and Frederiksted, on the island of St. Croix, with populations of 3,767 and 2,698 respectively. Education is compulsory. In St. Thomas there are 9 public and 5 private and parochial schools, 1,883 pupils and 54 teachers; and in St. John there are 5 public schools with an enrolment of 164 pupils and 9 teachers. In St. Croix there are 9 public schools and 6 private and parochial schools; total enrolment, 2,091 with 50 teachers.

Finance.—Revenues are derived from customs, export tax on sugar, income tax, real and personal property tax, trade tax, pilotage charges, &c. Estimated revenue for fiscal year ending June 30, 1931: 1,366,370 francs. Expenditures are estimated at 11,000,000 dollars (U.S.). The annual deficit in the operation of the government is met by appropriations by the Congress of the United States. Danish West Indian currency is legal tender.

Production and Industry.—The census of 1930 shows 254 farms in St. Croix, 93 in St. Thomas and 63 in St. John, a total of 410. St. Thomas is the leading port in the Virgin Islands with coaling and oil-fuelling stations. The Island of St. John is noted for its bay oil, and St. Thomas for the finished product of bay rum. Prohibition in the United States has crippled the rum trade and depressed the bay rum industry. St. Croix's chief industries are agricultural—mainly cane- and cattle-raising. A plant for manufacturing industrial alcohol has recently been erected in the island of Saint Croix.

Exports to the United States in the calendar year 1929 were 603,323 dollars; imports from the United States, 2,298,269 dollars. Exports to United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) for 1930, nil; imports from United Kingdom, £8,520.

Communication.—The Bermuda and West Indies Steamship Co., Ltd., and the Western Ocean Steamship Corporation maintain regular semi-monthly passenger and freight services from New York to St. Thomas, St. Croix and lower islands. The Ocean Dominion Steamship Co. operates a monthly service from New York to St. Thomas, St. Croix and Leeward Islands. Several companies operate regular service from New York to San Juan, Porto Rico, whence frequent steamer service may be had to ports in the Virgin Islands. There is a weekly air-mail service with Continental United States. There are powerful radio stations at St. Thomas and St. Croix and cable offices also.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

These islands, ceded by Spain to the United States by the treaty of peace concluded between the United States and Spain on April 11, 1899, form the largest island group of the Malay Archipelago, and extend almost due north and south from Formosa to Borneo and the Moluccas, embracing an extent of 16° of latitude and 9° of longitude.

Governor-General.—Dwight F. Davis, assumed office, July 8, 1929.

Government.—The Governor-General is appointed by the President of the United States, with the consent of the Senate. Under him are the secretaries of six executive departments, who, with the exception of the Vice-Governor (appointed by the President) who acts as Secretary of Public Instruction, must all be Filipinos. Members of the cabinet may appear before the legislature and speak on matters pertaining to their departments. The Governor-General may veto any Bill containing an appropriation; if passed again over his veto, the bill goes to the President of the United States for final action. The United States Congress has power to annul any Act of the Legislature, but has never exercised it.

The legislature consists of the Senate (24 members) and the House of Representatives (with 94 members). All are elected by popular vote, with the exception of nine representatives and two senators, who are appointed by the Governor General to represent certain districts. Suffrage is enjoyed by all males 21 years of age or older who formerly exercised the right or, failing that, have property of at least 500 pesos value, and can read or write Spanish, English, or a native language. Registered voters number about 1,140,000.

A Council of State, created by Executive Orders in 1918 and 1928, forms the connecting link between the executive and the legislative branches. It is composed of the Governor-General, as President, the Presidents of both houses of the Legislature, the leaders of the majority parties in both houses and the six Secretaries of the Departments. Its purpose is to advise the Governor-General on such matters of public policy as he may lay before it.

The provincial and municipal governments are supervised by the Department of the Interior through the Executive Bureau and the Bureau of Non-Christian Tribes, the latter exercising authority over nine special provinces. Each province has a provincial governor. He and two other members form the provincial board, which constitutes the legislative branch. All three offices are usually filled by popular vote, though in certain provinces the provincial governors are appointed and the third members of the provincial boards are elected by the executives of the municipal units. Each town or municipality has a president and a municipal council of from four to eight councillors, depending upon the annual income of the municipality. The president, the vice-president and the councillors are all elected by popular vote except in some municipalities of the special provinces where the presidents are appointed. On December 31, 1928, there were 494 Americans and 19,606 Filipinos in Government service.

Area and Population.—The group is composed of 7,083 islands and islets, of which only 466 have areas of one square mile or over. The eleven most important islands are Luzon, with an area of 40,814 square miles; Mindanao, 36,906 square miles; Samar, 5,124 square miles; Negros, 4,903 square miles; Palawan, 4,500 square miles; Panay, 4,448 square miles; Mindoro, 3,794 square miles; Leyte, 2,799 square miles; Cebu, 1,695 square miles; Bohol, 1,534 square miles; and Masbate, 1,255 square miles.

The total population was estimated in 1930 at 12,204,100. Philippine Census of 1918 gave 10,314,310, chiefly of Malay race, 91 per cent. of whom are Christians, and only 932,953, or 9 per cent., are Moros and Pagans, though these are fast taking advantage of the all-pervading system of public schools. The population of Manila, the capital and the leading commercial and industrial centre, was 285,306, of whom 259,437 were Filipinos, 17,760 Chinese, 1,612 Japanese, 2,916 Americans, 2,050 Spaniards, 664 English, 201 Germans, 121 French, 71 Swiss, and the rest of other nationalities. About 1,500,000 have some knowledge of English and about 660,000 some knowledge of Spanish; for Government and commercial purposes these two languages are used.

Other towns with their estimated present population, including suburbs, are: Iloilo on Panay, 67,143; Cebu on Cebu, 86,152; Legaspi (formerly Albay), 33,048; Laoag, 40,879; Vigan, 19,939; Naga, 9,468 (all on Luzon); and Zamboanga on Mindanao, 47,302. Baguio, in the Mountain Province, is the summer capital, corresponding to Simla in India, and has a population of 8,449.

Movement of population in 1928: births, 422,716; deaths, 218,096; marriages, 72,639.

Justice and Defence.—The judiciary consists of a supreme court, with a chief justice (a Filipino) and eight associate justices (three Filipinos); 28 judicial districts, each with a judge of first instance, except eight districts which have 2 judges each, and one, covering the city of Manila, which has six judges. In addition there are twenty-five auxiliary judges of first instance. There are justices of the peace for the various municipalities and municipal districts. Manila has a municipal court of 3 judges. The Bureau of Justice is headed by the Attorney-General, aided by the Solicitor-General and assistants; under the Bureau is a fiscal or prosecuting attorney for each province.

Public order is maintained through the municipal police and the Philippine Constabulary, latter consisting of 398 officers (28 Americans) and 6,331 enlisted men, distributed at 157 stations throughout the Archipelago. Expenditures on the Constabulary totalled 2,583,590 dollars in 1928. The United States maintains a force of about 11,000 troops of the United States Army, including 6 regiments of Filipino soldiers.

Religion.—The dominant religion of the islands is the Roman Catholic (8,823,163 adherents). In 1902, an independent Filipino Church was founded which adheres to modern science, proclaims that science is superior to Biblical tradition, denies the possibility of miracles, and conceives God as an invisible Father with one essence and a single person. The ritual resembles somewhat that of the Roman Church. Latin was originally prescribed, but the Spanish language is now the official tongue, and encouragement is given to the vernacular dialects. Marriage is allowed to its apostles. According to the Government Census of 1918, the Independent Filipino Church had 1,417,448 followers, but in the last Church Census its followers numbered 4,000,000. Several Protestant denominations have extensive organisations and have many communicants, probably more than 200,000. They co-operate in maintaining a Union Theological Seminary, the Philippine Council of Religious Education, and a National Christian Council, which forwards reform movements, evangelistic campaigns, etc. The Buddhist religion is professed by 24,263 men and women, while the Mahommedans number 443,037, and are chiefly to be found in the districts of Mindanao and Sulu.

Education.—Education in the public schools of the Philippines is free, secular, and co-educational, its principal aim being the spread of literacy on the basis of a common language, English. In September, 1928, there was an annual enrolment of 1,111,509 pupils in the 7,348 public schools, with 293 American and 25,958 Filipino teachers. The expenditure on public-school education for 1928 was 9,484,549 dollars (insular only, excluding provincial and municipal). There are a number of special schools, including the Philippine Normal School, and nine provincial normal schools; the Philippine School of Arts and Trades, and 22 provincial trade schools; the Central Luzon Agricultural School, 29 provincial agricultural schools, together with some 275 farm settlement schools; the Philippine Nautical School, the Philippine School of Commerce and the School for the Deaf and the Blind. For higher education there is the State-supported University of the Philippines, with 550 professors, 1928-29, and 5,698 students in the collegiate departments and 1,800 in the other departments; and 26 accredited private institutions of higher learning—among them the University of Sto. Tomas, founded in 1611, the oldest university under the American flag—giving collegiate instruction in liberal arts and sciences and in technical courses. There are in all 351 separate private schools of all grades of instruction accredited by the Government. The total enrolment in these approved private schools and colleges in 1929 was over 90,000, and the total number of instructors and teachers was about 3,916.

On January 1, 1929, there were 172 newspapers and periodicals published n English and other languages.

Finance.—The revenues and expenditures of the central government for five fiscal years were:—

—	1924	1925	1926	1927	1928
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenues	37,879,218	41,715,375	39,808,463	39,842,983	44,056,612
Expenditure	33,615,336	34,436,880	38,090,577	39,184,749	42,015,970

The total bonded debt on December 31, 1928, amounted to 83,408,500 dollars, plus 5,210,000 for provinces and municipalities. Sinking fund, 21,759,105 dollars. The total debt service in 1928 amounted to 5,087,157 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The principal products are rough rice ('palay'), Manila hemp ('abacá'), coconut, sugar cane, corn, tobacco and maguey. There are 41 sugar centrals; output in 1926–27 was 543,808 metric tons; 1927–28,574,715 tons; 1928–29, 699,699 tons. Much uneasiness exists over the efforts of American beet sugar producers to have a tariff placed on Philippine sugar. The principal fruit is the banana; there are also mangoes, papaya, anonas, pilinut (Canarium commune), and mandarin and oranges. Production of rice in 1928 was 2,112,800 metric tons. The cultivation of rubber is increasing yearly, especially in the southern provinces where the large plantations are located; output, 1927, 292 tons, 1928, 309 tons, and 1929, 312 tons.

In the production of copra and coconut oil the Islands are classed among the foremost countries in the world. During the year 1929, there were produced 483,442 metric tons of copra and 191,054 tons of coconut oil.

The live-stock industry is increasing steadily. On December 31, 1927, there were: 1,888,137 carabaos (water buffaloes); 1,069,462 cattle; 317,672 horses and mules; 9,798,064 hogs; 1,409,625 goats and 367,745 sheep.

The areas of uncultivated land are very considerable. The Archipelago has a total area of 71,111,040 acres, and of these only 8,896,584 acres, or 12 per cent., are cultivated, the remainder being distributed as follows: commercial forest lands, 39,285,220 acres; non-commercial forests, 7,198,300 acres (forests thus accounting for 63·5 per cent. of the total area); grass or bare lands, 13,451,565 acres; mangrove swamps, 650,083 acres; unexplored lands, 2,947,540 acres.

The commercial forests furnish chiefly cabinet and construction timber, but also gums and resins, vegetable oils, rattan and bamboo, tan and dye barks and dye woods. About 98 per cent. of this belongs to the Government. Exports of logs and sawn timber, 1928, totalled 85,897,736 board feet.

Gold is the only mineral produced in commercial quantities. Output in 1929, 151,757 ounces valued at 3,137,100 dollars. Some silver and a small amount of platinum are recovered from the gold mining operations. Chromite has been discovered in Zambales. The small iron production is consumed entirely in the manufacture of native agricultural implements. The total value of mineral production in 1928 was 6,359,000 dollars, in 1927, 4,578,500 dollars.

All manufacturing is carried on in small factories; the only exceptions are 37 sugar mills, 6 cocoanut oil mills, 7 dessicated cocoa factories and 3 large cigar and cigarette factories.

Commerce.—Free trade exists between the United States and the Philippines, but the American Congress has placed a tariff of about 20 per cent. on foreign imports into the Philippines. The values of imports and exports for fiscal years ending June 30 are stated as follows in U.S. dollars (50 cents U.S. currency = 1 peso):—

	1924	1925	1926	1927	1928	1929
Imports .	95,376 514	117,231,665	117,037,112	117,851,858	124,943,942	146,326,860

Exports to United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) for calendar year 1930, £1,742,988; imports from United Kingdom, £751,013. These totals include Guam.

Shipping and Communications.—The overseas trade of the Philippine Islands during the year ending June, 1929, was carried mainly by 265 American vessels aggregating 1,333 544 registered net tons, 421 British with 1,503,110 net tons, 167 Japanese with 507,238 net tons, 131 German with 567,972 net tons, 94 Dutch with 349,565 net tons, 42 Philippine with 104,163 net tons, and 146 vessels of other nationalities, making a total of 1,266 vessels with a net tonnage of 4,687,930 entered direct from foreign countries. The coastwise trade of the Islands is carried exclusively by domestic vessels.

On January 1, 1929, there were in operation, 965 post-offices, 592 money-order offices, 8,354 miles of insular telegraph lines, and 655 miles of cable, with 462 telegraph offices, including 45 radio stations, with 509 combined telephone-telegraph stations. At the same time there were 962 postal savings banks in operation, with 289,145 accounts. The amount of deposits in the banks on January 1, 1929, was 8,092,516 pesos (Philippine currency).

When the United States entered the islands in 1898 there was but a single line of narrow gauge track running between Manila and Dagupan, a distance of about 120 miles. At the end of 1929, the Manila Railroad Co. had 66·5 miles on Luzon, and the Philippine Railroad Co. had 132 miles on Panay and Cebu. The Government has taken over the former of these companies. Total length of roads, 7,385 miles of which 3,956 miles are first-class, 2,071 second-class and remainder third-class. Besides the foregoing roads there were 3,110 miles of foot and horse trails. January 1, 1929, there were 19,778 motor cars and 9,070 trucks registered.

Banking and Coinage.—There are twelve banks doing business in the Islands. Four are foreign: the International Banking Corporation, the Hong-Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China and the Yokohama Specie Bank. Combined resources of all banks on June 30, 1929, was 153,913,000 dollars; deposits, 83,290,000 dollars. The Philippine National Bank was inaugurated, under a special charter granted by the Philippine Legislature, on May 2, 1916. The Government has now purchased all the privately-owned shares of stock of the bank and guarantees the final redemption and payment of the circulating notes of the institution. Since July 1, 1916, the Bank has been the sole Government depository. This bank and the Bank of the Philippine Islands, founded 1852, are the only ones that have the privilege of issuing notes.

The Philippines is on the gold-exchange standard.

The coins used in the Philippine Islands are of the following decimal denominations: Peso, one-half peso, peseta (20 centavos), media peseta (10 centavos), all in silver; five centavo, in nickel; and one centavo, in copper. Treasury certificates and bank notes are issued in one, two, five, ten, twenty, fifty, one-hundred, two-hundred, and five-hundred peso denominations. The Philippine peso is equivalent to fifty cents of the United States money. The maintenance of the parity of the peso with the gold is provided for by the Gold Standard Fund Act of June 13, 1922. The new peso now coined contains twenty grammes of silver, 800 fine. The Philippine coins are now coined at the Mint in Manila. Gold coins of the United States are legal tender for all debts, public and private, unless otherwise provided in the contract.

GUAM

The Island of Guam, situated at the southern extremity of the Mariana Archipelago, in latitude 13° 26′ N, longitude 144° 43′ E, is the largest island of that group. It was ceded by Spain to the United States by the Treaty of Paris (December 10, 1898). It is a Naval Station and saluting port under the jurisdiction of the Navy Department of the United States. A garrison of marines and a shore naval force are maintained here.

The length of the island is 32 miles, the breadth from 4 to 10 miles, and the area 210 square miles. Agaña, the seat of Government, is about eight miles from the anchorage in Apra Harbour. The port of entry is Piti. The number of inhabitants (including the military establishment and non-native residents) on June 30, 1930, was 19,139, of whom 17,437 were classed as 'natives.' The number of births in the fiscal year 1930 was 830, representing 43·3 per 1,000, and the number of deaths 390, representing 20 4 per 1,000 of population. The native language is Chamorro, but Spanish and English are also spoken. English is the official language.

The Governor of the island, a naval officer appointed by the President, takes precedence over and is entitled to the honours due to an Admiral. The Governor is also the Military Commander of the island, Commandant of the naval station, and combines the functions of the executive, legislative and judicial power of the Government. The judiciary system comprises one police court, an Island Court, a Court of Equity, a Higher Court of Equity, and one Court of Appeal. The Spanish Colonial laws, modified when necessary by executive general orders of the Governor, are still in force.

Elementary education is compulsory. There are 3,683 pupils registered, 2,818 of whom are of school age (7 to 12). English, handicrafts and agriculture are taught.

There is a Government radio station on the island, which is also in cable telegraphic communication with all parts of the world. There is an irregular mail service per westbound U.S. army and navy transports, from San Francisco, via Honolulu, and to Manila.

A line of commercial steamers, with scheduled sailings from San Francisco every 90 days, stops at Guam westbound en route to Manila. The station ship makes about four trips a year to Manila, China, and Japan for freight and coal.

The port is closed to foreign vessels of war and commerce except in special cases. Permission to visit the island must be obtained of the Navy Department in each case.

The products of the island are maize, copra, rice, sweet potatoes, coffee, cocoa, and sugar, besides valuable timber. Copra and coconut oil are the principal exports. There are about 4,500 head of cattle, including 980 water buffaloes. The imports into the island in the year ending June 30, 1930, amounted to 603,260 dollars, and the exports to 200,593 dollars.

The official currency is that of the United States.

SAMOAN ISLANDS.

(American Samoa.)

The history of American Samoa commenced in the year 1872, when the harbour of Pagopago, in Tutuila, was ceded to the United States for a naval and coaling station. In 1878 rights of freedom of trade and extra-territorial jurisdiction in Samoa were granted. On June 14, 1889, a treaty between the United States, Germany, and Great Britain proclaimed the Samoan Islands neutral territory, with an independent government, the natives being allowed to follow their own laws and customs, while for civil and criminal causes involving foreigners a Supreme Court of Justice, with an American citizen as presiding judge, was established. This arrangement continued till 1899, when owing to disturbances, the kingship was abolished, and, by the Tripartite Treaty of November 14 of that year, Great Britain and Germany renounced in favour of the United States all rights over the islands of the Samoan group east of 171 degrees of longitude west of Greenwich, the islands to the west of that meridian being assigned to Germany.

The total area of American Samoa is 60 square miles and according to the 1930 census, contained 10,055 inhabitants. The Island of Tutuila 70 miles from Apia, has an area of about 40·2 square miles, with a population of 9,768 (including the island of Aunu'u) according to the 1930 census. Ta'u has an area of 14 square miles, and the other islets (Ofu and Olosega) of the Manu'a group have an area of about 4 square miles with a population of 2,069. Swain's Island, annexed in 1925, is from a mile and a half to two miles in diameter. Population (1930) is 99. The harbour at Pagopago, which penetrates the south coast like a fiord, is the only good harbour in Samoa. It is a United States naval station.

The Commandant is also the Governor of American Samoa by commission from the President of the United States. He appoints officers and frames laws or ordinances, but native customs (not inconsistent with United States laws) are not changed without the consent of the people.

The islands are organised in three political divisions corresponding to the old Samoan political units. In each District there is a Native Governor, County Chiefs and Village Chiefs. All of these officials are appointed by governmental authority although the District Governor has indirect control of the County Chiefs, and the County Chiefs of the Village Chiefs. Judicial power is vested in village courts, in six judicial district courts, and in a High Court. There is a native guard (known as the Fitafitas) of 70.

There are no public lands in American Samoa. Nearly all the land is owned by natives. The soil is fertile; the fruits comprise orange, lime, banana, mangoes and alligator pears. Copra of excellent quality is abundant.

The Government maintains public schools, giving every child over 6 years of age the opportunity of an elementary English education: 2,118 pupils are enrolled. All private schools must teach English a percentage of the time. There are four parochial schools under missionary auspices having, in all, six white and six Samoan teachers and about 350 children of all ages; instruction is chiefly in Samoan.

The native taxes, both poll and school, are fixed by the Board of Assessors in November, payable before the following June 30. The annual output of copra is between 1,000 and 1,700 tons. The chief island products, besides copra, are taro, breadfruit, yams, coconuts, pine-apples, oranges, and bananas. Copra is the only article exported. Imports: 1929, 215,803 dollars. Exports: 1929, 170,756 dollars.

About 30 miles of public roads have been constructed. There is a United States Naval high-powered radio station (open to commercial traffic) on Tutuila, which reaches New Zealand, Australia, Honolulu, the United States, and the islands of the Pacific. The fast mail steamers of the Matson Navigation Company touch here on their regular trips between the United States, Hawaii and Australia.

PART THE THIRD

OTHER COUNTRIES

ABYSSINIA.

(Ethiopia.)

The ancient Empire of Abyssinia, or 'Ethiopia,' includes the former Kingdoms of Tigré, in the north-east; Amhara and Gojjam, in the centre, and Shoa in the south; besides many other smaller and formerly independent or quasi-independent dependencies, together with the modern acquisitions to the south, Harrar, and the Galla, Shankalla and Dankali territories. The following are the principal provinces into which the country is divided: Harrar, Wollo, Gurage, Kaffa, Gore, Sayu, Benishangul, Wogera, Southern Tigré, Adowa and Aksun, Sokota, Lasta, Goffa, Nekemti (Lekempti) and the Western Galla countries, Sellale, Wollaga, Gimira, Sidamo, Arussi, Borana, Gojjam, Gondar, Jimma. The whole area is 350,000 sq. miles. For treaties relating to the boundaries of Abyssinia see The Statesman's Year-Book for 1907, p. 667, and for 1923, p. 677.

By the convention of Addis Ababa of October 26, 1896, between Italy and King Menelik, the independence of Abyssinia was recognized.

Under an Agreement signed December 13, 1906, on behalf of Great Britain, France, and Italy, the three Powers undertake to respect and endeavour to preserve the integrity of Abyssinia; to act so that industrial concessions granted in the interest of one of them may not injure the others; to abstain from intervention in Abyssinian internal affairs; to concert together for the safeguarding of their respective interests in territories bordering on Abyssinia; and they make agreements concerning railway construction in Abyssinia and equal treatment in trade and transit for their nationals. By an exchange of Notes dated December 14–20, 1925, Great Britain and Italy more specifically defined their respective spheres of interest in Abyssinia, as indicated in the above agreement; in particular Italy recognised the exclusive right of Great Britain to deal with the waters of Lake Tsana, while Great Britain agreed not to oppose any Italian scheme for railway development in the hinterland of Eritrea or Italian Somaliland, which may affect Abyssinia.

On August 2, 1928, Italy and Abyssinia signed a treaty of friendship and arbitration (the first of the kind ever made by Abyssinia), providing for arbitration in all disputes for a period of 20 years. A further agreement was signed at the same time whereby Abyssinia was granted a free zone at the port of Arrat in Eritrea; provision was also made for the construction of a motor road from that port to Dessis in Abyssinia.

Government.

Emperor.—Haile Silassie I., born July 17, 1891; crowned King (Negus) on October 7, 1928, and proclaimed Emperor, after the death of the Empress Zauditu, on April 3, 1930. Married Waizeru Menen in 1912, and has 2 sons and 3 daughters. On January 25, 1931, the eldest son, Asfaou Wosan was proclaimed Crown Prince and heir to the throne.

After the overthrow of the Emperor Theodore by the British in 1868, the suzerain power passed to Prince Kassai of Tigré, who assumed the old title of Negusa Nagast ('King of Kings'), and was crowned in 1872 as John II., Emperor of Ethiopia. After the death of this potentate in 1889, Menelik II., King of Shoa (born 1844), became the supreme ruler of Abyssinia. Menelik died in December, 1913, and was succeeded by Lij Yasu, born in 1896, son of his second daughter, Waizeru Shoaragga and Ras Mikael, the chief of the Wollo Gallas.

On September 27, 1916, Lij Yasu was deposed by public proclamation, and Zauditu, another daughter of Menelik, was nominated Empress and "Queen of Kings of Ethiopia," and Ras Taffari, son of Ras Makonnen, and great-nephew of Menelik, proclaimed heir to the throne.

Abyssinia was admitted into the League of Nations on September 28, 1923.

Population.

No reliable figures of population exist, but recent estimates indicate a figure of about 10,000,000. The Abyssinians, properly so called, number rather less than 3 millions, and inhabit the provinces of Tigré, Amhara, Gojjam, and Shoa (in part), covering an area of over one-third of the whole country. They are Christians, and are of Hamitic origin, semiticized by waves of Semitic invasion from Arabia and adulterated by intermarriage with Negro and other conquered races. The Gallas, some of whom are Christian, some Moslem, and some Pagan, comprise more than two-thirds of the entire population, and are a pastoral and agricultural people of Hamitic origin. Ogaden, Issa and other Somalis inhabit Harrar, the Somaliland plateau, and the south-east. The Danakil are Mohammedans, and are still somewhat turbulent. There are also Negroes (in the South-West), and the Falashas (of Jewish religion), in the N.-E. centre with a growing number of foreigners (Indians, Arabs, Armenians, Europeans) in the towns.

There are few towns in Abyssinia in our sense of the word—Addis Ababa, Dire Dawa and Harrar being the most important. Addis Ababa, the capital, has 60,000 to 70,000 inhabitants with a foreign population of several thousands, of whom the majority are British Indian and British Arab subjects, Greeks and Armenians. Dire Dawa contains about 30,000 people, of whom about 300 are Europeans, and the old walled city of Harar has a population of about 40,000, with about 100 foreigners, mostly Indians and Arabs. Other important towns, politically or commercially, are: Debra Markos, capital of Gojjam, 5,000; Gondar, capital of Amhara, 3,000; Adua, capital of Tigré, 5,000; Axum, ancient capital of Ethiopia, 5,000; Antalo, former capital of Tigré, 1,000; Ankober, former capital of Shoa, 2,000; Debra-Tabor and Makallé; Gore, Saiyu, Nekemti, Sameré 3,000–4,000, and Sokoto, 1,500, important trading centres. Gambeila, in Western Abyssinia, is a trading station leased to the Sudan Government. It is an important outlet for the trade in the West. A service of steamers is maintained from June to November with Khartum.

Domestic slavery is a recognized institution, but slave trading, by an ancient law renewed by a decree issued in June 1923, is punishable by death. A comprehensive edict of 45 clauses was issued in March 1924 providing for the gradual emancipation of slaves, beginning with the children born of slaves.

Religion and Education.

Since the conversion of the Abyssinians to Christianity in the fourth century they have retained their connection with the Alexandrian Church through the Abuna, or head bishop, who is always a Copt, and who is appointed and consecrated by the Coptic Patriarch of Alexandria. Under the Abuna is the Itchege, a native ecclesiastical dignitary, who presides over the spirituality, numbering about 100,000 ecclesiastics. In addition to the Itchege, who was consecrated bishop in January 1930, there are four other Abyssinian bishops, who were consecrated as such by the Coptic Patriarch in 1929. Their consecration was a great innovation, as hitherto no Abyssinian priest had been consecrated a bishop. It is estimated that a quarter of the adult male population are priests, monks, or debtera (deacons), and a third of the land belongs to the Church. Both Copts and Abyssinians are monophysite, rejecting the decrees of the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451).

Education is mostly in the hands of the priests and monks, but a number of secular schools have been founded in recent years. There are 4 at Addis Ababa, 2 at Harar, and others at Jijiga, Gore, Sidamo, and Dessie. In addition, a few foreign missions, Swedish, American French, Italian and German, carry on a limited amount of educational work. The Greeks and Armenians have their own schools.

Justice.

Justice is administered by the provincial governors, and shums, or petty chiefs, with the right of appeal to the Emperor. The Fetha Nagast, or Code of Laws, deals with ecclesiastical, civil and penal law. The legal system is said to be based on the Justinian Code. The penal code is based on the Mosaic law. Foreigners are subject to the jurisdiction of a special ('mixed') court or to their own consular Courts according to circumstances. Administration of Justice is very defective, but punishments for crimes are less barbarous than formerly.

Defence.

The Abyssinian Army in the field consists of two main parts. The standing army composes the nucleus, and the remainder of the forces are drawn from the chiefs and their retainers summoned in time of war, a sort of militia. Besides the above, a varying number of irregulars join the army on the outbreak of war, every man, except the priests, being an actual or potential soldier. The standing army, instituted by Menelik, forms in effect the paid standing garrison of each province, and amounts altogether to something under 100,000 men. Both they and the militia, amounting to perhaps 300,000–400,000 men, are very loosely organized, and have nothing in the shape of transport, and little modern equipment. Practically every man is armed with a rifle, and often with shield and sword as well. A Belgian military mission was engaged in 1929 and is now at work training some 1,500 men of the Royal Bodyguard. The latter is armed with a certain amount of modern armament, including a 5-ton tank given to the king by the Duke of Abruzzi during his visit to Abyssinia in May, 1927. A beginning has been made with the formation of an Air Force, which has been started under French auspices.

Agriculture and Industry.

The chief industries are pastoral and agricultural. Cattle, sheep, and goats are numerous. The horses of the country are small but hardy, and make excellent polo ponies; mules are bred, being used as pack animals; donkeys are also small and serve for baggage animals. The soil belongs theoretically to the Negus; the idea of landed property scarcely exists among the populace, and agriculture is therefore backward. Cotton, the sugar-cane, date-palm, coffee, and vine thrive well in many districts, but, except coffee, are nowhere extensively cultivated. The production of Harari coffee (long berry Mocha) is on the increase. Besides this, which is cultivated, there grows more especially in southern and western Abyssinia a wild coffee plant, yielding a berry known as Abyssinian coffee, which grows in extensive forests. The supply is said to be unlimited. The native produce includes hides and skins, wax, barley, millet (dhurra), wheat, gesho (which serves as a substitute for hops), and tobacco; but, with the exception of hides, skins, wax, grain and coffee, not in sufficient quantities for export. Manufacturing industries are practically non-existent. The forests abound in valuable trees including rubber. Iron is found in some districts and is manufactured into spears, knives, hatchets, &c. Placer gold mining and washing are carried on in the western districts; coal, copper and sulphur have been found, also platinum. There are said to be valuable deposits of potash salts in the Asal salt plains in the north-eastern part of the country, and their exploitation has been carried on with the aid of Italian capital.

Foreign enterprise has begun to establish itself in the country; three Belgian companies are working coffee plantations, and a Franco-Belgian company is experimenting on a large scale with cotton. Foreign capital is also interesting itself in mining.

Commerce.

The total trade of Abyssinia (export and import) in 1927 was valued at about 1,000 million francs (French).

The principal artery of trade is the Franco-Ethiopian railroad, but caravans also do a large trade in the interior. The chief trade routes besides the railway are the following:—(1) Khartum-Gambeila, Khartum-Gallabat, and Sudan; (2) Mombasa-Nairobi-Moyale (British East Africa); (3) Zeila Jijiga, Hargeisa-Ogaden (British Somaliland); (4) Massawa-Asmara-Gondard Assab-Dessie (Italian Eritrea); (5) Mogadishu-Lugh-Dolo-Arusi (Italian Somaliland).

The exports consist mainly of hides and skins (including leopard and monkey), coffee, wax, ivory, civet, and native butter. The imports comprise grey sheeting, cotton yarns, artificial silk, corrugated sheets and bars, hardware cement, kerosene and petrol, glass and salt. The imports are chiefly from England, France, India, Italy, Germany, Japan, and the United States. The value of the leading imports into Abyssinia from and via the Sudan in 1929 were:—cotton and silk goods, £E.34,159 (£E.38,487 in 1928); salt, £E 19,665 (£E.10,797 in 1928); other goods, £E.22,839 (£E.33,098 in 1928). Exports from Abyssinia to and via the Sudan in 1929 were:—coffee, £E.216,590 (£E.186,542 in 1928); other goods, £E.20,221 (£E 15,243 in 1928).

The total trade between Abyssinia and Great Britain for 5 years (according to Board of Trade returns) was as follows:—

—	1926	1927	1928	1929	1930
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from Abyssinia	104,892	233,811	351,079	166,891	227,777
Exports to Abyssinia	16,368	16,051	19,954	33,785	33,343

Communications.

Roads in Abyssinia are mere tracks, and transport is effected by means of mules, pack-horses, donkeys, and, in some places, camels. In the capital and its vicinity several miles of metalled road were constructed in 1926. In 1896 the Franco-Ethiopian Railway Co. was formed for the construction of a line from Jibuti in French Somaliland, which reached the capital in 1917. The line is of metre gauge, with a total length of 488½ miles. Trains run twice weekly in each direction, covering the distance in three days, but running by day only. The railway is under French management, and depends financially on a subvention from the French government.

Considerable interest is now being taken in road construction. Chief among the roads now under consideration or actually under construction are the following: Dessie-Assab, Addis Ababa,-Jimma, Jijiga-Berbera, Dim Dawa-Harar, Gore-Gambeila, Addis Ababa-Lake Tsana. The total road mileage of all kinds is estimated at about 2,050 miles, of which about 1,000 miles are caravan tracks.

There are telegraph lines under Italian control (about 2,000 miles) connecting Addis Ababa with Harrar, with Sidamo, and with Massawa in Eritrea. Telephone lines connect Addis Ababa with Harrar, and Jibuti in French Somaliland, also with Gore and Gambeila (in the west), Jimma and Sharada (south-west), Dessie (north), and Debra Tabor and Gojjam, and with Ankober, and Asmara with Adua and Borromeida. In 1925, there were 10 post offices.

Money and Credit.

The Bank of Abyssinia, with authorised capital of 500,000*l.* and paid-up capital of 125,000*l.*, has its head office at Addis Ababa and agencies at Diré Dawa, Goré, Gambeila and Dessie. By its constitution the Governor of the National Bank of Egypt is its President, and its governing body sits at Cairo. The Government proposes to purchase the Bank of Abyssinia.

The current coin of Abyssinia is the Maria Theresa dollar (nominally worth about 2*s.*, but greatly depreciated as a result of the fall in the value of silver) weighing 28·0668 grammes, ·8333 fine, and the Menelik dollar, weighing 28·075 grammes, ·835 fine. It has nominally the same value as the Maria Theresa dollar, but in some places it is not taken at all. Other silver coins are the half, quarter, sixteenth (girsh or piastre) of a dollar, and there is also a copper coin, the besa (= one thirty-second of a dollar). The number of piastres or besa obtainable for a dollar although theoretically fixed by law, is in fact liable to constant fluctuation. Various articles, however, are used as medium of exchange; bars of salt are accepted as money in many parts of the country, at a fluctuating rate according to supply and cost of transport. Cartridges are also currency, although to a diminishing extent; and in most places barter prevails.

The Maria Theresa dollar was originally minted in Vienna in the middle of the 18th century.

The metric system of weights and measures is used to a certain extent in the capital and district bordering the railway line. The principal native weights and measures, which are also used in trade with foreigners, are shown below.

Natr = 30 okets, approximately 1 lb. 14 ozs. avoirdupois.

Farasula = 20 natrs, approximately 37½ lbs.

Kantar = 100 lbs.

1 Waggia (for ivory) = 480 dollars' weight.

1 ,, (for rubber) = 640 dollars' weight.

Lineal Measures.

Kinnd = French Coudée (length of forearm and hand) = cubit = 50 centimetres = 19¾ inches.

Khalad = 130 kinnds = 65 metres = 213½ feet, say 71 yards.

Land Measure.

The measure is a Gasha, which varies according to the quality of the land, and ranges between 15 khalads by 25 khalads, and 7 khalads by 11 kkalads, the latter equalling roughly 80 acres.

GRAIN MEASURES.

10 kounna = 1 ladan.
2 ladan = 1 dawala = 80 kilos.

MEASURE FOR HONEY AND CIVET.

10 wanche (horn cups) = 1 goundo = about 3 litres.

AFGHÁNISTÁN.

AFGHÁNISTÁN is a country of Asia lying between parallels 29° and 38° 20 of north latitude, and 61° and 72° of east longitude, with a long narrow strip extending to 75° east longitude (Wákhán). For the boundaries, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1925, pp. 654–55; for the treaty of November 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK 1928, p. 642; and for earlier British relations with Afghánistán, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, pp. 662-3.

Government.—The government of Afghánistán is, since 1922, a constitutional monarchy with Legislative and State Assemblies, and a cabinet presided over by the Prime Minister. The Prime Minister and the Cabinet are responsible to the Grand National Assembly. Besides the Permanent Grand Assembly there is a Loi Jirga (Grand Council) which meets every fourth year. The King presides over this Council in person. The title of King instead of Amír was adopted in 1926. The country is divided into five major provinces of Kábul, Mezar, Kandahár, Herat, and Kataghan-Badakhshán; and four minor provinces: Simat-i-Mashriqi (i.e. Eastern Province), Simat-i-Janubi (Southern Province), Farah, and Maimena. Each province is under a governor (called in major provinces Naib-ul-Hukumeh and in minor provinces Hakim-i-'Aala).

There are separate departments of War, Foreign Affairs, Internal Affairs, Education, Commerce, Justice, and Revenue, each in charge of a Minister and two departments (1) Health; (2) Posts and Telegraphs, under director-generals.

Reigning King.—Nadir Khan, born on April 10, 1885, was called to the throne on October 16, 1929, after a successful campaign against Habibullah Ghazi, who had assumed power on the abdication of King Amanullah.

Area and Population.—The extreme breadth of Afghánistán from north-east to south-west is about 700 miles; its length from the Herát frontier to the Kháibar Pass, about 600 miles; the area is given variously as about 245,000 or 270,000 square miles. Population, according to the latest estimate, about eleven millions. The languages spoken are Persian and Pushtoo, and Turkish in Turkistan and parts of Badakhshán. The predominant religion is Islam.

The largest towns are Kábul, the capital (population about 100,000), Kandahár (population with suburbs 60,000), Herát (population 121,000), and Mazar-i-Sharif (46,200).

Education.—Elementary and secondary schools exist throughout the country. Both elementary and secondary education are free. There are at present eight primary and secondary schools in Kábul.

Justice.—The law is based on the Shara' or Islamic law. Lower Courts (Mahakima-i-Ibtidaia) are established in each seat of government, and Higher Courts (Mahakima-i-Murafiaah) may have appeals from the former brought before them. A High Court in Kábul is the supreme judicial authority. In many instances efforts are made by litigants to compose their differences by the aid of unofficial juries in each locality.

Finance.—The revenue of Afghánistán is subject to considerable fluctuations. The Government share of the produce recoverable is said to from vary one-third to one-tenth according to the advantages of irrigation. The total revenue is estimated at about seventy million rupees, a considerable portion of which is found from Customs.

Defence.—The Army, which is being reorganised, will probably consist of 25,000 to 30,000 regular troops of all arms, and in time of war these would be supported by considerable numbers of tribesmen in the form of irregulars. There is also a small air force, officered by Afghans trained in Europe.

Production and Industry.—Although the greater part of Afghánistán is more or less mountainous, and a good deal of the country is too dry and rocky for successful cultivation, yet there are many fertile plains and valleys, which, with the assistance of irrigation from small rivers or wells, yield very satisfactory crops of fruit, vegetables, and cereals. The castor-oil plant, madder, and the asafœtida plant abound. Fruit, viz. the apple, pear, almond, peach, quince, apricot, plum, cherry, pomegranate, grape, fig, mulberry, is produced in profuse abundance. They form a staple food of a large class of the people throughout the year, both in the fresh and preserved state, and in the latter condition are exported in great quantities. The fat-tailed sheep is native to Afghánistán. These sheep furnish the principal meat diet of the inhabitants, and the grease of the tail is a substitute for butter. The wool and skins not only provide material for warm apparel, but also furnish the country's main article of export.

Northern Afghánistán is reputed to be tolerably rich in copper, and lead and iron are found in many parts. Coal is found in the Ghorband Valley and near the Khurd Kábul Pass. Gold in small quantities is also brought from the Laghmán Hills and Kunar. Badakhshan is said to be the only country in the world to produce first-quality lapis lazuli. This is smuggled in considerable quantities to China and Bokhara.

Silks, felts, carpets, articles from camels' and goats' hair, are some of the principal industries. At Kábul there are factories for the manufacture in small quantities of matches, buttons, leather and boots. There is also a 'Machine-Khana' where arms and ammunition, boots and clothing, etc., for the army are manufactured. It also includes a mint. All these factories are State-owned and supervised.

Commerce.—No accurate registration of the trade of Afghánistán has yet been obtained.

Of the exports from India to Afghánistán the chief items are cotton goods, indigo and other dyeing materials, sugar, hardware, leather and silver treasure. The imports into India include timber, fruits and vegetables, grain and pulse, ghi and other provisions, asafœtida and other drugs, spices, wool, silk, cattle, hides, and tobacco.

Communications.—Afghánistán joined the Postal Union in 1928.

The trade routes of Afghánistán are as follows:—From Persia by Meshed to Herát; from Bokhára by Merv to Herát; from Bokhára by Karshi, Balkh, and Khulm to Kábul; from East Turkistán by Badakhshán and Nuristan (formerly Kafiristan) to Kábul; from India by the Khaibar road to Kábul; from India by the Gomál Pass to Ghazní and Kelat-i-Ghilzai; from Chaman, the terminus of the North-Western Railway beyond Quetta, to Kandahár and thence to Kábul or Herát; from Parachinar (Kurram) via Peiwar and Shutargardan Passes to Logar and Kábul.

There are no railways in the country. The following roads are fit for motor traffic, except after snow or heavy rain, but are badly constructed and mostly unmetalled: Kháibar–Kábul, Kábul–Kandahár, Kábul–Gardez, Kandahár–Chaman, and Kábul–Bamian. In addition there are some 200 miles of minor roads fit for motor traffic, mostly in the vicinity of Kábul. Merchandise, however, is still transported chiefly on camel or pony back. There are practically no navigable rivers in Afghánistán, and timber is the only article of commerce conveyed by water, floated down stream in rafts. Telephones are installed in a few of the larger towns. There is telegraphic communication between Peshawar–Kábul, Kábul–Kandahár, Kandahár–Chaman. A wireless installation connects Kábul with Eastern Europe and India.

Money and Currency.—There are two currencies in circulation, the 'Afghani' and the 'Kabuli.' Roughly 10 Afghani equals 11 Kabuli. Gold coins:—1 Amani = 20 Afghani; ½ amani = 10 Afghani; 2 amania = 30 Kabuli; 1 amania = 15 Kabuli; ½ amania = 7½ Kabuli. Silver coins: Afghani, ½ Afghani; 1 Kabuli, Kran or ½ Kabuli. Copper coins: 20 Pul, 10 Pul, 5 Pul, 2 Pul, 1 Pul (all Afghani). Abbasi equals ⅓ Kabuli (Kabuli). Afghani currency is gradually replacing the Kabuli.

Weights and Measures.—The metric units have now officially replaced the old Afghani units—the Gaz-i-shah (the Persian Zar), the linear standard equal to 40·95 inches; the Gaz-i-zarib, the square standard equal to 1,000 to 1,066 Gaz-i-shah or 1,294 to 1,379 square yards, about ¼ acre; and the Gaz-i-nix memar, the cubic standard equal to one cubic Gaz-i-shah or 1,625 cubic feet. All avoirdupois weights, formerly current hitherto under the name nakhud (3 grains), are now in terms of the gramme.

ALBANIA.

(SHQIPERIA.)

THE territory known as Albania is made up of the old Turkish Provinces of Scutari and of Yanina, and of parts of those of Kossovo and Monastir. The Albanian, from the point of view of their language are divided into two principal groups—the Ghegs, who live to the north of the river Shkumbi, and the Tosks in the south.
